Dear Mr. McCloskey:

Honorable Mr. Clausen:

Very best wishes to you and your family from Pastor Jim Jones and the members of Peoples Temple of the Disciples of Christ. We hope this Bicentennial year will mark for you the greatest success in your continued career of service to the people of our District.

May I explain a situation to you that has come up with a member of my church and ask if there is anything within your jurisdiction you can do to expedite the matter? [redacted] E 84 a citizen of Great Britain, married [redacted] who is a U.S. E 84 citizen and was in the process of getting permanent residence status when he moved to South America to assist in our denominational missionary project there. However at the time that his stay would extend beyond one year's time [redacted] did not apply E 84 for a "re-entry permit" upon leaving the U.S. Furthermore, through a mail communication breakdown, his immigration papers were not filed last year, causing him to lose several years' credit towards Becoming a U.S. citizen.

His wife has talked to the local Consulate for Guyana who started the process of filing for [redacted] new immigration E 84 card. With the assist of other [redacted] we have discovered that the process is a lengthy one, in which his papers will be referred to London, to Georgetown, and back to Washington for eventual approval. What would be most helpful to us at this point would be a letter from your office to the State Department recommending that [redacted] permanent E 84 residence status, rather than being converted, be credited to his citizenship once granted, and recommending any measures that might expedite the re-establishment of his permanent residence status.

Regaining his status as a permanent resident will relieve his wife and family of such mental stress and will facilitate his work as a Christian missionary.

With deep thanks and respectful greeting, I remain

Yours sincerely,

[redacted] E.O. 12356

[redacted] telephoned me this morning to express his concern about the large number of Americans arriving in Guyana sponsored by Bishop Jones of the People's Temple Mission. Specifically, [redacted] wanted to know if we had any information on Bishop Jones or his organization. He stated that over 400 immigrants have recently been scheduled to arrive in Guyana, but plans to have them arrive in a group fell through. They are now arriving in groups of 40 or 50 with the majority being elderly people. Of particular concern to [redacted] was an incident that allegedly occurred last Saturday night when 45 people arrived and were not met by a representative of the People's Temple until 6 a.m. the following morning. Apparently, one person attempted to leave the group at the airport but was prevented from doing so by another member of the group. [redacted] is attempting to confirm this report.

[redacted] is now very concerned that members of this organization are being transported to Guyana against their will. He is also concerned as to how these members will be able to live in Guyana since because of their age they are obviously unsuited for agricultural work at the People's Temple Farm in the Northwest Region. I informed [redacted] that the Embassy had no unfavorable information concerning either Bishop Jones or his religious organization. I indicated that they had been critical of the Nixon administration and its policy vis-a-vis Guyana, but that Bishop Jones had told me that he had been in contact with Mrs. Carter and that his religious organization is loosely affiliated with the South Baptist Conference which is the church that President Carter belongs to. I indicated to him that I was aware of the group of people coming into Guyana although I was not aware of their age. I continued that I would certainly be concerned as would the U.S. Government if members of this group were forced to leave the United States to come to Guyana under duress.

LIMITED OFFICIAL USE

I asked him to pass on the report of this incident that purportedly occurred Saturday night. I told [redacted] that members of the People's Temple had little contact with the Embassy unless they required passport services but that this was not unusual since the U. S. Government did not require that its citizens register with us. He promised to notify me if he had any additional information that would bear further scrutiny on our part.

RE: Peoples Temple

Dear Mr. McCoy;

I wish to thank you for your time in discussing the above matter with me during our telephone conversation of August 22, 1977 and I have taken your advice and contacted Mr. Tumminia, in our State Department, as well as the Guyana Embassy in Washington, D.C.

As I told you during our conversation, my initial call to you of three weeks ago, was in regard to simply finding out policy and attitudes. However, various matters have come to light over recent weeks and the concern of my clients prompted the additional inquiry of Monday last. Never-the-less, even though I represent certain people as a private investigator, I am a private citizen and therefore, required to abide by the laws and policies of our government, even though these people are desperate for the return of their children and wards.

Also, as I stated to you, this firm was initially involved only with regard to the return of three (3) children, whose parents or guardians retained us, but as matters progressed and the media became involved, many ex-temple members, previously afraid to speak out, did so and allegations of fraud, forgery, and other crimes were made and documented by these persons. At the same time, this firm became a clearing house for material and many additional people requested our assistance in ascertaining the whereabouts of children, wards, or relatives, particularly, senior citizens who had given away all of their worldly possessions and gone off to the "Guyana Paradise".

As matters now stand, we have been asked to assist in the location and possible return of several children, all under the age of eighteen (18) years and all citizens of the United States. I have attached a list of those children and the supporting documentation. Additionally, we have been asked to locate others, now in Guyana, if for no other reason than to inform them that their families and relatives are concerned and wish their return. These names are included on an attached separate list.

Lastly, many of these ex-temple members, while members, were required by Reverend Jones personally, or other high members of the Temple, to apply for passports and turn them over to the Temple. When these people left the Temple, they were not allowed to have their passports back and information has been received which indicates that these passports may be for sale on the black market at this time. I have attached a list of those persons whose passports were last known to be in the possession of the Temple.

I have contacted the attorneys whose names you kindly gave me from the list and will follow your suggestions as to proper procedure with regard to ascertaining the legalities of the return of the children. However, I feel that the passport matter belongs solely to the State Department and as a matter of course, I am inclosing a copy of this letter to Mr. Tumainia, along with the newspaper material and listings.

I do thank you for your assistance in this matter and hope that it can be resolved successfully.

Very truly yours,

PEOPLE'S TEMPLE MISSION

I met with [redacted] today to confirm her health and well being as requested by her mother in a letter to the Ambassador dated August 24, 1977. [redacted] told me she had talked to her mother last night and had heard that an additional letter had come in. Although I was aware that a second letter came in from [redacted] mother indicating she no longer requested us to contact her daughter, I was unable to contact [redacted] prior to her calling my office. E 86 E 86 E 86 E 86

I used this opportunity to discuss with [redacted] my recent trip to Jonestown and to emphasize to her that while a number of inquiries may be made at this time, no unusual inference should be drawn. I informed her that I had reported to Washington on the results of my visit and while I naturally, did not go into the details of what I reported, I did indicate to her that the information would not have been considered unfavorable toward the Temple. E 86

I explained to [redacted] the importance of creating a climate of mutual trust between the People's Temple and the Embassy because of the large number of Americans presently in Guyana. Moreover, with the possibility of more coming, it was essential that we establish lines of communications; e.g., since there are large numbers of elderly people at Jonestown, the Embassy will be verifying for the Social Security Administration their whereabouts and well being as is required annually by the Social Security Administration of those Americans who are living abroad and receiving social security benefits. Furthermore, the People's Temple had to expect these people will be dying and in that connection the Embassy would be responsible for preparing the official report of death. Also, in view of the isolated area of Jonestown and the likelihood that members of these elderly people will become ill, there will obviously be situations involving medical emergencies and, of course, the Embassy is prepared to assist in that regard whenever it could. E 86

There is also the probability that at some time immediate relatives of members of the People's Temple will become seriously ill or die in the United States, normally the Department is notified of the emergency by the relatives in the United States. I further pointed out to [redacted] that with the very large number of young children E 86 at Jonestown, the organization had to expect at some point the parents of these children will probably request their return to the United States so I will in all probability have to confirm that the children are in the country. Additionally, as I receive inquiries from immediate relatives of members here in Guyana it will be helpful if I can know immediately whether these people are in fact in Guyana and if so, where. Therefore, Bishop Jones and his staff should be aware of the multi faceted role that the Embassy has towards American citizens residing abroad and the services that we can provide. I stated that I had recommended to the Charge that myself or another Consular Officer visit the area every six months to perform whatever statutory services that are required and also as a way of maintaining contact with the group.

I told [redacted] that I realized that Bishop Jones and the organization were very concerned about attacks against them that had appeared primarily in the press in California so they would probably expect that at least in the near future, the Embassy would be receiving requests to determine health and well being of members of the organization. I reiterated that I only acted upon official requests from the U. S. Government and that in no way would the Embassy ever take sides in any disputes that may occur between members and former members of the organization. E.O. 86

In conclusion, I informed her in acting on official requests from Washington such as fugitives from justice from the United States, or child custody matters all such action would be coordinated with the Government of Guyana and in some cases such as child custody disputes settled in the Courts of Guyana. Naturally, once a decision is made all parties would be obligated to abide by the Court's decision.

COMMENT

I have been at pains to emphasize to the People's Temple that the Embassy is not prejudiced towards them because of the reports we have been receiving from the United States. I have tried to be objective and straightforward with all parties in this respect because, after all, the parties concerned are American citizens and as such are entitled to impartial, objective action and reporting by us. I believe it is vital that the People's Temple here believe we are objective since it is apparent that the Embassy will be involved in various actions concerning the People's Temple. In addition to this, of course, is the requirement that we be prepared to provide the statutory services that I enumerated to [redacted] earlier to Bishop Jones. I do not believe we would be performing our primary function of the protection of American citizens and their interests in Guyana if we found ourselves in a posture of suspicion and hostility between the Embassy and the People's Temple. This would only hurt us and those Americans who apparently, sincerely believe in and place their trust with Bishop Jones. This is not to say that I believe that all allegations made against the People's Temple are unfounded. It is simply that until it is proven that the People's Temple has violated the laws of Guyana and the United States, and that the organization has undermined the rights of their American citizen members in Guyana and subjected them to cruel and inhuman treatment, we must remain objective.

Dear [redacted] b6

I refer to your letter of September 28, 1977 to Mr. Jack Komitor of the Office of Special Consular Services concerning Mrs. Vera M. Talley, [redacted] b6 Mr. Komitor forwarded [redacted] b6 your letter for reply since Mrs. Talley was presumably in Guyana.

I have confirmed with the Guyanese Immigration Service that Mrs. Talley entered Guyana on August 4, 1977. Their records indicated that Mrs. Talley planned to live at the People's Temple Agricultural Community located near Port Kaituma in the Northwest District of Guyana.

It may interest you to know that I visited the Agricultural Community on August 30, 1977 to determine whether an American citizen was being held against her will. At that time I assisted in the return of one American member of the Community to the United States who no longer desired to remain with the People's Temple in Guyana. I met many newly arrived Americans although I do not recall specifically meeting Mrs. Talley. However members of the People's Temple introduced me to a large gathering of about fifty to sixty elderly Americans and announced the purpose of my visit. Presumably if anyone had wished to leave they could have done so. Living conditions at the Community are austere but everyone is housed and there is a small clinic with an American doctor. Those elderly people that I spoke to appeared to be enjoying their stay in Guyana.

It is very difficult for me to comment on your charges about Jim Jones and his control over the aged members of his group. Some are receiving Social Security checks here and they must endorse them before they are cashed. I presume that they turn over at least a portion of their monthly check in return for their room and board.

I have read a number of unfavorable articles about the People's Temple that have recently appeared in the U. S. Press. However, I have not learned of a single case of any American being held against their will here by the People's Temple. Apart from my visit to the townsite I know of several other visits made to the agricultural community by Guyanese Police and Government Officials. Here again individuals could have requested to leave but did not do so.

Nevertheless, on my next visit to the area which will be within 90 to 120 days, I will arrange a personal, private meeting with Mrs. Talley and inform you of the results of our conversation.

I hope the above information is helpful to you and [redacted] If you have any further questions or E 86 desire any additional information, please let me know.

Sincerely,

Richard A. McCoy

We would like your assistance in a matter that has become a grave concern to us and our family. [redacted] Bennett A. Griffith, his family and a large group of friends were members of the Peoples Temple Church in San Francisco. Their leader, or pastor as he is called is Jim Jones. He was active in our community and persuaded his fellow members to go with him to Guyana. Jones said that he would set up an Communal State (Commune) where they could find a new life and all could share in the profits of their labors.

[redacted] 1977. Now, news has been coming back that all is not well. There are reports of illness, forced labor and money, as the result of their labor being taken over by Jones and a small corps with an accounting mechanism for the group as a whole. Letters from [redacted] that we have received are vague and not written in their usual style. Misspelling of simple words and sentences that are incoherent lead us to believe that something is wrong. I have talked with people who have visited in Guyana but I hesitate to make specific statement or charges on hearsay evidence.

CONFIDENTIAL

MEMORANDUM

GUYANA - NORTHWEST DISTRICT.

PREFACE: This memorandum reports my observations during a trip to Matthews Ridge and Port Kaituma on August 29-30 and 31. It is designed to describe the infrastructure of the Government of Guyana (GOG) in the area including the Internal Security and Defense Forces in the district and mention briefly the productive sector of the region.

I. Infrastructure

A. Transportation - (1) Air: The area is serviced by scheduled thrice weekly air service between Georgetown and Matthews Ridge and twice weekly flights between Georgetown and Mabaruma. There is a weekly flight between Mabaruma, Matthews Ridge and Georgetown. Service is provided by Guyana Airways Corporation Siddely Hawkes twin-engine turbo-prop transport between Georgetown and Matthews Ridge and the smaller twin engined Islander between Mabaruma and Georgetown.

(2) Sea: The Northwest District is serviced by weekly steamer service that takes 22 hours between Georgetown and Mabaruma. Launches must then be hired to take individuals to selected points up the Barima, Kaituma and other major rivers. A canal was cut into the Kaituma River to permit oceangoing traffic (5,000 tons or smaller) to proceed to Port Kaituma.

(3) Land: At the present time it is not possible to travel overland from Georgetown to any points in the Northwest District. The terrain between the Coastal region and the District is rain forest and mountains that is continually cut by rivers and creeks.

(4) Rail: Within the Northwest District a narrow gauge rail line still operates daily between Matthews Ridge and Port Kaituma. This rail line carries passengers and freight and was originally constructed to haul manganese ore by an American mining company that closed down its operations about 5 years ago.

(5) Other: Apart from the railroad, all other transportation is either by truck or land rover over dirt roads hacked out of the wilderness. These roads presently are reportedly passable the year round although during the rainy season they can only be transited by four wheel drive vehicles. The main roads radiate from Matthews Ridge West to the Guyana National Service (GNS) camp at Papaya and North to Port Kaituma. There are trails leading West and South to the Venezuelan border but they are ill defined and presumably used only by the GNS or the Guyana Defense Force (GDF). The roads between Matthews Ridge and Port Kaituma (approximately 40 miles) follow the natural fold in the hilly rain forested area that is broken every so often by meadows. This region is watered by the Barima River that is reputed to contain gold and diamonds.

B. Government - Matthews Ridge is the regional center of the Government in the District. The Regional Minister resides here as does the Regional District Officer. There is also a Regional Agriculture Officer and a Medical Dispenser. The clinic is temporarily without a medical doctor. The government took over intact the building infrastructure left by the American manganese company. They have direct telephone communication with Georgetown rather than radio-telephone that is normal for other parts of the interior. There are also District Offices located at Port Kaituma and Mabaruma. The Government has an experimental agricultural farm (the Burnham Agricultural Station) at Arikaka, ten miles north of Matthews Ridge on the road to Port Kaituma. Matthews Ridge has a satellite city, Barima, with the usual rum shops, a school, a private guest house, and the aforementioned dispensary or clinic. As yet, there are no facilities for tourists to take advantage of the beautiful vistas of rolling rain forest that can be admired from the Government's VIP Guest House located on Matthews Ridge. Commercial transportation consists of hitching rides on a land rover or riding on a truck or the train that travels between Port Kaituma and Barima-Matthews Ridge.

II. Productive Sector

The Government's present thrust in the region is toward agriculture. They have been reasonably successful with cattle raising and ground provisions, including yams and cassava. There is also an American colony located about 5 miles southeast of Port Kaituma that is extensively engaged in agriculture and whose presence has provided momentum to the District's development plan. However, because of the region's remoteness, formidable problems must be surmounted. The GOG will have to develop further infrastructure in schools, housing, medical facilities and more reliable air and sea service if it is to properly exploit the area. The lack of decent schools, with the exception of Port Kaituma where a new multilateral school (high school) has just been completed, is the cause for many of the civil servants living in Matthews Ridge to leave their families in Georgetown. The GOG has only one Cuban contract doctor in the region and he is located at Mabaruma. Reportedly he has problems because his English is limited. There is an American doctor at the People's Temple Agricultural Mission who purportedly is ready to assist but in any genuine medical emergency the GDF must come in and fly out the injured or sick person. Mining is at a standstill in the area since the American company mining for manganese ore departed. There are some fish ponds for "fish farming" outside Matthews Ridge that are utilized to provide another source of protein. Potato cultivation was tried but was curtailed because of its lack of success.

GOG officials emphasized that their plans are to develop the infrastructure of the region so that its agricultural potential can be exploited. They believe the area is particularly suited to cattle raising, ground provisions and citrus. They anticipate that once they can attract more settlers and provide additional community services, the area will sustain itself and begin to provide for ancillary food industries. However, these plans will require a large infusion of capital which is beyond the ability of the Government to furnish in the foreseeable future.

Dear Mr. Carter,

I am writing you again regarding the situation in Georgetown, Guyana South America.

I would appreciate you looking into this matter as quickly as possible. These people need someone to help them get out of this drastic place as they cannot leave on their own. My son is there, & I would appreciate very much if you will, with the help of God bring him back home, along with the other people.

We cannot get in contact with these people in person

Nor can we contact them by telephone,

These are our love ones, & we want them home. Please help us get them back.

RECEIVED
NOV 29 1977

Dear Sir:

We would like your assistance in a matter that has become a grave concern to me and my family. [redacted] Emmett A. Griffith, his family and a large group of friends were members of the People Temple Church in San Francisco. Their leader, or people as he is called is Jim Jones. He was active in our community and promised his followers to go with him to Guyana. They were induced into giving up their home to the Peoples Temple Church, other worldly goods and their life savings to establish a better way of life. Jones said that he would set up an Communal Sight (Community) where they could find a new life and all would share in the profits of their labors. E.O. 12356

This was in 1977. Now, news has been coming back that all is not well. We hear reports of illness, forced labor and money, as the result of their labor being taken over by Jones and a small group with no accounting made to the group as a whole. Letters from [redacted] that we have received are vague and not written in his usual style. Misspelling of simple words and sentences that are inconclusive lead us to believe that something is wrong. I have talked with people who have visited in Guyana but I hesitate to make specific statement or charges on hearsay evidence. E.O. 12356

These people are all United States citizens and we would like [illegible] to be assured that they will be able to return.

Thank you for your attention in this matter. Will you please give a reply to this letter within ten days.

Sincerely yours,

To Mr. Alan Cranston;

Mr. Cranston, I am writting this letter regarding [redacted] E 96 in South America. It all started when he went to South America in march of this year, him + about a thousand other young men + women following this man by the name of Jim Jones, who has taken believing that he is god in flesh.

Gregory is 22yr of age + I realize that he is a full grown man, who can do as he please, my concern is to ask you, if you would please help me find out if he is being held against his will which, myself + a lot of other parents feel that they are, and that they are being treated as slaves. Gregory has been gone 9 month + I have received a letter from him which did say practilly the same thing, he never answers any of the questions that I ask him, it appears as though he is being told what to say + what not to say.

I have also heard that this Jim Jones has these people working in fields, but starving to death, + if one dies they simply dig a hole + bury them.

I understand that there is a United States Ambassador there who can find out what in going on. Would you please contact him for me and let me know if Gregory is alright + if he is ete to come home. Also let me know what I should do.

I am sending a photo of [redacted] b6 his name is Gregory [redacted] Within Age: 22
Ht: 5'7
Weight between 165 + 170 when I last seen him.

Nationality - Blk.

This man by the name of Jim Jones was having his meetings down town S.F. on Ellis at the P.G. temple. When you would enter the church women + men had to leave their wallets + purses in front before entering the church. I tried to tell Greg that something was wrong but he wouldn't listen.

When they all left San Francisco Jim Jones told them they were going to New York, but instead put them on a ship + to South America & they went.

They all took the same address yet they tell me what a nice home he has & he must be enjoying staying there I just don't believe it. Please let me know as soon as possible what is going on. Thank you very much

Dear

E 156

Your letter of December 6, 1977, to the Attorney General, concerning a Pastor Jim Jones, has been referred to the Criminal Division.

In recent years the Department of Justice has received numerous complaints from the distressed parents of members of various religious sects, alleging that their adult children are the victims of "brainwashing" by leaders of these groups. Typically, the parents allege that new members are subjected to intensive indoctrination accompanied by inadequate amounts of food and sleep with the result that they become "programmed" to obey the wishes and commands of the sect leaders, and cease thinking for themselves.

Initially, I would like to point out that the First Amendment's protection of religious freedom is not limited to the traditional and well established religions. This protection applies to all religions and embraces the right to maintain religious beliefs which are rank heresy to followers of traditional faiths. In view of these constitutional protections, the Department of Justice cannot conduct a general inquiry into the activities of any religious group. Any investigation must be based on an allegation of a violation of Federal law.

In your letter, you allege that a loved one and others are being held in bondage in Georgetown, Guyana by Pastor Jim Jones. This allegation, by itself, does not indicate a violation of Federal law. However, if you are in possession of any additional information which might indicate a Federal violation, I urge you to furnish this information to the nearest office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Since your letter indicates that United States citizens are being held against their will in a foreign country, I am forwarding a copy of your letter to the Department of State.

I hope this information will be of some assistance to you.

Georgetown, Guyana,

Hon. Mr. Wills:

I am very interested in U.S. foreign policy toward Guyana and her Caribbean neighbors. I heard about Mrs. Carter's trip to Puerto Rico; her tone was promising in regards to the widening of trade relations between the U.S. and the Caribbean nations. I hope this will be the case, as all parties will surely benefit.

I have great admiration for natinns like Guyana who have successfully established a humane government for its people, and who are able to maintain their sovereignty within the world community. It's also very impressive that your government has been so receptive and helpful to the agricultural project established there by Peoples Temple; whose work here for the poor and disadvantaged is widely acclaimed, too. I hope the strengthening of U.S.-Guyana ties will be beneficial to your economic developement, and I'm urging my President and Senator to advocate any legislation which would be helpful in this regard.

Re prob at US Embassy in Guyana caused by incit, Timothy C. Stoen over child custody case

January 15, 1978

Senator John Sparkman, Chairman
Senate Foreign Relations Committee
4229 DSOB
Washington, D.C. 20510

JAN 19 1978

Dear Senator Sparkman:

By profession I am a high school teacher. I am a member of the local Republican Central Committee, P.E.O. Chapter, and have served as president of a branch of the American Heart Association. Currently I am a member of the Board of Directors of the many thousand member Christian denomination to which I belong. I have travelled throughout Europe, Canada, and South America both on scholarships and in the capacity of missionary. The credentials are meager, and I only cite them to represent myself to you as a concerned and involved American citizen who is bringing to your attention a matter of importance regarding the image of our country abroad.

It appears that a North American who is currently in South America (Guyana) for the purpose of prosecuting a legal matter, specifically a custody case, was on a brief visa issued to him by the Guyanese government. Mr. Stoen, the individual in question, begged or connived the U.S. Embassy representative, Mr. Richard McCoy, to intervene for him and see that he be allowed to stay in the country beyond the period of time alloted to him by the host country. He convinced Mr. McCoy to call the airline and cancel his plane flight out that he might stay longer, with the blessings of the U.S. government, to pursue his case further.

Evidently Mr. McCoy obliged him and exercised power which superseded the directive of the Guyanese government to Mr. Stoen. I cannot know what his motives were for doing this, but the act itself has caused waves of shock among Guyanese and among North Americans who are familiar with the situation.

In view of the improved relations with this and other Caribbean nations which the current administration in Washington has been so careful to cultivate, I should think the use of this kind of pressure would be a real source of concern for the State Department. I am fairly familiar with the political trends in the Caribbean and understand the countries of that region are on a see-saw between their allegiances to Communist-block countries and to the West. As a former colony, the country where this particular incident has taken place is very sensitive to foreign intrusion of any sort, on any level. I think our heavy-handed manipulation of internal events there can only prove foolhardy and detrimental to our interests in the long run.

With respect,

[redacted]

Congressman Phillip Burton

Mr. Theodore Heavner, Director

Office of Caribbean Affairs
U.S. State Department
Main State Building
Washington, D.C. 20520

Dear Mr. Heavner:

A disturbing set of events has come to my attention which I think warrants your consideration, concerning the relationship of our country with a Latin American small nation, Guyana. Up to this point, I understand that newly independent Guyana has neither aligned herself with the East nor the Soviets, but the incidents I have heard described may tip the scale, away from the U.S., if we don't take heed soon.

A Mr. Timothy O. Stoen, an American citizen, absorbed in a custody battle in which his own paternity is of question, has seen fit to stir up hostile waters in Guyana in hopes of swaying the Guyanese courts to his perspective. His methods are outrageous, the ultimate "Ugly American", and the effect has backfired on him to the effect that the Guyanese are offended and insulted by his deceptions. A poor representative of the U.S., I'm afraid.

Mr. Stoen traveled to Guyana, and had the nerve to declare he was sent there by a Guyanese government officer, when there was no basis to this claim at all. He went so far as to have various telephone calls placed, to the court in which his custody suit was being heard. The calls were found to be made on the scene, yet the callers claimed they were members of the American government calling long distance on Mr. Stoen's behalf. The result was that the Guyanese were not fooled; the deception failed but it succeeded in bolstering any existing doubts and suspicions as to the United States' efforts at communication with Guyana.

The long-range effects, however, are disturbing and that is why I wrote you. In your position, I think it is worth your time to consider the negative influence towards the U.S. Mr. Stoen has managed to convey in Guyana. My concern is that the Guyanese will see his maneuvers as interference and further alienate them from any hoped-for meaningful relationship with the U.S. The past year's efforts of our country at communication with the Carribean countries, with visits by Mrs. Carter and Ambassador Young, have been indeed encouraging. The signing of the Panama Treaty brought many Carribean leaders to the U.S., including Guyanese. Yet now, with this interference on the part of Mr. Stoen, I fear that the inroads gained through the past year may have been lost. The Guyanese are a proud people. A history of foreign colonialism has brought them a distrust of "outsiders," which can be broached through reasonable, mutually respective relations. I therefore request that you do all within your power to see that such interference in Guyanese internal affairs ceases. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Congressman Phillip Burton

Dear [redacted]

I refer to your inquiries with the Department of State concerning your daughter [redacted] currently residing in Guyana.

A consular officer from the American Embassy in Georgetown, Guyana, visited the People's Agricultural Temple at Jonestown on January 11. At that time the officer spoke to [redacted] concerning your desire to have [redacted] returned to your custody. [redacted] stated that she considered [redacted] to be [redacted] and under no circumstances would she return [redacted] to your custody.

The American Embassy has also approached the appropriate Guyanese authorities concerning your desire to remove [redacted] from her grandmother's custody. The Embassy was informed that under the laws of Guyana, only the Guyanese courts have the authority to make legally binding decisions concerning the custody of children physically present in Guyana. Therefore failing a voluntary surrender of [redacted] by her grandmother your only legal recourse would be to engage a local attorney in Guyana and obtain a custody ruling from the Guyanese courts. I enclose a list of attorneys in Guyana for use should you wish to retain legal counsel.

Should you decide to seek a court order in Georgetown the American Embassy will offer all appropriate assistance during the proceedings. It would assist the Embassy to know in advance of any plans you might have to travel to Guyana and also to have copies of any U.S. custody decrees prior to your arrival. If you would notify this office of any plans and send us copies of any pertinent documents, we will be happy to pass these to the Embassy in Guyana.

Dear Sir,

Recently I had the opportunity [illegible] Board of Our Western Trail [illegible] fest here in California, he was to some other prevocat[illegible] about US involvement in supporting right-wing governments throughout Latin America. I didn't know whether to believe him or not at the time, but recently some of the activities of our [illegible] ment representatives in Guyana have made me wonder.

Richard McCoy, our Ambassador there appears to be [illegible] one of our citizens in an attempt to interfere with a matter [illegible] out of its jurisdiction. This US citizen, Jim Steen, claims to come to settle a custody case, at the insistance of a high [illegible] Guyanese official. However their government denies this. In [illegible] of this and other reports about Mr. Steen's [illegible] from US officials to lend weight to his case, why does our [illegible] feel it so important to support this kind of activity? [illegible] does he get the authority to interfere with Mr. Steen's [illegible] departure? I find Mr. McCoy's actions disturbing. Is this [illegible] State Department procedure? And is it true that our State [illegible] might imply to the Guyanese government that things [illegible] go well for their citizens in this country if Mr. Steen did [illegible] get his stay prolonged?

Dear Mr. Burton:

Thank you for your inquiry of January 31 on behalf of [redacted] concerning the custody of the child [redacted]. Tim Steen. E.O. 12356

All the parties to the case, currently in the courts in Guyana, are American citizens. The parents of the child are on one side and the Temple, a California religious organization which also operates in Guyana, on the other.

Our Ambassador and his staff in Guyana have taken an interest in the case, but have emphasized that the interest of the United States is confined to assuring that the matter is fairly and impartially adjudicated in the courts strictly on its merits and without outside interference from any quarter. Consistent with this position, the Embassy has avoided taking any sides in what is essentially a civil dispute between two groups of Americans. Nor has any pressure been brought by the Embassy on the Government of Guyana or its courts, which have yet to rule on the matter, in favor of one side or the other.

We have noted [redacted] concerns arose re activities of Mr. Steen while he was visiting Guyana recently. The Department is unaware of any illegal activities being undertaken by Mr. Steen during his visit to Guyana. E.O. 12356

Dear Senator Cranston:

Thank you for your inquiry of January 25 on behalf of [redacted] concerning the custody [redacted] of the child [redacted].

All the parties to the case, currently in the courts in Guyana, are American citizens. The parents of the child are on one side and the People's Temple, a California religious organization which also operates in Guyana, on the other.

Our Ambassador and his staff in Guyana have taken an interest in the case, but have emphasized that the interest of the United States is confined to assuring that the matter is fairly and impartially adjudicated in the courts strictly on its merits and without outside interference from any quarter. Consistent with this position, the Embassy has avoided taking any sides in what is essentially a civil dispute between two groups of Americans. Nor has any pressure been brought by the Embassy on the Government of Guyana or its courts, which have yet to rule on the matter, in favor of one side or the other.

The inquiries made by the American Embassy on behalf of the child's parents were normal protective services which any American citizen abroad could expect to receive from his government. The inquiries were not in any way directed to the matter of the case which is presently before the courts.

The Honorable
Alan Cranston,
United States Senate.

I trust this information will assist you in replying to your constituent's letter. If you have any further questions you may direct them to Frank Tumminia, Officer-in-Charge of Guyana, ARA/CAR, Room 3242 or phone (202) 632-3449.

Dear Gentlemen:

The progressive stand that President Carter and his administration has taken regarding U.S. and Caribbean affairs is one that I very much agree with. Realizing that Ambassador Young has worked diligently to establish these positive relations, I would hate to see his efforts being undermined. This, I am afraid may happen to some extent because of the presumptuous actions of one U.S. citizen, Tim Stoen.

Mr. Stoen has misrepresented his intentions, not only to the Guyanese government officials, but to some U.S. officials also. He is asking different people in the U.S. government to become involved in a private custody dispute within the country of Guyana, So. America. I understand that you gentlemen were approached by Mr. Stoen and he evidently was able to misconstrue some of the facts in this case sufficiently so as to cause you to go against already existing foreign policy of non-intervention in the domestic affairs of sovereign nations.

The United States has some very effective 'goodwill ambassadors' in the nation of Guyana, by the name of Peoples Temple church and Rev. James Jones. There are well over 1,000 people located at the church mission site in the North West District of Guyana. The services that the various members give to the surrounding communities include access to the Temple's doctor and entire medical staff free of cost; technical training in both agriculture and numerous mechanical area; quality education for children and adults by certified teachers on location; additional protein supply to the area, introduced by the thousands of chickens, pigs, and various livestock on the project itself, and many, many other aspects as well. Peoples Temple also carries on human service programs in their San Francisco based church. Both the Temple and their pastor, are widely known and respected for the good works they carry on.

Please Congressman Wirth and Congressman Miller, reconsider your involvement in a matter which should be taken care of solely in the Guyanese court room without intervention from any outside forces.

Sincerely,

Dear Gentlemen:

As a rank and file trade unionist in San Francisco and other cities for many years, I am very well acquainted with Rev. Jim Jones and his activist church, Peoples Temple. That this church, over a span of two decades, has successfully reached thousands of troubled youth as well as disenfranchised and needy senior citizens, can only be attributed to the man's deep commitment to justice and an egalitarian society. His efforts have resulted in a highly acclaimed agricultural project in Guyana, South America, where hundreds of once incorrigible youth from the inner cities of the United States are now living productive lives, growing and harvesting food for hungry people -- of whom there are so many in that part of the world.

Despite the visits of international delegations from many Third World and other developing nations, from top officials in the United States Department of State, all of whom have left the project highly impressed, there have been some unfortunate attempts on the part of certain detractors to try to interfere with the progress there.

Namely, a Mr. Timothy Stoen, has been trying to swing the opinion of the courts in Guyana to his side of a custody case that is being tried there now. To do this, he has evidently encouraged members of Congress and the State Department of our cantry to take an adversary role in the issue. If this is the case, I am disappointed with our governmental officials. Recognizing that Guyana is an independent and sovereign nation, and has a legitimate complaint if the United States intrudes in matters that are the country's own internal affairs, I urge you not to endorse any sort of pressure that Mr. Stoen is trying to bring to bear on the Guyanese government or courts.

Thank you. I remain sincerely yours,

Cyrus R. Vance
Secretary of State
the U.S. State Department
2201 "C" St. N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20520

Dear Secretary Vance:

Even when legal matters are involved, or the interest of our country at stake, only a very callous person would not see that it is wrong to use a child as a pawn, especially in what appears to be a "dirty war" from the start.

John (Stoen) Jones is being used as a pawn to serve the intersts of Mr Timothy Stoen, who knowingly and very willingly left the child in Guyana several months back. He vowed to countless people there that it was where John would remain. He also himself witnessed the abandonment of the child by his mother, Grace Stoen, and the trauma that resulted to John over it.

The simple fact remains, though, that there are legitimate legal interests involved, as well as legitimate interests for our nation to consider in diplomatic relations over this custody matter. This is a case under Guyanese jurisdiction, as it should surprise no-one, being that the mother sent the child to Guyana, and Tim Stoen insisted the child remain there. The Guyanese could only be resentful of U.S. intrusion in their court system as we would be of foreign intervention in ours. Moreover, the government there is so pleased with the progress of the agricultural, educational and medical work being undertaken by the Peoples Temple on behalf of the whole area, that it has especially designated the Project as a place through which visiting dignitaries are frequently brought. And it appears that the custody battle being whipped up in conjunction with efforts to hurt the Project as a whole, a Project that the Guyanese government wants and supports. At the very least, Mr. Secretary, I hope you will check with Ambassador McCoy who visited the Project personally, as have many many other officials with glowing comments entered in the guest book.

Our people in Guyana (some 1500) and the many thousands here in the States feel very adamant about this entire issue. There are countless testimonies -in the thousands-- that Rev. Jim Jones is a man of peace. He has received commendations from the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, the California State Legislature, was named amongst the top 100 clergymen in the nation / Religion in American Life, received the Martin Luther King Award, Humanitarian of the Year Award from a leading Southern California paper, and the Freedom of the Press Award from the National Newspaper Publishers Association, to name a few, plus years of commendations by leaders in every field, some of which are enclosed. He has been praised by U.S. and Guyanese officials alike for the work in Guyana, which is a credit to both countries. We are openly supportive of the many positive U.S. efforts towards improving relations within our hemisphere, and work to that end.

There is reason to question Mr. Stoen's real interest in this matter. He and others had tried to use all of the church as a "pawn" to set us off on a wrong course that would hurt our country and also ourselves. We are a non-violent people, and always rejected their ideas. Now I have come to suspect Mr. Stoen's motivations from the beginning (although he had always claimed great allegiance to the church and Rev. Jones), because now that we have a segment of our people successfully established in a peaceful agricultural setting (many came from the inner cities), he has set about trying to actively disrupt the work from "without", where it is so obviously impossible to even attempt to disrupt our work from "within". I would not doubt that he has landed on a defenseless innocent, a young child, and Rev. Jones' own child to boot, because he thinks that this is the point that will hurt Rev. Jones and the group (by identification) the most. He and Grace Stoen have shown it is not the child they are interested in. Why otherwise would she cash in the plane ticket she was given to visit her son anytime she chose?

It is cruel to use a child in this way. The people at the Project in Guyana know the backgrounds of Tim and Grace Stoen, and they are outraged at this new effort to ruin the child's future. They stand by Rev. Jones, and will stand up for how he has made a peaceful, productive future possible for them and their children.

As the head of our State Department, even if the issue of the child were not involved, I think you would want to support the Project, not hurt it. It is the best example of American friendship, industry, and goodwill in the Third World. Our people there feel very harmonious towards the U.S. government, and many from the inner cities are able to see things alot more clearly than they could from their previously troubled environments. They only want to work for peace, all the people on the Project, to build a better life for everyone in our two countries. They are suceeding at this remarkably.

I think when you consider these facts, you will not be swayed by any pressure exerted on your office.

Respectfully yours,

The Honorable Cyrus Vance

Dear Mr. Secretary:

I would like to express to you my grave concern about [redacted] who are now living in Guyana--with the People's Temple--a communal church led by Mr. Jim Jones.

I have not heard from them for almost two years and my letters to the Temple have not been forwarded to them, but have been returned to me. [redacted] who was also in the Temple, left it two years ago. From her, I have learned a variety of things that have occurred and are practiced in the People's Temple. Some of these include the public beating of church members, their degradation before the assembled congregation, the signing of self-incriminating statements, and so on. I personally have been shown, by a Mr. Chaikin, one of the Temple attorneys, a copy of one such self-incriminating statement. At the time I was shown the statement, he and other Temple representatives were telling me that [redacted] was having sexual relations with her foster father, in order (I suspect) to enlist my support in returning her to Temple membership. I came to the conclusion, in my contacts with Temple representatives, that the Temple is a very powerful organization which is paranoid in philosophy (society will attempt to crush us) and is very secretive concerning its operations. I also came to the conclusion that it systematically limits the information and news received by its members concerning the rest of society, and by persuasion and coercion actively attempts to prevent defectors from its ranks.

I am writing you in the hope that the State Department might be able to assist me in personally contacting [redacted] I would like to see them in such a situation as might make it possible for them to make a relatively free choice to leave or stay in the Temple. Friends of mine have contacted their children after considerable effort and expense, only to meet their children surrounded by Temple members, and only after their children had apparently been subjected to great psychological pressure under conditions of sleep deprivation.

I also hope that the State Department and other government departments might consider investigating Temple affairs both in Guyana and in the United States. I consider it a reasonable possibility that the Temple, having sizeable amounts of United States dollars in its possession, may eventually be able to subvert the government of Guyana--a small underdeveloped and unsophisticated country. If the latter occurs, it would certainly not be in the interests of the United States.

I would appreciate your responding to me concerning my request for assistance in my efforts to reach my [redacted] in Guyana at your earliest convenience.

Sincerely,

FORM 4-61 DS-582

The Department should be aware that many of the cables and documents referred to above also include references to individual American citizens who do not figure in the list provided and who appear not to be clients of the law firm in question. Furthermore, several of the cables and documents deal with a custody case still pending before the Guyanese courts. The San Francisco law firm and some of the individuals listed in the Department's CM represent the "other side" in that legal process; it seems quite probable therefore that the plaintiffs in that matter might register objection to the release of the documents and communications in question if they were made aware of the fact that a request for release had been made.

Separate and apart from the considerations raised in the preceding paragraph, the Embassy has the following specific objection to the release of certain of the documents in question:

a. 77 Georgetown 0671 dated April 1, 1977. The release of this telegram could be embarrassing to both the USG and GOG since it involves the disclosure of a privileged conversation between our Charge and the Foreign Minister of Guyana. The telegram also refers to the passing of sensitive information from the Foreign Minister to the Charge.

c. This document is a diplomatic note to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the Government of Guyana on September 16, 1977. Because of its substance its release and/or publication could be seriously damaging to our relations with the government of Guyana.

PETITION ENTREATING PRIME MINISTER FORBES BURNHAM TO STOP REV. JAMES WARREN JONES FROM FURTHER VIOLATIONS OF THE HUMAN RIGHTS OF OUR RELATIVES IN GUYANA

TO: HONORABLE FORBES BURNHAM, PRIME MINISTER OF THE COOPERATIVE REPUBLIC OF GUYANA, SOUTH AMERICA

From: Parents and relatives of children and adults under the control of Rev. James Warren Jones at "Jonestown", Northwest District, Cooperative Republic of Guyana

Date: April 26, 1978

We, the undersigned, are the grief-stricken parents and relatives of the hereinafter-designated persons now living in your country. We respectfully entreat you to attend to the following facts:

1. In June 1977 Rev. James Warren Jones left the United States for Guyana as he was about to be attacked in the press for fraud, brutality to children, and taking properties from poor black people by false pretenses. Jim Jones has never returned to the United States to answer these charges.

2. Since June 1977 Jim Jones has induced more than 850 United States citizens to become permanent residents of Guyana at his jungle encampment, which he has named "Jonestown".

3. Jim Jones holds himself up as God to the residents of Jonestown, and systematically carries out the following acts on all residents, including our relatives:

a. Places guards around Jonestown and threatens the residents with death if they attempt to leave;

b. Confiscates their passports and money;

c. Employs physical intimidation and psychological coercion as part of mind-programming campaign aimed at destroying family ties, discrediting belief in God, and causing contempt for the United States of America, as well as for all other nation states, including Guyana;

d. Deprives them of their right to privacy, free speech, and freedom of association by:

(1) Prohibiting telephone calls;

(2) Prohibiting individual contacts with "outsiders", including Guyanese;

(3) Censoring all incoming and outgoing mail;

(4) Extorting silence from relatives in the U.S. by threats to stop all communication;

(5) Preventing our children from seeing us when we travel to Guyana.

4. The foregoing acts are documented in the "Accusation of Human Rights Violations by Rev. James Warren Jones Against Our Children and Relatives at the Peoples Temple Jungle Encampment in Guyana, South America", a copy of which is attached. These acts of Jim Jones are a clear violation of the Guyanese Constitution and of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, as quoted in the Accusation. The physical intimidation is a violation of the penal codes of Guyana.

5. On April 11, 1978 we served the aforesaid Accusation on Peoples Temple officials in San Francisco. The Accusation set forth a number of demands for relief, including a demand that Jones permit and encourage our relatives to return to the United States for a one-week home visit at our expense, return fare being guaranteed.

6. On April 17, 1978 Jim Jones responded with contempt to our demands by staging a press conference in the office of his attorney in San Francisco, wherein our relatives in Jonestown read scripts over a radio-phone network falsely denouncing us as child molesters, sexual deviates, dope addicts, and terrorists, as well as manifesting other symptoms of mind-programming. This astonishing response, which proved the point of our Accusation, was orchestrated by Jones notwithstanding letters having been sent by these same relatives to us telling how much they loved us. This response shows that Jim Jones has lost all capacity for self-criticism, and that whatever relief is to be obtained must be through the only person in the world with power over Jones, namely yourself as Prime Minister.

7. At the aforesaid press conference, Jones' spokeswoman (he refused to come to the radio-phone himself) tried to defend the use of guards around Jonestown by making a totally untrue statement that we had publicly threatened to bring in armed mercenaries to get back our relatives. Aside from the absurdity of this charge, it shows considerable disrespect for the ability of the law enforcement agencies of Guyana.

8. There is additional evidence that Jonestown has taken on the characteristics of a "concentration camp", namely the March 14, 1978 letter written on Peoples Temple stationery to the United States Congress (Exhibit A of attached Accusation) wherein its author speaks of a "decision" to die. We respectfully submit that you as the leader of Guyana would do well to analyze the mentality of the author of that letter and anticipate its potential for causing extreme damage to Guyana's reputation in the international community.

NOW, THEREFORE, WE RESPECTFULLY ask that you, HONORABLE FORBES BURNHAM, in your capacity as PRIME MINISTER OF GUYANA, take the following action to protect the human and legal rights of our relatives in Guyana before it is too late:

1. Immediately order the Minister of Home Affairs and the Commissioner of Police to launch an ongoing investigation into Jones' violations of the Guyanese penal code and Constitution.

2. Immediately order "Bishop Jim Jones" (as he presents himself to you) to cease and desist from the unlawful acts itemized in the attached Accusation, with particular orders for him to:

a. Remove all guards stationed around Jonestown;

b. Return to our relatives their passports and money;

c. Permit them to mix with the local Guyanese as individuals;

d. Permit them to make telephone calls to us in private at our expense when in Georgetown, and to do so in Jonestown as soon as telephone connections are installed, which we understand is shortly;

e. Permit them to receive all mail individually addressed to them, and to read the same in private;

f. Permit them to mail letters they write in private without being opened by Jones or his staff

3. Immediately order Jones to permit and encourage our relatives to return to the United States for a one-week home visit at our expense, so as to test whether or not they are being held against their will, upon our guarantee of return fare should they choose to return.

4. Immediately order Jones to abide by the lawful orders of courts in the United States with respect to the custody of our relatives.

5. If Jim Jones refuses to abide by your orders, expel him from Guyana so that Jonestown can become a democratic society in accordance with the Guyana Constitution.

6. Notify our spokesman, Steven A. Katsaris, Trinity School, 915 West Church Street, Ukiah, California 95482 (telephone 707-462-8721) of your willingness to protect the human and legal rights of our relatives.

THANKING YOU IN ADVANCE AND RESPECTFULLY SUBMITTED,

Temple Trouble

In the poor-black Fillmore district of San Francisco, the Rev. Jim Jones is revered as a good Samaritan with patrons in very high places. As pastor of the People's Temple, one of the largest interfaith churches in California, Jones not only claims God's power to heal the sick but also wields palpable clout among city and state political leaders. The governor, lieutenant governor, mayor, sheriff and district attorney have all visited the temple and, during the 1976 Presidential campaign, Jones himself shared a platform with Rosalynn Carter. Last December, the charismatic preacher who can muster black voters was named chairman of the San Francisco Housing Authority Commission by Mayor George Moscone. But now Jones stands accused by 30 former temple members of building his power through fear, fraud, physical beatings, the appropriation of parishioners' property and possible misuse of government funds.

The accusations were published in two August issues of New West magazine, which called for an investigation of the temple's financial and disciplinary practices. Church representatives promptly denied the charges. But in a pair of surprise moves last week, Jones resigned from the Housing Authority and District Attorney Joseph Freitas announced that he would look into the accusations.

Colony: No one has yet filed a formal complaint against Jones, who temple officials said was unreachable at the church's 27,000-acre South American farm colony in Guyana. The city's most powerful politicians still seem solidly behind the controversial minister. Mayor Moscone has said he saw no evidence that Jones had broken any laws and, in a recent Sunday-morning sermon at the temple, black state Assemblyman Willie Brown labeled the attacks "a measure of [the church's] effectiveness."

Jones preaches a religious socialism that he himself, it appears, is the first to practice. His church, which claims 20,000 members statewide, sponsors a drug-rehabilitation program, a free restaurant and medical clinic and a legal-aid service. More radically, Jones encourages his flock to give up their private property and live in low-rent apartments leased by the church from the city. Jones and his wife live modestly above the temple, where they are raising a multiracial family of seven adopted children plus their own son. But his social activism also is expressed as politics, and on Election Day, the poor deliver for their leader. In two recent close races for mayor and district attorney, Jones's regimented followers were considered important to the winners.

According to some former church members, however, Jones's power is based as much on fear and fraud as on faith. His services are often held behind locked doors, and even then Jones is protected by bodyguards. The breakaway parishioners described ritual beatings and humiliating group encounters held at all-night sessions. A former secretary to Jones reported that the preacher faked healings by displaying chicken guts as tissue he had miraculously removed from cancer patients. Others said they had been persuaded into deeding over their homes to the church and had been talked into giving the temple government funds they received for running foster-care homes.

Jones (inset), Klan drama: 'That's why people turned over all they had'

When New West first considered investigating the People's Temple, the editors were barraged with pleas from politicians and businessmen to kill the story. When the editors persisted, some were harassed at home by anonymous callers. Meanwhile, other local newsmen reported similar coercion and only when word of the pressure campaign appeared in a local newspaper column did ex-members of the temple volunteer to tell of their experiences.

In separate interviews with NEWSWEEK, former followers of Jones corroborated the New West report. Micki Touchette, 26, told how she and eleven other students slept in a crowded garage and were given a weekly dole of $2 each as members of a temple commune. Touchette, who is white, said that Jones, who is part American Indian, told them "how ugly and horrible it was to be white," and "not to have sex because we were all latent homosexuals."

KKK: Laura Cornelius, 39, a black woman, said that Jones promised his followers a haven in Guyana when, as he predicted, Fascists took over the U.S. "He said they had a plan to exterminate blacks like they did the Jews," Cornelius recalled. She also described a ritual by temple members that dramatized a Ku Klux Klan lynching. "That's why people turned over all they had," she said. "He told us the whites would take it."

Others reported threats against their lives if they dared talk to police and said that they had been made to sign false confessions to crimes such as conspiracy against the government. "Jim always said he had an in with the police," said Deanna Myrde, 38, "so we thought going to the police would be suicide."

Church officials have issued statements countercharging that some of the dissenters were terrorists and child molesters. Throughout the controversy, Jones has remained at the Guyana farm, which the church says it funds with $150,000 annually. And some suspect that the Rev. Mr. Jones may be the first to take up permanent asylum in the Guyana haven.

Dear Mr. Bennet:

A constituent of mine [redacted] recently wrote me asking that the enclosed letter be hand delivered to [redacted] who is at the People's Temple outpost at Jonestown, in the South American jungle of Guyana. This woman is extremely concerned for [redacted] welfare, and fears that none of her previous letters have reached him.

I am aware of the circumstances surrounding the People's Temple situation, but I would appreciate it if you would see that the letter is sent to officials at the American Embassy in Guyana, and take every step to insure that Brian personally receives the document, and reads it in private.

Thank you for your help in this matter.

Sirs,

You should know that Guyana, South America has moved closer to the United States in recent months than ever before, and is trying seriously to remain uninvolved with the struggle of world powers. Likewise, the Peoples Temple is trying to stay out of political activity in Guyana, and is certainly not concerning itself with being aligned with Cuba or Russia. Peoples Temple is in South America making a good image for Americans, with its high quality medical services. That is all that Jim Jones wants to do these days, but the press keeps pouring out a flurry of conflicting reports. One week he's supposed to be a Maoist, the next week he's said to be leaning toward Castro. Next, he's said to be hob nobbing with the Soviet Union. It's all ridiculous. The fact is that Peoples Temple does not want to get involved period. Such beleaguering is cruel also in the effect it has on this newly emerging Third World nation of Guyana, which is closer to the U.S., as I've said, than ever in its history. I have heard that some of the left - - even socialists with whom the Temple had associated before their Guyana venture - - are now wondering why the Temple is so close to Guyana. They do not understand it from their point of view.

Much attention was given recently to a woman who left Guyana telling the usual gamut of lies, which by now is a repetition of charges that has been proven false as far as the State Department and Embassy are concerned, many times over. Her mother, brother, and husband, (who found out she had been involved in an outside relationship just prior to her leaving,) are living happily in Guyana, and the mother is saying that the reason for her lies is probably to cover for the large sum of the mother's money that the woman stole and took with her after her short stay at the project and only three months in Georgetown. The woman is also reported to have gotten back into her former problems with drugs and alcohol. Yet her lies were given priority coverage in the major media.

The Temple now is busying itself with the school they have built, and their agricultural experimental project. Both of these have drawn the attention of experts from Guyana and neighboring countries, and are regarded as models to be emulated. The relentless barrage of attacks in the media just don't make common sense!

Very Sincerely,

[redacted]

Dear Senator Cranston:

I refer to your inquiry of September 7, on behalf of [redacted] and a recent telephone conversation between Ms. Kirsten A. O'Kane and Ms. Lorraine Aubry of your staff concerning the People's Agricultural Temple in Guyana. E 86

In order to be of assistance to the many American citizens within their consular jurisdiction, officers of the American Embassy in Georgetown, Guyana periodically visit the People's Temple. These officers have been free to move about the grounds and speak privately with individuals. It is the opinion of these officers, reinforced by conversations with local officials who deal with the People's Temple, that it is improbable anyone is being held in bondage. In general, the people appear healthy, adequately fed and housed and satisfied with their lives on what is a large farm. Many do hard, physical labor but there is no evidence of persons being forced to work beyond their capacity or against their will.

Should the families [redacted] represents wish information about their relatives in the People's Temple, they should provide the relatives' names, dates and places of birth to the American Embassy, 31 Main Street, Georgetown, Guyana. During the Embassy officer's next visit to the People's Temple, he will attempt to speak privately with the individuals in question, convey their families' concern and submit reports of his findings. E 86

With regard to [redacted] specific concern of possible tampering with the mail, you may wish to direct an inquiry to the United States Postal Service. E 86

American Ambassador

Dear Mr. Ambassador,

The following is a resume to bring you up to date on a number of items.

I thought you would like some additional information about my visit with Ryan's legal counsel. The discussion with his staffer went well and I believe she realizes that Ryan will have to contact the People's Temple to get their approval for his visit or cancel the trip. I outlined various scenario's for her should Ryan try to enter Jonestown without an agreement such as; the GOG not able to arrange transportation for the party, additional allegations of conpiracy (the Embassy's telegram on Mark Lanes's press conference was especially helpful in that regard) and refusal by the Temple to permit the part entry into Jonestown. I emphasized the Embassy's position on the group i.e. they are American citizens with a right to their privacy while at the same time trying not to be obstructive or negative toward the visit. Essentially, I repeated the points listed in your telegram with my observations and suggestions to support your comments. [redacted] E.O. 12356

Another subject. I was pleased that Pat Mathews was able to meet with the Eximbank representative (Bernie Lubran) for Guyana. Assuming the GOG has money to pay its bills I think Pat was able to convince Lubran that the Banks/Barry-Wehmiller sale would be treated as a government contract thereby assuring Banks of access to foreign currency and thus removing most of Eximbank's objections to the loan. I believe it was useful for them to get together for an exchange of views. Lubran mentioned to me that he now has a more realistic view point regarding Guyana after meeting with Pat and talking with me.

I have attended several recent meetings of the Christopher Committee on AID loans, primarily the IDB and IFAD input into the Black Bush Polder and Upper Demerara Forstry Projects. HA has not objected to these and other current bilateral and multilateral project for Guyana since they clearly are BHN (basic human need) projects.

Finally you probably heard about the Senate's vote on sugar support prices and read the Department's cable reporting on the meeting Ambassador Vaky had with Ambassador's of sugar exporting countries in the region. The outlook here on relief for sugar imports is gloomy. Nothing is final but no one here believes Congress is likely to drop support prices. There is not much hope that this Congress will get to our accession to the International Sugar Agreement in this session so maybe that's best at this time.

I have asked IO for copies of Arrons, Jackson's and John Donaldson's UNGA addresses and send them on when they become available.

I have enclosed a copy of the Congressional letter I did on Tidemann's visa problem I trust it meets with your approval.

Brandon Grove is settling in and concentrating on Nicaragua. Sally left for New York and "corridor rumor" has it that she will get her own post in early 1979 Norm Bouton has also come on board and already one senses an improvement in procedures and paperflow. I will be absent from the office from November 6 to 17 on military leave. Russ Surber's replacement will probably cover for me although I will still be in Washington at Arlington Hall (DIA) in case of an emergency. Russ is off to PM on October 13. Lisa and the boys are fine and send their best wishes.

People's Temple:

I have been contacted recently by several staffers on the House International Relations Committee about the Temple. Two staffers may accompany Congressman Ryan on his visit to Guyana. One staffer told me that Congressman Zablocki had tentatively approved Ryan's visit. I sent [redacted] a number of letters that I received from Temple members and suggested that he pass on to you the letters from [redacted] (who is now presumably now back in San Francisco. Her letter was postmarked from there) and [redacted] These two letters were quite detailed and of more interest since they delineate the alleged charges of the Temple against the Embassy. [redacted] will be receiving an OM from the Department requesting that a Consular Officer contact every Social Security Beneficiary of Jonestown. This request came from the Social Security Administration based upon the newspaper articles that reported allegations made [redacted]

The OM gives the Embassy the opportunity to respond if you decide the program is unfeasible. Fortunately, SCS checked with me before they drafted the OM and were suprised to hear there were over 125 annuitants at the townsite.

Contrary to false reports, the standard of human rights practiced in Jonestown, Guyana, is very high. Not only is every material need met abundantly but opportunities are available in every field for all members of the community. There is no unemployment, no class, everyone can go as far educationally as they are able. It is tremendous place to grow up, and the children there are very fortunate. It is good to see State Department support growing in the face of the unfortunate attacks.

Dear Mr. Vance:

Two members of my parish have young adult children who are heavily involved in Jim Jones' People's Temple. Currently they are in Guyana. The parents are concerned about the freedom of their children. Mail is presumed to be controlled and censored. One parent received a letter from another young person to her parent in New Orleans in an envelope addressed by her son to her. Obviously after the mail was read it was put back in the wrong envelope. I don't know what you can do to investigate the situation in Jonestown, Guyana, but these could be offenses of tampering with the mails.

Would you please request an extensive investigation of Jonestown by the American Embassy in Georgetown. If an impartial investigation could be held it might lead to neccessary actions or to a relieving of many concerned parents.

I look forward to hearing from you so that I can better assist the parents of these young people. Thank you very much.

Following is response to questions raised in reftel.

On Friday morning, [redacted] called me and asked for 3:30 appointment to discuss [redacted] After agreeing to the meeting I telephoned the desk officer, Mr. F. Tuminia, to ~~km~~ invite ~~khim~~ to the meeting. He then informed me that he was going to Guyana on Saturday to visit ~~xx~~ Jonestown with the DCM at the request of the Ambassador. Mr. Tuminia attended the ~~x~~ early part of the meeting but had to leave at 4:00 and was not present when ~~thextax~~ [redacted] made his request.

We considered ~~that~~ the request ~~was~~ reasonable and one which we should forward to the Embassy promptly. We have been informed that only NIACT cables get delivered over the weekend and as it was Friday afternoon we sent the cable Niact to avoid it being held until Monday. We wanted cable seen over weekend so proposition could be discussed with Tuminia and DCM before they departed for Jonestown.

Embassy Memcon with account of [redacted] request directly to Embassy was not ~~xeq~~ received until Jan 31. At time [redacted] made request Dept had no way of ~~x~~ knowing he had ~~xxxxxxxx~~ already made same request to Embassy.

In addition after talking to [redacted] began to feel that Jones might easily have a member of his group employed in Embassy. Hence decision to classify cable Confidential as we are aware that in some posts local employees have access to LOU material.

SUBJECT : PEOPLE'S TEMPLE LAWYER MARK LANE'S PRESS CONFERENCE

REF:

We have reported media accounts of the visit of American lawyer Mark Lane to Guyana "on behalf of the Citizens Commission of Enquiry" to look into allegations being made about the People's Temple in the U.S. A member of the local staff of the People's Temple Georgetown offic[redacted] introduced Mr. Lane to [redacted] DCM at a chance meeting at a local hotel September 20. DCM observed that he had heard Mr. Lane speak on The People's Temple regular weekly broadcast the evening before (previously taped) and had heard as well that he had given a press conference the evening before. Mr. Lane simply acknowledged the introduction.

2. The same evening, Mr. Lane left word with the Marine Security Guard at the Embassy that he would like to speak with DCM. The latter returned the call to the People's Temple and was informed by [redacted] that Mr. Lane had had to leave for the airport [redacted] but had left a message for the DCM. As best she could read Mr. Lane's handwriting, [redacted] said that the message was that [redacted] Bishop Jones and the People's Temple are "just trying to build a cooperative community. We did not say that we're on a platform speaking against the U.S.... We haven't even said that the conspiracy went as high as the Government."

3. The following day, Sept. 21 [redacted] of the People's Temple, [redacted] called DCM to say that Mr. Lane had missed his flight and wished to to request an appointment for the next day which was then set at 0800. At 0815 September 22 [redacted] again called DCM to say that Lane had decided not to visit Embassy. [redacted] said that he, [redacted] had been informed by "very senior PNC members" (i.e., members of the ruling Peoples' National Congress) that the U.S. Embassy had managed to prevent publication of reports of the press interview in the "Chronicle." When Lane was informed of this, according to [redacted] Lane was "just disgusted" and no longer wished appointment. [redacted] said that purpose of Lane's visit was to have corrected possible misunderstanding of message telephoned to DCM to emphasize that no accusations were being leveled against the Embassy (as distinct from the USG, apparently), but that this no longer was so. DCM replied that appointment had been requested by Lane, that DCM was available to meet with him, but that as he had other things to do would appreciate some advance notice of cancellation of appointments. With regard to allegations that the U.S. Embassy had intervened with the "Chronicle" or others to obstruct publication of a report in the "Chronicle" or the September 21 news conference, they were simply untrue. [redacted] said that he did not mean to imply that the DCM personally had been responsible, but that unspecified "others" at the Embassy were responsible. DCM replied that he spoke for whole Embassy and that those spreading reports to the contrary were spreading falsehoods.

4. About mid-morning "Chronicle" appeared (later than usual) with four column piece in favored center section with article reported by message. DCM called [redacted] and enquired if he had seen "Chronicle" article. [redacted] replied that he had, but that (b)(6)

article was not taken from press conference but from interview that publisher of "Chronicle" had set up, and did not include central points of press conference. In response to DCM's enquiry regarding these points, [redacted] said that Lane had effectively (b)(6) given the lie to such calumnies as that Jonestown was surrounded by barbed wire and had also discussed such incidents as the alleged September (1977) sniper fire on Jonestown "which missed Jim Jones by two inches," and that "Caucasians in military dress had been seen around the perimeter" (presumably at the same time). Thus the People's Temple continued to feel that reporting of the news conference was suppressed (although [redacted] alleged it had (b)(6) appeared "everywhere else" in the Caribbean) and continued to believe that the Embassy had managed its suppression.

5. Subsequently, Embassy contacts in the news media stated that the article which appeared in the "Chronicle" on September 22 had been scheduled for publication in the Sunday, September 24 edition, but that it had been decided to publish it earlier due to direct and indirect pressure from Lane and the People's Temple. This was stated as the reason for the late appearance of the "Chronicle" of September 22.

Dear Ms. Horsey:

Enclosed are a heap of clippings from the San Francisco papers, the two magazine articles in New West, and anything else I could find that might be informative. The New York Times story appeared this morning, Firday, Sept. 2, on page 8 of the front section.

The New York Times story is a good index of the present situation, though I hardly accept Mrs. Jones side of the story. The original New West story in the issue with Margaux Hemingway on the cover was the starting point for all the fuss--that story amounted to the first disclosures about faked healings, beatings and bilked real estate.

The clippings enclosed are obviously from the years previous. I've sent them in order to show the kind of banign and generally xxxx appreciative press that Jones enjoyed and also the kind of political friends he made. Thus when the New West story broke, there was a good deal of skepticism, especially from Jones allies who thought he was a liberal good-guy minister.

Since then, [redacted] and the afternoon paper, the Examiner, have investigated the situation and reached the same conclusions. The Exxaminer story, you will see, is essentially a re-write of the New West account.

But there have been fresh developments in the past month since the New West story. Jones has quit his post as head of the Housing Authority kxxd board, and stayed in virtual seclusion in Guyana. His followers, somewhere between 500 and 1000, have left San Francisco to join him.

The District Attorney's office kxx here is looking into possible illegalities, but may not come up with anything more than the same sort of sad story that New West did. Nothing illegal about making a damn fool of yourself in the name of religion.

Of interest most directly to your x department might be the use of passports (I gather the office that issues them here in San Francisco has a folder on the Jones crowd) and possible custody battles between non-member parents and member parents over children at the Guyana mission.

Also U.S. Customs officials here in SF have told me and other reporters that they are watching Jones for alleged shipments of weapons and cash to Guyana. Exactly how serious all this is remains to be proved. But it is fair to sany that the church does have an elaborate security system that may include weapons of—the deer rifle and Saturday night special league. Also Jones has made a mint off his followers, and this is detailed in one of the Chronicle stories [redacted] earlier in ~~Aug~~ August. E.O.

I would hope that you will pass this information around to the folks in charge of Guyana-watching. I remain amazed that ~~so few~~ no people in your department are aware of the story, especially since Newsweek ran a full page story on the subject in its August issue with astronomer Carl Sagan on the cover.

I'll give you a call later in the week. I hope by then we can figure out what the situation is. Thank you for your cooperation, and I hope you'll forgive the Labor Day Exex typing.

Inside Peoples Temple

By Marshall Kilduff and Phil Tracy

"... Jim Jones is one the state's most politically potent leaders. But who is he? And what's going on behind his church's locked doors? ..."

For Rosalynn Carter, it was the last stop in an early September campaign tour that had taken her over half of California, a state where her husband Jimmy was weak. So Rosalynn gamely encouraged the crowd of 750 that had gathered for the grand opening of the San Francisco Democratic party headquarters in a seedy downtown storefront. She smiled bravely despite the heat.

Mrs. Carter finished her little pep talk to mild applause. Several other Democratic bigwigs got polite receptions, too. Only one speaker aroused the crowd: he was the Reverend Jim Jones, the founding pastor of Peoples Temple, a small community church located in the city's Fillmore section. Jones spoke briefly and avoided endorsing Carter directly. But his words were met with what seemed like a wall-pounding outpour. A minute and a half later the cheers died down.

"It was embarrassing," said a rally organizer. "The wife of a guy who was going to the White House was shown up by somebody named Jones."

If Rosalynn Carter was surprised, she shouldn't have been. The crowd belonged to Jones. Some 600 of the 750 listeners were delivered in temple buses an hour and a half before the rally. The organizer, who had called Jones for help, remembered how puzzled she'd felt when she first saw the Jones followers spilling off the buses. "You should have seen it—old ladies on crutches, whole families, little kids, blacks, whites. Made to order," said the organizer, who had correctly feared that without Jones Mrs. Carter might have faced a half-empty room.

"Then we noticed things like the bodyguards," she continued. "Jones had his own security force (with him), and the Secret Service guys were having fits," she said. "They wanted to know who all those black guys were, standing outside with their arms folded."

The next morning more than 100 letters arrived. "They were really all the same," she said. "Thanks for the rally, and, gee, that Jim Jones was so impressive." Look, we never get mail, so we expect one letter, but 100!" She added. "They had to be mailed before the rally to arrive the next day."

But what surprised that organizer was really not that special. She just got a look at some of the symbols Jim Jones has used to make himself one of the most politically potent religious leaders in the history of the state.

Jim Jones counts among his friends several of California's well-known public officials. San Francisco mayor George Moscone has made several visits to Jones's San Francisco temple, on Geary Street, as have the city's district attorney Joe Freitas and sheriff Richard Hongisto. And Governor Jerry Brown has visited at least once. Also, Los Angeles mayor Tom Bradley has been a guest at Jones's Los Angeles temple. Lieutenant Governor Mervyn Dymally went so far as to visit Jones's 27,000-acre agricultural station in Guyana, South America, and he pronounced himself impressed. What's more, when Walter Mondale came campaigning for the vice-presidency in San Francisco last fall, Jim Jones was one of the few people invited aboard his campaign jet for a private visit. Last December Jones was appointed to head the city's Housing Authority Commission.

The source of Jones's political clout is not very difficult to divine. As one politically astute executive puts it: "He controls votes." And voters. During San Francisco's run-off election for mayor in December of 1975, some 150 temple members walked precincts to get out the vote for George Moscone, who won by a slim 4,000 votes. "They're well-disciplined, polite and they're all registered to vote," said one Moscone campaign official.

Can you win office in San Francisco without Jones? "In a tight race like the one this George or Freitas or Hongisto had, forget it without Jones," said State Assemblyman Willie Brown, who describes himself as an admirer of Jones's.

Jones, who has several adopted children of differing racial backgrounds, is more than a political force. He and his church are noted for social and medical programs, which are centered in his three-story structure on Geary Street. Temple members support and staff a free diagnostic and outpatient clinic, a physical therapy facility, a drug program that claims to have rehabilitated some 300 addicts and a legal aid program for about 200 people a month. In addition, the temple's free dining hall is said to feed more indigents than the city's venerable St. Anthony's dining room. And temple spokesmen say that these services to the needy are financed internally, without a cent of government or foundation money.

Jones and his temple are also applauded for their ardent support of a free press. Last September, Jones and his followers participated in a widely publicized demonstration in support of the four Fresno newsmen who went to jail rather than reveal their confidential news sources. The temple also contributed $4,500 to twelve California newspapers—including the San Francisco Chronicle—for use "in the defense of a free press," and even gave $4,000 to the defense of Los Angeles Times reporter Bill Farr, who also went to jail for refusing to name a news source.

In addition, at Jones's direction the temple makes regular contributions to several community groups, including the Telegraph Hill Neighborhood Center and Health Clinic, the NAACP, the ACLU and the firefighters' union. When a local pot clinic was in trouble, Peoples Temple provided the money needed to keep it open. The temple has also set up a fund for the widows of slain policemen, and the congregation runs an escort service for senior citizens.

San Francisco Chronicle reporter Marshall Kilduff and New West contributing editor Phil Tracy were assisted by freelance reporter George Klineman.

The holy trinity: At a 1976 temple lunch, Reverend Jones sat between two friends, S.F. mayor Moscone (left) and Lieutenant Governor Dymally.

To many, the Reverend Jim Jones is the epitome of a selfless Christian.

The reverend was born James Thurman Jones, and grew up in the Indiana town of Lynn. While attending Butler University in Indianapolis, where he received his degree in education, Jones opened his first temple (in downtown Indianapolis). Although he had no formal training as a minister and was not affiliated with any church, his temple grew. It featured an active social program, including a "free" restaurant for the down-and-out. And the congregation was integrated, a courageous commitment in the years before Martin Luther King became a national figure—particularly in Indianapolis, once the site of the Ku Klux Klan's national office.

Then at around Christmas of 1961, according to a former associate named Ross Case, Jones had a vision. He saw Indianapolis being consumed in a holocaust, presumably a nuclear explosion. Fortunately for him, Esquire had just run an article on the nine safest spots in the event of nuclear war. Eureka, California, was called the safest location; another safe area was Belo Horizonte, Brazil. Jones headed for Belo Horizonte, and Case went to Northern California.

Jones eventually returned and visited Cuba in Ukiah. Jones liked California, and twelve years ago this month, he and his wife Marceline incorporated Peoples Temple in California: Jones and some 100 faithful settled in Redwood Valley, a hamlet outside Ukiah.

Jones's congregation grew, and he soon became a political force in Mendocino County. In off-year elections, where the total vote was around 2,500, Jones could control 300 to 400 ballots, or nearly 16 percent of the vote. "I could show anybody the tallies by precinct and pick out the Jones vote," says Al Benson, county supervisor from Redwood Valley.

Then, in 1970, Jones started holding services in San Francisco; one year later he bought the Geary Street temple. And later that same year, he expanded to Los Angeles by taking over a synagogue on South Alvarado Street.

One success followed another, and his flock grew to an estimated 20,000. Jones's California mission seemed blessed.

Although Jones's name is well-known, especially among the politicians and the powerful, he remains surrounded by mystery. For example, his Peoples Temple has two sets of locked doors, guards patrolling the aisles during services and a policy of barring pastors/ from dropping by unannounced on Sunday mornings. His bimonthly newspaper, Peoples Forum, regularly visits socialism, praises Huey Newton and Angela Davis and forecasts a government takeover by American Nazis. And though Jones is a white fundamentalist minister, his congregation is roughly 80 percent to 90 percent black.

How does Jones manage to appeal to so many kinds of people? Where does he get the money to operate his church's programs, or maintain his dozen of buses, or support his agricultural outpost in Guyana? Why does he surround himself with bodyguards—as many as fifteen at a time? And above all, what is going on behind the locked and guarded doors of Peoples Temple?

Ten Who Quit the Temple Speak Out

Beginning two months ago, when it became known that New West was researching an article on Peoples Temple, the members in letters and telephone conversations were subjected to a classic scare-tactic campaign. At the temple, our general offices in San Francisco and Los Angeles were each receiving as many as 20 phone calls and 75 letters a day. The great majority of the letters and calls came from temple members and supporters, as well as such prominent Californians as Lieutenant Governor Mervyn Dymally, Delaine Eastin, [illegible] Mayor Jane Fonda, San Francisco businessman Cyril Magnin and Congressman Leo Ryan, whose district includes Jonestown.

The messages were much the same: We want New West to print how good Jim Jones is and how much he does for people. We don't care what you've heard, Jim Jones is a saint. Don't do that. He's a good man who does good works.

The flood of calls and letters attracted wide attention, which, in turn, prompted reporter Bill Burton to report the campaign in the San Francisco Examiner. The Examiner also reported an unsolicited [illegible] that went later to over [illegible] San Francisco police.

After the Burton article, we began getting phone calls from former temple members. At first, while insisting on anonymity, the callers volunteered "background" about Jim Jones's "crusa-

"... Peoples Temple members beat his sixteen-year-old daughter so badly, says Elmer Mertle, that 'her butt looked like hamburger' ..."

...y" to congregation members, in addition to making several other specific charges.

We told the callers that we were not interested in such anonymous whispers. But then a number of them, like Deanna and Elmer Mertle, called back and agreed to meet in person, to be photographed, and to tell their attributed stories for publication.

Based on what these people told us, life inside Peoples Temple was a mixture of Spartan regimentation, fear and self-imposed humiliation. As they told it, the Sunday services to which dignitaries were invited were orchestrated events. Actually, members were expected to attend services two, three, even four nights a week—with some sessions lasting until daybreak. Those members of the temple's governing council, called the Planning Commission, were often compelled to stay up all night and submit regularly to "catharsis"—an encounter process in which friends, even mates, would criticize the person who was "on the floor." In the last two years, we were told, these often humiliating sessions had begun to include physical beatings with a large wooden paddle, and boxing matches in which the person on the floor was occasionally knocked out by opponents selected by Jones himself. Also, during regularly scheduled "family meetings" attended by up to 1,000 of the most devoted followers, as many as 100 people were lined up to be paddled for such seemingly minor infractions as not being attentive enough during Jones's sermons. Church leaders also instructed certain members to write letters incriminating themselves in illegal and immoral acts that never happened. In addition, temple members were encouraged to turn over their money and property to the church and live communally in temple buildings; those who didn't run the risk of being chastised severely during the catharsis sessions.

In all, we interviewed more than a dozen former temple members. Obviously they all had biases. (Grace Stoen, for example, has sued her husband, a temple member, for custody of their five-year-old son John. The child is presently in Guyana.) So we checked the verifiable facts of their testimony—the property transfers, the nursing and foster home records, political campaign contributions and other matters of public record. The details of their stories checked out.

One question, in particular, troubled us: Why did some of them remain members long after they became disenchanted with Jones's methods and even fearful of him and his bodyguards? Their answers were the same—they feared reprisal, and that their stories would not be believed.

The people we interviewed are real: their names are real. They all agreed to be tape-recorded and photographed while telling their side of the Jim Jones story.

Elmer and Deanna Mertle of Berkeley

After Elmer and Deanna Mertle joined the temple in Ukiah in November, 1969, he quit his job as a chemical technician for Standard Oil Company, sold the family's house in Hayward and moved up to Redwood Valley. Eventually five of the Mertle's children by previous marriages joined them there.

"When we first went up [to Redwood Valley], Jim Jones was a very compassionate person," says Deanna. "He taught us to be compassionate to old people, to be tender to the children."

But slowly the loving atmosphere gave way to cruelty and physical punishment, Elmer said. "The first forms of punishment were mental, where they would get up and totally disgrace and humiliate the person in front of the whole congregation. . . . Jim would then come over and put his arms around the person and say, 'I realize that you were thought a lot, but it was for the cause. Father loves you and you're a stronger person now. I can trust you more now that you've gone through this and accepted this discipline.'"

The physical punishment increased, too. Both the Mertles claim they received public spankings as early as 1972—but they were hit with a belt only "about three times." Eventually, they said, the belt was replaced by a paddle and then by a large board dubbed "the board of education," and the number of times adults and finally children were struck increased to 12, 25, 30 and even 100 times in a row. Temple nurses treated the injured.

At first, the Mertles rationalized the beatings. "The [punished] child or adult would always say, 'Thank you, Father,' and then Jim would point out the next week how much better they were. In our minds we rationalized . . . that Jim must be doing the right thing because these people were testifying that the beatings had caused their life to make a reversal in the right direction."

Then one night the Mertles' daughter Linda was called up for discipline because she had hugged and kissed a woman friend she hadn't seen in a long time. The woman was reputed to be a lesbian. The Mertles stood among the congregation of 600 or 700 while their daughter, who was then sixteen, was hit on her buttocks 75 times. "She was beaten so severely," said Elmer, "that the kids said her butt looked like hamburger."

Linda, who is now eighteen, confirms that she was beaten: "I couldn't sit down for at least a week and a half."

The Mertles stayed in the church for more than a year after that public beating. "We had nothing on the outside to get started in," says Elmer. "We had given [the church] all our money. We had given all of our property. We had given up our jobs."

Today the Mertles live in Berkeley. According to an affidavit they signed last October in the presence of attorney Harriet Thayer, they changed their names legally to Al and Jeanne Mills because, at the church's instruction, "we had signed blank sheets of paper, which could be used for any imaginable purpose, signed power of attorney papers, and written many unusual and incriminating statements [about themselves], all of which were untrue."

Birdie Maraboto of Ukiah

"I never really thought he was God. Like he promised, but I thought he was a prophet," said Birdie Maraboto, a beautician who was first attracted to Jones in 1968 because her husband had a liver ailment. She had hoped Jones might be the healer to cure him.

On one of the trips to services in Redwood Valley, Marcelline noticed Jones's aides taking some children aside and asking, "What color house did my friend have, things like that," she says. "Then during the services, Jim called [one woman] out and told her the answers that the children had given as though no one had told him."

She became skeptical of Jones after that, and remained skeptical when her husband's health did not improve; the cancer "cures" Jones was performing seemed phony to her. Yet eventually she moved to Ukiah and ran a rest home for temple members at Jim's suggestion.

One summer she was talked into taking a three-week temple "vacation" through the South and East. "Everybody paid $200 to go on the trip, but I told them I wasn't able to do so," she added.

The temple buses were loaded up in San Francisco, and more members were picked aboard in Los Angeles. "It was terrible. It was overcrowded. There were people sitting on the floor, in the luggage rack, and sometimes people [were] underneath in the compartment where they put the bags," she said. "I saw some things that really put me wise to everything," she added. "I saw how they treated the old people." The bathrooms were frequently stopped up. For food, sometimes a cold can of beans was opened and passed around.

"I decided to leave the church when I got back. I said when I get through telling people about this trip, ain't nobody going to want to go no more. [But] as soon as we arrived back, Jim said . . . don't say nothing." She left the church in silence.

Wayne Fiotis of Petaluma And Jim and Terri Cobb of San Francisco

Wayne Fiotis and Jim Cobb guarded the cancers. "If anyone tried to touch them, we were supposed to cut the concern or demolish the guy," said Cobb, who is six-foot, two-inches tall. Fiotis was licensed by the Mendocino County Sheriff's Department to carry a concealed weapon; reportedly he was one of several Jones aides with such a permit.

It was during the Redwood Valley healing sessions in 1970, when persons hope for relief from the pains of age spread among the congregation, that Cobb and Fiotis would guard the cancers. Finally Jones would ask for someone who believed herself to be suffering from cancer. That was the signal for Cobb's sister, Terri, to slip into a side restroom and show out whoever might be there. Then Jones's wife Marcelline and a trembling excited old woman would disappear into the stall for a moment. Marcelline would emerge holding a foul-smelling scrap of something cupped in a napkin—a cancer "passed." Marcelline and the old woman would return to the main room to screams, applause, a thunder of music. Jim Jones had healed again.

But one time, Terri got a chance to look into the "cancer bag." "It was full of napkins and small bits of meat, individually wrapped. They looked like chicken gizzards. I was shocked."

Wayne Fiotis recalled another healing incident. On the eve of a trip to Seattle in 1970 or 1971, as Jones was leaving his house, a shot cracked out and he fell. "There was blood all around and people [were] screaming and crying, just hysterical." Jones was lifted to his feet and helped to his house. A few minutes later, Jones walked out of the house with a clean shirt on. "He said he'd healed himself," Fiotis said. "He used [the incident] for his preaching during the whole Seattle trip."

Michi Touchette of San Francisco

The Touchette family followed Jones to California in 1970. They lived in Sacramento for a while, then moved up to Redwood Valley, where they bought a house and converted it into a home for emotionally disturbed boys.

During 1972 and 1973 Michi and other temple members were expected to travel to Los Angeles services every other weekend. One of her jobs was to count the money after offerings. Michi, a former college graduate, had no inclination to the temple's Los Angeles cult. She says, "It was very easy to take in $15,000 in a weekend, and this was [four] years ago. [To encourage larger offerings, Jones] would say, 'We folks, we've only collected $300 or $700,' and we would have [in reality] several thousand."

In addition to attending Wednesday night family meetings and weekend services, Michi also was part of letter-writing efforts directed by church officials. "We'd write various politicians throughout the state, throughout the country, in praise of something that they had done. I wrote Nixon, wrote Tunney; I remember writing the chief of the San Francisco Police Department," she said. Michi, who lived in temple houses apart from her parents, would often be handed a sheet listing the points she would have to include in the letter. "It would tell you how and what to say and you'd word it yourself." She says she also would regularly use aliases she made up.

When Michi left the church in 1973 along with seven other young people, including Terri and Jim Cobb and Wayne Fiotis, some warned their parents or other relatives. "We felt that our parents, our families . . . would just fight us and try to make us stay." Furthermore, they were all frightened. "At one point we had been told that any college student who was going to leave the church would be killed . . . not by Jones, but by some of his followers." Both Terri and Cobb recall the statement being made—by Jones.

Walter Jones of San Francisco

When Walt Jones, who never believed in the church, followed his wife Carol to Redwood Valley in 1974, Jim Jones asked them to take over a home for emotionally disturbed boys. The home belonged to Charles and Joyce Touchette. Michi Touchette's parents. Walt says he was told that the Touchettes were in Guyana, and that the people who had replaced them, Rick and Carol Stahl, had done such a poor job that "the care home, as that time, was under surveillance of the authorities because of the poor conditions. Some of the boys had scabies due to the filth."

In 1974 and early 1975, before Walt and his wife were granted a license to run the home, county checks (of approximately $325 to $350 per month for each child) for the upkeep of the boys were made out to the Touchettes and cashed by a church member who had their power of attorney. "The checks," said Walt, "were turned over to someone in charge of all the funds [for the church's care homes] at the time. [The temple] allowed us what they felt were sufficient funds for the home and supplied us with foodstuffs and various articles of clothing." Jones says the food was mostly canned staples, and the clothes were donations from other temple members. Walt is uncertain how much of the approximate total of $2,000 a month of county funds earmarked for the upkeep of his boys actually ended up in his hands; his wife kept the books. But, he claimed, "it was very little."

"... Jones held a snake close to the terrified old woman. 'Viola screamed,' said a member. 'And he still held that snake there' ..."

After the Jonestown were granted their own license in 1972, the checks from the Alameda County Probation Department (which placed the boys in the home) were made out to him and his wife. "But still the church sequestered the vast majority of the funds," says Walt Jones. "Approximately $900 to $1,000 [per month] were turned over to the church." And he added, "I do remember that there were times when all of the checks were signed over to the church."

Laura Cornelious of Oakland

Laura Cornelious was one of the privates in the Peoples Temple's army. She was in the temple about two years before leaving in 1975—just one of dozens of elderly black grandmothers who attend each morning of the San Francisco Housing Authority Commission that Jim Jones chairs.

The first thing that bothered her was the constant requests for money. "After I was in some time," she says, "it was made known to us that we were supposed to pay 25 percent of our earnings [the usual sum, according to practically all the former members that we interviewed]." It was called "the commitment." For those who could not meet the commitment, she says, there were consequences, like taking others to sell at Sunday services—or demoting their jobs. "He said that we didn't need the watches—any best watch," she recalls sadly. "He said we didn't need homes—give the homes, furs, all of the best things you own."

Some blocks grew out of fear—fear that they would end up in concentration camps. The money was needed, she was told, "to build up this other place [Guyana—the "promised land"], so we would have someplace to go whenever they [the fascists in this country] were going to destroy us like they did the Jews. [Jones said] that they would put [black people] in concentration camps, and that they would do us like the Jews . . . in the gas ovens."

Laura Cornelious was also bothered by the thinking of temple members that never digressed before each service. "You were asked to raise up on your toes [to clench] your cheeks."

The final straw, she says, came the night Jones brought a snake into the services. "Viola . . . she was up in age, in her eighties, and she was so afraid of snakes and he held the snake close to her [chest] and she just sat there and screamed. And he still held it there."

Grace Stoen of San Francisco

Grace Stoen was a leader among the temple hierarchy, though she was never a true believer. Her husband Tim was the temple's top attorney, and one of its first prominent converts. Later, while still a church insider, he became an assistant D.A. of Mendocino County, and then an assistant D.A. under San Francisco D.A. Joe Freitas. Tim resigned to go to Jones's Guyana retreat in April of this year.

Tony Jones and Stephanie-old boy Grace Stoen.

Grace agreed to join the temple when she married Tim in 1970, and gradually she acquired enormous authority. She was head counselor and at the Wednesday night family meetings, she would pass to Jones the names of the members to be disciplined.

She was also the record keeper for seven temple businesses. She paid out from $30,000 to $50,000 per month for the auto and bus garage bills and also doled out the allotted temple wages. And she was one of several church notaries. She kept a notary book, a kind of log of documents that the officially witnessed—pages of names including power-of-attorney statements, deeds of trust, guardianship papers, and so on, signed by temple members and officials.

She recalled why Jones decided to aim for Los Angeles and San Francisco. "Jim would say, 'If we stay here in the valley, we're wasted. We could make it in the big time in San Francisco.'"

And expanding to Los Angeles, Jones told his aides, "was worth $15,000 to $25,000 a weekend."

During the expansion in 1972, members would pile into the buses at 5 p.m. on a Friday night in Redwood Valley, stop at the San Francisco temple for a meeting that might last until midnight and then drive through the night to arrive in Los Angeles Saturday in time for six-hour services. On Sunday, church would start at 11 a.m. and end at 5 p.m. Then, the Redwood Valley members would pile back on the buses for the long trip home; they would arrive by daybreak Monday.

Some of the sicker elects, like Grace Stoen, rode on Jim's own bus, number seven. "The last two seats and the whole back part were taken out and a door put across it," she said. "Inside there was a refrigerator, a sink, a bed and a place of steel in the back so nobody could ever shoot Jim. The money was kept back there in a compartment." According to attendance slips she collected, the other 43-seat buses sometimes held 70 to 80 riders.

Jones's goal in San Francisco, Grace said, was to become a political force. His first move was to negotiate himself with fellow liberal and leftist figures—D.A. Freitas, Sheriff Hongisto, Police Chief Charles Gain, Dennis Banks, Angela Davis.

Sometimes Jones surely tripped up. Once, said Grace, when Freitas and his wife dropped in unexpectedly, temple aides quickly pulled them into a side room and sent word to Jones in the upstairs meeting hall. Just in time. The pastor was swapped up in one of his "silly little things," said Grace. "He was having everybody shout 'Shit! Shit! Shit!' to teach them not to be so hypocritical." When Freitas was shown in, everyone just laughed at the puzzled district attorney. (D.A. Freitas confirms making an unexpected visit to the temple, but does not recall anyone using the word shit.)

Jones became impatient at the pace of his success. Eventually Mayor Moscone placed Jones on the Housing Authority Commission, and then intervened to secure him the chairmanship.

Strangely, as Jones's successes mounted, so did the pressures inside his

"... 'Jones would say that we could make it in the big time,' says Grace Stoen. 'Expanding to L.A. alone was worth $15,000 a weekend' ..."

temple. "We were going to move and move onwings," said Stoen. "[And] if anyone was getting too much sleep—say, six hours a night—they were in trouble." On one occasion, she said, a man was screamed and screamed on.

In July of 1976, after a three-week temple bus trip, her morale was ebbing lower, her friends were muttering about her, and there were rumors that Jones was unhappy with a number of members. "I packed my things and left [without telling Tim]. I couldn't trust him. He'd tell Jim."

She drove to Lake Tahoe and spent the July Fourth weekend lying on a warm beach. She dug her toes in the sand, scratched her arms and tried to relax. "But every time I turned over, I looked around to see if any of the church members had tracked me down."

Why Jim Jones Should Be Investigated

It is literally impossible to guess how much money and property people gave Jim Jones as the twelve years since he moved his Peoples Temple to California. Some, like Laura Cornelious, gave small things like watches or rings. Others, like Vicki Jones, sold their homes and gave the proceeds to the temple.

According to nearly all the former temple members that we have spoken with, extensive, continuous pressure was put on members to deed their homes to the temple. Many complied. A brief reading of the records on file at the Mendocino County recorder's office shows that some 30 pieces of property were transferred from individuals to the temple during the years 1965 to 1976. Nearly all these parcels were recorded as gifts.

Interestingly, several of the "gifts" were signed or recorded improperly. The deed to a piece of property signed by Grace and Timothy Stoen was notarized on June 28, 1976. Grace Stoen told New West that on that date, when she was supposed to be in Mendocino signing the deed before a temple notary, she and several hundred temple members were in New York City. Grace Stoen said she signed the deed under pressure from her husband. Ten months before it was notarized. And similar irregularities appear on a deed the Martins turned over to the temple. A thorough investigation of the circumstances surrounding the transfers of the properties is clearly required.

In the last few issues of Peoples Forum, the temple newspaper, there are several references to the claim that 130 disturbed or incorrigible youths were being sent to the temple's Guyana mission. A church spokesman confirmed that these arrangements were reached to the temple by "federal courts, state courts, probation departments" and other agencies. An article in the July issue of the temple newspaper on the Guyana mission's youth program reports that, "In certain cases when a young person is testing the environment . . . physical discipline has produced the necessary change." The article goes on to describe a "wrestling match" that sounds all too similar to the "boxing matches" some former temple members described: If there is even the slightest chance of mistreatment of the 130 youths the temple claims to have under its guidance in Guyana, a complete investigation by both state and federal authorities would be required.

An investigation of the "care homes" run by the temple or temple members in Redwood Valley may also be in order. Both Vicki Jones and Mickii Touchette have stated that anywhere from $800 to $1,000 of the monthly funds provided by the state for the care of the six boys in the Touchette home were actually funneled to the temple. If these figures are accurate, as much as $38,000 to $48,000 may have been channeled into the church's coffers during the four years the Touchette home was open. It is known that at least two other "care homes" for boys were run by the church or its members. In addition, at least six residential homes licensed by Mendocino County were owned or operated by the temple. They housed from six to fourteen foster children each, and the county provided upwards of $325 per month per individual. An investigation should be launched immediately to determine if any of the money paid for the care of the elderly actually went to the temple.

Files at the Mendocino County recorder's office show that the temple has sold off a number of its properties. The Redwood Valley temple itself is currently for sale for an estimated $225,000. The Los Angeles temple is also for sale. The three Mendocino "care homes" that are still operating are up for sale. Several former temple members believe Jones and a few hundred of his closest followers may be planning to leave for Guyana no later than September of this year. The ex-members we interviewed had the ability to walk away from the temple once they found the courage to do it. Whether the church will permit those who move to Guyana the option of ever leaving is questionable.

Jones has been in Guyana for the last three weeks and was unavailable to us as this magazine article went to press. In a phone interview, two spokesmen for the temple, Mike Prokes and Gene Chaikin, denied all of the allegations made by the former temple members we interviewed. Specifically, they denied any harassment, coercion or physical abuse of temple members. They denied that the church attempted to force members to donate their property or homes. They also denied that Jones faked healings. They confirmed that the temple's churches and property in Redwood Valley and Los Angeles are for sale, but went on to deny that Jones's closest followers are planning to relocate in Guyana any time soon.

Finally, something must be said about the numerous public officials and political figures who openly courted and befriended Jim Jones. While it appears that none of the public officials from Governor Brown on down knew about the inner world of Peoples Temple, they have left the impression that they used Jones to deliver votes at election time and never asked any questions. They never asked about the bodyguards. Never asked about the church's locked doors. Never asked why Jones's followers were so obsessively protective of him. And apparently, some never asked because they didn't want to know.

The story of Jim Jones and his Peoples Temple is not over. In fact, it has only begun to be told. If there is any solace to be gained from the tale of exploitation and human fodder told by the former temple members in these pages, it is that even such a power as Jim Jones cannot always contain his followers. Those who left had nowhere to go and every reason to fear pursuit. Yet they persevered. If Jones is ever to be stripped of his power, it will not be because of vendetta or persecution, but rather because of the courage of those people who stepped forward and spoke out. ■

In the poor-black Fillmore district of San Francisco, the Rev. Jim Jones is revered as a good Samaritan with patrons in very high places. As pastor of the People's Temple, one of the largest interfaith churches in California, Jones not only claims God's power to heal the sick but also wields palpable clout among city and state political leaders. The governor, lieutenant governor, mayor, sheriff and district attorney have all visited the temple and, during the 1976 Presidential campaign, Jones himself shared a platform with Rosalynn Carter. Last December, the charismatic preacher who can muster black voters was named chairman of the San Francisco Housing Authority Commission by Mayor George Moscone. But now Jones stands accused by 30 former temple members of building his power through fear, fraud, physical beatings, the appropriation of parishioners' property and possible misuse of government funds.

The accusations were published in two August issues of New West magazine, which called for an investigation of the temple's financial and disciplinary practices. Church representatives promptly denied the charges. But in a pair of surprise moves last week, ones resigned from the Housing Authority and District Attorney Joseph reitas announced that he would look nto the accusations.

Colony: No one has yet filed a formal omplaint against Jones, who temple officials said was unreachable at the hurch's 27,000-acre South American ern colony in Guyana. The city's most owerful politicians still seem solidly ehind the controversial minister. Mayr Moscone has said he saw no evidence at Jones had broken any laws and, in a ecent Sunday-morning sermon at the mple, black state Assemblyman Willie rown labeled the attacks "a measure of he church's] effectiveness."

Jones preaches a religious socialism ut he himself, it appears, is the first practice. His church, which claims ,000 members statewide, sponsors a ug-rehabilitation program, a free restaurant and medical clinic and a legal-aid rvice. More radically, Jones encourges his flock to give up their private roperty and live in low-rent apartments ased by the church from the city. Jones d his wife live modestly above the mple, where they are raising a multinal family of seven adopted children as their own son. But his social activ- also is expressed as politics, and Election Day, the poor deliver for eir leader. In two recent close races for mayor and district attorney, Jones's regimented followers were considered important to the winners.

According to some former church members, however, Jones's power is based as much on fear and fraud as on faith. His services are often held behind locked doors, and even then Jones is protected by bodyguards. Thy breakaway parishioners described ritual beatings and humiliating group encounters held at all-night sessions. A former secretary to Jones reported that the preacher faked healings by displaying chicken guts as tissue he had miraculously removed from cancer patients. Others said they had been persuaded into deeding over their homes to the church and had been talked into giving the temple government funds they received for running foster-care homes.

Jones (inset). Klan drama: 'That's why people turned over all they had'

When New West first considered investigating the People's Temple, the editors were barraged with pleas from politicians and businessmen to kill the story. When the editors persisted, some were harassed at home by anonymous callers. Meanwhile, other local newsmen reported similar coercion and only when word of the pressure campaign appeared in a local newspaper column did ex-members of the temple volunteer to tell of their experiences.

In separate interviews with NEWSWEEK, former followers of Jones corroborated the New West report. Micki Touchette, 26, told how she and eleven other students slept in a crowded garage and were given a weekly dole of $2 each as members of a temple commune. Touchette, who is white, said that Jones, who is part American Indian, told them "how ugly and horrible it was to be white," and "not to have sex because we were all latent homosexuals."

KKK: Laura Cornelius, 52, a black woman, said that Jones promised his followers a haven in Guyana when, as he predicted, Fascists took over the U.S. "He said they had a plan to exterminate blacks like they did the Jews," Cornelius recalled. She also described a ritual by temple members that dramatized a Ku Klux Klan lynching. "That's why people turned over all they had," she said. "He told us the whites would take it."

Others reported threats against their lives if they dared talk to police and said that they had been made to sign false confessions to crimes such as conspiracy against the government. "Jim always said he had an in with the police," said Deanna Myrtle, 38, "so we thought going to the police would be suicide."

Church officials have issued statements counterclanging that some of the dissenters were terrorists and child molesters. Throughout the controversy, Jones has remained at the Guyana farm, which the church says it funds with $150,000 annually. And some suspect that the Rev. Mr. Jones may be the first to take up permanent asylum in the Guyana haven.

Special to The New York Times

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 1—No matter what others say, to his wife, Jim Jones is a Marxist social philosopher and pastor to whom "service to my fellow man is the highest service to God."

But in a flood of recent publicity, Mr. Jones has been pictured as a charlatan who victimizes those whose religious faith he captures, taking their property, physically abusing them and using them as pawns in his political power games.

Mr. Jones, 46 years old, resigned his appointive position as chairman of the San Francisco Housing Authority after the criticism began. District attorneys in San Francisco and Mendocino Counties are checking allegations of irregularities in property transfers. The California Secretary of State's office is checking allegations that notaries public improperly endorsed some transfer documents.

These are the most serious charges made to date, although there have also been allegations of physical mistreatment, such as disciplinary paddlings, and the use of shoddy tricks to impress members of his congregation.

Former Members Quoted

The trouble for Mr. Jones and his 9,000-member church was made public two months ago in an article in New West magazine. The article quoted former members who told about [illegible] dissatisfaction. Then both San Francisco papers, The Chronicle and The Examiner, printed articles on the matter.

Throughout all this, Mr. Jones, a Butler University graduate and United Church of Christ minister for 25 years, has been unavailable. Marcaline Jones, his wife of 25 years, said in an interview this week that he was at the church's agricultural mission, a 27,000-acre jungle tract on the northeast coast of South America at Guyana.

Beyond issuing blanket denials of wrongdoing, Mr. Jones has not discussed the charges, nor have members of his congregation.

A registered nurse, Mrs. Jones worked for 10 years for the California State Board of Health until resigning Aug. 1 for reasons, she said, of health and because of pressing duties at the temple. In the interview, she described her husband as a Marxist who holds religion's trappings to be useful chiefly for social and economic uplift.

"Jim has used religion to try to get some people out of the opiate of religion," she said. She quoted him as saying to her, "Marcie, I've got to destroy this paper idol," as he slammed down the Bible he held in his hand.

They were married in 1949, when he was 19 and she was 22. They have one natural son, Stephen Gandhi Jones, and seven adopted children who are black, Korean, Indian and Caucasian.

"I wanted to come to California because the multiracial nature of our family was a problem in Indiana," she said. "But we've had problems here, too."

With 120 followers, they moved in 1965 from Indianapolis to Ukiah, Calif. Five years ago they opened the church here in an old building in a black slum. The agricultural project opened four years ago.

In an interview a year ago, Mr. Jones said that his congregation was 40 percent Caucasian, 40 percent black and 20 percent a mixture of Oriental, Indian and Chicano. He is of Welsh and Indian extraction, and Mrs. Jones is Caucasian.

The congregation is activist. A year ago 1,200 members picketed the Fresno

Associated Press

Jim Jones

County Courthouse while four employees of The Fresno Bee were held in jail for refusing to identify their news sources.

Mr. Jones said then that the temple supported many causes to protect newspaper sources. He said of the Fresno pickets, "I can't stand to see our press crippled. Who else would take a stand? Our duty is to be here."

Mr. Jones's alleged political strength has been emphasized in the newspaper accounts of temple affairs. The published names have been mostly those of liberal Democrats such as Mayor George Moscone, who appointed Mr. Jones as chairman of the housing authority; Assemblyman Willie Brown, and Sheriff Richard Hongisto. All have been supported by the temple at election time and have appeared at temple meetings.

However, the record also shows that the pastor has sought to establish friendships and dialogue with other leaders, including officials of the John Birch society who have also spoken at temple meetings.

One of Mr. Jones's techniques for gaining attention has been to make substantial contributions by checks to newspaper publishers, saying that the money was to support press freedom. In this way, he became known to the late Charles Theriot, publisher of The Chronicle, who sent the money to Sigma Delta Chi, a national journalism organization.

The pastor's aim, according to his wife, is to provide a communal life for all his members. "We live by the rule of from each according to his ability and to each according to his need," she said. Funds are pooled, she said, with medical care, dental care, housing and food, educational expenses and church expenses paid from the common purse.

The temple has educated a medical doctor who now is interning in Guyana, she said. A dentist educated by the temple is among the former members whose criticisms are the basis for some of the temple's unfavorable publicity, she said.

Mr. Jones's Marxist twist to religion came to him when he was about 21 years old, his wife said. She said that he told her then that "in order to bring people out of their superstition you have to give them a substitute." She recalled that he pointed out that Jesus told the rich man, "Sell what you have and give it to the poor."

Mrs. Jones was asked if she contributed her salary to the temple when she worked for the state. She did not.

"Jim and I have long felt that if they didn't assassinate him, they'd try to get him by law," she said. "I put my checks in a special fund so Jim could have the best legal counsel."

$1.1 Million Suit Against Rev. Jones

WED AUG 3 1977

By Marshall Kilduff

A $1.1 million lawsuit against the Peoples Temple and its ubiquitous leader, the Rev. Jim Jones, was filed here yesterday by two former members who claimed their daughter was beaten and their property sold off.

The suit was filed in Superior Court by Jeannie and Al Mills, who were members of the controversial church from 1970 to 1975.

The Mills and other former followers of Jones have charged that he ordered church members beaten, and bilked some out of their property and possessions.

Since the charges were made over a month ago, Jones has remained at his church's South American mission in Guyana, where several hundred church members are reportedly migrating.

In the lawsuit the Mills claim they were pressured into signing over property in Willits and Redwood Valley in Mendocino county and that these deed forms were improperly notarized. Another piece of the couple's property in Richmond ended up in the ownership of another church member, Andrew Silver, the suit alleged.

The couple has asked that the Richmond property be returned and that the proceeds from the sale of their other two parcels — valued at about $100,000 — be refunded.

They also requested equal sums of $500,000 for punitive damages and mental anguish suffered by them and their daughter Linda Mertle, who allegedly was beaten by a church disciplinarian.

Named along with Jones were his wife, Marceline; Silver; church attorneys Eugene Chaikin and Timothy O. Stoen; Dale E. Parks and Ruby Carroll.

The suit was filed by attorney Daniel K. Densenberg.

Former Deputy DA Named In Temple Property Probe

THU AUG 25 1977

A former San Francisco deputy district attorney was alleged yesterday to have played a central role in a property transfer in which two ex-members of Peoples Temple claim their names were forged.

The accusations involve Timothy O. Stoen, a top adviser in the church who left his job with the district attorney's office last March. They are based on a series of tape-recorded phone conversations in 1973 between Stoen and Marvin Swinney, a former temple member.

According to Swinney and his private investigator, Joe Mazor, the tapes purport to show that Stoen was attempting to arrange a payment to Swinney and his wife Jackie in exchange for the couple's consent to a transfer of a Ukiah house.

The Swinneys claimed yesterday that the church was eager to avoid a legal fight threatened by the couple. The Swinneys said their signatures had been pasted onto an earlier transfer document witnessed by Stoen in 1973.

The tapes along with the records of the property transaction were handed over to deputy district attorney Robert Graham, who sent them on to the state attorney general's office yesterday for investigation.

Peoples Temple and its leader, the Rev. Jim Jones, are being investigated by a number of state and local agencies in connection with charges that church leaders ordered beatings of members and pressured some into signing over real estate.

The Swinneys said they had followed Jones in 1965 when he moved his 100-member congregation from Indianapolis to Redwood Valley, a small Mendocino County town near Ukiah.

In August of 1973, the couple decided to leave the church and live in South Carolina. But when they checked local property records, the Swinneys claimed, they found their names had been signed to a deed transferring their Ukiah home to the church.

The couple protested to Jones and Stoen, who was at the time a deputy district attorney for Mendocino county, a top legal adviser in the church and also the notary who witnessed the transfer that the Swinneys claimed was a forgery.

Though the Swinneys claimed the transfer had not in fact been signed by them, they decided not to take up the matter with authorities then.

"We were scared that the church would harass us and the only thing we wanted was to leave," Mrs. Swinney said yesterday.

Her husband taped three conversations with Stoen that detailed the final arrangements leading to a settlement regarding the contested property.

According to the taped remarks, Swinney said he would drop his protests and Stoen in return said the church would pay the couple $2000. Swinney said the sum later was raised to $10,000.

A copy of the tape was given to The Chronicle by Mazor, who said he is working for 18 families of former temple members.

The Swinneys said they had given an abstract of their property deed to church member Archie Ijames when they were urged to by other church leaders in 1973.

But Mrs. Swinney said the couple never thought such a move would result in an official transfer.

Temple's Jungle Outpost —Stories of Hard Life

SAT AUG 2 0 1977

By Marshall Kilduff

The new home for nearly a thousand members of the Peoples Temple in the jungle of the South American country of Guyana amounts to a grueling work camp, according to former church members who have visited the outpost.

Since 1973 church members have worked dawn-to-dark days to hack away vegetation, prepare cropland and build primitive facilities in preparation for large numbers of temple followers who are leaving San Francisco for the small colony, former members said.

Discipline is strict, and workers caught breaking rules or not performing chores have had their heads shaved and been denied meals for up to three days, according to one of the former members who left the Guyana outpost in late June.

At that time, 160 people were at the colony, working 10-hour days and living in military style barracks with 30 to 40 beds in a room and cold-water wash-up facilities.

In Georgetown, the capital of Guyana, church members who are waiting for a boat or plane trip to the mission are required to sleep ten or more to a room in a two-story residence owned by the church and must also beg for food from city merchants to supplement regular meals, the former members said.

This spartan regimen is considerably at odds with press releases issued by the controversial church. According to its own accounts, the temple's mission is a novel experiment in agriculture as well as a haven for delinquent youths aiming for a new start.

But in interviews with five former church members who have visited the outpost, and others familiar with temple workings, the church's leader, the Rev. Jim Jones, had his own special reasons for founding the jungle mission.

Jones had conceived of the mission as a refuge and a world of its own, free from the perils of big city life, these sources recalled.

He had also predicted to his followers that America would be heavily damaged by either a nuclear attack or a race war in which blacks would be killed or imprisoned, former members said.

California, but ex-members say there are about 3000 serious believers. Approximately 80 per cent of the temple is black.

The church has come under press and official scrutiny after news accounts that Jones faked cancer healings, ordered beatings of members and acquired large sums of money from followers.

He moved from Indianapolis to Redwood Valley in Mendocino county in 1965 and eventually shifted the center of his operations to the Fillmore district in San Francisco by 1971.

Jones and a group of about a dozen top aides first visited Guyana in December of 1973, according to Dan Phillips, a former church member who was in the party.

According to Phillips and others, Jones had singled out Guyana, a relatively poor and backward country with a population of about 800,000, for four specific reasons:

The country was English-speaking from its days as the colony of British Guiana; the majority of the population was black and thus his church members might feel more at ease; the country was fairly close to the United States; and finally, the government was socialist, which appealed to Jones' political beliefs.

By early 1974, Jones and the Guyana government had agreed the temple could develop up to 27,000 acres in the thinly populated northwest, near the Venezuelan border. The mission would only be allowed several thousand acres at the start though, according to Guyanese government officials.

The first few years of the mission were spent in long series of trial-and-error experiments, according to a former member who was sent down for two months in March, 1978, as a trouble shooter.

A 30000 G36C diesel generator burned out because the novice section mismaderstood wiring instructions. A $15,000 sawmill came equipped with wrong blades which were use quickly. Then the heavy rains washed away the inch and a half of fragile topsoil that the newcomers exposed when they cleared the land.

The weather was sometimes hot and muggy, but the temperature usually remained between 75 and 95 degrees. There were mosquitoes and some snakes and monkeys which bothered the church members at first.

"Another problem was the Amer Indians who lived in the area," said one member. "We needed security guards in the jungle because those people would try and swipe everything we had."

According to the former members, life at the outpost was much like the temple life that they came to reject back in California.

After a work day that began at 6 a.m. that ended at 10 p.m., there might be three and four hour "catharsis" sessions during which individuals would be ridiculed for doubting the progress of the mission or failing in their assignments.

A rule-breaker might have his hair shaved off, be made to wear a yellow hardhat or a badge of dishonor and be told not to speak for several days.

In other cases, if clothing or tools were lost or damaged, a member would be fined, the replacement cost of such items.

Because no one had any money, a member would be docked his or her daily meals, which the church computed as costing $1, until the debt was repaid.

One youth, Tommy Bogue, who was 15 or 16, was forced to dig a latrine from 10 p.m. until 6 a.m. because mission supervisors discovered he had stolen some aluminum roofing sheets to make a small hut for himself outside the outpost area, according to a former member who said he was punished.

Jones himself visited Guyana only frequently, but spent much time in Georgetown, the government officials during the arrival of followers from California.

Once on the East Coast, they flew to Georgetown and stayed at the church residence at 41 Lamaha Gardens.

As soon as the Jones followers stepped off their plane, temple aides would take their passports and money, a move that in effect cut off anyone from leaving without church approval.

According to the former members interviewed, about a dozen followers have asked to return from Guyana. The church has in most cases agreed, though staff aides resisted the idea and demanded the returning members not discuss life at the mission.

For the most part, the church sends its members to Guyana for long-term stays and there is little turnover. However, upper-level church aides visit the mission frequently to relay strategy, money and materials.

At intervals when large numbers of temple members flew in at once, the church residence would be crowded to the point of ten or more people sleeping in a room.

Members would be expected to "procure," or beg, food from Georgetown shopkeepers, under the ruse the donated commodities would be sent to the mission in the north. In fact, the food went to provide for the temple members in Georgetown with only a portion of the supplies ending up at the settlement, two former members said.

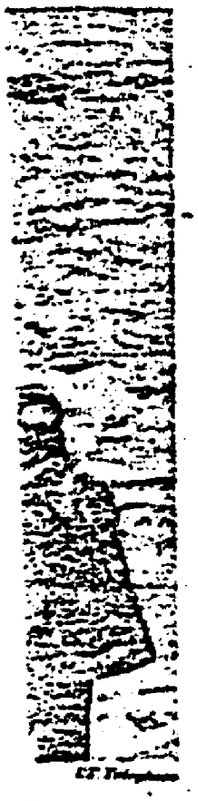
The trip from Georgetown was made either by plane or boat. The 150-mile flight from the capital to Port Kaituma could be made in two hours. A church truck then transported the travelers about eight miles to the mission, which government officials have christened Jonestown.

By sea, the journey took 22 to 23 hours. Members would board the Cudjo in Georgetown, head north up the coast to Waini Point, run up the Kaituma river past Amer villages and step ashore at Port Kaituma, where a church vehicle would meet them.

Relations between Jones and the Guyanese government are ancient, though the church has sought to impress officials with the progress of the mission.

Guyanese embassy officials in Washington and those in Georgetown have indicated they are following news accounts of the charges made against Jones in California, but these representatives have not commented publicly.

Wealthy



The Edwards couple left San Francisco last spring on short notice, their family told The Chronicle, and the two are believed to be in Guyana with the church.

Thus, their property was sold in their absence. Temple secretary Jean F. Brown had power of attorney and signed sale documents prepared by temple lawyer Gene Chaikin.

But the average temple member is not in any position to offer the church such wealth, former members claim. One example is Jessie Boyd, an elderly black woman who lives in a studio apartment run by the San Francisco Housing Authority at 666 Ellis street.

She pays a quarter of her income of $403 per month as rent and paid another quarter to the church until she left in February of this year.

In her 6½ years as a follower of Jones, she signed checks payable to the church totaling $3937.19. These checks were deposited into four different church bank accounts: Bank of Upper Lake, Bank of America and Wells Fargo, all in Ukiah, and the Bank of Montreal in San Francisco.

She also baked seven or eight cakes every week. "I bought all the fixings myself, and the church would take it over to the Safeway or Albertson's and sell each one for $5.

"I can't tell you how much I may have given in little bits of cash," she said.

Temple spokesmen contend that such contributions go toward a wide array of free church services such as legal counseling, medical care and meals.

Jones himself has stated the Guyana mission has cost his church upwards of $1 million since he first established the settlement in 1973.

The Guyana outpost, to which Jones has retreated since the controversy began about a month ago, apparently has been the destination of much of the church's money.

that temple leaders were regularly dispatched with cash to deposit in Guyana banks, pay temple bills and often to bury the money for safekeeping.

On several occasions these couriers carried as much as $50,000, according to former members.

Dan Phillips, who went with Jones and about a dozen top church leaders to Guyana on the temple's first visit in December of 1973, said a large sum was transferred at that time.

"Each of us had $5000 on us in cash. There was also a bank draft for $600,000 from Barclay's of Canada to deposit in the bank's branch in Georgetown

Church Denies 'Exodus'

Peoples Temple acknowledged yesterday that "nearly a thousand" of its members are at the church's farm project in Guyana but refused to describe the departure of such numbers as a "mass exodus."

The response followed a Chronicle story earlier this week that claimed possibly 400 of the church's members were leaving the Bay Area as part of temple plan to shift its affairs to the South American country.

The church press release stated: "For the last two years we have provided our members with the opportunity to reside at our agricultural project.

"Even though there are nearly a thousand there now, and more want to go, we are absolutely not pulling out of San Francisco or California," the statement said.

The church said that San Francisco "will continue to remain our 'home base'" and called news accounts of its inner workings "biased and sensationalistic reporting."

The church has said it has 9000 members in Northern California and 20,000 statewide, although former members of the church believe the temple has about 3500 serious followers.

d from church members that temple leaders opened more than 15 bank accounts and also began taking large sums of cash, ranging up to $200,000, via trusted church couriers to Guyana where the temple has an agricultural mission, according to Jonestown sources.

Nearly every aspect of church life was designed to return a profit to the temple, the former members said.

Property was signed over to the church as gifts from members, large sums of cash were collected during services, and church members were assigned special duties such as street corner soliciting, mail, appeals and bake sales.

Followers were expected to contribute a quarter of their salary — a figure that later rose to 40 per cent for some — as well as donate their time and talents for special chores such as maintenance of the bus fleet or repair of church buildings.

Church leaders encouraged members injured in traffic accidents to allow temple attorneys to try their court cases, while other church aides peddled plans and drawings of Jones designed to ward off highway mishaps.

Once a member had turned over most of his possessions and money, it was very difficult for him to leave.

"The temple ended up with everything I had," said Deanna Martin, a member along with her husband and family from 1970 to 1976.

"That's what made it so hard for us to leave. We had nowhere to go and nothing to fall back on," Martin said.

The church has reported publicly that its yearly budget is $650,000. The temple is not required to report its finances to either the Internal Revenue Service or state officials.

But such expenditures did not match the enormous sums that accumulated, according to former members.

"If the money[] became a joke with Jim," said one woman who was a top adviser and notary who witnessed scores of church legal documents.

"We used to wonder what to do with it all. But we never spent it on much," she said.

Questions about the temple's finances were raised in earlier press investigations of Jones, a Disciples of Christ minister who moved to Redwood Valley from Indianapolis with a group of about 100 followers in 1965.

Jones reportedly built a large following, especially among inner-city blacks in San Francisco and Los Angeles, with his sermons as a faith-healer who proclaimed a vision of an integrated and socialist society.

Former members said Jones ordered beatings of his followers to maintain discipline, faked the healings and devoted most of his time to collecting money and cultivating politicians.

The worst tropical storm to strike southern California in 38 years dwindled to showers yesterday, its fury spent after record rains and flooding that killed eight persons and caused millions of dollars in crop damage but did little to alleviate the state's drought.

The storm, which moved up from Baja California as a hurricane Monday stopped short of Northern California. "It just disappeared overnight leaving residual moisture that will stick around for the rest of the day with cloudy skies and light showers," Don Depoyer of the National Weather Service said.

Three days of steady rain provided record rainfall — ranging from two to five inches in Los Angeles and other parched southern California communities.

Rainwater stood six inches deep yesterday in farmlands of the Imperial valley near the Mexican border, where $14 million dollars worth of damage was done to crops, and runoff from the fields kept many county roads impassable.

Some areas of Imperial county remained without electricity and telephone service.

Total damage from the storm was expected to exceed $20 million.

Crop damage also was reported in the southernmost counties of the fertile San Joaq valley.

"We don't have any monetary figures/damages yet," said Mike Henry, secretary-manager of the Kern County Farm Bureau. "But we k there will be mildew and mold problems for grape growers."

Church spokesmen claim Jones built up a 20,000-member congregation in the 1970s. But former members said the real figure was closer to 2000.

This lower number of current followers along with the fact that many of them are elderly and on small incomes, have suggested to observers that the church could not have accumulated very much money.

But these members interviewed said the temple used a variety of techniques to gather money from its followers and to raise substantial sums beyond its membership.

Members were asked to contribute a quarter of their income within several months of joining the church. This portion was raised to a third and finally 40 per cent for some, former members have said.

Other members lived in communes set up in the Ukiah, Redwood Valley and San Francisco areas.

Jackie Swinney, a former member who headed commune finances, said the living arrangements were designed so that members turned over paychecks and received living expenses in return.

"We were clearing $6000 to $10,000 per month when we were just in Redwood City," she said.

The church is believed to have at least 12 such communes, many with upwards of a dozen people each, scattered through the Fillmore district here.

Swinney also supervised the money-counters who took up the receipts during marathon weekend services that Jones held in Redwood Valley, San Francisco and Los Angeles.

"On a good day in Los Angeles during 1973 and 1974, we'd handle $30,000 to $50,000," she said.

"San Francisco was sometimes as good. It was all small bills and change. Now and then we'd have some jewelry too," Swinney added.

"We had a series of banks we used from Ukiah to Lakeport," said one woman who frequently handled the bank deposits.

Sandy Parks, a former member who worked in the church's legal and financial office, said that temple leaders were careful to spread their money among the accounts so as to avoid a large sum in one or two that bank or government officials would judge as suspicious.

Parks also said she typed up "empty $5" applications from church members seeking to cash in their life insurance policies.

Deanna Martin and her husband Timothy ran the church's publications. It was their job, they said, to study religious writings from other faith healers and recommend a new monthly reading to raise contributions.

"We averaged about $500 a day, and that is a very conservative figure," she said.

Other publication activities included photographs of Jones, intended for such things as warding off burglars, illness and traffic accidents.

Linda Mizzale said nine different kinds of Jones' pictures from a tray that she carried during weekend services. "I made $80 to $100 a meeting," she said.

Aside from such routine methods, there were larger sums that served to the church through property transfers.

Between 1967 and the present the church or its officials were involved in 32 records of real estate transactions. Ten of these amounted to gifts of property to the church.

The church has reportedly been getting out of the Mendocino area and has placed some six pieces of property on sale for $1.35 million.

In San Francisco, the church has sold two pieces of property this year — a three-unit apartment at 35-45 Page street for $227,000 on June 22 and a pair of flats at 38 Haight street for $42,500 on May 12.

Peoples Temple Exodus Speeding Up

By [illegible] Staff [illegible] 1977

Controversial Peoples Temple has stepped up the pace of its exodus from San Francisco to the point where it appears unlikely the church will maintain its powerful political and social base here.

Investigators from the district attorney's office, who have been looking into the church's activities, estimated yesterday that more than 400 church members have left the city aboard temple buses for Miami, where they board flights for Guyana.

That South American country has become the new home for the secretive chapel and its leader, Rev. Jim Jones, according to a half dozen interviews conducted by The Chronicle with former members.

Signs of the church's shift to Guyana include reports of late-night departures of temple buses from the rear parking lot of the temple at 1859 Geary boulevard, stories of chapel members abruptly quitting their jobs and special preparations being made to ship belongings overseas.

Such developments lend credence to earlier reports that the embattled Fillmore district church was considering such a departure.

Jones, a Disciples of Christ minister who has strong political connections with state and local liberal politicians, has been the focus of a series of bizarre charges.

In a New West magazine story published last month, Jones was charged with beating his followers to maintain discipline, faking medical healings to win new recruits and acquiring large sums of money and property from members.

Though such notoriety may be a factor in a stepped-up pace of the church's departure, former members indicated that Jones started the move to Guyana about six months ago.

At that time, vehicles with two or three families and a rental trailer filled with suitcases were dispatched from San Francisco to Miami.

The families were told to stay in cheap motels, often sneaking eight or ten people in a room, until church officials made arrangements for flights and boat trips to the church's agricultural mission.

The numbers involved in such a movement have grown to the point where a representative of Dutch Antillean Airlines confirmed yesterday that 35 members of the church took a flight to Guyana last Saturday.

There also were small bits of personal evidence that the exodus was under way. LaFlora Towne, a chambermaid for 15 years at the Carlton Hotel at 1075 Sutter street, Another woman, a nurse with a Fillmore district pediatrist, said she has to leave her job "to take care of some business back east." Her employer said she was a member of the church.

District Attorney investigators also have received a report that 30 to 40 members of the church who live in an apartment at 1859 Geary Boulevard have left for Guyana.

There was also pioneer evidence that the church was planning a major move from the San Francisco area.

An open-air construction area in the rear of the temple has been set up to nail together plywood shipping crates apparently for transporting goods to Guyana.

Two weeks ago, two flatbed trailers were loaded with the crates which were associated with the Guyana address of the church minister. The trailers, which are registered to church member Leon Perry, were then driven off, presumably to some shipping point and eventually to the Jones mission.

In addition the church has purchased 300 Migatron metal barrels for $2940 from the Rachal Steel Drum Co. of 1212 Thomas avenue in San Francisco.

According to Ernie Rachal, church member Norman Jones said the drums were to be used to ship food and clothing overseas.

Rachal said the church also purchased rubber gaskets for the barrels so that the contents of the drums would be preserved and sealed tight against the effects of tropical humidity during shipment.

Rachal said Thomas took 70 of the barrels, and on inspection yesterday, several dozen were scattered around the plywood container assembly area.

District Attorney investigators said yesterday they have interviewed between 20 to 30 former members of the church in the past two and half weeks.

It was from such interviews that the investigators have based their estimation of more than 400 members being sent to Guyana.

Charles Garry, the attorney representing the church, said the departures were explained to him by temple members as "nothing unusual.

"You know they have a mission down there, and people have to come and go between the two places."

Garry said he had been invited by the church to visit the jungle farm.

Former members of the church have described the mission as a dawn-to-dark hardship post which Jones passed off to the "Promised Land" to his followers.

The Guyanese government has granted him several thousand acres in the wilderness area along the Venezuelan border. The government has seen fit to dub the church mission "Jonestown" in honor of its creator.

Don Swinney, whose parents prevented the church into returning him from the Guyana outpost in January of 1976, said he was worked hard and treated poorly.

"If they thought you didn't do enough work, they wouldn't feed you," he said.

He said he was put to work digging ditches and gardening. He lost 30 pounds during his year's stay at the farm, Swinney said.

Other former members said the mission was also a hard learning experience for church members who knew little about farming, carpentry, plumbing or electricity.

Walt Jones, 36, was sent for a two-month stay in March and April of 1976 to help straighten out the kapken church newcomers.

"The sanitation & [illegible] was backing up and they had just burned out a $6000 GMC diesel," he said.

The church had also bought a $18,000 sawmill but ordered the wrong saw blades which were not right every, Jones said.

"The place had possibilities. It wasn't so bad even though it rained quite a bit of the time and there were mosquitoes and flies," Jones said.

When he was there, there were 30 people, mostly adult men assigned to do the physical work of setting up the settlement.

Church publications state there are now 130 people, and 20 to 30 are juveniles who have been sent there to keep them out of further trouble with the law back home.

But former church members claim most of the children cited in such temple press releases were abused by their parents and became troublemakers while growing up in church surroundings.

When the congregation was first moved to Ukiah in 1968, he said that was the safest place in the country in the event of nuclear war. And in succeeding years, he instructed temple members to store large quantities of grain, food staples and water, which they would carry into a large, underground cavern to escape the nuclear blast.

Fields said he and another member learned the cave's location and found a crudely built ladder set at the top of a large rock outcropping. "We built rope and climbing gear and went in," he said. "There was no way (Jones) could get everyone in there, especially because the church was mainly composed of people who were elderly and sick."

In more recent years, the temple has been preparing a jungle sanctuary in Guyana, where Jones reportedly has been staying for the past month.

When asked why they submitted, usually without question, to such a bizarre lifestyle, the former temple members explained that Jones' rules and rituals left them terrified, emotionally confused, and, in the words of many of them, brainwashed.

They said their financial dependency on the church left them with no resources to start another life. They were often alienated from family and friends.

The ex-members said they feared the self-incriminating letters they had written would be used against them and that Jones had said his could "do them dead."

It was known to them he said, according to Crenshaw and Sharpnin, and the traitors would die. A former member who asked that her name not be used said, "They offered to assist any anyone who tried to cause trouble for the church."

Many of those who did leave said they felt surrendering guilt but had become so repulsed by Jones' techniques that they couldn't stay any longer.

Some of those who left said they received threatening letters and phone calls as well as frightening visits by Jones' associates.

More than 50 former temple members have been total group to regulate the other people who were in them."

Several former commune members said the training included mass classes each of the drums as well as regular hiking trips into the Ukiah area woods. They said they were taught various military maneuvers, learned survival techniques, and practiced posting care were enemy tanks.

Wayne Platte, one of Jones' bodyguards at the time, said the training was halted after Jones learned that a few of the students went out and bought rifles.

The maneuvers — despite their serious motivation — were one of the few diversions for dues members. They weren't allowed to date, drink or smoke.

Each organization was ostensibly designed to weapons and make temple members so they could survive a nuclear holocaust or fascist takeover that Jones has predicted.

When the congregation was first moved to Ukiah in 1968, he said that was the safest place in the country in the event of nuclear war. And in succeeding years, he instructed temple members to store large quantities of [illegible] food staples and water, which they would carry, into a large, underground cavern to escape the nuclear blast.

Platte said he and another member learned the cave's location and found a seemingly bottomless pit at the top of a large rock outcropping. "We took rope and climbing gear and went in," he said. "There was no way (Jones) could get everyone in there, especially because the church was mainly composed of people who were elderly and sick."

In more recent years, the temple has been preparing a jungle sanctuary in Guyana, where Jones reportedly has been staying for the past month.

When asked why they submitted, mostly without interviewed by the San Francisco district attorney's office.

District Attorney Joseph Freitas said following a review of the allegations, his office will determine if a criminal investigation is warranted.

The Mendocino County Department of Social Services is also investigating the operation of care homes for children and the elderly.

Meanwhile, many church properties are up for sale and there is some evidence of a small migration to Guyana. Former members reported this week a fleet of many as three busloads of children and adults left for the East Coast for flights to South America.

temple conducted biweekly trips to Los Angeles and San Francisco and occasional cross-country "vacations."

Former members said as many as 70 persons were crammed in the temple's 45-seat buses while the caravan of 11 buses traveled day and night to the next service. Children and occasionally adults were forced to ride in overhead luggage racks, in the aisles and sometimes in the unventilated luggage compartment beneath the bus, which they said was one place you could get space and peace and quiet.

Passengers often slept and ate on the bus, eating from cold cans of chili or ravioli, with an occasional salad, cheese and day-old bread. A hot meal and a bed were rare on the trips, but they were repeatedly hit up for offerings.

Carnelian, who said she usually was hungry on trips, explained, "Every time you'd get to sleeping good, they're coming around taking offerings. If you said you didn't have any, they'd make you empty your purse and see if you could find any money."

There was pressure — especially on members of the church's planning commission — to live communally, so they could save money for food and other expenses and could turn over all their income to the church. Former members said there were about two dozen communes in San Francisco in recent years and a lesser number in Ukiah when the temple was headquartered in Redwood Valley.

At first, they said, San Francisco commune members — many of whom had unrelated children living with them — prepared their own meals and turned over surplus money at the end of each month. Later, however, they said the church required them to eat their meals at the temple in order to save still more money.

Ex-members said deprivation crept slowly into their lives after they joined to help people, particularly the elderly and children. They said the communes were even idyllic places for awhile — with several adults caring for perhaps a dozen children, helping them with their homework, taking them on outings and giving them love and affection.

"Every so often a new discipline was laid out," explained one. "Everything was added slowly until it was totalitarianism. So it was hard to say you wanted to leave."

Despite Jones' penchant for healings, the temple did arrange medical care for its many sick and aged members. And, despite the rigorous routines, the children were sent to public and private schools — and urged to do well.

In many ways, the church's two college dormitories in Santa Rosa were a microcosm of the temple.

About 25 to 30 college-age men and women lived in two dorm buildings — with the sexes segregated — while attending Santa Rosa Junior College. They took turns cooking and shared their food, which sometimes was in very short supply.

Like others in the temple, the students were prohibited from fraternizing with outsiders, and their regimen left little time for anything except their required outside jobs, study, dorm "enhancer" meetings and a rather unusual church class on paramilitary training.

"It was in preparation in case of depression or the nuclear bomb Jones predicted," organized-skilled Tracheata, a commune member said. "We had to be

Jones and the church hierarchy sometimes held critical beatings, but with fewer licks and less intensity. Deanna Mertle, who said she witnessed about 300 beatings, said the youngest victim was 4 years old and the oldest was in his 60s.

"The counselors would recommend the punishment," Mertle said. "We'd have to say some astronomical number of hits so Jim could sound really benevolent and say, 'only 100.'

"But 100 hits with the board was like concentration camp torture."

The so-called "board of education," one of the most commonly used instruments in recent years, was described as a one-by-four-inch board, 2 ½ feet long. Former members said a 200-pound woman frequently administered the blows, and offenders that struggled were spread-eagled by other members.

A microphone was placed near the victim's mouth to amplify the screams for the congregation, sometimes as many as 1,000 persons.

Numerous former members told Jones wore a pained and unhappy expression during the beatings, but sometimes would say, "Hit him harder," if the punisher seemed to be easing the intensity of the blows. And occasionally, they said, he would laugh.

Sometimes Jones would opt for boxing rather than beating, and children as well as adults went into the ring. The opponents were chosen for their superior size or fighting ability, ex-members said.

"Jones would pick the people to do the boxing, then they'd keep us picking new ones until the person was whipped," said Cornelious. "Some of them couldn't get up."

Sandy Bozyuka, 36, said the beating of Linda Mertle, then 16, was so vicious that many in the congregation averted their eyes and gritted their teeth — but no one stood to protest as she was hit 75 times.

It was common practice for the temple to get notarized permission slips from parents or guardians of minors for the beatings, apparently to protect the church from any legal repercussions.

It was also common to require members to confess in writing to crimes they hadn't committed. All former members who talked to the Examiner said they signed confessions to crimes including molesting their own children, stealing large amounts of money, conspiring to kill the President or overthrowing the government.

They said they also signed blank sheets of paper, which could be used in any way the temple chose.

"Jones would get up publicly in a meeting, then would say, 'Write something you did that was illegal, whether you did it or not,'" according to Sandy Bozyuka.

Then Jim personally looked over each note and if you hadn't written it right, he handed it back for rewriting. I hadn't done anything illegal, so I said I stole some money from the picture stands and shoplifted.

Jones frequently aroused his congregation with revelations about their personal lives, arousing to pull out of this sin the names of their grandmothers, their doctors and prescription numbers, details about knickknacks scattered throughout their homes, and even their food preferences. The revelations reportedly were less than miraculous.

Jones had a special committee of six to eight persons whose full-time job was the gathering of personal information about members and the preparation of phony cancers.

A former committee member who asked for anonymity said Jones had them sift through garbage cans of members and potential members, drop by their homes and telephone them to discreetly get information, which was typed up and provided to Jones before a healing.

Each committee member was assigned an area and carried the information in suitcases, up to five per member. The same committee members were charged with preparing phony cancers which actually were chicken guts or calves livers fermented with human blood extracted from their own arms by temple nurses.

When Jones selected a person for healing, they said, the so-called cancer was removed in front of the congregation if it was "pooled" orally and was removed in a bathroom by nurses if it was "pooled" through the bowels. In either case, the cancers were palmed by nurses, who displayed them as they paraded up and down the aisles.

Former guards said they were instructed to attack anyone who tried to take the cancers or, failing that, should rip out the tool-carrying things to keep them from being stolen and analyzed.

One day, Marvin Swinney, then head of security, was called to Jones' home in Redwood Valley after workmen found a suspicious-looking overnight case under the house. "I opened it carefully, thinking it was a bomb," he said. "But it was a bunch of chicken guts fermenting ... in a plastic bag. It smelled so damn bad I didn't puke around, but I'd seen the cancers before and recognized them."

Some of those "healed" were actually healthy and young church members. One woman recalled acting the part of an elderly Swedish lady who had been crippled for years. She wore a wig, used egg whites to wrinkle her skin, stuffed Kleenex in her mouth and wore Salvation Army clothing.

"I came in in a wheelchair and Deanna came out with this fantastic revelation and brought me out of the wheelchair," she said. "I came up very slowly so it looked more real. It took five minutes to get me out of that chair."

Laura Cornelious said she was "healed" of cancer of the cervix, breast, colon, and spine, directors Jones told her she had. "He said he healed me of cancer on my spine two or three times, and my back's bothering me now," she said.

Part of the protection afforded the faithful came from holy oil, prayer cloths, photographs of Jones and candles that were sold.

Recalled Sandy Bozyuka, "Jim said everybody should have pictures of him. One picture was to protect you from fire in the house, one from smoke, one from cancer."

Deanna Mertle who was in charge of the picture stand, said the concession photos generated between $2,000 and $3,000 a weekend and were devoured up at Jones' request to make money.

former members in press releases and the church newspaper, but have not responded to repeated attempts by the Examiner to discuss the allegations.

Telephone calls to the church lawyer, Charles Garry, also have not produced responses to the charges.

A number of the ex-church members interviewed for this story requested that their names not be used.

Jones was and is "Father" to his thousands of followers in California. He surrounded himself with a coterie of fewer than a dozen trusted aides who spied on potential and actual members, and he established a hierarchy that included a planning commission of about 100, and committees to oversee security, letter-writing and a variety of other tasks.

The church, which acquired about 25 pieces of property in the Ukiah area alone, relied heavily upon donations [illegible] members who said they were pressured to varying degrees into donating their homes and incomes.

The extent of the church's domestic holdings and assets is unknown, but in Mendocino and San Francisco counties alone, the temple acquired, through purchase or gifts, properties estimated to be worth more than $1.5 million, minus outstanding mortgages. Jones was quoted recently as saying that more than $1 million has been poured into the Guyana mission.

Casual visitors were asked to contribute what they could, members living outside church housing were supposed to commit 25 per cent of their earnings and church commune members were pressured into giving all their income and often property to the church. Also, church members were encouraged with repeated pleas for offerings both during services and on bus trips.

Michi Touchette, one of the money couriers during the early 1970s, said the contributions on weekend bus trips from Ukiah to Los Angeles sometimes included [illegible]0 to $25,000 at a branch temple in Los [illegible]es and $8,000 to $12,000 at the San [illegible]ancisco church.

"Within an hour and a half, we'd get a few thousand dollars," she related. "We'd be counting as fast as we could. Jones would demand a total before we finished, so (a high-ranking member) would write the total as of that moment, maybe $1,200. Jones would then say we'd only collected $400 to $500 from that group and that was not enough. They passed the bucket two or three times."

Members who lived in church communes, said to number up to 25 in San Francisco alone, cashed their pay checks, turned the money over to the church and received a $2 a week allowance.

Nova Ky, a nine-year church member, said she gave the church her $1,000-a-month salary from a local radio station and in return got her allowance, meals, a room and a ritual last pass.

"If I had to take someone to lunch, I would have to requisition it a week before," she said. "If I needed clothes, I had to provide an itemized statement of the items I needed and how much they cost."

Another former member who said her commune contributed more than $10,000 a year after expenses told the Examiner she was forced to shop in secondhand stores and had to supply her purchase receipts.

Even the poverty stricken were dunned for contributions. Louis Cornelius, 82, said she was on welfare yet gave her $200 watch and some clothing and made quilts and bedspreads that the church sold.

For many, church membership was not unlike an endless boot camp. When they weren't eating, sleeping, working outside jobs or going to school, virtually every minute was devoted to the church — almost nightly marathon meetings or services, church chores, committee jobs, care of children and the elderly, and, in some cases, working full time church jobs.

Jeanette Kern-Hoosman, a Santa Rosa Junior College student during the early 70s, said she worked part time, attended church dormitory meetings Monday, Tuesday and Thursday nights; church meetings in Ukiah Wednesday night, and took church bus trips to Los Angeles every other weekend. On an average of three hours sleep a night, "we had to maintain our grades too," she said.

Former members said the most dreaded nights of the week were those when church members were "called up" before the entire congregation for minor infractions. The events were called "catharsis."

Jones always was at the podium, often with members of the planning commission on stage with him and several of his armed body guards nearby. When the offender was called up to the stage, he was confronted with his offense — which could be anything, acting like a "male chauvinist pig" or fraternizing with outsiders.

"When your name was called, people would scream, 'Get down there,' and swear. It was hostile," said Gary Lambrev, a former member. "Everyone related to you was required to run up and accuse you, too. Defending yourself was a big crime."

Lambrev, who was active in the peace movement at Stanford University, said the physical punishment became more severe over the years.

"It started with light spankings, then a small stick, then the oak board, then burning matches," he explained.

Former members said almost no one was immune to corporal punishment, and even

Letters from the faithful support Jones

Although numerous former members of Peoples Temple have charged the church and its pastor with beating the members, phony faith healings and suspicious property transfers, temple officials have steadfastly refused to discuss the allegations.

The Rev. Jim Jones, pastor, is reported to be in Guyana on a visit.

Through press releases and the church newspaper, the church has denounced the charges as lies, but repeated attempts by the Examiner to get specific statements have been unsuccessful.

All questions have been referred to the church lawyer, Charles Garry, who also has not provided answers to the questions.

A story about Jones and his political connections last Sunday prompted more than a dozen letters, and in an effort to provide the present members' view of their church, some of the letters are excerpted here.

From Carol McCoy:

"This is why I have stuck with Peoples Temple and Pastor Jim Jones, because of the goodness I've seen done for oppressed people. I wanted my children to be equal with all people and not have to grow up hating another because of their color, background or religion. Here at Peoples Temple they have that chance."

From Harold Cordell:

"Jim Jones is a deeply compassionate human being who has taken on cases and situations no one else would handle; long-term drug addicts, youths with severe behavioral problems, older people by the score who were neglected in every way for years."

From Jean Brooks:

"The insight with which people here attempt to meet life, and to deal with and share each other's problems, could not possibly be a reflection of a leader who is power-hungry or controls the lives of his flock. Numerous individuals, too many to even give a quick estimate, have been salvaged from wretched and unbearable conditions which seemed impossible to remedy."

From Timothy Clancy:

"I think Jim Jones' commitment to social issues is outstanding. He is deeply and creatively concerned for minorities, children, the aged, as well as the many problems that beset governments and a war-prone world.

From Patti Chastain:

"The work Peoples Temple is doing is not only saving tax dollars, but saving lives as well, and saving people from the ravages of crime. Racial terrorism and racialism have all been reduced by the work of Peoples Temple in the community."

A Church Gives $4400 To the Press

WED JAN 17 1973

Twelve newspapers — among them The Chronicle — and a newsmagazine and a television station have been awarded grants totaling $4400 by Peoples Temple Christian Church of the Disciples of Christ for use "in the defense of a free press."

Announcement of the grants was made yesterday in Utah, Mondamin county, by the board of trustees of the church, which has a statewide membership of more than 7500.

THREAT

Speaking for the board, trustee James R. Pugh said:

"We believe the American way of life is being threatened by the recent jailings of news reporters for refusal to reveal their sources.

"As a church, we feel a responsibility to defend the free speech clause of the First Amendment, for without it America will have lost freedom of conscience and the citizens will become ripe for totalitarianism."

Pugh said the [illegible] pastor, the Rev. Jim [illegible] had "publicly" recommended The Chronicle and its "fine editorial staff" for taking a strong editorial position in defense of the First Amendment and for "the high quality of the newspaper."

"The San Francisco Chronicle has shown itself to be fair, hard, compassionate and courageous in confronting many issues head on," trustee Pugh said.

SOCIAL

Called less formally Peoples Temple, the church is best known and highly regarded for its social works which include housing and feeding senior citizens and medical experiments, maintaining a home for retarded boys, rehabilitating youthful drug users, and assisting non - members as well as members of the faith through college and legal difficulties.

In accepting the grant in behalf of The Chronicle, Charles de Young Thieriot, editor and publisher, expressed his thanks to the Peoples Temple Christian Church.

Thieriot said the $500 awarded to The Chronicle will be turned over to Sigma Delta Chi, the professional journalistic society, which is active in defense of freedom of the press.

Other news media receiving grants and the amount awarded included:

The Los Angeles Times, $500; San Francisco Sun - Reporter, $500; Utah Journal, $500; Los Angeles Herald - Examiner $500; Oakland Tribune $500; Santa Rosa Press Democrat $500; San Francisco Examiner $500; Indianapolis Star $500; KGO-TV San Francisco $500; New York Times $500; Christian Science Monitor $500; Newsweek Magazine $500 and Cincinnati Enquirer $500.

Guyana Colony

Rev. Jones' Disciples May Be Leaving

FRI AUG 1 2 1977 By Marshall Kilduff

More than 100 members of the controversial Peoples Temple have reportedly left San Francisco in what may be the start of a mass exodus of the evangelical church to its remote outpost in the South American country of Guyana, The Chronicle has learned.

Other temple members in San Francisco have reportedly been placed on notice by church leaders to prepare for the trip by selling off possessions and shelving late church commitments, sources have indicated.

In addition, temple officials have scrambled to arrange to have passport photos of elderly church members forwarded to Guyana, it was reported.

These developments are latest in a bizarre series of events associated with the Jonestown-based church run by the Rev. Jim Jones, a champion of Christian socialism with strong political connections in state and local politicians.

In a New West magazine story published last month, Jones was accused of hoarding church followers to insure utter discipline, faking cancer healings to win over converts and acquiring large sums of money and property from church members.

Since the allegations were made, Jones has remained in Guyana. His supporters have denied the charges but refused to discuss them in detail.

Five former members of the church have told The Chronicle that largely members and friends who still belong to the Peoples Temple have left for the Guyana colony.

Jones reportedly has an agreement with the country's government to settle some 27,000 acres near the village of Port Kaituma along the northwest border with Venezuela.

Jones first established his colony in 1974, the former church members said, but it was not until the last two years that he made a serious effort to settle the outpost with church members.

As recently as a month ago there were only about 120 people at the mission, according to reports issued by the church.

But three former church members said Jones has stepped up the pace of getting the area with the church claims is a model farm and rehabilitation center for delinquent minors.

Within the past month, at least one and possibly two temple-owned buses have left San Francisco. The church members aboard, many of them elderly blacks, were taken to Miami or New York where they took a plane to Guyana.

In the last few months, the church has asked several hundred followers to sell off their homes and possessions and move into temple communes which for the most part are apartments in the Fillmore district.

A tour of the main locations identified by former temple member Linda Martin showed these were empty but the others were occupied.

"My friends in the church are telling me that they are all supposed to get ready to leave just as soon as they get the call," said Jane Boyd, an elderly black woman who left the church in January.

She also described an unusual trip that she made while a church member to a downtown bank in San Francisco last fall.

Boyd said she was among three hundreds of temple members who went to the office of the Bank of Montreal at 353 California street at about 7 a.m. one morning.

"There was a doorman on duty and plenty of people inside, so the church had made previous arrangements for it," she said.

The church members were then taken one by one by bank officials, seated at desks, and asked to sign legal documents, Boyd said.

"We were told that it was all supposed to make sure that our pensions went to Guyana when we died. This way we wouldn't miss any of our money," she said.

Bank of Montreal officials acknowledged the church had an account, but declined to confirm or deny Boyd's account of the early morning visit by temple members.

In another development yesterday, two children who were forced taken with church members to Guyana were returned to their guardians.

Patricia and Paul Poole, 5 and 7 years old, were returned to Al and Grace Mills, of Berkeley, private investigator Joe Mabel found the children with their natural mother in San Francisco.

The Mills were reunited with the children after the natural mother, Anita Poole, agreed to return them. Paul has custody of the children after she was accused of abusing them.

The Mills left the controversial church in 1976 and charged, in court documents, that church leaders refused to tell them where the children were and refused to recognize their rights as guardians.

A church spokesman denied the charge earlier this week.

Peoples Temple — Families Complain

By Marshall Kilduff

At least six families have complained to the San Francisco District Attorney's office about the treatment and whereabouts of some dozen relatives who are members of the controversial Peoples Temple.

Deputy District Attorney Daniel Webster said his office has found no grounds for a criminal complaint yet, but he said the families may have grounds to file suit against the church to seek a return of their children or an explanation of their location.

An additional half dozen individuals have visited the District Attorney's office in the past two weeks to be interviewed about their experiences as members of the church whose pastor is the Rev. Jim Jones.

Peoples Temple came under official scrutiny following a New West magazine article last month that accused Jones of, besides his followers to maintain discipline, faking healings to win new believers, and convincing church members to turn over large sums of money and property.

The magazine story also claimed that the children of temple members, as well as other youngsters whose guardians belonged to the church, were sent overseas to the agricultural mission run by Jones in Guyana in South America.

In at least three of the cases before officials in the district attorney's office, families complained their children had traveled to Guyana without permission.

Larry Tupper said he was awarded legal custody of his son Larry Jr., but he charged that the boy is now in Guyana with his mother, who is a member of the church.

A second incident involved Nova Sly, who left the church within the past week and who now charges that her son, Mark, 16, may have been sent to Guyana against his will.

She said that she and her husband Donald were required to live apart in communes run by the church, and were asked to sign over guardianship of their son to another temple family.

The district attorney's office is also watching the case of Vincent Lopez, a Hayward youth in his mid-teens who was a ward of a former church member who has requested anonymity.

At the time the youth left the country about a year ago, his guardian approved. But, because of the reports about beatings and mind control, similar to brainwashing, Lopez's guardian has now asked authorities to assist him in securing the boy's return.

A fourth incident involves two small children, Patricia and Paul Peter, aged 5 and 7 years, whose guardians are Jeannie and Al Mills, two former leaders in the church who left it in 1976.

The Mills said yesterday they had obtained custody of the two youngsters while the natural mother was in legal trouble over a child abuse charge. Now, the Mills charge that temple spokesmen have refused to divulge the location of the two children or acknowledge the Mills' guardianship rights.

Charles Garry, who is the attorney for the Temple, said that church leaders have told him the Peter children are living with their natural mother in the Mission district in San Francisco.

Two other families have also talked with authorities, in both cases grown children asked officials to declare their mothers incompetent so as to obtain guardianship of brothers and sisters who are temple members and below legal age.

Rev. Jones Resigns City Housing Post

By Julie Smith

The Rev. Jim Jones has resigned from the San Francisco Housing Authority, a spokesman for Mayor George Moscone said yesterday.

Carey Busch, the mayor's press secretary, said a letter of resignation was received late yesterday afternoon from the controversial Jones, who has served as authority chairman since February.

"He said his responsibilities in Guyana and in San Francisco were such that he feels he no longer has the time to devote to the Housing Authority," Busch said.

Jones appointed to the authority last October, is the pastor of People's Temple at 1859 Geary Boulevard. His 20,000-member congregation also includes churches in Los Angeles and Redwood Valley, Mendocino county. The church operates an agricultural mission in Guyana.

Reached at home, Busch said he could not remember the exact wording of the letter. He said it was "a very simple three or four paragraph letter" written on a Housing Authority letterhead.

The letter was signed by someone other than Jones, Busch said. "I believe it was a Housing Authority aide. It said, 'Dictated by radio from Guyana.'"

Busch said the mayor understands Jones' position and "accepts his resignation." In response to a question, Busch said the mayor had not asked for the resignation.

Jones' resignation came on the heels of a story in New West magazine that said Jones ruled "lookings," required members to turn their property over to the church and beat members for failing to obey Jones' rules.

Jones has remained at his Guyana mission since the story was published two weeks ago.

Asked if he has any plans to come back, Charles Garry, attorney for Peoples Temple, said, "Not immediately, no. There's too much to do there."

Garry said the unfavorable media coverage had nothing to do with his client's resignation.

"He would have resigned earlier, but the mayor wanted him to stay on and he just can't," Garry said. "He didn't want to leave before (Tuesday's) election was over."

Garry said Jones, who had earlier turned down a job on the Human Rights Commission with the explanation that he had no time for it, took the Housing Authority job because he thought he could handle it.

"Now I think I have more time and I think housing is one of the most important problems that we have to face," Jones said when he accepted Moscone's second nomination.

Jones was elected chairman of the Housing Authority after a behind-the-scenes effort upon a campaign for the office by tenant commissioner Cleo Wallace.

Before the election, phone calls on Jones' behalf were reportedly made by Moscone to several commission members.

Temple Says It's Victim Of a Smear

Peoples Temple attacked its critics as "provocateurs" and "malcontented people" and said the church was a victim of a "massive smear campaign," according to a release issued yesterday.

The church, headquartered at 1859 Geary boulevard, was described in a recent issue of New West magazine as a political force whose unquestioned leader was the Rev. Jim Jones.

The magazine story charged that Jones used physical beatings to enforce membership discipline, faked cancer healings to win converts and siphoned large cash and property donations from followers.

The bulk of these charges were made by former members who have left the church, which claims a membership of 8000 in the Bay Area.

In its statement, the temple charged that "malcontented people who have leveled charges against us have attempted to blackmail the church, were guilty of grossly misrepresenting people in their charges, stole money from the church, and even sexually molested their children ...

"It would take many pages of print even a portion of the affidavits we have obtained in the character of those who have cooperated in this effort to destroy Peoples Temple," the statement said.

Charles Garry, attorney for the church, declined to supply the names of critics of the church allegedly tied to these charges or to enlarge on the charges made by the church.

The temple statement also charged that some of its critics "were even involved in manufacturing weapons and advocating that the church use them to advance a program of terrorism to achieve its social aims."

With regard to the allegations made in the magazine article, the church responded: "Neither the pastor of Peoples Temple nor any of its officials are getting rich off anyone. We do not brutalize or exploit people.

"We do not force or coerce people, though we expect those who make commitments to keep them," the release added.

Jones' genesis: From monkey salesman to 'Prophet of God'

SUN AUG 7 W/The Reverend

From his earliest days of ministering to the poor of Indianapolis, The Rev. Jones has been more than an everyday faith healer. He also shows a strong aptitude for real estate negotiations and has demonstrated an uncanny ability to attract news media attention, official inquiries and political muscle.

The pattern established in Indiana was repeated with variations in Ukiah, and most recently in San Francisco, where his Peoples Temple now is headquartered.

The church grew dramatically from the mid-1950s, when Jones was selling live monkeys to help fund it to 1976 when its annual budget was $47,000.

Peoples Temple was at first the Christian Assembly of God Church. And Jones has variously called himself "The Prophet of God" and "Father," a title apparently adopted in the mold of the late evangelist Father Divine.

Jones, who says he's part white and part Indian, grew up in the Indiana town of Lynn and earned a degree in education at Butler University in Indianapolis. He wasn't ordained, but he didn't let that stop him from setting up a church in downtown Indianapolis.

In 1953, Jones' Interdenominational Christian Assembly of God Church started importing monkeys from South America, Asia and Africa and selling them, Jones said at the time—for about $30 each—to raise money for a new church building. The 25-year-old minister said then that he had raised monkeys as a hobby while in college and learned through a South American dealer that they were profitable.

In 1954, Jones, a strong advocate of civil rights in a city that once feared the Ku Klux Klan's national headquarters, was named director of the Indianapolis Human Rights Commission.

JONES AND HIS MONKEYS IN 1954
A way to raise money and a reward

By 1956, the church was called The People's Temple Full Gospel Church and was a Disciples of Christ congregation. The church, which claimed it served more than 1,000 free meals a week, was in financial trouble and in danger of losing a jobs program over a $100 bill.

Jones, who had been doing missionary work in Brazil for two years, returned and with characteristic energy got the church moving again.

After finally being ordained in 1964, Jones set up two corporations the next year. The first was the nonprofit Wings of Deliverance, which listed as its purpose "furthering the Kingdom of God and spreading the true Holy Word of God." The second was a family corporation formed by Jones, his wife Marceline and his mother Lynetta. It was called Jim-Lo-Mar Corp. and its stated purpose was nothing more by acquisition of enterprises "including but not limited to the operation of nursing homes; the purchase, sale or management of real estate; the operation of grocery stores, markets, etc."

The Indiana secretary of state revoked the corporate licenses of both entities in June 1970 for failing to file annual reports since 1965.

And the Internal Revenue Service had reported that Wings of Deliverance failed to file corporate tax returns from 1959 through 1970. Jim-Lo-Mar Corp. only filed a corporate federal return in 1966, IRS officials had said.

Virgil Barry, deputy commissioner of the Indiana Department of Revenue, recently said the state has not prosecuted the corporations, but declined further comment, saying the matter was not public record.

The Indiana State Psychology Board also looked into Jones' alleged claims in 1971 that he could cure "psychosomatic illnesses," but a spokesman said recently that no action resulted.

In the late 1960s, Jones moved his mother church to Redwood Valley near Ukiah, but returned periodically to Indiana for religious services in which he claimed to resurrect dead people and purge the faithful of cancers and other afflictions.

In Redwood Valley, the temple thrived and acquired numerous pieces of property through purchases and donations of church members. Once again, Jones came into the favor of politicians. He set up a fund for the families of state law enforcement officers and six people operated nursing homes in the area. After awhile, Jones was named foreman of the Mendocino County grand jury; and a deputy district attorney. Tim Stoen, was a high ranking church member. There also was considerable local political clout because the 200 member temple could turn out a lot of people for that area.

In 1970, Jones moved southward and expanded the temple to 4000 members. He started conducting services in San Francisco, and moved his headquarters here the next year. He also founded a church in Los Angeles later that year, a year in which the temple reported $108,000 in total contributions and $72,027 for "outreach."

Since then, the temple has established outposts with ministries in various parts of the East Bay, the Fresno area, the Central Valley and Seattle and Vancouver.

The headquarters is located in a three story building on Geary Boulevard where the church says it has rehabilitated 200 addicts, provided free health care and legal aid, and fed many poor people from St. Anthony's dining room in recent years.

The temple has donated money to groups such as the NAACP and the United Farmworkers Union, and has contributed thousands of dollars to defend freedom of the press. It also established a fund for widows of slain policemen.

The church's bimonthly newspaper, People's Forum, often praises socialism and leftist figures while forecasting a fascist takeover that would leave blacks in concentration camps. The congregation is an estimated 80 to 90 per cent black.

American Industry in Guyana, ... hard to answer questions about Jones or about who paid for his trip.

"The relationship is private and religious and he won't discuss it," his press secretary said.

Mayor Moscone, who named Jones to the Housing Authority, was unavailable. "There's nothing to talk about," said press secretary Corey Busch.

The question of how much of a check was made on Jones' background before his appointment is unanswered. However, Moscone told the Examiner last month, "I asked (Jones) to be on the Housing Authority because I thought it needed a person both sensitive and realistic. From everything I've seen, he's been a good chairman. He's kept peace and quiet over there and been responsible on important issues."

Willie Brown said he first met Jones in religious circles and learned of his work through Charles Turner, a former field deputy in his office. "He told me about a new movement that in his opinion took care of people. He told me I should get to know them, how they fed people and would handle food."

Brown has visited the temple perhaps a dozen times, he said, sometimes by invitation and sometimes on his own. He said he never chatted into any of Jones' duties about his projects, nor did he question the duties process of independents during services. "I would just accept his word," Brown said. "I have no reason to doubt him."

Following published reports about Jones' activities, Brown said he called Richard Pratten, a temple lieutenant, two or three times last week "and thought friends ought to do." He attended that Sunday's service and spoke on Jones' behalf.

Brown, Pratten, Houghton and Assemblyman Art Agnos all said

THE REV. JIM JONES
"A scapegoat"

People Temple hasn't done any campaign work for them.

Pratten said he has visited the temple twice and met Jones after the 1975 election. "I didn't even know there was a People Temple until after I was in this office," he said.

Houghton said he did not know Jones until after he was reelected sheriff in 1975. He's been to the temple twice by invitation and has provided Jones with requested advice for combating crime and vandalism near the temple.

"He made an effort to be friendly but I did not see it as anything to go beyond that," Houghton said. "When you hold office and meet people, you usually end up smiling, shaking hands, chatting pleasantly for a while and listening to what they have to say. That has been roughly the extent of our relationship."

Agnos said he'd never met Jones and the temple provided no campaign workers or donations to him. "Last year," he said, "Jim Jones endorsed me indirectly through the Rev. Cecil Williams, but since that's a nonprofit church organization it couldn't be done publicly."

Agnos said the church has no more political clout than any other organized group, and Houghton suggested the notion that Jones has enormous political influence "verges on the preposterous."

Noting that he has observed only about 200 people at church services, Houghton said, "I don't imagine anybody would be very deeply swayed by 200 votes in a race where the vote total is about Authority meetings. They have shown up at school board meetings and at such events as hearings on the expansion of Hastings law school.

At a massive demonstration in support lessees of the International Hotel last January, the temple provided 2,000 of the 5,000 persons present.

The church has called the descriptions of its political activities "a gross misrepresentation of the facts."

In a recent issue of its newspaper, Peoples Forum, it stated: "We are striving for social justice, and a more equitable standard of living, the relief of want and misery. But we do not know of even one of our members who is seeking or plans to seek any political office."

The politicians interviewed by the Examiner said Jones had never asked them for favors. So what did he gain in return for providing bodies and political help?

"Power," explains a former member. "And he wanted to back the winner so he could get jobs."

That Jones has been a prime beneficiary of his political contacts.

In 1975, he was appointed the first director of the Redevelopment Human Rights Commission by Mayor Charles Rossotti at an annual salary of $7,000.

He served on because of the Mendocino County Grand Jury, was offered and rejected a post on the San Francisco Human Rights Commission, and was finally named to the Housing Authority by Moscone last October. With the mayor's backing, he became chairman.

At least three other Temple members work at the agency. They are Jean Brown, hired Aug. 16, 1978, and paid $25,000 a year to head training programs; Vera Young, hired as a secretary Aug. 4, 1975, at $9,300 a year; and Caroline Layton, hired as Housing assistant on Sept. 7, 1976, at $11,000 a year.

election is inevitable.

Interviews with a half-dozen Jones and Peoples Temple members on Jones and his church's political clout.

Dymally, who visited Jones' agricultural project in the South American country of Guyana, refused to answer questions about Jones or about who paid for his trip.

"My relationship is private and confidential and he wasn't (there) X," his press secretary said.

Mayor Moscone, who named Jones to the Housing Authority, was unavailable. "There's nothing to talk about," said press secretary Chevy Dutch.

The question of how much of a check was made on Jones' background before his appointment is unanswered. However, Moscone told the Examiner last month, "I asked (them) to be on the (Housing Authority) because I thought it provided a person both sensitive and political. From everything I've seen, he's been a good chairman. He's kept quiet and quiet over there and been responsible on important issues."

Willie Brown said he first met Jones in religious circles and learned of his work through Charles Tarver, a Senator Hall deputy in his office. "He told me about a new movement that in his opinion took care of people. He told me I should get to know them, how they had made [illegible]

Brown, however, believes Jones has plenty of clout.

"Hundreds of people give him clout," he said. "He is virtually able to [illegible] politically some people from [illegible] I know."

Indeed, Jones' followers have doubled, tripled and sometimes quadrupled attendance at Housing Authority meetings. They have shown up at school board meetings and at such events as hearings on the expansion of Hastings law school.

members also worked for Woodcraft County. One was a sheriff's department dispatcher, two worked as juvenile hall counselors and one was a deputy probation officer.

Jones has been in Guyana for the past month, but the temple has officially denied all the allegations of former members. Attempts by the Examiner to get responses to the charges were unsuccessful.

Despite the pastor's absence, nine well-known San Franciscans, including Brown and Agnos, this week lent their names to his defense in a statement issued by the temple.

The statement also described a [illegible] newspaper relayed from Jones to his congregation. "I know some of you are coming to Right," he said, "and that's exactly what the system wants — they want to turn us to mercilessly bombs, as a response.

There was no indication, however, that Jones ever ...ssed such photos against politicians.

Former members said the tours taken by politicians were largely staged with church members playing the part of actors. They said members were outfitted in specified clothes and told where to stand and what to say and all on the guests' tours shown, supposedly unplanned friendly exhibits, modest pastors and children singing at table.

Book covering and meetings were staged for the benefit of visitors, and after the luncheon guest had departed, Jones frequently would dash from with an said the congregation would roar with laughter, former members said.

In election years, political efforts were intensified.

A church's political activities are strictly limited by its tax-exempt status. According to Internal Revenue Service code 501C3, "no substantial part of the activities" of churches and other tax-free institutions can involve "carrying on propaganda or otherwise attempting to influ...ence legislation."

The code also says these entities cannot "participate in or int...ervene (including the publishing or distributing of statements) in a political campaign on behalf of any candidate for public office."

The IRS CPA on specific criteria outlined in the code define the kind of political activity that would cause revocation of tax-exempt status.

Despite such regulations, the temple in some cases had provided campaign workers who rang doorbells, distributed literature and stuffed envelopes.

Many others served. President ...

Public, who was exercising his franchise for the first time in 1972, said temple members in Mendocino County were told to vote for Sen. George McGovern for president. "Jim said if Nixon got into office, he'd call a nuclear war," he said. "But the next thing you know, Nixon's president and there was no nuclear war."

Former members said the temple also provided mimeographed sheets directing the congregation how to vote for the slate of candidates and issues Jones supported.

The third member cited an election year when temple secretaries contacted church members by phone and relayed the pastor's choices.

Church members were publicly chastised if they failed to register, and were required to turn in their ballot stubs as proof they cast their votes.

The list included one sample that said, "Please stop this heathen threat to our nation. How can we even debate about our precious constitutionally guaranteed rights?"

Another said in part, "If Kamma Bill 1 was in effect three years ago, we'd still have the quasi-police state under Nixon. Are you really considering passing a bill that would be a perfect policy instrument for a demagogue or dictator?..."

Instructions accompanying the sample letters told the authors to write to members of the Senate Judiciary Committee and divided the senators into liberals, conservatives and moderates.

"You write your letter, have it cleared, and then write one to each of the 15 Senators above..." the instructions said.

Karen and Cobb said the letters were screened and if they didn't meet the approval of the letter-writing committee, were returned to the author for revision. They were mailed in different post offices, sometimes in different cities, to apparently disguise their origin, former members said.

In addition to name-claimed letters, the authors would also write to politicians, public officials, widows of slain law enforcement officers and new persons describing the good works of the temple and singing Jones' praises as a humanitarian.

"Everybody was involved, even those who were barely literate," said Lambrev. "If there was any opposition, such as an unfavorable article, everybody would be mobilized. In general, though, we were writing to anybody who might be of help in the future for a character witness — anybody. From a judge in Shamokin, Mont., to an ecologist...

"The goal was to get a congressionary letter or telegram and to file it for future use."

Other members said these letters were filed in binders and were used to impress politicians and others who were not well acquainted with the temple and its programs.

When the Examiner sought official comment on the allegations and tried to reach Tropp, the temple said all calls on such matters were being referred to attorney Charles Garry, who also declined comment.

As another technique, the temple invited political candidates to the temple.

They were taken on tours of the church clinic, legal aid project or dining facilities for the hungry, or they were invited to attend services and sometimes to address the congregation. Sometimes luncheons involved a benefit dinner or breakfast for [redacted] worthy cause.

Elmer Martin, the former official church photographer, says politicians often were photographed standing before the congregation or with Jones.

"If it was someone Jones wanted to compromise, he would have someone standing behind the podium and on cue they would raise clenched fists and you'd have a picture," Martin explained. "They would look like revolutionaries. He just wanted them [redacted] former temple members yielded a portrait of methodical attempts at political manipulation by a cult which shrank critics into constant terror.

His effort was the simplest and constant church visits of such luminaries as Gov. Brown, Lt. Gov. Mervyn Dymally, Mayor Moscone, Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley, Gen. Atty. Joseph Freitas and Sheriff Richard Hongdon.

Political maneuvering appeared to be a constant process both in election and nonelection years — and letter writing was the mainstay of the operation in a church that claims 20,000 members, though a former member puts the figure at 3,500.

Former members said there was a permanent letter writing staff of 10 to 20 persons, headed by Richard Tropp, now a professor at Santa Rosa Community College.

But they said virtually every church member was required to write numerous letters, sometimes more than 100 a week.

"We'd have letter writing every Wednesday night," said Stan Karns, a member of the church for four years. "If it was an important issue, we'd have a special letter writing night too. We'd spend about six hours.

"We'd each write hundreds of letters on one issue."

Jim Cobb, a 33-year-old who was in the church from 1967 to 1973, recalled, "When Nixon was going to name G. Harrold Carswell to the U.S. Supreme Court, I wrote a bunch of letters and so did the rest of the people in our church.

"They told us to use different postal types of paper, different envelopes, so votes could have real impact there," added Cobb, who sometimes served as one of Jones' bodyguards. "We would look at telephone books and get a few names here and a few names there, to make up the false names."

Letter writers got instructions on what task to take in their letters. A foremost list of simple commands would be prevalent as a guide.

For example, a list of 12 "sample letters against Senate Bill 1," a Nixon administration-supported revision of the U.S. criminal code, was distributed to temple members through Tropp in 1976, according to former member Gary Lambert.

The list included such temple lines said, "Please stop this insidious threat to our nation. How can we even debate these our precious constitutionally guaranteed rights?"

Another said in part, "If Senate Bill-1 was in effect three years ago, we'd still have the quasi-police state under Nixon. Are you really considering passing a bill that would be a perfect policy instrument for a demagogue or dictator?"

This, according to former Peoples Temple members interviewed by the Examiner, is one of the ways the controversial Jones made sure his followers voted as a bloc, which afforded him maximum political clout.

But the election eve telephone call was just the final step in a process apparently designed to control the votes of every temple member, both those living inside and outside temple communes.

Members also were required to participate in the political process through letter-writing campaigns, registering to vote and staging doorbells for chosen candidates.

Jones, the charismatic faith healer who has won a political appointment in every city in which his church has been headquartered, is being investigated by several government agencies and has come under attack recently by former church members.

Amid sharp scrutiny of the temple and Jones' sometimes bizarre practices, the minister resigned last week as chairman of the San Francisco Housing Authority.

A Peeples Temple 'Bloc' At S.F. School

By Marshall Kilduff

Eight school students belonging to the Peoples Temple, which is led by the controversial Rev. Jim Jones, apparently obtained special assignment allowing them to attend a single public high school in large numbers, it was learned yesterday.

About 100 students from the temple enrolled last September at Opportunity II High School at 180 South Van Ness avenue, according to teacher-counselor Ben Cabral.

The school, which has an enrollment limit of 300 students, normally has a waiting list of several hundred students seeking to take advantage of an alternate-style curriculum designed for problem students.

"These temple students came in as a group, and everyone here knew it was part of an arrangement with Yvonne Golden, who runs things here," Cabral said.

Golden, who is coordinator of the school, said the temple students were admitted according to "procedures that we have established Life. They were screened by our own students."

Golden said student applications are made in person and a prospective pupil is then interviewed by a group of current students at the school.

"There is no special criteria other than the student's desire to attend Opportunity II High School," she said.

She declined to discuss her school's enrollment figures or the school backgrounds of the temple students.

Schools Superintendent Robert Alioto said his staff would investigate the possibility that temple students were improperly admitted.

Alioto said all high schools follow a routine procedure in accepting new students. But he acknowledged that a special school such as Opportunity may add its own criteria that would not be monitored by headquarters personnel.

Asked if she thought it unusual for a third of her students to be from a single source, Golden said, "I regard such speculation as coincidental."

Cabral said the temple students were in many ways model people. As a group they were not repeatedly absent—a particular problem for some Opportunity students—and their reading levels were high enough to keep Opportunity to the top rank of larger city high schools.

"Jim Jones even came by and gave me $300 for baseball uniforms. There were 11 temple kids among the 19 guys I had on the baseball team, and they came to each practice," Cabral said.

But Cabral and other teachers noticed other aspects of temple student life. Often the pupils were picked up after the school day on private buses owned by the temple.

"Also it was clear that Jim Jones was something special in their lives. They were always talking about him," Cabral said.

"We have had a lot of heavy people come and talk to the students—Angela Davis, Margo St. James, Bill Graham. But nobody got the ovation that he (Jones) did from these kids. When he came on, it was like God Almighty," Cabral said.

On another occasion, Cabral and two non-temple students went to the church's headquarters at 1859 Geary boulevard to have a school paper printed on the temple's printing press.

"All three of us were searched as we came in. It really blew my mind. Then afterwards they were very friendly while we talked about hippos and pigeon," Cabral said.

Jones has become a focus of controversy since being portrayed in New West as Jones is the spiritual leader of a religious group with strong political connections.

The magazine story said that, converting to former members, temple followers were beaten for minor infractions of church rules, revenge was won over with blood beatings and real and personal property was turned over to the church.

Jones has remained at the church's agricultural mission in Guyana since the story was published two weeks ago. Temple leaders have been declined to discuss the story, except to say that the charges are not true.

In addition to the staff at Opportunity, [illegible] have left the church to temple style.

Robert Cole, the headmaster of Drew [illegible] Preparatory School, a private high school at 2901 California street, said the church reneged on a rental agreement involving 13 students in 1975.

In addition to the suit at Opportunity [illegible] have told the officials of the temple cult.

Robert Cole, the headmaster of Drew College Preparatory School, a private high school at 2801 Californian street, told the church reneged on a tuition agreement involving 13 students in 1978.

He said temple officials "pressured" him into dropping a fee of $4000 when the students left the school at the Christmas break in that year and decided to transfer to Washington High School for the rest of the year.

Cole said the church had signed an agreement to pay each student's tuition of $1600 per year. The agreement called for a penalty fee that totaled $4000 if the students decided to leave before the school year was up.

"We'd hired teachers for the year and turned down other students who might have enrolled for the year," Cole said.

"But when I told them this, they said they were a charitable group and could not afford the penalty. When I still refused, they sent over a delegation of their members and I got five or six calls at home that night," he said.

Cole said he first refused to turn over grade transcripts for the 13 students, but then relented.

"The temple said they'd take me to court. We didn't have enough money for an attorney, and I felt we'd taken off more than we could chew."

Cole said he then gave the transcripts to a temple member. "But the whole thing left a sour taste."

A temple spokesman could not be reached for comment on the allegations.

Mayor Won't Investigate Rev. Jones

Mayor George Moscone said yesterday his office will not conduct any investigation into allegations that have been made about the Rev. Jim Jones and his Peoples Temple.

An inquiry had been requested Monday by Board of Supervisors President Quentin Kopp because of what Kopp called "serious" allegations made about the Rev. Mr. Jones in recent publications, particularly New West magazine.

"I have read the recent well-publicized article concerning the Rev. Jim Jones and find it to be a series of allegations with absolutely no hard evidence that the Rev. Jones has violated any laws, either local, state or federal," the mayor said.

The mayor added that his office is "not equipped, nor inclined" to conduct such investigations and "those who call for us to do so know that."

"Insofar as the Rev. Jones' appointment to the Housing Authority is concerned," said the mayor, "let me say that I asked him to serve on that board because I believed he would work hard on behalf of the city and that he would be fair in dealing with the important matters that come before that body.

"He has done just that in his tenure on the commission."

The mayor also said that if anyone has evidence the Rev. Mr. Jones broke the law, it should be presented to "the appropriate law enforcement officials."

JONES, JIM

DA Probing Rev. Jim Jones, Peoples Temple

TUE AUG 2 1977

The district attorney's office has begun an investigation into allegations made against the Rev. Jim Jones and his Peoples Temple.

Robert Graham, chief of the special prosecutions unit, said yesterday that "we're checking to see if there is any evidence that crimes have been committed in the city and county of San Francisco."

The length of the inquiry, he said, "depends on what we turn up."

Two weeks ago, New West magazine charged that members of the Temple beat people, that the Temple's senior cares were faked, and that members were asked how turning over large sums of money to the Temple.

Board of Supervisors President Quentin Kopp subsequently asked Mayor George Moscone to initiate an inquiry, but the mayor refused, saying:

"I have read the recent well-publicized article concerning the Rev. Jim Jones and find it to be a series of allegations with absolutely no hard evidence that the Rev. Jones has violated any laws, either local, state or federal."

The mayor added that his office was "not equipped, nor inclined" to conduct such investigations and "those who call for us to do so know that."

Graham said there was no contradiction between the mayor's remarks and the district attorney's office decision to investigate.

The new issue of the magazine, on sale today, cites the Jonestown article and raises the possibility of ties between the Temple and the mysterious deaths of two persons connected with the Temple.

In Ukiah, meanwhile, where the Temple has another branch, Mendocino county social service department officials are investigating New West allegations that aid money intended for the care of the elderly or for maintenance of juvenile wards was misused. District Attorney Thomas James said that the social workers "are looking into the problem to determine if there was improper use" of public money.

No other investigation is planned in Mendocino county, the district attorney said.

to San Francisco and came to New West before Wright replaced Kevin Starr as Northern California editor.

In both cases, Jones and his followers brought pressure, including phone calls and visits from temple members, on the editors. After reviewing Kilduff's story, Starr resigned his field and canceled the assignment, explaining Jones had convinced him the article would unnecessarily jeopardize the temple's programs.

Kilduff then went to San Francisco magazine, where then editors John Walsh and Nina Totenberg sat on the idea, but after receiving the first 6,000 words of the reporter's book for a novel, Bantam Kilduff completed his revisions. Walsh and Tani left the magazine because of a dispute with management over an unrelated matter and Kilduff, a six year veteran at the Chronicle who co-wrote the urban affairs beat, was once again without a publisher.

Wright replaced Starr in March. Kilduff tried New West in May again, this time successfully. Kilduff is reluctant to discuss his problems or the article prior to its publication "probably within the next two weeks." But two others who encountered Jones in the past recall their experiences vividly.

Last summer, Chronicle reporter Julie Smith was assigned to write a profile on Jones. Smith attended a temple service, where she witnessed "a couple of low key instances of faith healing by Jones." She also interviewed a city supervisor who told her, "when it came to politics—hanging posters, distributing literature, manning phone banks—Jones' people are right there."

The calls and threats began arriving after she interviewed Jones. Some people said they were temple members, others only that they had heard of it or Jones. Again, the messages were interrogational, along the lines of, "we just want you to know."

While working on the story, Smith learned Dist. Atty. Joe Freitas had, on Jones' behalf, contacted one of her friends to ask, "if I was OK and could I be trusted," which the reporter found odd since she had several months earlier written an article on Freitas and "he and he liked it."

Meanwhile, Jones was calling Smith regularly, both at home and at the office, "and saying the weirdest things," Remalia Smith. "Everything was supposed to be incredibly confidential. Once he said me a prominent local pastor said I was a rotten person, but I never met the man. Another time he said a woman called him asking for a date, and he thought the call had something to do with my story. Still another time, he said he received a call from someone with the voice of an older man, who claimed to have seen a draft of my story and labeled it a harmless job."

And then there were the letters, upward of 30 before the story appeared and nearly 400 after. Eventually the pressure got to Smith, who rewrote her article six times, each version more restrained than the previous," she says. "The editor ended up being a gentleman volunteer."

"It was so distressing," Smith says today. "Just this vast thing coming at you. All the letters, all the phone calls, all this murmuring from people in high places. What happened, in my case, was that I ended up being completely ineffectual."

Examiner weekend desk editor John Todd went through a similar ordeal in 1972, while working on an article about Jones' alleged ability to raise the dead. Todd and reporter John Barnes taped a lengthy interview with Jones during which he claimed 40 such "revivals."

Barnes wrote the article. Todd edited it and scheduled it to run on Sunday, then went home for the weekend. "Somehow, they got my phone number," he relates. "For the next 72 hours my home didn't stop ringing 1 a.m., 4 a.m., you name it. No sooner would I hang up than the phone would ring, each time a different person and each time demanding I halt the story, which they hadn't seen and was transcribed directly from the taped interview."

Finally, Todd was forced to move his family out of the house. The story ran, and the Examiner reimbursed Todd for 72 hours in overtime. "It was a frightening experience," he says. "I was angry."

Thus far, New West's editors say, they have not been so harassed. Tracy's scheduled interview with Jones was canceled, however, after a delegation of temple members delivered a legal letter from San Francisco attorney Fred Furth, an unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic State Senate nomination last year.

In the letter, Furth presented a set of conditions which included 1) That Jones be given a list of questions 24 hours in advance of an interview, 2) that he be permitted to answer verbally or in writing, 3) he be permitted to read the Kilduff piece as new written and 4) that he be shown the final draft before publication.

The letter reminded Wright the magazine

...ator would be considered responsible for any damage to Jones or the temple resulting from publication of the article. Wright was willing to comply with the first two conditions, but drew the line at allowing Jones to see the article. At this point, all interview is scheduled.

Ironically, the San Francisco Examiner would soon faced in the general election, Republican incumbent Milton Marks...also wrote a letter —to Rupert Murdoch— on Jones' behalf. Murdoch's New York offices confirmed receipt of the letter, along with some 45 others as of this Wednesday. "It was a very guarded letter," said one staff person. "And rather odd because it never mentioned New West."

Murdoch's office is also receiving calls not just from San Francisco but from all over the country, including Miami, New Orleans, Chicago and Detroit. These repetitively request the story be killed because it is biased and unfavorable. Staff members are answering all inquiries by referring them back to Lalli, "who has sole responsibility."

Harriet Tropp, an official spokesperson for People's Temple, was patently up front about the church's not wanting the article to run, but denied an "absolutely untrue," any suggestion there is an organized campaign to blast it. "Calling advertisers is not the kind of thing we would ever dream of," she said. "No one has been asked to make any phone calls...not by this church officially. I know that for a fact."

Tropp gave several reasons for the church's reluctance to have the article in print. "We have been told there is a clear and present danger to our lives and property," she said. "After an unfavorable article several years ago one of our temples was burned down. And there have been others and death threats on all our churches over the years. We're terribly apprehensive."

"And you can't imagine the kind of reports we've received from different people in the community," Tropp continued. "Some said they heard this was an attempt to have our tax-free status withdrawn. In one case it was someone who had actually seen the article. They said it was a smear.

"It seemed to us our church was going to be portrayed in a false light as political stagemakers, even though we've never taken a political stand on Prop. T, Prop. A or Prop. K. We heard this kind of sensationalism is going to be in the article."

According to Tropp, the flurry of letters and phone calls is due to the fact that "the temple is unique and the membership very active when they hear about something they want to go right out and do something about it." But an organized campaign? "We do a tremendous amount of work for people who normally do not get the benefits of society," she said. "If we were to organize, my God, we could have many thousands more doing the kind of thing you're talking about."

As things stand now, Lalli and Wright are standing firm in their resolve to publish the article. "I hear what these people are saying," Lalli notes diplomatically. "They're very concerned about the type of story that will run. But I find their reaction to a rumor of a negative story surprising, especially since nothing like a final version of the story is yet in print.

"The episode just raises my curiosity about the Rev. Jones and his organization. And it makes me more determined than ever to print a truthful, reasoned and knowledgeable article."

JONES, JIM REV.

A Testmonial For Founder of... Peoples Temple

A testimonial reception and dinner for the Rev. Jim Jones, pastor and founder of the Peoples Temple churches, will be held on September 30 at 7 p.m. at the temple at 1859 Geary boulevard.

Among the honored guests will be Lieutenant Governor Mervyn Dymally, San Francisco Democratic congressmen John and Phillip Burton, Assemblyman Willie Brown (Dem-S.F.), Carlton Goodlett, publisher of the Sun Reporter Newspaper group, Mayor George Moscone and the Rev. Cecil Williams.

Tickets are $10 per person. Proceeds will benefit the Peoples Temple's Human Services Ministry here and abroad and other local organizations and community programs.

More information and reservations may be obtained by calling [illegible].

1000 Protest U.S. Investments In South Africa

SAT NOV 13 1971

Many [illegible] persons filled a Fillmore district meeting hall last night to protest U.S. support of the white minority government of South Africa and its apartheid racial policies.

The Rev. Jim Jones, pastor of Peoples "[illegible]" [illegible] argued that the extent of U.S. investments in the Pretoria government was such that the "Union of South Africa is a colony of the U.S. corporate elite."

Author Tony Thomas also told the crowd at Queen Adah Hall, 1290 Turk street, that many black South Africans were paid as little as $40 a month in a country where, he charged, U.S. corporations received a higher rate of profit than in any other overseas nation.

Eldridge Cleaver is entitled to go free on bail, a group of his supporters declared at a press conference here yesterday in advance of today's hearing in Alameda county on just such a motion.

Urging support of the action were Assemblyman Willie Brown, the Rev. Cecil Williams of Glide Memorial Church, the Rev. Jim Jones of Peoples Temple, and Wilson Riles, president of the Primary Union.

Brown, an attorney, accused the Adult Authority of "abuse of discretion" in blocking Cleaver's release from the Alameda county jail, where he has been held three months.

Cleaver faces trial in Alameda county for a 1968 gun battle involving the Black Panthers and Oakland police.

Bail on that charge has been set at $50,000, but Cleaver's release has been blocked by the Adult Authority's charge that he violated parole from a 1958 assault conviction.

A petition for a writ of habeas corpus, which would allow Cleaver to be freed on bail, was filed in Alameda Superior Court last month. A hearing on that motion will be held before Judge Spurgeon Avakian at 2 p.m. today, with San Francisco Supervisor Quentin Kopp acting as Cleaver's attorney.

Kathleen Cleaver said at yesterday's press conference at the First Unitarian Church that so far the Cleavers have not obtained an attorney to represent her husband at the trial.

Former attorney George V. Higgins, who represented Cleaver in the earlier stages of the proceedings, dropped the case several weeks ago.

The Rev. Mr. Williams said yesterday, "There is often question whether the Adult Authority is afraid of the man, or feels threatened by him, and that's why they're blocking his release on bail. We're trying to rouse community opinion so that he can be freed, and get a fair trial."

Brown said he felt it was necessary for Cleaver to be freed so he could "aid, unencumbered, in his own defense."

Cleaver, who voluntarily returned from self-imposed exile last year, has said he favors the American system over those of foreign countries in which he had lived.

"Just become . . . Cleaver is now supporting American politics," Jones said, "does not mean there has been a change in the substance of harassment of his former social and political views . . . He has proved his good faith by returning to this country voluntarily . . . Eldri is quite capable of being trusted free of custody."

Holder said Cleaver's being kept in custody was "another example of the high-handed lawlessness of the Adult Authority . . . the process of selectivity that eats away people's lives."

JONES, JIM

The Unusual Leader of an Unusually Active Church

MON APR 26 1976

By Julie Smith

Jim Jones has a devoted following of 20,000. He has friends in high places, like City Hall, and friends in lesser places, like schools and neighborhoods. He has a wife and seven children, the respect of civic leaders and clergymen and the gift, some say, of healing and precognition.

He is the pastor of the People's Temple at 1859 Geary boulevard, between Fillmore and Steiner streets, and of People's Temples in Los Angeles, Fresno, Bakersfield and Redwood Valley, near Ukiah.

The San Francisco branch has nearly 8000 members. Because of its large membership, extensive good works programs and generosity with money, People's Temple is becoming an increasingly important social force in the city.

Although People's Temple is affiliated with the Disciples of Christ, a mainstream Protestant denomination, its services are a bit on the unconventional side.

On the other hand, they are by no means the razzle-dazzle lovefests Glide Methodist Church is famous for. The racially mixed congregation dresses in business suits and suitable frocks and they gather in a sanctuary simply furnished in a style befitting "a humanitarian group that attempts to cut out as many frills as possible."

The service might start with a performance of an African-style dance and progress to singing inspirational songs, frequently those associated with the civil rights movement, rather than hymns. "We Shall Overcome," perhaps, or "Born Free."

Then Jones will answer questions instead of giving a sermon. The questions are usually along theological or moral lines ("What happens to the atheist in God's scheme of things?", "What are the moral implications of euthanasia and capital punishment?").

JIM JONES
He has a true following

But someone might ask Jones why he works so hard or what to do about a pain that won't go away.

And when someone clearly wants to be healed, Jones feels he has to do what he can. He seems a bit embarrassed by it, and he always warns the supplicant that it's not a panacea, but he believes in it.

Jones says he doesn't understand healing, and notes carefully that all members of his church are encouraged to have regular medical check-ups. He feels the people who come exclusively for healing won't stay. At one time, though, the church put considerably more emphasis on healing.

"I feel I have much more to offer as a humanitarian than as a healer," he says now. "Don't we all grow and learn things about ourselves?"

A one-time fundamentalist Jones, at 44, looks a bit like a refugee from a country-and-western band.

He talks like a minister, though—not the hip-and groovy kind, like the Rev. Cecil Williams, or the fire-and-brimstone sort, either, but the old-timey, middle-of-the-road Protestant variety who speak in a soft voice and sometimes address women as "dear."

In fact, he is a non-stop talker who is much reluctant to give up the floor when he gets into a good conversation.

Jones says he is from a poor Indiana family—also an interracial one—got married at 18 and formed his first church the same year. "I came up in a fundamentalist environment in which it was not uncommon to have this urge to help people at a young age."

During the next 10 years or so, Jones outgrew his fundamentalism, became a Disciple of Christ, had one child, adopted six others of various races and was appointed director of the mayor's commission on human rights in Indianapolis.

But he found the "racist" atmosphere in Indianapolis uncomfortable, especially for his children. In 1964, he decided to move west.

"I wanted to move to Northern California because it was so cosmopolitan. I came to teach school; but lo and behold, my church decided they wanted to come with me."

So the Jones family and about 180 church members settled in Redwood Valley. About five years ago, the San Francisco branch began with services in Benjamin Franklin Junior High School.

The church has accomplished its spectacular growth even though Jones seems to have none of the charisma usually associated with leaders of mass movements.

"I think that what attracts people," he says, "is that when they get in trouble and can't make their house payments, Jim Jones gets in there and saves them, or when their youngster gets in trouble, he gets in there and fights."

On Jan 6, 1975 I received a visit fro[redacted] of the People's Temple Agri Mission situated in the North West District. They came to speak to me about adopting an Amerindian child. After we finished with that little item they handed me a proposed press release and this initiated a discussion of the recent wave of publicity in the wake of their "healing service" held at Sacred Heart Church. They said that the Church was aware of the nature of the service. [redacted] said that after the first article (headline - Sacred Heart Embarrassed) a high GOG official told them not to worry he would take care of matters. After the third article (headline - Unauthenticated) he changed his tune stating that it was a theological dispute to be settled between People's Temple and the church. He couldn't and wouldn't attempt to intervene. [redacted] labeled the article just short of libel. He said it was very cleverly written. He stated that the healings were obviously unauthenticated as no physician had been present to verify. They felt compelled to publish a rejoinder - I advised against fanning the flames - to no avail. They further stated that the matter had been discussed with their trustees and if the Guyanese didn't want them here they would just pull up and leave, because there were lots of places where people doing good Christian work would be welcome.

Dear Sir,

My name is Maryan Clancy and I am currently living at Peoples Temple Agricultural Mission in Guyana, S.A. I recently received a letter from my aunt, [redacted] in which your name was mentioned and it may be of interest to you. (Copy enclosed.)

I wish to state that I am 23 yrs. old, I have been married for the past 4½ yrs. and I would greatly appreciate it if my aunt would stop attempting to interfere with my personal life. This letter is an example of the same type of harassment that has been aimed toward Jim Jones and Peoples Temple in recent months.

I previously lived in Ukiah, Ca. and worked there at the Ukiah Health Dept. as a Community Health Aide for 3 years. I have found great fulfillment here at our Agricultural Mission and I have no intentions of leaving here in the near future.

Thankyou for your time and attention.

Enclosed is a copy of a newspaper article published by the "London Observer" about the People's Temple. It is more interesting than other newspaper articles reporting on the People's Temple because it describes Temple activities in Guyana in more detail. It is no wonder that many people are concerned about their relatives here after reading such articles. During my visit to the community on August 30 I did not notice any shaved heads.

Of equal importance to us here is the report that People's Temple activities are winding down in the US. This means that funds for the People's Temple programs here will not be quite so readily available from the United States. We are receiving Social Security checks for approximately 24 elderly members of the organization, and we will be watching to see how many more will come in.

Politicians once glad to appear in public with the Rev. Jim Jones (centre) include San Fancisco's mayor George Moscone (left) and the Lieutenant-Governor of California, Mervyn Dymally.

'Prophet' exit shocks California

from CHARLES FOLEY in San Francisco

MOVING out by night in small groups, nearly 1,000 people of all ages have left the American West on a 6,000-mile trek by bus, car and plane for a jungle sanctuary in the former British colony of Guyana.

They acted under secret orders from the Rev. Jim Jones, 43, a new 'prophet of God,' who predicts a fascist takeover of America to be followed by a nuclear holocaust.

Last week, when Jones was found to have joined the migration himself, thousands of the faithful in central cities from Los Angeles to Vancouver mourned the loss of their leader—not to mention Church funds totalling millions pounds.

Shock waves are also running through the California Establishment, especially among politicians, bankers and businessmen who courted Jones's favour, praised his good works and benefited from his formidable political clout.

The pudgily handsome Jones, who arrived from an obscure mid-West mission 12 years ago, is no backwoods preacher but a prominent local figure—foreman of a San Francisco grand jury and chairman of the Housing Commission, with aides who have also obtained well-paid public posts.

California's Governor Jerry Brown, the mayors of Los Angeles and San Francisco, police chiefs and district attorneys attended his temple meetings. Vice-President Walter Mondale invited him to his chartered jet for a private talk. Mrs Rosalynn Carter, the First Lady, spoke alongside Jones on an election tour before a hall filled before a mainly black congregation. Jones, who is white, claimed to be an amalgam of Christ 'resurrected' and a 'reborn Lenin.' He claimed to have cured cancer and the palsy and to have resurrected the dead—including himself. During one dramatic ceremony it appeared he had been shot by a hidden assassin. He was carried away covered in blood, only to walk back all smiles, wearing a fresh, spotless shirt. The crowd went wild.

Later came the prophecies. Jones had visions of race driven into the gas ovens and wars in which blacks were the Western world was destroyed in a nuclear conflict. Only blind obedience could save his followers. Money was needed to carve out a new promised land on the Caribbean coast of South America. Those who did not give would perish.

Denunciations

Members were urged to denounce each other at 'catharsis sessions' which lasted until dawn. Transgressors faced the 'board of education' — a wooden paddle wielded by a muscular disciple. Nurses stood by to treat the injured.

One girl, Linda Mertle, 16, [illegible] week pocket money. Some rattled begging boxes or sold pictures of Jones on street corners. Others worked a 16-hour day baking or making quilts and bedspreads to be sold for the cause. VIP visits to the temples were skilfully stage-managed. Church members were put on show as rescued junkies and criminals.

The congregations were used to build up Jones's political power base. They voted as a block, rang doorbells, delivered leaflets, packed public meetings and signed letters by the thousand for write-in campaigns. In some close election battles, they backed candidates who knew better than to refuse the help of the man called 'Emperor Jones.'

Three years ago, Jones flew to Guyana on a prospecting trip. Dan Phillips, one of a dozen trustees on the plane, said each of them carried £20,000 in cash, and Jones deposited a £350,000 cheque in Barclays Bank, Georgetown.

'The Rev. chose Guyana because the blacks there are English-speaking Christians and could be proselytised. He acquired several thousand acres of jungle to build 'Jonestown' and buried money there, said Phillips.

None of this heard has touched the men, women and children now working from dawn to dusk to clear land

Dear

Your letter of December 6, 1977, to the Attorney General, concerning a Pastor Jim Jones, has been referred to the Criminal Division.

In recent years the Department of Justice has received numerous complaints from the distressed parents of members of various religious sects, alleging that their adult children are the victims of "brainwashing" by leaders of these groups. Typically, the parents allege that new members are subjected to intensive indoctrination accompanied by inadequate amounts of food and sleep with the result that they become "programmed" to obey the wishes and commands of the sect leaders, and cease thinking for themselves.

Initially, I would like to point out that the First Amendment's protection of religious freedom is not limited to the traditional and well established religions. This protection applies to all religions and embraces the right to maintain religious beliefs which are rank heresy to followers of traditional faiths. In view of these constitutional protections, the Department of Justice cannot conduct a general inquiry into the activities of any religious group. Any investigation must be based on an allegation of a violation of Federal law.

In your letter, you allege that a loved one and others are being held in bondage in Georgetown, Guyana by Pastor Jim Jones. This allegation, by itself, does not indicate a violation of Federal law. However, if you are in possession of any additional information which might indicate a Federal violation, I urge you to furnish this information to the nearest office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Since your letter indicates that United States citizens are being held against their will in a foreign country, I am forwarding a copy of your letter to the Department of State.

I hope this information will be of some assistance to you.

I refer to your letter of December 8, 1977.

I have read your letter with great interest. I am aware of the charges made against the People's Temple, however, I have not had any member of that organization in Guyana substantiate the charges in your letter. I have visited Jonestown and will be travelling there again within the next week to investigate whether American citizens are being held against their will or otherwise mistreated. You should understand that I do not have any authority to force any organization to return its members to the United States unless individuals belonging to the organization request to return. Alternatively, should members of the People's Temple in Guyana make specific complaints against that organization, then I can refer these complaints to the Government of Guyana for investigation and prosecution.

Dear MR. McCoy.

The Reverend Jim Jones has now relocated in Guyana, So. Amer. (Georgetown). He has taken several hundred people over there with him. These people are living in the form of a concentration camp. They are being fed poorly. They serve these people sugar rice in the morning + evenings. In the afternoon they have peanut butter. This is there every day menu.

They are forced to work for unlimited hours everyday. Jim says they are working in his Agricultural Mission. This so-called mission is really in the form of slavery.

If anyone refuses to do the chore that's expected of them, they will be severly punished. There have been times when he has made them dig a well. After they have completed, they are put into it. They are told to Stay awake for 48 hrs. or more. If they fall asleep before the time set is completed, something is dropped upon there heads. This is Jim's form of discipline.

There's a lot more I could tell, but there isn't much time. Please Investigate this matter as quickly as you possibly can. Just please help us to help these people!

Dear [redacted]

I refer to your letter of December 8, 1977 concerning the People's Temple community in Guyana.

I read your letter very carefully and noted your concern for the American citizens who are residing at the community.

I visited Jonestown late last August and I am returning there next week to investigate complaints such as yours, especially pertaining to Americans being held in bondage.

You should know that Consular Officers have no law enforcement authority. In matters such as this, I can only act on specific charges made by members of the agricultural community against officials of the People's Temple by referring the individuals to the Guyanese Police. Naturally, the Embassy would also refer to the Government of Guyana and request by a Federal, State or Municipal Agency for the return to the United States of any member of the People's Temple who is the subject of a lawfully issued warrant of arrest for crimes committed in the United States.

Dec. 8, 1977 #0906

Dearest Mr. McCoy,

My concern is for the freedom to be of several hundred persons to be rendered. It is regrettable that some of these people may not have a way to get back to the states.

Reasons are the cause of this man named Jim Jones who has these people stationed in South America, Guyana (George Town).

The so-called Reverend Jim Jones is a very trepanned person.

He has an Agricultural Mission that's a cover up name for his work of slavery used upon these people. They are located in a hide-a-way jungle called "Jonestown." It is in the form of a concentration camp.

These people are being very poorly fed. Their every day menu consists of rice with sugar in the morning and evenings, peanutbutter in the afternoons.

If anyone should refused to do the chores they are punished ~~mess~~ without mercy. Some are beaten and sometimes starved. They ~~see~~ will not be able to eat for a week or more.

There's so much cruelty going on over there in Guyana by Jim Jones that I couldn't possibly put it all down on paper. These people are really frightem. There pride and privacy has been stript from them.

I wish you would investigate this man immediately (as fast as you can, while some are still living), and help free them from this horrible night mare.

~~Also~~, My cousin & a close friend was taken over there by force, along with the rest of these people. Please do whatever you can!

Sincerely,

[redacted]

Dear Sir

I appreciate your interest in the Jonestown Agricultural Development and your support of his work and the People's Temple.

Here in the states People's Temple has been just as consistent with basic programs for the general welfare and enhancement of living conditions with an eye to the individual needs of seniors, children, employment, and counselling.

Sincere Regards,

Dear Steven

I apologize for taking so long to reply after your telephone call.

I received the airline ticket that you arranged to have sent for Maria through us by the Dutch Tour and Travel Inc. B1

I saw Maria several times in January and in fact, she and I travelled together to the Northwest District from Georgetown last January 11. On one occasion when she was alone in my office to discussed the meeting between you and her last year. She admitted it was painful but claimed that her hostility was due to your opposition to the People's Temple. She did state that in spite of her attitude she still loved you.

I have not been able to inform Maria about the ticket under the guidelines you mentioned in your telephone conversation.

Please accept my best wishes.

Dear Steve:

Just a short note to let you know I saw Maria yesterday during my visit to Jonestown. She appeared well and, in fact, assisted me in completing a number of applications of members for various Consular services. Since this was probably my last visit to the community, I arranged to have her designated as the primary Consulate contact at the mission.

B6

Maria asked whether I had heard from you. I replied, yes that you wanted her to know should she decide to return to the United States there would always be a ticket ready for her. She then just smiled. I was not completely specific in my reply as there were other members of the organization within hearing. However, I am sure she understood my meaning.

Please accept my best wishes.

Dear Mr. Ambassador:

No doubt you have received many letters from distraught parents inquiring about the welfare of their children in Guyana, who left California very suddenly with the People's Temple group.

My daughter [redacted] wrote me early in July from Georgetown stating that she had gone there very suddenly, that it was a beautiful country, and that she would be working in gardening and tutoring. She asked for some money, and I sent a small check with a promise to send the same amount ($20) each month. Since that time (approximately July 10) I have had no word from her and the check has not been returned to my bank.

While I have no reason to believe that she has met with foul play, I do feel certain that her mail is censored and there is, of course, always the possibility of illness or accident.

I have written her several times since, with no reply, and am writing her again today at the address she gave--P.O. Box 893, Georgetown, asking that she go to the Embassy and make a collect phone call home. I trust that you will permit her to do so. My office number [redacted] My home phone [redacted]

I would also appreciate your keeping my American Express card number on file so that if [redacted] should decide to come home she can make arrangements promptly to buy a ticket in Georgetown. She is fully authorized to do so. My AE account number is [redacted]

While I would not attempt to bring [redacted] home against her will, I would not want anyone to keep her in Guyana against her will, either.

Any information you can provide will be deeply appreciated.

Dear Mr. Ambassador:

Earlier this week I wrote you a rather frantic letter asking your help in getting news of my daughter, [redacted] who went to Guyana some weeks ago with the Peoples Temple group.

As so often happens, I received a letter from her today, very cheerful, and full of praise for the beauties of Guyana and her new life.

So you will not need to acknowledge my earlier letter. Just keep it on file, if you will, in case my daughter ever needs to use my American Express number to come home in an emergency.

Thanks for your help.

Dear Sir:

On August 24 I made a formal request through Senator Metzenbaum's office for a Welfare and Whereabouts search for my sister, Carolyn S. Looman. As I have reason to believe she is being held against her will by the church group with which she is associated, I have requested through the State Department that the search be handled with delicacy.

I have made it clear to the State Department that I have no intention of interfering with her life or her association with the Peoples' Temple, but that she gave me reason to believe she wanted to leave Guyanna as soon as possible. Subsequent communication has been with representatives of the church who have indicated she is unavailable to leave Guyanna.

I have provided her with the means to leave Guyanna, and I hope a State Department intervue will determine whether she is free to do so and/or if she wants to do so. I am enclosing a two year old picture of Carolyn in case there is any problem of identification.

Thank-you very much for your help in this matter.

Dear [redacted]

I refer to your letter of August 28, 1977, to Mr. John D. Blacken, our Charge.

As you have probably already learned, on the basis of my telegraphic report to the Department of State, I saw your sister on August 30 in Jonestown, Guyana. I was able to have a personal, private conversation with her and was able to confirm her identity through her United States passport. At this time your sister has decided to remain in Guyana and informed me that she has been under no pressure to remain with the People's Temple in Guyana. Under these circumstances I accepted her statement.

B6

Your sister appeared healthy and happy and interested in working at Jonestown. She returned your plane ticket with a letter which I have mailed today to your parents. Your sister explained in detail in the letter why she desires to remain in Guyana.

I trust my report and this letter will allay your fears concerning Caroline's well being. If you have any further questions or wish any additional information, please let me know. Please accept my best wishes.

Dear Sir:

I am writing you in regards of Mrs. Vera M. Talley, who was previously a member of the [redacted] Church, located at [redacted] But she was bribed by a Cult Religionist. Respectively, (Jim Jones) Who has been operating under the name in Los Angeles, & San Francisco, California as the People's Temple.

BL

By some hypnotic practices, Jim Jones has taken away hundreds of aged people, who has some precentage of being senile and other ranges of mental deficiency. Allowing him the privilege of collecting their Social Security checks. Even Mrs. Vera Talley has some mental deficiency, not able to make sound decisions for herself.

Mrs. Vera Talley was born February, 3rd. 1903, in Texarkana Texas. Her Social Security number is 458 - 12 - 9182

[redacted]

The Cult Religionist respectively, Jim Jones carried Mrs. Vera Talley and other aged people from Los Angeles, to San Francisco, Calif. Where he (Jim Jones) rented an apartment for their shelter at 1029 Gary Street, San Francisco, Ca. Mrs. Vera Talley previously occupied apartment # 9

These are names of two other ladies that was well acquainted with Mrs. Vera Talley

[redacted]

I am sure that you will be able to contact someone at the 1029 Gary Street address in San Francisco, Calif. who knows the where-bouts of Jim Jones, and the residents that was there, but are now missing. Other than just some area in South America.

Enclosed, is the original copy of the letter that [redacted] received from her mother Mrs. Vera M. Talley. By these reasons, we believe she is being held captive.

Mrs. Vera M. Talley, has been missing approximately (4) months. And we do not have any definite information of her where-abouts. Please check into this matter immediately, and see if you can bring her back to the United States of America.

[redacted]

At this Gary Street apartment, the manager has a name slate of all of the people names who live there, or has ever been through there as members of the People's Temple. And have been shipped away. The names of those who have been shipped away, has a red pencil mark drawn through their names.

Please have the manager to produce these names, and information as to how they are surviving there. Also who is providing provision, and who is responsible for the [redacted] notes. These are the questions that was asked by [redacted] and was not accommodated with a competent answer.

The immediate family of Mrs. Vera M. Talley is highly emotionally upset of their mother's surviving and where-abouts. Please contact me as soon as possible. Thank you very kindly, for your consideration in this matter.

Dear [redacted]

I refer to your letter of September 28, 1977 to Mr. Jack Komitor of the Office of Special Consular Services concerning Mrs. Vera M. Talley, the mother of [redacted] Mr. Komitor forwarded your letter for reply since Mrs. Talley was presumably in Guyana. BL

I have confirmed with the Guyanese Immigration Service that Mrs. Talley entered Guyana on August 4, 1977. Their records indicated that Mrs. Talley planned to live at the People's Temple Agricultural Community located near Port Kaituma in the Northwest District of Guyana.

It may interest you to know that I visited the Agricultural Community on August 30, 1977 to determine whether an American citizen was being held against her will. At that time I assisted in the return of one American member of the Community to the United States who no longer desired to remain with the People's Temple in Guyana. I met many newly arrived Americans although I do not recall specifically meeting Mrs. Talley. However members of the People's Temple introduced me to a large gathering of about fifty to sixty elderly Americans and announced the purpose of my visit. Presumably if anyone had wished to leave they could have done so. Living conditions at the Community are austere but everyone is housed and there is a small clinic with an American doctor. Those elderly people that I spoke to appeared to be enjoying their stay in Guyana.

It is very difficult for me to comment on your charges about Jim Jones and his control over the aged members of his group. Some are receiving Social Security checks here and they must endorse them before they are cashed. I presume that they turn over at least a portion of their monthly check in return for their room and board.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE A/CDC/IR
REVIEWED BY [redacted] DATE 3/2/87

I have read a number of unfavorable articles about the People's Temple that have recently appeared in the U. S. Press. However, I have not learned of a single case of any American being held against their will here by the People's Temple. Apart from my visit to the townsite I know of several other visits made to the agricultural community by Guyanese Police and Government Officials. Here again individuals could have requested to leave but did not do so.

Nevertheless, on my next visit to the area which will be within 90 to 120 days, I will arrange a personal, private meeting with Mrs. Talley and inform you of the results of our conversation.

I hope the above information is helpful to you and [redacted] If you have any further questions or desire any additional information, please let me know.

Dearest Sir, - Mr McCoy

I'm writing you in regards to the form of Slavery being aflicted upon people in a private place in Guyana, South America. Rev Jim Jones of Peoples Temple here in California have transported many americans to Guyana to work in his fields from 5 am in the morning to seven p.m. in the evening.

The people are being fed rice and peanut butter. Those who refuse to work are fed nothing. Many are afraid. Some have been severly punished for wanting to leave.

Please help me get my cousin, [redacted] back home without harm.

To Mr. Alan Cranston,

Mr. Cranston, I am writting this letter regarding my boy is whereabouts in South America. It all started when he went to South America in march of this year, there + about a thousand other young men + women following this man by the name of Sun Myung Moon, who has taken believing that he is god incarnate.

Gregory is 22yr of age + I realize that he is a full grown man, who can do as he please, my concern is to ask you, if you would please help me find out if he is being held against his will which, my self + a lot of other parents feel that they are, and that they are being taught as slaves, Gregory has been gone 9 month + I have received a letter from him which as any practically the same thing, he never answers any of the questions that I ask him, it appears as though he is being told what to say + what not to say.

I have also heard that this Sun Moon has these people working in fields, half starving to death that if one dies they simply dig a hole + bury them.

I understand that there is a United States Congressman there who can find out what in going on. Would you please contact him for me and let me know if he may in Albright + if he wants to come back etc let me know what I should do.

I am sending a photo of my son this is the name in Segay Jesus Watkins

Age: 23

Ht: 5'7"

Weight between 165 + 170 when I last saw him

This man by the name of Jim Jones was having his meetings down town S.F. on Ellis St at the Fox Temple.

When you would enter the church women + men had to leave their wallets + purses in front before entering the church.

I tried to tell them that something was wrong but he would'nt listen.

When they all left San Francisco Jim Jones told them they were going to New York, but instead put them on a ship + to South America & they used.

They did leave the same children.

yet they tells me what a nice home he has & how much he enjoys staying there I just don't believe it. Please let me know as soon as possible what is going on. Thank you very much

Mr. Richard A. McCoy:

What an pleasure to have received your letter, and to find that you will be visting the agricultural community soon. I do so hope you will be able to speak to my mother. Please ask for some identification so that you can be sure that it is she. I wrote letter after letter and she did not received any of them until I sent them special delivery. Please Sir , ask her what are her, and it must be her's alone intention about how long does she plan to stay, or if she plan's to ever come home. Let her know I am very much concerned as I love her very much. I am planning now to vist there soon as I get things in shape, which should be about May. I may add that my mother is eight eight or eighty nine year's young. This of course cause's me even greater concern. As you already have her name I need not send that information, but I stress that you speak to her alone, as she is with a group I donot understand. Mother writes and tell me she is in the promise land...May I once again thank you very much for your cooperation in a matter that is more than important to me. Please write at your first convience. May God's blessing be with you at all time's.

I had personal contact with Mrs. Talley on January 11, 1978 at the People's Temple Agricultural Community. Mrs. Talley appeared well and in good spirits. At this time I also presented to her, her monthly Social Security check. Mrs. Talley indicated to me that she arranged to have her check cashed by members of the organization and then was free to donate to the People's Temple whatever amount she desired. She told me how much she enjoyed walking around the community and participating in the various senior citizen activities.

I did not receive the impression that Mrs. Talley believes she is being held against her will. Her replies to my questions, while somewhat vague, (I believe this is due to her advanced age) appeared genuine. Therefore, I can only conclude that she is content at Jonestown.

Dear Sir:

I'm writing concerning the people that went to Guyana South America in July with Jim Jones the Pastor of Peoples Temple. I have reason to believe that some of them, if not all of them are being held over there against their wishes.

There were at least about 2 or 4 hundred Senior Citizens along and quite a few young people. My daughter was one of the young people that I've spoken of. I have been hearing from her, but not since Dec. 2nd. Most of the letters I've received were from the senior citizens the Senior Citizen checks have been stopped for quite awhile. When they were here Jim was taking their checks.

I do feel that they have all been brainwashed and I have heard that they are like slaves over there, working in the fields from morning until sundown.

I am asking that someone get in touch with the U.S. Embassy ~~where~~ who ever you have to, to find out what's going on over there. My daughter's name is Kimsuk Fortson. She was in a place called Jonestown that Jim Taught out of Georgetown. Please get K. Katsume. If she is not being kept against her wishes. I will be satisfied, but please look into the matter for me. Please write me. I am very concerned. Thank you.

Dear [redacted]

I refer to your inquiries with the Department of State concerning your daughter [redacted] currently residing in Guyana.

A consular officer from the American Embassy in Georgetown, Guyana, visited the People's Agricultural Temple at Jonestown on January 11. At that time the officer spoke to [redacted] concerning your desire to have [redacted] returned to your custody. [redacted] stated that she considered [redacted] to be [redacted] child and under no circumstances would she return [redacted] your custody.

The American Embassy has also approached the appropriate Guyanese authorities concerning your desire to remove [redacted] from her grandmother's custody. The Embassy was informed that under the laws of Guyana only the Guyanese courts have the authority to make legally binding decisions concerning the custody of children physically present in Guyana. Therefore failing a voluntary surrender of [redacted] by her grandmother your only legal recourse would be to engage a local attorney in Guyana and obtain a custody ruling from the Guyanese courts. I enclose a list of attorneys in Guyana for use should you wish to retain legal counsel.

B6

Should you decide to seek a court order in Georgetown the American Embassy will offer all appropriate assistance during the proceedings. It would assist the Embassy to know in advance of any plans you might have to travel to Guyana and to have copies of any U.S. custody decrees prior to your arrival. If you would notify this office of any plans and send us copies of any pertinent documents, we will be happy to pass these to the Embassy in Guyana.

Re: The Oliver Family: [redacted] their children Bruce and William Oliver and the Peoples Temple

Dear Mr. McCoy:

Pursuant to our discussion while I was in Guyana with Mr. and Mrs. Oliver, I am writing to obtain your findings as to whether the Oliver's sons were ever informed that their parents were in Georgetown.

By way of background, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver went to Georgetown on December 21, 1977 to visit their sons who were with the Peoples Temple. Through the Guyanese government, the Peoples Temple informed the Olivers that their sons did not want to see their parents. Personally, I do not believe the Peoples Temple statement. I think that the children were never informed that their parents were in Guyana.

B6

You informed us that a member of the United States Embassy would be visiting the Peoples Temple Compound on January 10, 1978 and at that time, a determination would be made as to whether the children were ever informed or notified of their parent's presence in Guyana.

Your immediate response as to the findings concerning this matter is deeply appreciated.

BL

As I mentioned above I did see Bruce and William (they identified themselves with their passports). During our conversation they both claimed that they were aware of their parents' presence in Georgetown. They stated that it was their decision not to see their parents at that time because of their parents' attitude toward the People's Temple organization. They scoffed at the idea that they were being held against their will and indicated their satisfaction with their present life.

Both boys looked healthy and well fed. On the basis of my two visits to Jonestown I do not believe members are being physically held against their will at the community. I am not competent to determine whether the boys are being psychologically detained at Jonestown although neither Oliver boy appeared to be under the influence of drugs.

Dear Mr. Secretary:

I would like to express to you my grave concern about [redacted] who are now living in Guyana--with the People's Temple--a communal church led by Mr. Jim Jones.

I have not heard from them for almost two years and my letters to the Temple have not been forwarded to them, but have been returned to me. [redacted] who was also in the Temple, left it two years ago. From her, I have learned a variety of things that have occurred and are practiced in the People's Temple. Some of these include the public beating of church members, their degradation before the assembled congregation, the signing of self-incriminating statements, and so on. I personally have been shown, by a Mr. Chaikin, one of the Temple attorneys, a copy of one such self-incriminating statement. At the time I was shown the statement, he and other Temple representatives were telling me that [redacted] was having sexual relations with her foster father, in order (I suspect) to enlist my support in returning her to Temple membership. I came to the conclusion, in my contacts with Temple representatives, that the Temple is a very powerful organization which is paranoid in philosophy (society will attempt to crush us) and is very secretive concerning its operations. I also came to the conclusion that it systematically limits the information and news received by its members concerning the rest of society, and by persuasion and coercion actively attempts to prevent defectors from its ranks.

I am writing you in the hope that the State Department might be able to assist me in personally contacting [redacted] I would like to see them in such a situation as might make it possible for them to make a relatively free choice to leave or stay in the Temple. Friends of mine have contacted their children after considerable effort and expense, only to meet their children surrounded by Temple members, and only after their children had apparently been subjected to great psychological pressure under conditions of sleep deprivation.

I also hope that the State Department and other government departments might consider investigating Temple affairs both in Guyana and in the United States. I consider it a reasonable possibility that the Temple, having sizeable amounts of United States dollars in its possession, may eventually be able to subvert the government of Guyana--a small underdeveloped and unsophisticated country. If the latter occurs, it would certainly not be in the interests of the United States.

I would appreciate your responding to me concerning my request for assistance in my efforts to reach [redacted] Christian, age 22, and Michael, age 20) in Guyana at your earliest convenience.

[redacted]

P.S. I am enclosing my resume to identify myself.

I, Michael T Copple hereby authorize release of information concerning my residence and activities in Guyana to relatives and members of the Congress.

Dear

I refer to your letter of March 1, 1978 concerning the People's Temple. Our Consul, Mr. Mc Coy, is presently out of Guyana so I am answering on his behalf.

We are familiar with the organization and the allegations made against the People's Temple. As a result of the controversy surrounding the group's move to Guyana, Mr. Mc Coy has made several trips to the community, mainly at the request of relatives seeking information on the welfare of the church's members. During these visits, he has been unable to substantiate any of the accusations made against the organization's hierarchy. His meetings with individual members of the group have been amicable and he has not noted signs of any duress on the members. B6

I wish I could be more helpful to you in this matter. Please be assured, however, that should your son come to Guyana, the Officers of the Embassy will render him every appropriate assistance at his request.

Please accept my best wishes.

March 1, 1978

To Whom it May Concern:

My son has been involved in a religious cult, The People's Temple, with Rev. Jim Jones, for almost three years. He now tells me that he is seriously considering going to Guyana, to work in the agricultural colony there, established and run by Jones.

I am very concerned and worried for his safety and well being, as I have read all the adverse publicity Jones has received, and have talked to former temple members, who say that Jones takes the passports of members, and sells them on the black market. Jones claims to heal cancer and raise people from the dead, and I have also heard of beatings and other perverted practices within the church. I know, too, that Jones is being investigated by the District Attorney's office in San Francisco, and also the State Department.

Since my son is almost twenty-five, there is no legal way I can stop him from going, but still, as a mother, I'm extremely worried.

I would greatly appreciate any information you could give me concerning your observation of the Church colony there in Guyana.

Thank you so much for your help, in whatever you are able to do.

Sincerely,

[redacted]

P.S. It was at the suggestion of my state senator's office that I am writing to you.

The Honorable Cyrus Vance
Secretary of State
U.S. State Department
Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. Secretary:

I would like to express to you my grave concern about my two sons who are now living in Guyana--with the People's Temple--a communal church led by Mr. Jim Jones.

I have not heard from them for almost two years and my letters to the Temple have not been forwarded to them, but have been returned to me. [redacted] who was also in the Temple, left it two years ago. From her, I have learned a variety of things that have occurred and are practiced in the People's Temple. Some of these include the public beating of church members, their degradation before the assembled congregation, the signing of self-incriminating statements, and so on. I personally have been shown, by a Mr. Chaikin, one of the Temple attorneys, a copy of one such self-incriminating statement. At the time I was shown the statement, he and other Temple representatives were telling me th[redacted]as having sexual relations with her foster father, in order (I suspect) to enlist my support in returning her to Temple membership. I came to the conclusion, in my contacts with Temple representatives, that the Temple is a very powerful organization which is paranoid in philosophy (society will attempt to crush us) and is very secretive concerning its operations. I also came to the conclusion that it systematically limits the information and news received by its members concerning the rest of society, and by persuasion and coercion actively attempts to prevent defectors from its ranks.

I am writing you in the hope that the State Department might be able to assist me in personally contacting my sons. I would like to see them in such a situation as might make it possible for them to make a relatively free choice to leave or stay in the Temple. Friends of mine have contacted their children after considerable effort and expense, only to meet their children surrounded by Temple members, and only after their children had apparently been subjected to great psychological pressure under conditions of sleep deprivation.

I also hope that the State Department and other government departments might consider investigating Temple affairs both in Guyana and in the United States. I consider it a reasonable possibility that the Temple, having sizeable amounts of United States dollars in its possession, may eventually be able to subvert the government of Guyana--a small underdeveloped and unsophisticated country. If the latter occurs, it would certainly not be in the interests of the United States.

I would appreciate your responding to me concerning my request for assistance in my efforts to reach my two sons--Christian, age 22, and Michael, age 20) in Guyana at your earliest convenience.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Burton:

I am enclosing copies of letters I have written to the Prime Minister of Guyana and to the U.S. Secretary of State asking for assistance in contacting my two adult sons who are members of the People's Temple, a communal church led by a Mr. Jim Jones. I am also enclosing my resume, for purposes of identification.

I would appreciate any assistance that you may be able to give me in contacting my two sons. I wish to see them personally in a situation that may enable them to make a relatively independent decision as to whether they would want to return to the United States or to stay in Guyana.

I will be most happy to provide you with any additional information if you so wish.

Thank you for your attention.

Dear Mr. Mc Coy,

I appreciate your attention and time on the matter of my communicating with my two sons.

I want to make sure that you know that I consider the Temple to be an organization that is basically dangerouous to my and others welfare because it is almost solely under the control of 1 person.. However, my children have to make their break from the Temple on their own- at least at this time. What I want to insure is that they know that I will support them if they choose to do so.

I am enclosing a copy of a letter I sent to Christian. I would appreciate your personally giving it to Chris and asking him to read it in your presence.. I believe that it will take only about 2-3 minutes. I want to make sure that he receives the letter I sent. I realize that you do not plan to be in Jonestown until August but that will have to do.

If Chris did not receive the initial letter, please let me know and I will then send all letters through you only or simply repeat the present procedure.

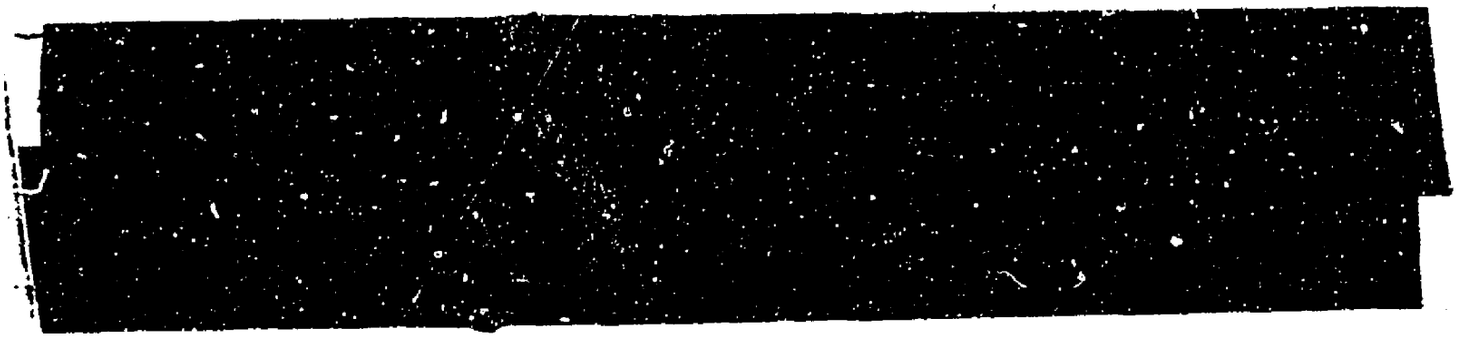
Dear Chris,

I feel a little strange writing a letter to you. I've never written one to you before, but it's impossible to contact you in any other way.

I'm concerned about you and Mike- I haven't heard from you or about you. Mike I understand is o.k.. He's still a photographer for the Temple- but you I haven't heard about. I hope that this letter finds you alright and doing what you want to do.



I'm concerned that you might wish to leave the Temple but cannot. After all you have no money of your own to my knowledge. So I want to let you know very clearly that if you wish to leave the Temple, that I will be glad to pay for your airplane ticket back to the United States. This offer also stands for Michael. If Joyce wishes to leave, money for her ticket will also be available.

I've contacted the US Consul at Georgetown(McCoy) and he xx said that if you walk into his office and ask help to go to the US, he will help get you out. I don't know how practical that is. You know much better than I what you would have to contend with and who to trust and not to trust. What is important for me is that you, Mike and Joyce know that I will be able to help you if you tell me you need help. When you get back to the US there will be a place for you to stay and money to tide you over until you get a job and get settled.

People have told me that Temple members are told that the political and economic situation in the US is deteriorating rapidly. This is not true-economically the US is still viable. There are no unusual signs of political and social unrest. It certainly is safe for you to return to the United States.

Give my love to Mike and tell Mike and Joyce that I said. I'll be sending you or Mike a letter now and then to keep in touch.

I hope to see you soon.

With Love,

Your Dad

Dear Mr. Kibble:

My son, his wife and their son is in Jonestown. I am concerned about their freedom.

Mail is presumed to be controlled and censored. I received an envelope addressed to me by my son, but it contained a letter to a mother in New Orleans. Obviously, after the mail was read in Jonestown Colony, it was put in the wrong envelope. What happened to the letter my son wrote me?

On April 21, 1978 in the evening, my son called. He stated that he had 10 minutes to catch the plane. That he was going to Rhonda and [redacted] (his wife and son). My son [redacted] said "I am supposed to be gone two months" and that he was supposed to bring Rhonda and [redacted] back with him. Jim Jones got his wife and son (Rhonda and [redacted] to come to Jonestown in July, 1977. They were to be gone just two months.

All transportation from Jonestown, and the money is controlled by Jim Jones. From Jonestown to Georgetown, there is a 22 hour ride by boat or a small ship by river. Or, you can take a plane. The people are afraid to talk and tell the truth. They fear what will happen to them or their loved ones here in the U.S.A. Tell my son, [redacted] I am not afraid for my life. I am worried about my son and his family, and other people that are there being held against their will. They are afraid and unable to get help for themselves.

BC

My son [redacted] weighed 240.lbs and is 6 ft. 2 inches tall. What is my son like now? I can't hear from him. I am sending a copy of a clipping from one of our newspapers here. This will give you some idea of what Jim Jones is.

These are American born. I am asking The American Embassy to please do an extensive investigation of Jonestown. I have sent letters and cards to my children but I haven't received any answers.

Call concerning People's Temple

SMITH, OLLIE

On Friday June 23 at approximately 5:00 p.m., I received a telephone call from [redacted] concerning her daughter, Mrs. Ollie Smith, a member of the People's Temple.

According to [redacted] a frequent visitor at People's Temple headquarters, told her that Mrs. Ollie Smith had been shot and killed trying to escape from Jonestown.

[redacted] said she thought the shooting had occurred on June 20 or 21. On the evening of June 23 [redacted] talked to someone who claimed to be her daughter. However her perception was poor and [redacted] admitted that her emotional state was such that she could not be sure that the person speaking was in fact her daughter.

Ollie Smith was born on [redacted] and is married to another member of People's Temple [redacted] stated that her mother is also at Jonestown and that both her relatives had left the United States after being "brainwashed" by Reverend Jim Jones.

[redacted] requested that, the Embassy help her daughter, if she was still alive, to leave Guyana.

I replied that I had heard nothing about any shooting at Jonestown but that if any developments occurred I would keep her informed.

I plan to visit the People's Temple Agricultural Community about August 1 and will inform you of the results of the visit. I suggest that to resolve the problem of the receipt of your letters to your relatives in Guyana you send a registered letter to your relatives for which they will have to sign. This method should insure that your step-daughter has received your letter.

I trust that the above information is useful to you. Please accept my best wishes.

Dear Mr. Burnham,

I am writing to you because I am desperately worried about the safety and well being of my son, Brian Bouquet, and his wife, Claudia. They are with Jim Jones, in the jungle of Guyana, at Jonestown. After reading the publicity about the Peoples Temple (including the enclosed article) for over a year, and talking with reporters, the San Francisco District Attorney's Office, and former church members, I am convinced that the situation is extremely critical.

The very lives of those eleven hundred Americans may be in jeopardy. I do not believe that they are free to leave, if they desire to do so. For this reason, I implore you to take some immediate action to get to the bottom of what is really happening there, and see to it that those people are protected. They must be given an opportunity to leave, under protection, without fear or duress imposed by other church members.

I am counting on your belief in human freedom and dignity to motivate you to help in this grave situation. Thank you.

Dear Debbie:

I was very happy to receive your letter and to learn that you are doing well in California.

Apparently, from the basis of the newspaper article about you, you are big news back there. As you know, I will be leaving Guyana in the very near future. At this time I am not sure whether I will be able to get up to the community before I leave. There is a problem of no airplane to charter.

However, I am sure that my replacement will plan a trip as soon as he can after his arrival. This trip would probably take place some time in late August. He and I will have an opportunity to discuss the situation and I will, of course, fully discuss the entire situation involving your mother before I depart.

I also just received a telegram from, I believe, your brother [redacted] Please inform him that both and he will receive a report of the results of the visit.

Dear Mr. McCoy,

Thank you for your letter of March 23rd., in answer to my letter of concern for my son Brian.

I have talked to a Deborah Layton, and seen a copy of a sworn affidavit, in which she says that she escaped from Jonestown, with your help. She mentions tortures of various types, poor diet, armed guards, and a threat (on the part Jim Jones) of mass suicide. I am even more alarmed about the situation than I was before.

I would like to have some response from you, as soon as possible, about the situation as you perceive it now, about the possible danger to the very lives of the residents of the Peoples Temple outpost, and about the possibility of your requesting that the Guyanese government post inspectors there around the clock, until these charges are thoroughly investigated.

I appreciate your taking the time and effort to correspond with me, and I do hope you can understand my distress and concern for my son's safety and well-being.

Thank you so much.

Dear Mr. Ellice,

Your name was given to me by [redacted] I had written to him about my extreme concern for the welfare of [redacted] Brian Bouquet, who is at the People's Temple outpost at Jonestown Guyana. [redacted] said that he had spoken to you, and suggested that I write to you, since you are going to Jonestown in the near future.

I'm sending you some material on this organization which I hope may be helpful to you in assessing the situation. The two enclosed affidavits have been sent to the U.S. State Dept, but it appears to be very difficult to get any help - perhaps due to the fact that the People's Temple is a "religion".

My greatest concern is finding out, from reliable sources, what is really happening there. I am frightened of the allegations that Mr. Jones has made threats of "mass suicide", and I wish to know whether my son is staying there of his own free will or is, in fact, a prisoner. According to the only two witnesses who have left Jonestown, there are beatings and tortures, and people are even in fear of their lives.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE A/CDC/MR

NOT CLASSIFIED AS INDICATED

Aside from what I've read and heard from ex-members of the temple I believe Jones to be a fake, at best. His claims of cancer healings and even raising people from the dead are ridiculous. My son is influenced by him to a great degree However, I realize that this can't be helped. What needs to be done, I feel, in view of the extremely serious nature of the charges against Jones and his church, is to send a team of investigators into Jonestown for at least two weeks, to see what the truth is. Visits once in awhile, which are announced beforehand, are not adequate, since Mr. Jones is apparently forcing people to put on a show for visitors.

I am trusting you, Mr. Ellice, as the U. S. representative in Guyana, to keep my name and that of my son in strictest confidence, as I would not want any harm to come to my son. Would you please attempt, in a very discreet way, to find him while you are at Jonestown, without making a big thing of it, and, if possible, talk privately to him about his feelings about staying or leaving? I will send an airline ticket to you at any time should he wish to come home. I'm enclosing a picture of Brian and his wife, Claudia (whom I will also be glad to help) with the hope that you may be able to recognize him without saying that I was inquiring. He has been writing to me sometimes, and I was able to talk with him for his twenty-fifth birthday, last month, on the short wave radio. He was attempting to refute the charges made by Deborah Layton, item by item, even though I had not asked about it. He also was comparing Mr. Jones to Abraham Lincoln and Martin Luther King. He was rather annoyed that I had sent a letter to him through Mr. Paul McCloskey's office, in Washington. I did that in hopes that it would get through to him without being censored.

I am trying very hard to keep a good relationship with him, so as not to lose contact. I'm sure you'll be able to understand why I'm so worried about the whole situation, and especially because it is so difficult to find out what is really happening.

I would be very grateful for any information you can give me, and also any help you could afford my son and his wife, should they request it. I'm very grateful to [redacted] for his help, and I look forward to hearing from you soon.

Thanks so much for your help.

Sincerely,

Dear Sir:

I am very concerned about my sister and her family and was advised to write you. My sister, [redacted] her husband, [redacted] and their two children [redacted] went to South America the latter part of July last year with their church, People's Temple, under a Pastor Jim Jones. They had moved to San Francisco from Houston just to be with their church. They supposedly left for South America on a Missionary Trip and would return to the states in a couple of months as was told to me by someone from the church after I had called to find out where they were.

Her letters have been few and non informative, not at all like my sister, she says nothing about what she's doing there or when she'll return. She answers none of my questions, it's like they can only say certain things. This vagueness is not like my sister, especially when she knows I would worry under the strange circumstances that she left.

I have began to think that her letters are not really hers and that she doesn't get mine. Her mail is through a church post office box. I received a letter supposedly from my niece [redacted] in which she made the statement" don't forget Terry and I have lots of friends". I assumed she was referring to her brother and his name is [redacted] I have been trying to shake this feeling of fear I have for them, but I know something is wrong.

B6

Earlier this year in April, my father received a letter for my sister from the United States Senate, Foreign Relations Department, it was in answer to a letter written by my sister concerning assistance for Guyana, this was very strange because the letter came to my father's residence and my sister hasn't lived there since she's been married about 11 years ago plus it came in her maiden name. I should have written then.

About two months ago I wrote her telling her some very important news about myself and sent some packages for the children. I received a letter from her last week in which she said nothing about the news nor the packages. Something is wrong.

Could you please check to see if she and her family are alright. I feel she has gotten into something she can't get out of. My sister and I Have no other sisters and brothers and are very, very close and what has been happening is not like her. I have even asked her to call collect so I could talk with her and stop my worrying, she hasn't done it.

I trust this will be handled in a discreet way because I would hate to make matters worse, if she is in trouble. I only want her to be alright and acting on her own will. If you cannot help me, then please refer me to the right department [redacted]

I refer to Consul Ellice's letter to you dated August 9, 1978 concerning your relatives who reside at the People's Temple Agricultural Mission, Jonestown, Guyana. B6

On November 7, 1978 Mr. Ellice and I visited Jonestown. I had a private conversation with Mr. & Mrs. Claude Goodspeed, after identifying them by their United States passports. The Goodspeeds told me they are enjoying their retirement in Jonestown. They occasionally go fishing, and participate in other activities with other members of the Mission. Mr. Goodspeed particularly enjoys the tropical climate, and says his sinus trouble has cleared up.

The Goodspeeds said they did not wish to return to the United States. However, they would welcome you if you cared to visit Jonestown and see the Agricultural Mission for yourself.

Sincerely,

T. Dennis Reece
American Vice Consul

November 16, 1978

Honorable Paul N. Mc Closkey
House of Representatives
Washington, D.C. 20515

Dear Congressman Mc Closkey:

On June 28, 1978 you wrote a letter to the Assistant Secretary of State for Congressional Relations expressing the concern of your constituent, [redacted] about [redacted] Brian Bouquet, a member of the People's Temple Community at Jonestown, Guyana. In our reply to you of August 2 we indicated that a Consular Officer would be visiting the People's Temple Agricultural Community later that month and would deliver to Brian the letter from [redacted] which you enclosed with your communication. B6

Due to a variety of circumstances including the fact that the airstrip at Port Kaituma was closed for repairs for several weeks the Consul's trip was delayed until November 7. On that occasion he did meet privately with Brian and delivered [redacted] letter. At the Consul's request Brian opened and read the [redacted] in his presence. Brian asked the Consul to relay to you and [redacted] his assurance that he is well and happy at Jonestown and that he plans to correspond directly with [redacted]

If we can be of any further assistance to you in this or other matters, please do not hesitate to write again.

Situation Report No. 21

Situation in Guyana as of 0900 hours (EST), November 26, 1978

The last bodies were removed from the Jonestown area Saturday afternoon; a thorough search of the area was conducted before dark and no more bodies were discovered. The plane carrying the last of the bodies to the U.S. arrived at Dover AFB at 0310 (EST). A Dover military spokesman announced last night that 912 bodies had left Guyana. The body of one Guyanese citizen was held in Georgetown.

U.S. military retrograde operations have begun. The Embassy and U.S. Task Force are in the process of establishing how much military support will be required in the next few days to support the GOG in safeguarding assets found in the Jonestown area and support investigation activities. The Guyanese have requested U.S. helicopter support for 30 days to assist in maintaining necessary security in the Jonestown area. The Embassy has been authorized to lease warehouse space in which to store the movable property and effects.

The trial for Larry Layton, who is charged with murder as a result of the shooting at Port Kaituma, has been set for January 15, 1979. No trial is yet set for Charles Beikman.

The police have stated that one elderly People's Temple member is free to leave the country and he is departing today for New York on Pan American. The police have also indicated to the Embassy that other members who are not directly connected with the murders of the Ryan party or the Amos family will be released, but their names will not be known until Monday, November 27, at the earliest. The remaining members will be asked to stay in Guyana until the preliminary hearing scheduled for December 6 or 7.

Arrangements are being made to airlift medical records recovered at Jonestown to Dover today. The Embassy also reports that the GOG will today lend us their immigration cards bearing the fingerprints of the Jonestown dead, and these will be sent to Dover as soon as they are available.

Yesterday the Guyanese ruling party newspaper carried an editorial and cartoon accusing the United States of being involved in an international conspiracy to discredit the People's Temple and its settlement in Guyana. Ambassador Burke has protested to the Guyanese Government saying that the vicious tone of the editorial was incomprehensible in view of the excellent record of cooperation between the U.S. and the GCG in coming to grips with a massive tragedy [redacted]

SHIPPING AGENT HERE HAS INFORMED EMBASSY THAT VESSEL IS REGISTERED IN PANAMA (#7941 PEXT) AND THAT REGISTERED OWNER IS A PANAMANIAN CORPORATION. CONNECTION BETWEEN CORPORATION AND PT HAS NOT BEEN ESTABLISHED.
2. QUESTION HAS ARISEN REGARDING POSSIBILITY OF ACTION BY US CONSUL, BRIDGETOWN, TO ESTABLISH US CUSTODY OVER VESSEL. SUCH ACTION DOES NOT APPEAR TO BE AUTHORIZED BY 22 USC SEC. 1175 SINCE VESSEL IS NOT PART OF ESTATE OF DECEASED US CITIZEN DOMICILED WITHIN BARBADOS AT TIME OF DEATH. ARTICLE 19 OF CONSULAR TREATY (3 UST 3426) DOES NOT REQUIRE THAT DECEDENT BE DOMICILED WITHIN BARBADOS, AND THUS MAY PROVIDE INDEPENDENT BASIS FOR CONSULAR CUSTODY, ASSUMING CONNECTION BETWEEN REGISTERED OWNER AND PT CAN BE ESTABLISHED. SITUATION IS FURTHER COMPLICATED BY FACT THAT VESSEL CANNOT BE IDENTIFIED AS PART OF THE PERSONAL ESTATE OF ANY INDIVIDUAL US CITIZEN.

SUBJECT: LOCAL PRESS COVERAGE OF DYMALLY PRESS CONFERENCE

REF: PORT OF SPAIN 3316 - NOT RELEVANT

1. DEC. 20 EDITION AFTERNOON DAILY "CITIZEN" FRONT-PAGED CANA REPORT OF PRESS CONFERENCE HELD BY LT. GOV. MERVIN DYMALLY UPON HIS ARRIVAL IN PORT OF SPAIN DEC. 19. HEADLINE READ "SENATOR DYMALLY AGAINST INTERFERENCE BY CIA IN CARIBBEAN." CANA ARTICLE QUOTED THE LT. GOV. AS SAYING HE WAS AGAINST INTERFERENCE BY CIA IN AFFAIRS OF CARIBBEAN GOVERNMENTS. CANA REPORTER EDITORIALIZED THAT COMMENTS CONCERNING CIA INVOLVEMENT IN THE CARIBBEAN WERE IN THE WAKE OF RECENT FEARS EXPRESSED BY JAMAICA AND GUYANA OF ALLEGED ATTEMPTS BY THE U.S. TO DESTABILIZE THEM IN REPRISAL FOR ESTABLISHING RELATIONS WITH CUBA.

2. DYMALLY WAS ALSO QUOTED AS SAYING THAT IF

OUGHT TO RETURN VOLUNTARILY OR BE RECALLED BY USG. DYMALLY INDICATED THAT HE HELD SOME VERY STRONG VIEWS ON THAT SUBJECT AND ALSO THAT THE U.S. GOVERNMENT HAS NO BUSINESS INTERFERING IN THE AFFAIRS OF ANY NATION. THE LT. GOV. WAS ALSO QUOTED AS SAYING THAT "WE WERE TOO PARANOID ABOUT CUBA AND FIDEL CASTRO AND SHOULD RECOGNIZE THE EXISTENCE OF THE CUBAN GOVERNMENT. AS A RESULT OF THIS PARANOIA, WE SEEM TO HAVE A VERY NEGATIVE ATTITUDE TO ANY CARIBBEAN GOVERNMENT WHICH HAS ANY RELATIONS WITH CUBA."

3. ARTICLE ALSO CONTAINED STATMENTS REPORTED REFTEL BY DR. WINSTON MURRAY ABOUT THE ALLEGED NUMBER OF CIA AGENTS IN THE POLICE FORCE OF GOTT AND MENTIONED THE NON-COMMITTAL COMMENTS OF THE MINISTER OF NATIONAL SECURITY AND EXTERNAL AFFAIRS AND THE COMMISSIONER OF POLICE IN REPLY TO THESE ALLEGATIONS.

4. CANA REPORT INCORRECTLY IDENTIFIED DYMALLY AS MEMBER OF THE U.S. SENATE IN ADDITION TO BEING LT. GOV. OF CALIFORNIA. REMAINDER OF ARTICLE DEALT PRIMARILY WITH DYMALLY'S ASSESSMENT OF CARTER VICTORY AND EMPHASIZING UNUSUAL SUPPORT CARTER RECEIVED FROM THE BLACK COMMUNITY.

SUBJECT: DYMALLY WRAP-UP

REF: 76 GEORGETOWN 2637

1. GCB "CHRONICLE" ON JANUARY 1 CARRIED TWO ARTICLES WRAPPING UP DYMALLY VISIT TO GUYANA. ONE ARTICLE DEALT SPECIFICALLY WITH PRIVATE MEETING BETWEEN DYMALLY, BISHOP JONES AND PRIME MINISTER DECEMBER 29 WHICH REPORTEDLY CENTERED ON THE TOPIC OF RELATIONS BETWEEN GUYANA AND THE UNITED STATES. BISHOP JONES, AS MENTIONED REFTEL, WAS REPUTED TO HAVE TOLD BURNHAM THAT HE HAD MET PRIVATELY WITH MRS. CARTER AND VICE PRESIDENT-ELECT MONDALE PRIOR TO RECENT U.S. PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION. JONES TOLD BURNHAM THAT HE HAD MADE HIS PERSONAL SUPPORT OF THE CARTER-MONDALE TICKET CONTINGENT ON THE ASSURANCE THAT THE NEW ADMINISTRATION WOULD PURSUE A NON-INTERVENTION POLICY PARTICULARLY WITH RESPECT TO GUYANA. BISHOP SAID HE WAS GIVEN THAT ASSURANCE BY BOTH MRS. CARTER AND THE VICE PRESIDENT-ELECT.

2. BOTH PRIME MINISTER BURNHAM AND FOREIGN MINISTER

MILLS INDICATED TO JONES AND DYMALLY THAT GUYANA WANTS TO KEEP THE DOORS OPEN TO COOPERATION WITH THE UNITED STATES. DYMALLY SAID HE INTENDS TO CONVEY THAT MESSAGE TO THE DEPARTMENT SOMETIME AFTER JANUARY 20. ARTICLE CONCLUDED PRAISING JONES AS UNOFFICIAL AMBASSADOR OF GOOD WILL BETWEEN GUYANA AND THE U.S.

3. SECOND STORY THAT APPEARED IN THE SAME EDITION DEALT PRIMARILY WITH THE PEOPLE'S TEMPLE AGRICULTURAL MISSION IN THE NORTHWEST TERRITORY. ARTICLE QUOTED DYMALLY AS PRAISING SETTLEMENT AND EXPRESSED HIS ADMIRATION FOR THE PROGRESS MADE. ONLY DISCORDANT NOTE CAME WHEN AT END OF ARTICLE JONES WAS QUOTED AS SAYING MY PEOPLE HAVE FOUND HAPPINESS AND THEY WANT TO CONTRIBUTE TO THE PEACE AND PROGRESS OF GUYANA. CONSIDERING THE SITUATION TODAY (HE WAS UNDOUBTEDLY REFERRING TO STRAIN IN US-GOG RELATIONS), YOUR GOVERNMENT HAS BEEN VERY TOLERANT ALLOWING AMERICANS TO SETTLE HERE.

PARTED GEORGETOWN WITH [redacted] AND [redacted] ON BOARD ALBATROSS III. ON A BUYING TRIP TO TRINIDAD. ALL THREE WERE EMPHATIC THAT JONESTOWN HAD APPROXIMATELY 1,000 (ONE THOUSAND) RESIDENTS AND THEY WERE UNAWARE OF ANY EXODUS IN PAST MONTH. [redacted] FURTHER STATED THAT [redacted] HAD THE ADMINISTRATIVE RESPONSIBILITY OF LOGGING PASSPORTS, AND HE REMEMBERS PERSAYING APPROXIMATELY THREE MONTHS AGO THAT THERE WERE 954 RESIDENTS OF JONESTOWN. SHE REPORTEDLY DID A STATISTICAL ANALYSIS OF THE MEMBERS BY AGE AND SEX AND [redacted] RECALLS THAT THERE WERE OVER 300 YOUNG PEOPLE (UNDER 18). THEY COULD OFFER NO EXPLANATION AS TO DISPARITY IN FIGURES AND THE NUMBER REPORTED DEAD, ALTHOUGH THEY FELT THAT A LARGE NUMBER MAY HAVE ESCAPED INTO THE JUNGLE AND ATTEMPTED TO MAKE THEIR WAY TO MATTHEWS RIDGE. [redacted] SUGGESTED THAT SEARCH ELEMENTS CONTACT AN AMERINDIAN NAMED FRED JUPITER, WHO IS REPORTEDLY WELL KNOWN TO RESIDENTS OF PORT KAITUMA. JUPITER IS REPORTEDLY AN EXPERT TRACKER WHO IS VERY FAMILIAR WITH THE AREA AROUND JONESTOWN. [redacted] ALSO SUGGESTED THAT A SEARCH BE MADE OF THE LIVESTOCK BUILDINGS AND THE FOOD WAREHOUSE. HE CLAIMS THAT A SIX MONTH SUPPLY OF STAPLES WAS MAINTAINED THERE AND DETAILED INVENTORIES WERE KEPT IN THE BUILDING. HE FELT THAT IF A LARGE NUMBER HAD ESCAPED, THERE MAY WELL BE AN APPARENT DEPLETION OF THE FOOD STOCKS. FINALLY, HE SUGGESTED THAT A SIMPLE COUNT OF THE BEDS IN JONESTOWN WOULD SUPPORT THE FACT THAT THE COMMUNITY HAD NEARLY 1,000 INHABITANTS.

3. [redacted] ALSO SUGGESTED THAT THE COMMUNE'S PAVILLION WOULD HAVE BEEN FILLED TO CAPACITY IF ALL OF THE RESIDENTS HAD BEEN ASSEMBLED FOR THE SHOW WHICH HAD BEEN ARRANGED FOR CONGRESSMAN RYAN ON FRIDAY. HE STATED THIS WOULD HAVE BEEN A CLEAR INDICATION WHETHER A SIZEABLE NUMBER HAD LEFT OR BEEN REMOVED FROM JONESTOWN PRIOR TO RYAN'S ARRIVAL AS PAST ASSEMBLIES HAD OVERFLOWED THE PAVILLIONS CAPACITY.

6. [redacted] AND [redacted] APPEAR TO BE ARTICULATE, INTELLIGENT, AND COOPERATIVE. THEY EXPECT TO REMAIN IN PORT OF SPAIN AT LEAST UNTIL SATURDAY AND HAVE EXPRESSED A WILLINGNESS TO COOPERATE IN ANY WAY POSSIBLE.

7. ON WEDNESDAY TRINIDADIAN CUSTOMS OFFICIALS REPORTEDLY MADE A COMPLETE SEARCH OF THE "ALBATROSS III," A 350 TON VESSEL REGISTERED IN PANAMA AND OWNED OR LEASED BY THE PEOPLES' TEMPLE, BUT RESULTS OF THE SEARCH WERE NEGATIVE. ALTHOUGH IT IS EXPECTED THAT [redacted] WILL SAIL WITH THE VESSEL WHEN IT DEPARTS FOR BARBADOS ON SATURDAY. [redacted]

ON OR ABOUT MAY 28, 1978, WADE AND ISABEL MEDLOCK, FORMER PEOPLES TEMPLE (PT) MEMBERS, [redacted] ALLEGING THAT JIM JONES AND JAMES MC ELVANE OF THE PT EXTORTED FROM THEM REAL PROPERTY AMOUNTING TO $133,682 IN MAY 1977. THIS APPEARED TO BE A VIOLATION OF CALIFORNIA STATE LAW 487.1 PC AND 518 PC (EXTORTION).
THE MEDLOCKS WERE ACTIVE PT MEMBERS FROM 1971 UNTIL THE SUMMER OF 1977, DONATING 25 AND 50 PERCENT OF THEIR TOTAL NET SALARIES TO THE PT. IN FEBRUARY 1977, THE MEDLOCKS WERE ASKED TO COME TO THE OFFICE OF JIM JONES LOCATED IN THE CHURCH ON ALVARADO STREET IN LOS ANGELES. PRESENT DURING THIS CONFERENCE WERE JONES, HIS TOP AID, MC ELVANE, HUGH FORTSYN, FLORIDA JOHNSON, VEE HOLLINGS, KAY NELSON, RESIDENCE 3838 SOUTH BRONSON, LOS ANGELES, AND ARCHIE JAMES. JONES TOLD THE MEDLOCKS THAT THEY WOULD HAVE TO SELL THEIR HOMES AND GIVE THE MONEY TO HIM OR THEY WOULD DIE; HE WOULD KILL THEM. THE MEDLOCKS REFUSED AND JONES AGAIN THREATENED THEM BY SAYING A PT MEMBER WHO DID NOT CONTRIBUTE TOWARDS THE TEMPLE DIED AS A

2. WE UNDERSTAND YOUR INTEREST IN INTERVIEWING SURVIVORS OF THE PEOPLE'S TEMPLE TRAGEDY IN PURSUING YOUR INVESTIGATION INTO POSSIBLE CALIFORNIA CRIMINAL LAW VIOLATIONS BY PRESENT AND FORMER PEOPLE'S TEMPLE MEMBERS. HOWEVER, THE GOVERNMENT OF GUYANA IS PERMITTING THE DEPARTURE OF SURVIVORS ONLY AS IT DETERMINES THAT THE PRESENCE OF PARTICULAR INDIVIDUALS IN GUYANA IS NO LONGER NECESSARY TO THAT GOVERNMENT'S ONGOING INVESTIGATION OF THE AFFAIR. AS YOU MAY KNOW, ONE ELDERLY SURVIVOR ARRIVED IN THE U.S. ON NOVEMBER 26 AND SEVEN MORE ARRIVED IN THE U.S. ON NOVEMBER 29. AT PRESENT, WE ANTICIPATE THAT PERMISSION FOR DEPARTURE WILL MOST LIKELY CONTINUE TO BE GIVEN IN SPORADIC FASHION AS DICTATED BY THE GUYANESE GOVERNMENT'S INVESTIGATION REQUIREMENTS. IN ANY EVENT IT WOULD NOT BE PROPER FOR THE U.S. GOVERNMENT TO ATTEMPT TO PLACE RESTRICTIONS ON THE DEPARTURE OF U.S. CITIZENS FROM FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

SUBJECT: ASSASSINATION THREAT AGAINST PRESIDENT/VICE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES.

REFERENCE IS MADE TO USSS #1881 DATED 11/24/78.

THE UNITED STATES SECRET SERVICE CONTINUES TO CONDUCT AN EXTENSIVE INVESTIGATION, INSIDE THE UNITED STATES, OF THE MEMBERS OF THE PEOPLES TEMPLE TO DETERMINE THE DEGREE OF DANGER THAT THIS GROUP MAY PRESENT TO PROTECTEES OF THIS SERVICE. THIS INVESTIGATION IS BEING CONDUCTED IN CLOSE CONJUNCTION WITH THE FBI INVESTIGATION OF THIS GROUP.

DEPT. OF STATE A/CGS/IPA DATE 3/5/85 Secret
PORTIONS DENIED AS INDICATED

AS THIS INVESTIGATION CONTINUES, IT IS BECOMING INCREASINGLY APPARENT THAT SOME OF THE KEY PEOPLES TEMPLE MEMBERS WHO SHOULD BE INTERVIEWED BY THE SECRET SERVICE EITHER WILL NOT BE RELEASED BY THE GUYANESE GOVERNMENT IN THE NEAR FUTURE OR DO NOT WISH TO RETURN TO THE UNITED STATES. THESE MEMBERS INCLUDE THOSE WHO HAVE BEEN AND THOSE WHO MAY IN THE FUTURE BE FORMALLY CHARGED BY THE GOVERNMENT OF GUYANA (GOG).

IT IS THEREFORE REQUESTED THAT THE EMBASSY IN GEORGETOWN MAKE CONTACT WITH THE GOG AND REQUEST THAT THE USSS BE ALLOWED TO INTERVIEW THOSE PEOPLES TEMPLE MEMBERS WHO WILL NOT BE RETURNING TO THE UNITED STATES IN THE NEAR FUTURE, INCLUDING THOSE FACING CRIMINAL CHARGES IN GUYANA. IF DESIRABLE, THESE INTERVIEWS COULD BE CONDUCTED IN CONJUNCTION WITH ANY FBI INTERVIEWS THAT MAY BE ALLOWED. IT SHOULD BE POINTED OUT TO THE GOG THAT THE USSS INTEREST IN THESE PERSONS LIES IN A VERY NARROW VEIN; THAT BEING THE FUTURE THREAT THAT THE PEOPLES TEMPLE MAY PRESENT TO PROTECTEES OF THE USSS INCLUDING THE PRESIDENT AND THE VICE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES. THIS SERVICE IN NO WAY WISHES TO PARTICIPATE IN OR HAMPER THE INVESTIGATION OF ANY CRIMES THAT

MAY HAVE BEEN COMMITTED BY THESE PERSONS IN GUYANA.

DUE TO THE POTENTIAL GRAVITY OF THE USSS INVESTIGATION AND THE NECESSITY OF THESE INTERVIEWS TO PROPERLY EVALUATE THE POTENTIAL THREAT, IT IS REQUESTED THAT USSS BE ALLOWED TO CONDUCT THE ABOVE INTERVIEWS IN THE REASONABLY NEAR FUTURE.

SUBJ: "CHRONICLE" REFUTES AP ARTICLE ON PEOPLE'S TEMPLE RELATIONSHIP WITH GOVERNMENT OF GUYANA (GOG)
1. (UNCLAS THE DEC 6, 1978 EDITION OF THE GOVERNMENT-OWNED "GUYANA CHRONICLE" CARRIES A FRONT-PAGE ARTICLE HEADLINED "A.P. STORY LINKING GOVT, PEOPLE'S TEMPLE FALSE." CHRONICLE ARTICLE SUMMARIZES AND REFUTES ALLEGATIONS MADE IN AN AP ARTICLE WRITTEN BY PETER ARNETT, ALLEGEDLY BASED ON A DOCUMENT FORM "JIM JONES' PAPERS." (COMMENT: THE EMBASSY HAS TO DATE NOT SEEN TEXT OF AP ARTICLE IN QUESTION. THE ARTICLE WILL OBVIOUSLY NOT APPEAR IN THE GOVERNMENT-OWNED PRESS HERE. END COMMENT.)
2. (UNCLAS) ACCORDING TO THE "CHRONICLE," THE ARNETT ARTICLE ALLEGES THAT MINISTER OF HOME AFFAIRS VIBERT MINGO (1) STOPPED AN INVESTIGATION OF JONESTOWN BY THE COMMISSIONER OF POLICE, (2) PROMISED TO INTERVENE IN THE CHILD CUSTODY CASE OF JOHN VICTOR STOEN AND PROTECT JIM JONES FROM ARREST; AND (3) INVITED PEOPLE'S TEMPLE (PT) MEMBERS TO VOTE ILLEGALLY ON BEHALF OF THE RULING PEOPLE'S NATIONAL CONGRESS(PNC) PARTY DURING THE CONSTITUTIONAL REFERENDUM HELD LAST JULY. THE "CHRONICLE" ALSO STATES THAT THE ARNETT ARTICLE ALLEGES THAT JIM JONES CONSIDERED FORMER GOG MINISTER OF FOREIGN AFFAIRS

FED WILLS AS AN "ADVISER" ON POLITICAL, LOCAL AND SOCIAL MATTERS, AND THAT JONES APPROACHED PRIMIN BURNHAM, THROUGH THE "CUBANS," TO REQUEST THAT WILLS BE REINSTATED IN OFFICE.
3. (UNCLAS) THE "CHRONICLE" STATES THAT "NONE OF THESE ALLEGATIONS HAS ANY TRUTH WHATSOEVER." THE PT WAS ALLOWED TO SETTLE IN GUYANA ONLY AFTER THE CREDENTIALS OF THE ORGANIZATION AND JIM JONES WERE ESTABLISHED BY THE SUBMISSION OF "HUNDREDS OF TESTIMONIALS." THE JONESTOWN AREA WAS VISITED "FREQUENTLY BY OFFICERS OF THE GOVERNMENT AND BY SENIOR OFFICIALS." BUT, RELATIONS BETWEEN THE GOG AND PT WERE CONDUCTED ON A NORMAL, BUSINESSLIKE BASIS. PT MEMBERS WERE GRANTED INTERVIEWS WITH GOG MINISTERS, INCLUDING MINGO, CONCERNING MATTERS WITHIN THE RESPONSIBILITY OF THE PARTICULAR MINISTER. MINGO COULD NOT HAVE ATTEMPTED TO INTERVENE IN A COURT CASE BECAUSE SUCH AN ACTION WOULD BE AGAINST THE POLICY OF THE GOVERNMENT.

AND WOULD SUBJECT THE MINISTER TO LEGAL ACTION FOR ACTING OUTSIDE HIS SPHERE OF COMPETENCE. MINGO COULD NOT HAVE ASKED PT MEMBERS TO VOTE FOR THE PNC, BECAUSE AMERICAN CITIZENS CANNOT VOTE IN GUYANA.

4. (UNCLAS) THE "CHRONICLE" GOES ON TO CONTEND THAT THE GOG ONLY SOUGHT TO REMOVE THOSE DOCUMENTS FROM JONESTOWN RELATING TO A CRIMINAL INVESTIGATION. JOURNALISTS WHO VISITED JONESTOWN EXAMINED DOCUMENTS AT THE PROJECT. IF THE GOG HAD ANYTHING TO HIDE, ALL OF THE DOCUMENTS WOULD HAVE BEEN REMOVED BEFORE THE JOURNALISTS ARRIVED. (COMMENT: THE "CHORNICLE" DOES NOT SPECIFICALLY COMMENT ON THE ALLEGATION THAT JONES TRIED TO CONTACT BURNHAM CONCERNING FRED WILLS. END COMMENT.)

5. (UNCLAS) ACCORDING TO THE "CHORNICLE," THE GOG HAS SCHEDULED NUMEROUS INTERVIEWS WITH SENIOR LEVEL GOG OFFICIALS

FOR THIS WEEK. IF ARNETT HAD NOT ALREADY LEFT GUYANA, HE WOULD HAVE BEEN ABLE TO INTERVIEW GOG OFFICIALS AND THEREFORE HAVE "THE OPPORTUNITY FOR COMMENT FROM THE HIGHEST POSSIBLE SOURCE WITHIN THE GOVERNMENT OF GUYANA."

EXCISE

1. IN MEETING DECEMBER 20, AMBASSADOR AGAIN RAISED WITH FORMIN RASHLEIGH JACKSON THE OUTSTANDING REQUEST OF THE U.S. SECRET SERVICE TO SEND AGENTS TO GUYANA FOR THE PURPOSE OF INTERVIEWING JONESTOWN SURVIVORS [redacted] AND [redacted]. JACKSON SAID THAT MINISTER OF JUSTICE/ATTORNEY GENERAL MOHAMED SHAHABUDDEEN HAD INFORMED HIM THAT AFTER CAREFUL CONSIDERATION, GOG COULD NOT AGREE TO INTERVIEWS WITH [redacted] AND [redacted] WHILE THEY ARE UNDER DETENTION AND IN A TRIAL PROCESS. SUCH INTERVIEWS COULD PREJUDICE THE PROSECUTION'S CASE AGAINST THESE TWO DEFENDANTS IN THE OPINION OF THE MINISTER OF JUSTICE.
2. AS TO THE [redacted] AND [redacted] THE FOREIGN MINISTER HAS BEEN INFORMED BY THE POLICE THAT THESE INDIVIDUALS WILL BE FREE TO LEAVE GUYANA AS SOON AS THE CORONER'S INQUEST INTO THE JONESTOWN DEATHS NOW BEING CONDUCTED

Background

On Sunday, November 19, the U.S. Government faced a crisis situation in Guyana. An American Congressman had been killed as well as other Americans in his party. A settlement believed to include over 1,000 Americans was involved, and its situation was uncertain. It was fully apparent that the resources of the Government of Guyana were over-strained by these events in a isolated area 120 miles from its capital. Medical evacuation for the injured Americans was immediately authorized, and the U.S. Government offered whatever help the Government of Guyana might need to prevent further loss of life. The Guyanese indicated they needed helicoper lift and certain other items. As the events progressed, it became clear that there were large numbers of American dead. For a time, it was believed that there might be many survivors in the jungle, and the U.S. adjusted and increased its assistance to help the search by Guyana police and military, but few were found. When the large number of dead was clear, the operational requirements were to continue support of the ongoing investigation of serious crimes and to identify, treat with dignity, and remove the bodies as quickly as possible to a facility that could deal with this immense problem. Removal of the bodies was at the specific request of the Government of Guyana. Dover Air Force Base mortuary was determined to be the appropriate facility.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE A/CDC/MR
REVIEWED BY [illegible] DATE 1/27/81

Authorization

In this unfolding and unprecedented calamity involving Americans in a foreign country, the President acted in his capacity as Chief Executive of the Government and as Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces. At the request of the Secretary of State, the Secretary of Defense ordered the resources of the Department of Defense to be made available. Other agencies performed their various functions under their several statutes. The State Department performed its diplomatic and consular duties under its normal statutes; the Justice Department conducted the necessary criminal investigation under its basic authorities, etc.

Since the tragedy occurred in a foreign country, Guyana, and that country requested assistance in handling the disaster, including the removal of the bodies from their country, the in-country assistance and the removal of the bodies from the country provided by the Department of Defense is the kind of function authorized for International Disaster Assistance by section 491 of the Foreign Assistance Act (22 U.S.C. 2292):

> "Sec. 491. Policy and General Authority.--(a) The Congress, recognizing that prompt United State assistance to alleviate human suffering caused by natural and manmade disasters is an important expression of the humanitarian concern and tradition of the people of the United States, reaffirms the willingness of the United States to provide assistance for the relief and rehabilitation of people and countries affected by such disasters.

(b) Subject to the limitation on appropriations in section 492, and notwithstanding any other provision of this or any other Act, the President authorized to furnish assistance to any foreign country or international organization on such terms and conditions as he may determine, for international disaster relief and rehabilitation, including assistance relating to disaster preparedness, and the prediction of, and contingency planning for, natural disasters abroad.

(c) In carrying out the provisions of this section the President shall insure that the assistance provided by the United States shall, to the greatest extent possible, reach those most in need of relief and rehabilitation as a result of natural and manmade disasters."

The assistance provided to Guyana was substantially in-kind services and goods. The appropriation of funds to the President delegated to the Secretary of State and the AID Administrator for International Disaster Assistance ($20 million for 1979) will be used to reimburse the Department of Defense for that in-kind assistance once the amounts have been determined.

Another available authority for this emergency is the Contingency Fund authorized by section 451 of the Foreign Assistance Act (22 U.S.C. 2261);

"Sec. 451. Contingency Fund. —

(a) There is authorized to be appropriated to the President for the fiscal year 1979 not to exceed $5,000,000 to provide assistance authorized by this part for any emergency purpose only in accordance with the provisions with the provisions applicable to the furnishing of such assistance. Amounts appropriated under this section are authorized to remain available until expended.

(b) The President shall submit quarterly reports to the Committee on Foreign Relations and the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives on the programming and obligation of funds under this section.

(c) No part of this fund shall be used to pay for any gifts to any officials of any foreign government made heretofore of hereafter.

$3 million was appropriated for this fund for 1979. The repair of the Guyanese aircraft that was shot-up in the attack on Congressman's Ryan's party has been authorized to be paid from this fund by AID. This was needed to restore civil air transport services to Guyana essential for its development.

Section 4 of the Act providing basic authority for the Department of State provides:

"Sec. 4. The Secretary of State is authorized to—

(a) make expenditures, from such amounts as may be specifically appropriated therefor, for unforeseen emergencies arising in the diplomatic and consular service and, to the extent authorized in appropriation Acts, funds expended for such purposes may be accounted for in accordance with section 291 of the Revised Statutes (31 U.S.C. 107); and

(b) delegate to subordinate officials the authority vested in him by section 291 of the Revised Statutes pertaining to certification of expenditures."

The repatriation of some of the survivors of the Guyana tragedy was accomplished under this authority for which $2,350,000 was appropriated for 1979.

Costs

Every effort is being made to assemble data on the costs of the Guyana operations, but at this time final figures are not available. Current tabulation shows:

($ K)

Department of State

Department of Defense

Department of Justice

Department of H.E.W.

Agency for International Development

Repair for International Development 225

Total

These data include only extraordinary costs attributable to the operation; for example, the ordinary salaries and expenses of the consular officers in Guyana are not counted, since they would have been obligated whether or not there was the disaster.

The several agencies involved, together with the Office of Management and Budget, are continuing to examine the costs aspects of the operation and will make a full report of the costs to the Government when in a position to do so.

Also, the Department of Justice is examining the responsibilities of the People's Temple organization in regards to the costs and expects to pursue any legal remedies available. Moreover, the obligations of the families of the deceased are being reviewed with a view to assuring that they share any appropriate part of the costs.

Add paragraph on disposition of the cash and other valuables found in Jonestown and their availability to defray costs to USG.

[redacted] wrote a letter in [redacted] July 77, enclosing clippings from story in New West. [redacted] replied called his daughter, who said author Kilduff was irresponsible and should not be believed. "Dammit, you know me better than that," and Jerry Brown, Moscone and some other politicians had been [illegible] making speeches in PPC with their arm around Jones, and what would they be doing with JJ if he were as bad as New West said. Cited letters on bulletin board from Mondale, Ros Carter and Scoop Jackson. "Can you envision them endorsing him if any of those things were true." I still had some trepidation, but I didn't think she would lie to me. I was a fool. I begged her to get out of there (SF) and come talk to me, but she told me she loved Marin county and wasn't coming home. But that she loved the family and no daughter of mine would ever be involved in things like Kilduff had written. (Actually she had no administrative authority.) He called State in Sept ~~on early Oct 77~~ and was advised to contact McCoy (he hadn't heard from [redacted] and was worried; he had found out in Sept. that she had left the US, gone to Guyana, then checked with Customs and found she'd left via Miami Aug. 22). Called McCoy and had it confirmed she'd entered Georgetown the next day. I subsequently related to him my fears, and he said he'd been there, that he did not have any problem getting in or out and that he had received one or two communications of a similar nature to mine with the same fears expressed, but there was absolutely no verification that hepersonally or any of the consulate staff could give to these charges. I told him it was most important that I get in touch with her, that unless I heard from her I would come down there personally. He said it was not easy to get to Jonestown and that he didnot see any indication that she had been kidnapped or was being held agst her will. He then promised me that he would see

He did that, as well as call me himself and tell me that she looked well everything seemed fine and that she was quite happy. I told him that it was rather normal for someone first arriving in a new environment to be happy, but that he had allayed my fears considerably but not completely and would he, if any vestige of evidence corroborating the ~~xxxxxxxx~~ charges made by Kilduff and [redacted] occurred that he communicate with me immediately collect. I may not have said it specifically, but the implication was clear that I would then come down and get my daughter. ~~xxxxxxxxxxxx~~He did tell me that he would do that. Definitely. I subsequently sent a letter to the State Department praising McCoy for his help.

When she first left, until I first heard from her, I went to the ~~xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx~~ Venezuelan consulate in New Orleans and found a map. She had mentioned Port Kaituma, and the other place (Jonestown) was called Mission Field. I got to look at the maps and I realized that it would a staggering problem, that it wasn't a question of getting in by sea, that you had a long up-river trip and had to pass this little town at them mouth of the river. I asked at the Venezuelan consulate if anybody had been there and one had and told me that the thickness of the jungle was indescribable, that to the best of his knowedge you couldn't go in overland. He didn't know why I was asking.

At this time I was thinking about recruiting mercenaries. I was very alarmed until I heard from her on Sept. 29. I discussed it with a professional who had vast experience in training the shah of Iran's bodyguard and is a weapons expert and an extremely close friend. I aslo sought to get some information from a govt. source of mine in Panama [redacted] we talked with about how many mercenaries we would need, which we hadn't decided; that it seemed almost certain that we would have to go in by helicopter, weapons that we needed, and the repercussions of what would happen if we had to use them--murder charges, perhaps, or construed as an act of war. We knew it would be illegal, no matter how well intentioned. But I would have done whatever I had to do.

Then two letters came from [redacted] and I really felt she was happy doing the teaching she was doing. Those, coupled with McCoy's report, allayed my fears. So we dropped the discussions.

It was going to hurt financially, but I'm not broke. The mercenaries were going cost about $30,000 each. But I had done so many favors for police and investigators, that It wouldn't have cost me nearly as much as anyone else.

I had spent some time in the Liberian jungle during WWII. I had been in the Amazon jungle. I had spent a good amount of time in the Philipine jungle, which probably most resembles the jungle in Guyana. I had had a good deal of success in talking kids into returning from cult situations. And I'm a weapons expert. There isn't a weapon around I'm not familiar. One of my brothers also was aware of the plans, and he would have been helpful in recruiting.

I would have gone through every possible legal method to get her out. I would only have done this if I were certain that the rumors were true and that the government would not have helped me, unless I had exhausted evry legal means.

Dear Sir:

This is a request under the Freedom of Information Act as amended (5 U.S.C. §552).

I write to request a copy of all files your agency indexed or maintained under my name and all documents returnable by a search for documents containing my name. To assist you in your search, I have indicated my social security number, date of birth, place of birth, dates of service and my number while in the service below my signature.

As you know, the amended Act provides that if some parts of a file are exempt from release, that "reasonably segregable" portions shall be provided. I therefore request that, if you determine that some portions of the requested information are exempt, you provide me immediately with a copy of the remainder of the file. I, of course, reserve my right to appeal any such decisions.

If you determine that some or all of the requested information is exempt from release, I would appreciate your advising me as to which exemption(s) you believe covers the information which you are not releasing.

If you determine that any such information requested has been transmitted to another agency or department, please indicate the date of transmittal, the agency transmitted to, and the contents of the material transmitted.

I am prepared to pay costs specified in your regulations for locating the requested files and reproducing them. As you know, the amended Act permits you to reduce or waive the fees if that "is in the public interest because furnishing the information can be considered as primarily benefiting the public." I believe that this request plainly fits that category and ask you to waive any fees.

If you have any questions regarding this request, please telephone me at the number listed on the letterhead of the first page.

As provided for in the amended Act, I will expect to receive a reply within 10 working days.

Sincerely,

Dear Sir:

This is a request under the Freedom of Information Act as amended (5 U.S.C. §552).

I write to request a copy of all files your agency indexed or maintained under my name and all documents returnable by a search for documents containing my name. To assist you in your search, I have indicated my social security number, date of birth, place of birth, dates of service and my number while in the service below my signature.

As you know, the amended Act provides that if some parts of a file are exempt from release, that "reasonably segregable" portions shall be provided. I therefore request that, if you determine that some portions of the requested information are exempt, you provide me immediately with a copy of the remainder of the file. I, of course, reserve my right to appeal any such decisions.

If you determine that some or all of the requested information is exempt from release, I would appreciate your advising me as to which exemption(s) you believe covers the information which you are not releasing.

If you determine that any such information requested has been transmitted to another agency or department, please indicate the date of transmittal, the agency transmitted to, and the contents of the material transmitted.

I am prepared to pay costs specified in your regulations for locating the requested files and reproducing them. As you know, the amended Act permits you to reduce or waive the fees if that "is in the public interest because furnishing the information can be considered as primarily benefiting the public." I believe that this request plainly fits that category and ask you to waive any fees.

If you have any questions regarding this request, please telephone me at the number listed on the letterhead of the first page.

As provided for in the amended Act, I will expect to receive a reply within 10 working days.

Sincerely,

Paula Adams

Dear Senator Cranston:

Two members of my parish have young adult children who are heavily involved in Jim Jones' People's Temple. Currently they are in Guyana. The parents are concerned about the freedom of their children. Mail is presumed to be controlled and censored. One parent received an envelope addressed by her son to her but containing a letter from another young person to her parent in New Orleans. Obviously after the mail was read it was put back in the wrong envelope. I don't know what you can do to investigate the situation in Jonestown, Guyana, but these could be offenses of tampering with the mails.

Would you please request an extensive investigation of Jonestown by the American Embassy in Georgetown? If an impartial investigation could be held it might lead to necessary actions or to a relieving of many concerned parents.

I look forward to hearing from you so that I can better assist the parents of these young people. Thank you very much.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Mr. President:

I am writing this letter in regards to the terrible tragedy in Guyana with the People's Temple Cult. I am sure that I speak on behalf of all concerned relatives.

The manner in which this is being handled is terrible. It seems that no one really cares that lives have been lost, innocent children killed. How can life be compared in dollars and cents in something as tragic as this. I tried to get help for [redacted] but no one seemed to care. Some lives could have been saved had some action been taken.

We cannot even find out if our loved ones are living or dead. The search for more survivors have been stopped. Our country does not even want to see to it that the victims have a decent burial. Now the load is being pushed on the families who tried to get help. Many relatives simply do not have the money it takes to get a proper burial considering most of us had at least four loved ones in Guyana.

Surely, our country will handle this in a better way, if [redacted] are gone nothing in this world can replace them but as I write this letter I'm hoping and praying that they are alive.

Mr President, please see to it that every step is taken to find survivors and that families are notified soon if their loved ones are gone and that they can get at least a proper burial in Delaware if so desired, as that would make it so much easier on the families concerned, we have suffered so much.

Thank you, I feel that you will do what you can to help.

Dear Mr.President .

It is with sadness to know that Congressman Ryan was "Murdered" and it was no accident that this great tragedy happened.
I wrote you a letter a few months back about [redacted] who at this time is still in "Guyanna", and not only do i fear for [redacted] life but the people who truly want to get away from that hell hole.I hope this will make you and the rest of the people see just how much people are in danger of being kept against their will, and i hope you will do something about this matter before more innocent people are murdered.
This should make people see that what is being said about this paranoid man is ttue, and we with [redacted] in guyanna want our loved ones back with us.As I said in my first letter to you, my [redacted] is being kept against his will as is other people wanting to get away but can't.
This is where you can make people take back the things they are saying about us.As President, people feel that you are not doing all you promised to do for the people, i for one think you are doing a wonderful job.But i also feel that you should have looked into this matter long ago, and this could have been prevented, and congressman Ryan would still be alive and the people that were with him would not have been shot, and put through uncessary changes.You have got to know that the Goverment in guyanna is just as much to blame for Ryans death as if he were the one that fire that shot that killed him, all that i am saying i mean every word. This Jim Jones has got to be stopped and stopped now, he is going to have everyone killed who gets close to the truth be it woman or child he will kill them all, to keep the truth fro m being known.Congressman Ryan knew much more than he should have and Jones knew this and this is why he was killed, to keep from reporting what he knew .and that was only what we have been saying to the people for so long, Jim Jones is a fake and he means nothing but evil.
I know you will not let this incident go overlooked this is what it took for before anyone would believe this man is "Sick".
It is sad that a life was taken before anyone took this matter t heart and know just how serious this is.And all the people who had the chance to talk to Mr.Ryan their lives too is in great danger, and they to will be killed, or poisoned. I ask you again to help me get [redacted] back to the Uiited States befor something happens to him, and this will kill me if something were to happen to him, not to mention what it would do to his [redacted] and hi [redacted] it would hurt everyone in the family.
And I know how Mrs. Ryan must be feeling and my heart goes out t her and her family.Mr. President know that i know that you will do all that you can to end this for everyone concerned, you must know that this is going to make the people watch you to see if you are going to really do something about this, and i am as a concerned [redacted] want to know if you will go yourself and see tha everything I have sid and you have heard isn't the truth,.
As i said in my first letter to you if you can get [redacted] to the nearest airport i can do the rest.as i said before i just do not have the kind of money that it would take to go get him and come back, even though i have taken on another job to try and get the money, it still would not be quite enough.

I cried when i heard on thenews that Mr.Ryan had been killed trying to do good for the people,and this told us that he did believe in the things that he heard,and he wanted to help and it is so sad that he lost his life for wanting to help the ~~poo~~ people . This goes back to the time that President Kennedy was shot for the same thing,wanting to help the people.
How many innocent people must be murdered before things are done,how many more lives will be taken before this man is stopped.If he isn't stopped now he will go on killing people if you let him get away with this.I as a people want to know just what you are going to do about this,and if you plan to go see for yourself just what is going on. This proves just what we the people have been saying all along about this "Psyco" man.His mind is so wrath and he is full of evil that he doesn't care who he hurts of it will keep people from knowing the full truth about him.
This is a sad day for all of us because we felt that Mr. Ryan was our ~~no~~ only hope for all the people to see just what kind of man that this jones person is,if indeed he is a person.
No human being can be that cruel to kill someone in cold blood and not even show some kind of emotions,i can't believe that there are peole like ~~no~~ him living in this world.
Mr. President i would appreciate if you would let me know just what is going to happened after this,and will you please look into this before someone else is k illed.
Your aide or someone answered my first letter and i was most happy to know that you took time out to answered my letter,i read the letter from you all the time and can almost read it without looking.
Mr. President please help me to get [redacted] back and as soon as possible. He will have a birthday on Christmas day he will be (19) and he will be spending his birthday away from home somewhere i know he hates.
Like the rest of the people he was brainwashed and threatened, Jones threatened the members with harming their family if they turn on him and don't do as he say,i know this is what happened to [redacted] to keep his family from being hurt he he went against his own better judgement.And now he is paying to high a price ,giving up ones freedom is a high to pay,no matter what.
If you can read my first letter to you and see that i was not lying about this crazy man.You have got to stop him and stop him now,don't let him kill more innocent people,and victimized and torment this world by having him thinking he can get away with this.
For him to go unpunished for this crime he had commited will be a great unjustic to Congressman Ryan, and to know that what he was trying to do was all in vain.
I must know if [redacted] is still alive i have no way of knowing this and it is tearing me apart,i have to know this and you are my only hope.
Can you find out for me if [redacted] is alright and if he is in good health.
After this killing everyone [redacted] in that hell hod is sitting on needles,not knowing is killing all of us.
~~oo~~
Once again i give you [redacted] name and hoping you will help me and the others who have people over there in the jungles.
His name is [redacted]
He is about 5'6""and should weigh about 160 or maybe he is Less,due to the fact that the people are half eatingbecause they aren't being fed.
~~f~~
If justice is indeed fair and for the people you will see thst this man is stopped.

Please tell me how and what i can do to get [redacted] back home.
There must be a way to get him from over in Guyana, i just have to know where to start, and you can help me and tell me just what is to been done.
Once again i am sorry to know that innocent people were hurt and i hope this is ths last time something like this will happened.
Will you please help me, please help me.
For all i know [redacted] could have been one of the people who was hurt or maybe dead, i don't know.
Help me, please help me. Tell me what it is i can do to help get [redacted] back where he belongs.
Please answer this letter. Also is there a toll free number i can call in Washington, without charge to me because i don't have that kind of money to call and find out the kind of information i need.
I await your reply regarding this matter. and i hope you will help me to get [redacted] back home, please help me.

Sincerely and with warm regards

[redacted]

P.S.
Please my poor
typing and all the many errors,

I have just recently heard that people are taking their own lives to be rid of their torment, meaning that the people in Guyana would rather take their lives than to go through with the living hell they are having in the jungle.
I have written to the American Embassey with no response. If this is the way the goverment help the people then all I can say is, God help us all.
What is going to happen to this world if people don't care to get involved, you must get involved to make this a better place to live in.
I help people every day, people i don't even know .
All i am saying is why are the little people like myself being overlooked when we ask for help, we are still part of the so world we live in, we are a people too.
I am asking for your help and i am also writing to the American Embassey again, and hope i will get some kind of response from this time. You may or may not think this is important but i can assure you it is vital and it is a problem.
Please heop me to get [redacted] back you cant't imagine the the hel i am going through not knowing just what is going on in that par of the world.
Help me to ge[redacted] back and the sooner the better, you can't know how much this would mean to me.
Is thatr a toll free number i can call one for Washington and one for the Embassey in Guyana, to find out mare information.
You answered my letter before please answered this one and let me know what is being done.
I ask you is it worth people killing themselves and being killed just because some man is crazy and paranoid, is it really worth all the grief, and is it worth the heartache i am suffering and the pain other people are feeling.
I hope someone will hear our cry for help, because we van't do it along.
Once again i am truly sorry for the lives that were taken in gatana* guyana, and i say again it was no accident that this did happened. Jones has said many times before he would kill anyone who tried to destroy him, and this proves what everyone has been saying for the longest.
He has always said he would have people Killed if they betrayed him, and he has said he would kill outsiders who came to upset hi his so call town.
So you see this is war on anyone who comes close ro the real facts. Help me Mr. President, you as a parent must know how i feel and the feelings of other parents.
Don't lit this crazy man get away with this stop him before he kills someone else.

Dear Mr. President,

I'm writing you regarding several things. First, there are all sorts and means of helping the less advantage people, such as welfare (and there are so people on welfare who could be working) and low rent, the federal housing authority and the public housing agency. Then they get th food stamps for little or nothing, there is the senior people's discount and senior pop home. Secondly, there are the more advanta or "rich" people. Now, they are benefiting fro the tax cut, and from the community redevelopment, whereas if this type of work wa done in my neighborhood we would have to pay for it. Third, there are what you migh call the middle class people. Now I put it in this category. [redacted] My money goes to the welfare, it is used to help with the senior citizens discou Now, I am benefiting from the tax cut right now, but when it is time for income tax returns, I.R.S. always manage to make me pa money back. [redacted] there is no way for us to go ahead. We have ever considered stop considered this because, there are [redacted] who have died (possibly over in Guyana. We would like to have a funeral (one big funeral) but we can't afford it. Is there any way humanly possible that united states can recover the money found over in Guyana in Jim Jones cult to help pay for these funerals.

Fourth, I would like to know now, [redacted] was receiving social security checks over there. Will these checks be returned to the family or will they go back to the government. [redacted] also cashed in insurance policies to give to Jim Jones. I would just like to know how this money will be divided or who will be responsible for taking care of it. I am another who had wrote the United States embassy regarding [redacted] over there and I got no satisfaction from the letter that they sent me. I still have the letter should you want to see it.

Mr. President if there is a way to recover this money, could you possibly assist me with any type of aid or suggest any type of help. I am not asking for anything for myself, but I am desperate for assistance on these 6 funerals. I would appreciate your response in my grieving moments as soon as possible. LIMITED OFFICIAL USE

TO: ARA/CAR - Mr. Ashley C. Hewitt

FROM: ARA/CAR - John C. Griffith

SUBJECT: Recollections of Meeting on November 13 with Congressman Ryan, et al

To the best of my recollection, Jackie Speiers, with whom I had been in close contact regarding CODEL Ryan's visit to Guyana, telephoned me on the morning of the Friday before Congressman Ryan was scheduled to leave for Guyana and said that the Congressman had two former members of the People's Temple in his office. These former People's Temple members had a plane to catch that afternoon, and Congressman Ryan wished to bring them to the Department so that they could brief the Department on what they knew of the People's Temple. As I recall, either she said that Dick Belt of CA/SCS was setting up a meeting to meet with Congressman Ryan or I told her I would ask Dick Belt to do so. In any event, a meeting was arranged that morning, November 13, by SCS. I attended. Among those I remember as being present were Congressman Ryan, Jackie Speiers and Jim Scollart who were accompanying the Congressman to Guyana, as well as Terry Fortune of L/ARA, Dick Belt, and Al Gise of CA who chaired the meeting. The two former members of the People's Temple, both of them young ladies, were also present. I do not remember their names, but in the light of subsequent events, I believe one of them [redacted]

B6

Congressman Ryan and the two former People's Temple members, especially the one I believe to b[redacted] dominated the meeting, briefing the State Department participants on the People's Temple. Congressman Ryan started by explaining how he had become interested in the People's Temple. As I recall, this interest arose out of several complaints regarding the People's Temple from his constituents in California. In looking into these complaints, it became apparent that something was wrong with the People's Temple, and the more he looked into it the more he was determined to get to the bottom of the People's Temple situation and, if possible, straighten it out. He said he was going to Guyana to see if allegations of brainwashing and that the Temple was holding members against their will were correct. He recognized the difficulties involved and that his visit might stir up trouble in the People's Temple in Guyana. However, he was determined to go and assured us that he would try to avoid any unnecessary difficulty or confrontation with the Embassy, Guyanese officials, or People's Temple representatives. Rather, he said, he would try to seek their cooperation and, to the extent possible, friendship. However, when asked what he would do if the People's Temple continued to refuse to allow him to visit Jonestown, he replied that he would camp on the doorstep of the People's Temple office in Georgetown until he was received and allowed to present his case for permission to visit Jonestown. If this took longer than the three to four days projected for his visit, he was prepared to extend the time he spent in Georgetown.

Most of the rest of the meeting was taken up with the narration of the two former People's Temple members of their experiences with the Temple. The former Temple member [redacted] did most of the talking. She was prompted from time to time by Congressman Ryan. She told how her family had become involved with the People's Temple (I do not remember the details), and said that Jones had moved the Temple from northern California to San Francisco to enhance the Temple's political clout. (Either she or Ryan characterized Jones as a Marxist.) She related how Jones used to send bus loads of Temple members to Los Angeles. These excursions were very profitable. The Temple also made a great deal of money, she alleged, by extracting a tithe from members and by having members sign over their property, real estate, etc., to the Temple.

Turning to her experiences in Guyana, the former People's Temple member [redacted] with occasional reference to the other ex-Temple member, said that she had become increasingly disillusioned with Jones and the Temple movement. She had had to do heavy agricultural work in the fields at Jonestown with People's Temple messages constantly being broadcast to all parts of Jonestown. She felt herself brainwashed and said that if she fell down on her work she was punished as were others, either physically or by being criticized or shunned by other members of the Jonestown community. In evening congregations of the community, members were required to confess their "sins" and were often set upon physically by others. At these meetings, Jones often required Temple members to reaffirm their faith in him and to adore him as if he were a god. When visitors came to Jonestown, she said, their visits were carefully orchestrated as was all contact with outsiders both in California and Guyana. When a visitor such as the Consul from Embassy Georgetown came to Jonestown, she said, those he was to see were carefully rehearsed. She said that while the Temple made a point of showing its peaceful, friendly side to outsiders, there was an underlying aura of violence within the Temple community. I also seem to recall that she mentioned that Jones maintained a para-military guard and that there were a limited number of firearms and other weapons at Jonestown. She also described participationin a mass suicide ritual. She had not known it was a practice ritual when it started and said that the hysteria was such that she actually felt pains in her stomach.

[redacted] the forme People's Temple member [redacted] said that as a result of her growing disillusionment with Jones and the People's Temple she decided to try to escape. She also said that it was increasingly obvious to her that Jones was using the Temple movement for personal aggrandizement. When she was sent to Georgetown to help with the People's Temple office there, she made herself so useful to the Georgetown office that she was allowed to stay on. She contacted Dick McCoy who she said was very helpful. She obtained an airplane ticket back to the United States from, I believe, her family, and Dick McCoy gave her a passport. Her regular passport was in Jonestown, she said, and she was afraid to ask for it for fear that the People's Temple would prevent her departure. She also described how Dick McCoy accompanied her to the airport to allay her concern that she would be stopped by Guyanese officials or the People's Temple. She said that the People's Temple was given special treatment at the airport by the Guyanese and was even allowed access to restricted areas and to interview both arriving and departing passengers associated with the Temple. She also said that the People's Temple had suborned not only airport officials but a number of senior Guyanese officials and that members of the People's Temple were assigned to subvert Guyanese in positions of influence by granting sexual favors. In relating the story of her escape from Guyana, the former People's Temple member [redacted] had nothing but praise for Dick McCoy's help and deportment vis-a-vis the Temple, both in Georgetown and Guyana.

During her narration, the former People's Temple member [redacted] said that the Temple used shortwave radios as its main means of communication between its Georgetown office and Jonestown and the United States. The Temple had devised an elaborate system of code words which were used when confidential material was transmitted.

EMBASSY January 1814

December 7, 1978

MEMORANDUM

TO: The Files

FROM: ARA/CAR - Richard McCoy

SUBJECT: Consular Officer Visits to Jonestown

1. SUMMARY:

I travelled to Jonestown to the Peoples Temple agricultural community on August ~~29~~ 30, 1977, January 11, 1978 and May 10, 1978. These visits were to perform both normal consular activities and to respond to inquiries from relatives of individuals who were at the community. In order to insure access to the farm I would inform the Peoples Temple before hand of my plans to visit. I would give them some but not all of the names of people that I wished to contact. I did not give out the names of those I had reason to believe had been abused in some way by the Temple so that I could determine for myself whether in fact the individual had been mistreated. I was concerned that if I did not give names in advance the Temple "would give me some excuse why the person was unavailable. However,

EMBASSY

I always saw every individual I wished to see and never noticed any signs of physical abuse. When I arrived at Jonestown the Peoples Temple administrative staff would assist me in locating persons usually by their loud speaker. When the individual would come to me, unless I knew them in advance, either because I had seem them on previous visits to the community or at the Consulate in Georgetown, I would ask them to produce their passport for identity. I would then move with them away from the central pavilion where I would then proceed to ask them the following questions: How are you? What are you doing? Are you being well treated? Do you wish to leave? Are you being held here against your will? Have you been mistreated in any way? What are your plans for the future? Have you heard from your family in the United States? Have you written your family in the United States? Are you satisfied with your present life in Jonestown? I did not ask all those interviewed the same questions. My questioning was based upon information contained in the letter from the concerned relative. However, the above questions are basically what were asked. I also informed them that if they wished to leave we could do so immediately in the GOG official vehicle. In every instance, the interviewees replied that they were not held against their will or mistreated. While I was concerned whether the answers were genuine and the individuals had not been intimidated, there was simply no way that I could prove otherwise. Therefore, I reported what the individual said and my impressions of the conversation. I still find it difficult to believe that the visits were stage managed. I had free access anywhere I wished to go and I never thought I was being prevented from viewing certain areas. I always tried to use some excuse to break away from whomever was with me and approach a single member of the community to discuss his activities. I had hoped to see if I could determine a tenseness on the part of the individual to denote that his answers were forced. On no occasion did I ever have the impression that the answers were other than spontaneous.

2. Details - First Visit to Jonestown

My first trip to the Peoples Temple Agricultural Community occurred between August 28 and August 30, 1977. The purpose of the trip was twofold; to acquaint myself with conditions at the Community, and to respond to a request from a relative that was concerned that a Temple member [redacted] was being held against her will. Up to this time the only unfavorable information that had been mentioned in connection with the Peoples Temple was a magazine article published by New West magazine. I had earlier met Jones in December, 1976 when he visited Guyana accompanied by Mervin Dymally then Lt. Governor of California. At the time of the trip I had very little knowledge of the Peoples Temple: its origin, structure, and purpose. I had only two other inquiries; one inquiring about children at Jonestown who had previously been wards of the court in California, and the other from a mother who was first concerned about her daughter. This lady later sent a telegram indicating she was no longer concerned about her daughter's welfare. Under these circumstances I had no particular reason to be overly suspicious of the organization or its intentions.

I traveled to Matthews Ridge on August 28 to meet with government officials who had jurisdiction over the Jonestown community. Upon arrival I was informed by the Regional District Officer, Mr. Robert Wyatt, that a Peoples Temple member named [redacted] had left the Community and walked into Port Kaituma complaining of ill treatment at Jonestown. [redacted] had cuts on the upper part of his back. He had been transported from Port Kaituma to Matthews Ridge by GOG officials and was lodged at the local dispensary. I immediately arranged to visit [redacted] accompanied by a criminal investigation officer of the Guyanese Police to verify the facts of this case.

[redacted] in the interview denied that he had been mistreated and stated that he just ~~wished~~ Jim (Jones) to send him home since he was not cut out for that kind of life. [redacted] indicated that he was a stevedore from San Francisco who had a sister living in Palo Alto, California, but he could not give me the sister's full name or address. I informed him that I would arrange to have the Temple or the U.S. Government assist him in returning to California.

On August 29, I traveled first from Matthews Ridge to Port Kaituma where I met with the local District Officer, Mr. Norman Adams, who is responsible for the immediate area surrounding Jonestown. I discussed with Mr. Adams the general purpose of my visit and the results of my meeting with [redacted] Adams was relieved to hear that [redacted] had changed his story since he was very concerned about the allegations when they were first made. He promised to keep in touch with me about developments in the community.

Mr. Adams accompanied me into Jonestown. At Port Kaituma a young Guyanese university student who had asked for a ride back to Matthews Ridge also became part of the Group that went into Jonestown. We were met upon arrival by Jones and several members of his staff including [redacted] and others.

Jones was aware of the general purpose of my visit which was to see [redacted] However, he was unaware that I was to verify the presence of John Stoen at the camp. This request had been relayed to me the day before by telephone from Georgetown to Matthews Ridge.

EXCISE

Jones began showing me around the community. First we saw what looked like a communal dining room where about 100 elderly black and white women were sitting singing spirituals. Jones immediately addressed the group, introduced me as the Consul, and asked whether they were happy and satisfied. Not surprisingly, they answered yes. We then entered what I assume was the administration office where there was a table size mock-up of the community as envisaged when it was completed. Jones indicated that he anticipated a community of about 1500 people or more. We then visited the clinic where I met the Jonestown doctor who informed me that he had finished his medical work at the University of California at Irvine. I also met [redacted] who identified herself as a paramedic.

We then visited a number of living quarters and the saw mill which at that moment was turning out siding for pre-fabricated housing as another crew prepared the house sites. Jones explained that they had made arrangements for married couples and single-sexed dorms. They took great pride in pointing out the facilities that were being erected for the elderly.

EXDIS

Interspersed with ~~this~~ a running commentary of Temple accomplishments in Jonestown, Jones continually made reference to what he termed were lies that had been appearing in the press about the Peoples Temple. He then took me to what was an extremely large hole that was the community's refuse dump. He said one of the accusations that had been made was that members had been forced to dig this hole as punishment. He indicated that the hole had been dug by a tractor with a backhoe. This explanation appeared reasonable since the sides of the hole were smooth which would indicate it had been dug out by mechanical means. However, I was aware that it could have been done just before I came.

We then went to lunch which was served with ~~clear~~ water from the Jonestown well. The lunch which consisted of rice, okra, and some ground meat was not very tasty but it was filling. Desert was cassava cake (Louis Life Savers) which I did not eat. I mentioned the case of [redacted] who was in Matthews Ridge, Jones and his colleagues expressed surprise that [redacted] was there. They had clearly wondered what had happened to him. When I explained [redacted] request, Jones readily agreed and instructed his adopted son, Johnny, to gather up [redacted] effects that were left at the camp and help arrange [redacted] return to Georgetown where a ticket would be provided for his return to the United States by the Peoples Temple.

After lunch Jones began to again speak at length about the "conspiracy" against him by certain right wing forces in the United States and alluded to my visit as being a direct result of the lies that were being spread about the Peoples Temple. He mentioned that he had been shot at from the jungle. I asked whether they had any firearms to defend themselves or for hunting. Jones replied we have several shotguns for hunting. He again returned to this theme of a "conspiracy". He showed me legal documents about [redacted]

I told Jones that while I couldn't comment on these charges that he should expect that under normal circumstances many relatives of his members would be concerned about the well-being and welfare of their relatives in this remote distant part of Guyana that was unknown to them. He could expect that there would be future visits since I or another consular officer would have to visit Jonestown in response to requests through the Department of State that the Embassy conduct an official inquiry. I explained that this was normal State Department procedure and he would just have to get used to it. He would have to understand that in my contacts with people here if they wished to leave they would be allowed to do so. At the same time I assured him that I would not be conducting a witch hunt but simply trying to ascertain the facts. I reminded Jones that as American citizens they were entitled to their right to privacy but at the same time they must also understand that they were subject to Guyanese law and would have to abide by this law. I concluded that they should not construe my visit as hostile but simply one to determine the facts.

At this time I asked them to produce John Stoen along with his passport for identity purposes. This request caused some consternation. When asked why, I simply said that I had been asked by the State Department to verify if he was at Jonestown. They complied with the request but the mood changed from one of friendliness to one of wariness on the part of the Temple members.

I then requested to see [redacted] When she appeared with her passport, I then moved away from the group to an open area where we could speak without being overheard. I informed [redacted] of her family's concern that she was being held against her will. She replied that her family's impression was a mistake. I asked whether she had been in fact psychologically or physically intimidated by the Peoples Temple to remain in Jonestown. She then replied that she had not been neither psychologically or physically intimidated to remain in Jonestown. I reiterated my question adding that she could feel safe with me and that if she wished we could leave immediately in the presence of the Guyanese who accompanied me and that no one would stop her. [redacted] then said she did not wish to leave, she was not living in fear, and in fact stated that she was very happy with her new life as one of the teachers in the local school that had started in Jonestown. I again said are you sure? She smiled and said she was sure she did not wish to leave Jonestown. I believed [redacted] who appeared to be a mature young woman, was sincere in her response and as it did not appear that she would change her mind and the interview was then concluded.

Just before I left, Jones in a calculated afterthought asked if it were true that the Embassy had requested the Government of Guyana to expell the Peoples Temple from Guyana. I told him that no the statement was not true, that it was inconceivable that the U.S. Government would move against an entire American organization. We would however, request the Guyanese Government to return any individuals who had fled the U.S. to avoid criminal prosecution whether they were members of the Peoples Temple or not. I then departed Jonestown and returned to Matthews Ridge.

On August 30, I met with the Regional District Officer for a lengthy discussion of my impressions and experience at Jonestown. I told him I had not seen any illegal or unusual activity. Mr. Wyatt replied that he had not yet visited the community since he had taken up his post the previous June but he intended to visit there shortly to see for himself what was occurring.

I made arrangements for [redacted] to be picked up at the dispensary and brought to the airfield for the return flight to Georgetown. Later at the airfield I met [redacted] (the nurse) who was taking a child into Georgetown for medical treatment. She was accompanied by [redacted] I had a chance to have a long conversation with [redacted] while we were waiting for the airplane at which time she showed me the plans of the community to build a hospital. The plans were architectural drawings of fairly high quality. She told me she was going into Georgetown not only for medical treatment for the child but also to review these plans with Ministry of Health Officials in hopes that the Ministry would assist the community in procuring a particular type of lumber available in Guyana that was resistant to warping and termites.

When the plane arrived at Georgetown, [redacted] went their separate ways. I confirmed with the Chief of Immigration that [redacted] left Guyana for the United States by himself about two days later.

SECOND VISIT

On January 11, 1978 I again travelled to Jonestown this time by chartered airplane with [redacted] and Norman Adams, the District Officer from Port Kaituma who had been in Georgetown on business and who had agreed to accompany me on my visit. I earlier explained to Mr. Adams that I was going up to conduct inquires concerning the possibility of social security fraud and to investigate allegations that a number of Peoples Temple members were being held against their will. Mr. Adams arranged transportation for me from the airstrip in Port Kaituma into Jonestown and return. During the flight to Port Kaituma I had a chance to talk alone with [redacted]

I told [redacted] that her father had sent her a ticket for her to use if at sometime she should decide to leave the Temple. I explained that the ticket was in my safe and would remain there for an indefinte period of time. [redacted] just smiled and said she had no plans to leave Guyana Jonestown at this time and wished her father would accept that. She said she loved her father but she had her own life to live and she was old enough to know what she was doing.

Since I had a large number of people to see on this trip, approaching 30, I did give the names of most of the social security recipients that I had to interview to the Temple along with one or two others to have them ready to interview so that I could complete my business the same day and return to Georgetown.

I first interviewed those people who I had to see on welfare inquires. I had the Temple call out the name of the individual on their loud speakers. Since I had a limited amount of time to talk with many individuals I did not have very much time to listen to one of Jones' monologues about harrassment and conspiracy. I established myself in the central pavilion, gave [redacted] a list of names to call the people in from wherever they were. For those who did not have their passports, [redacted] got the passports for them so that I could identify the individual. As the individuals came to me in the central pavilion, except in the case of one elderly lady we would move to an open area on the farthest side of the pavilion away from anyone in order to conduct the interview in private.

The elderly social security recipients some of which were infirm were interviewed at a picnic table in a corner of the pavilion. The members who were interviewd concerning the allegations that they were held against their will included: [redacted]

I also spoke with [redacted] concerning her granddaughte[redacted] All these individuals were asked if they were happy at Jonestown, whether they were being held against their will, I also asked what type of work they were engaged in, what their interests were, whether they had been physically assaulted or abused in any way and whether they wanted to leave with me.

In the case of [redacted] who was a young boy of 12 or 13, a relative had written that as punishment he had all his hair shaved off. I received this inquiry sometime in December 1977 so that at most the allegations might be three months old from the time relatives had heard of it. When I spoke to [redacted] he had an afro which would have taken him more than three months to grow.

I also presented letters from relatives to a number of people in Jonestown including [redacted]

[redacted] I then interviewed the social security recipients and at the same time personally handed them their checks. I also personally delivered most of the 78 checks I had brought that day. I took this opportunity to question many of the recipients about their life in Jonestown, plans to return to the United States, and whether they had signed away the rights of their checks to the Peoples Temple. Again in all cases the individuals responded that there had been no pressure on them to sign their checks over to the Temple and that they were free to donate as much as they wished. All of the elderly people were neatly dressed and expressed a strong satisfaction with their life at Jonestown. One man remarked how much he enjoyed the fishing in nearby steams, others talked of working in the children's nursery, and growing flowers and vegetables. Several spoke of being able to receive their checks without the fear of being mugged. I chatted for quite sometime with the elderly people in the hopes that I could see some sense of fear or strain on their part. At no time did I have a feeling that these people were in any way apprehensive about talking to me. In fact the only hostility during the visit came when I tried to pass letters to individuals from relatives and when I attempted to get Privacy Act releases so that I could inform relatives of the results of the interviews.

At all times during this particular visit life seemed to be continuing; people working in the fields, the saw mill and the machine shop. I just could not sense any body acting abnormally.

On two separate occasions I excused myself to go to the bathroom in order to be able to approach members of the community to see if I could take them unawares by asking them if they were being held against their will here, and were they aware of their rights as American citizens in Guyana to request the protection of the Guyanese Government. These spontaneous contacts appeared to disconcert Jones somewhat but on no occasion did I get an impression from the people that the replies were rehearsed.

Jones, when I was leaving the community, said he hoped I was satisfied that all these allegations were false and I said that on the basis of my investigation they appeared to be since no one wanted to leave with me. However, I pointed out to him that until he opened up the community for the relatives of Temple members to come and visit, he could expect the allegations to continue and therefore he could expect consular officers to continue to make trips to the community to check out these accusations. On that note the visit concluded.

I returned to Georgetown with Mr. Adams whose business in the capital had not been completed. We brought Terri Jones (Jim JOnes daughter in-law) and her baby back to Georgetown with us.

On the basis of my observations on this trip, I thought it was improbable that people were being held against their will. I did feel that Temple members may have been intimidated from attempting to leave the community because of the difficulty in arranging transportation Georgetown from such a remote location and of course, Jones may have been exerting strong influence on members to stay.

I could not believe that any member especially young adult members in their 20's and 30's, if they really wished to leave could not simply find the opportunity to fade into the jungle and make their way to Matthews Ridge or Port Kaituma and request onward assistance. I always made it a point to mention to everyone that I was always available in Georgetown to help them in way I could hoping that they would remember this and once in contact with Guyanese authorities would request assistance from me.

I emphasized to Norman Adams and his immediate Superior Robert Wyatt that should any member of Jonestown manage go get to Matthews Ridge or Port Kaituma to help them arrange onward transportation and notify me so that I could arrange to meet them and help them to return to the United States. However, as my report to the Department of this trip indicated I had not developed any information that would substantiate charges that people were being held against their will.

THIRD VISIT

On May 10, 1978 I travelled to Jonestown accompanied by Mr. Richard Dwyer, Deputy Chief of Mission and [redacted] member of the Peoples Temple staff. Mr. Dwyer took a camera with him in order to be able to take extensive photos of the community. The trip was made by charter aircraft from Georgetown to Port Kaituma where a government vehicle met us upon arrival.

In Port Kaituma Mr. Dwyer and I went to meet the new District Officer, Mr. Herb Thomas. I discussed with Mr. Thomas the delay in registering recent births and deaths that had occurred in Jonestown. I explained to him that it was important that these procedures be regularized so that the reporting of births and deaths could be promptly completed. I asked him also his impressions of Jonestown and he gave a noncommital response. I asked had he observed or heard anything which would be considered unusual and he replied no. I asked him if he could come to the community with Mr. Dwyer and myself in order to resolve these questions of local registry services. He said he could not at this moment, but would do so later in the day. Mr. Dwyer and I then excused ourselves and continued our journey to the community.

Upon our arrival, I introduced Mr. Dwyer to Jones and other members of his staff. I then left this group and asked a member of the staff, who I think was [redacted] to ask the people on a list that I had prepared to come to the central pavilion where I would meet with them. I interviewed the following people outside of the central pavilion: [redacted]

While I did not ask all of them the same questions, in all cases I did ask them whether they were being held against their will or whether they had suffered any mistreatment. They all replied no and stated they did not wish to leave Jonestown. In the case of th[redacted] I asked them whether they had received messages that I had passed through the Peoples Temple Office in Georgetown. They replied yes they had received the messages. I emphasized to the [redacted] boy[redacted] the importance of responding to their father's request that he had made to see them, even if it meant traveling to Georgetown. I aske[redacted] to contact her mother in the near future since she was concerned about her health and welfare. After speaking with these people, I then met with approximately 20 to 30 members of the community who were the parents of recently newborn children.

At this point, I assisted them in filling out the necessary documents in order to register the births of the children so that they could be documented as American citizens. Several of the parents were unmarried I told them I could not complete the formalities and instructed them to come to the Consulate in Georgetown to accomplish this. There are other cases where I simply did not have sufficient forms and these individuals were also asked to come to Georgetown to finish the paperwork. I also discussed a social security case with [redacted]

I then met with Paula Adams and several other members of the Temple who had applied for Guyanese citizenship in order to legally permit the Temple to be registered as a cooperative agricultural community. I informed these individuals that if they pursued their plans to acquire Guyanese nationality, they ran a strong risk of losing their American citizenship. They all claimed that this was not their desire but that under Guyanese law a certain number of the board of directors had to be Guyanese citizens. I suggested to them that they may wish to consider bringing in a number of Guyanese, such as their local attorney or some other interested individual to serve on the board, thus it would not be necessary for them to received Guyanese citizenship. They agreed to consider this suggestion.

During all of my activities Mr. Dwyer toured the site and met with Jones and members of his staff. Just before leaving, [redacted] showed me the new children's library that had been set up. We then departed the community to return to Georgetown. The DCM and I had decided that after take off we would arrange to have the plane do a slow circle over the community so that he could take pictures at an angle to see if we could spot any roadway or buildings constructed at the periphery of the community that would be covered by the jungle from a plane flying directly overhead.

After the films were developed it was apparent from a review of the photos that there did not appear to be any such buildings. My general impression again was that the community was thriving. Additional work had been accomplished, more land had been cleared and more buildings erected. Possibly because of Dwyer's visit, lunch this time was roast pork, rice and vegetables. The best meal that I had in my three visits.

SUBJECT: List for [redacted] E b 6

I explained to [redacted] December 8, that the Task Force headed by Lee Hicks was interested in knowing (a) down to what level did he want the names of the people who had had a consular relationship with the Guyanese problem and (b) what Congressional process would these names become part of. E b 6

[redacted] said that Chairman Zablocki had asked his staff as part of a totally preliminary approach to Guyana to consider interviewing certain people. The Committee Staff would interview the surviving newsmen, Jackie Speier, Dick McCoy, and some of the relatives. As for the list of U.S. officials, he did not think it should extend below one grade or position lower than that of Alan Gise. Moreover, he did not expect Committee people to meet with all consular officials listed. What he wanted was a base of names that he could show to the Chairman. It would then be decided what the responsibility of the Committee was and what should be done in the future. [redacted] did not personally favor hearings and said that after discussions with selected people the Chairman would decide what to do. This could eventually lead to hearings or -- alternatively -- the Chairman might decide that enough had been done. E b 6

Could you prepare a list, and perhaps break it down by categories of relevancy? In the most relevant column might be officials who had in Washington or Georgetown worked extensively on the People's Temple. This might even include the ex-DCM, the Ambassador, and our present DCM, Dick McCoy, and Frank Tumminia. People in our own office would be known to you, but for reasons of rank, the number of those below you should be kept to a minimum. Maybe just Dick Belt (if you and he agree).

We could also mention whomever it was in L that advised us on the People's Temple if there was much input.

I might say tha[redacted] tone was reasonable and non-inquisitorial (for what its worth). E b6

MEMORANDUM

TO: The Files

FROM: ARA/CAR - Richard A. McCoy

SUBJECT: My Contacts With Peoples Temple in Georgetown

Preface

I arrived in Georgetown August 20, 1976 to begin my assignment as Chief of the Consular section in the Embassy of Georgetown. After my assignment I had heard about an American Agricultural Community located in the North West district that was composed of about 40 people. I was only vaguely aware of their aims and had no direct contact with any of the members until December 1976. My first actual contact came in December 1976 when I received word from the Department that the head of the Peoples Temple church was coming to Guyana with the then Lieutenent of California, Marvin Dymally. I had several short telephone conversation with members of the Temple at the Georgetown office concerning the itinerary of the Lieutenant Governor during his stay in Guyana. I met Dymally and Jones for about an hour and a half during Dymally's visit which Jones spoke for the most part. He seemed to be primarily concerned about CAA activities overseas and particularly in Guyana and the current state of our relations with Guyana.

My next contact did not begin until late August 1977. These contacts with Temple representatives in Georgetown became increasingly frequently as problems began to arise concerning the Jonestown custody case along with allegations of mistreatment and bondage of Temple members which was made public. Some of the meetings were amicable, others were not. In all my contacts with the Temple I maintained an open friendly and objective attitude although this became most difficult as time went on, especially after I assisted [redacted] in leaving E 86 Guyana. Because of the large number of contacts that did occur I had broken them down into monthly segments. Obviously I could not remember all of them or even the conversations that took place. However, starting in June 1978, I did not meet with Temple members by myself either a Vice Consul or my Secretary was always present. At all times my contacts with the Temple were conducted bearing in mind these were American citizens who may have been falsely accused, who had a right to their privacy as deliniated under the constitution and who were American citizens requesting at times assistance or counsel from the Consulate. As a Consular Officer I could not pass judgement on American citizen's political or religious beliefs or for that matter the way they chose to live their lives. As a Consular Officer, I believe that every American citizen has the right to see his Consul regardless of whether that individual has been accused or in fact is even guilty of serious crimes. I was guided by principles that American citizens are innocent until they are proven guilty beyond a shadow of a doubt. In retrospect, in face of the overwhelming tradgedy that has taken place in Guyana, maybe there is indeed need for the government to be able to become more atrusive of the affairs of American citizens abroad. I also belive it important that I do not get into an adversary relationship with the Temple since I did not believe that I could be effective in assisting those American citizens among the Peoples Temple community who would require assistance. I was constantly concerned about how to resolve this matter, keeping in mind that there were 1,000 to 1100 American citizens living in the remote corner of a country under a government whose writ did not adequately cover the region.

1. August 1977

I telephoned the Peoples Temple headquarters to ask whether they had a member named [redacted] B6 The answer was from an individual whom I do not remember; she said that they did. I asked where she was. They said in Georgetown. I said would they please ask [redacted] to stop at the Consulate at her earliest convenience to see me. Temple member said she would and asked what was the problem. I said I didn't belive it was a problem, but said I had to talk to her. Person said fine and hung up.

NOTE: See memorandum of my conversation with [redacted] B6

I telephoned the Peoples Temple about the 23rd of August to inform them that I would be visiting their community some time the last week in August. I explained I could not be more precise about my arrival plans since this would depend upon availability of transportation by the Government from Matthews Ridge to Jonestown and back. She asked what the purpose of my visit was and I said to visit the community and to visit with one of the members there, [redacted]

[redacted] Ms. Adams asked me what was this all about and I replied that I had to determine her health and well being in response to a request from Washington to do so. Ms. Adams appeared somewhat upset by my statement and I mentioned to her that I had conducted many similar inquiries throughout the world and that she should not consider this unusual since I anticipated receiving more such requests based upon present articles that had appeared in the United States that were unfavorable to the Temple and the remoteness of where the Agricultural community was located. I said it was very important that [redacted] be available and be in possession of her passport for proper identification purposes. Ms. Adams said she understood and conversation was concluded. Early in September I called Peoples Temple and spoke with Paula Adams explaining to her the importance of Jim Jones appearing in court in response to the Guyanese court order. I explained to her that his failure to do so could result in his arrest by Guyanese authorities by having him brought forcibly to Georgetown. I said that I wished to avoid this situation of seeing an American citizen arrested for what I considered to be a minor problem. After Ms. Adams attempted to characterize the new recently instituted legal proceedings against Jones as unfair and inaccurate, etc. I pointed out to her that I am sure they had a local attorney who would be available to represent there interests in court. She said they would have evidence that Grace Stoen was an unfit mother, and that there was simply no reason for this situation to worsen.

September 19, 1977

October, 1977

[redacted] and probably [redacted] came to my office with information indicating Grace Stoen was an unfit mother. I told them that giving such information to me meant absolutely nothing since as U.S. Consul I do not pass judgement on people's morals or reputation, that the case was in the courts, and indicated that all parties would have an oportunity to present whatever data they felt was necessary to support their case. Temple representatives appeared not to believe me and continued to press the information on me and I continued to point out that it was a waste of both our times. Later in October it was the same group who returned, this time to attack Tim Stoen as well as Grace Stoen. Again I reiterated that persons morals or reputation made absolutely no difference to me, that I would perform the duties as Consul impartially and that since the case was in the local courts all parties would have the opportunity to present evidence on their behalf.

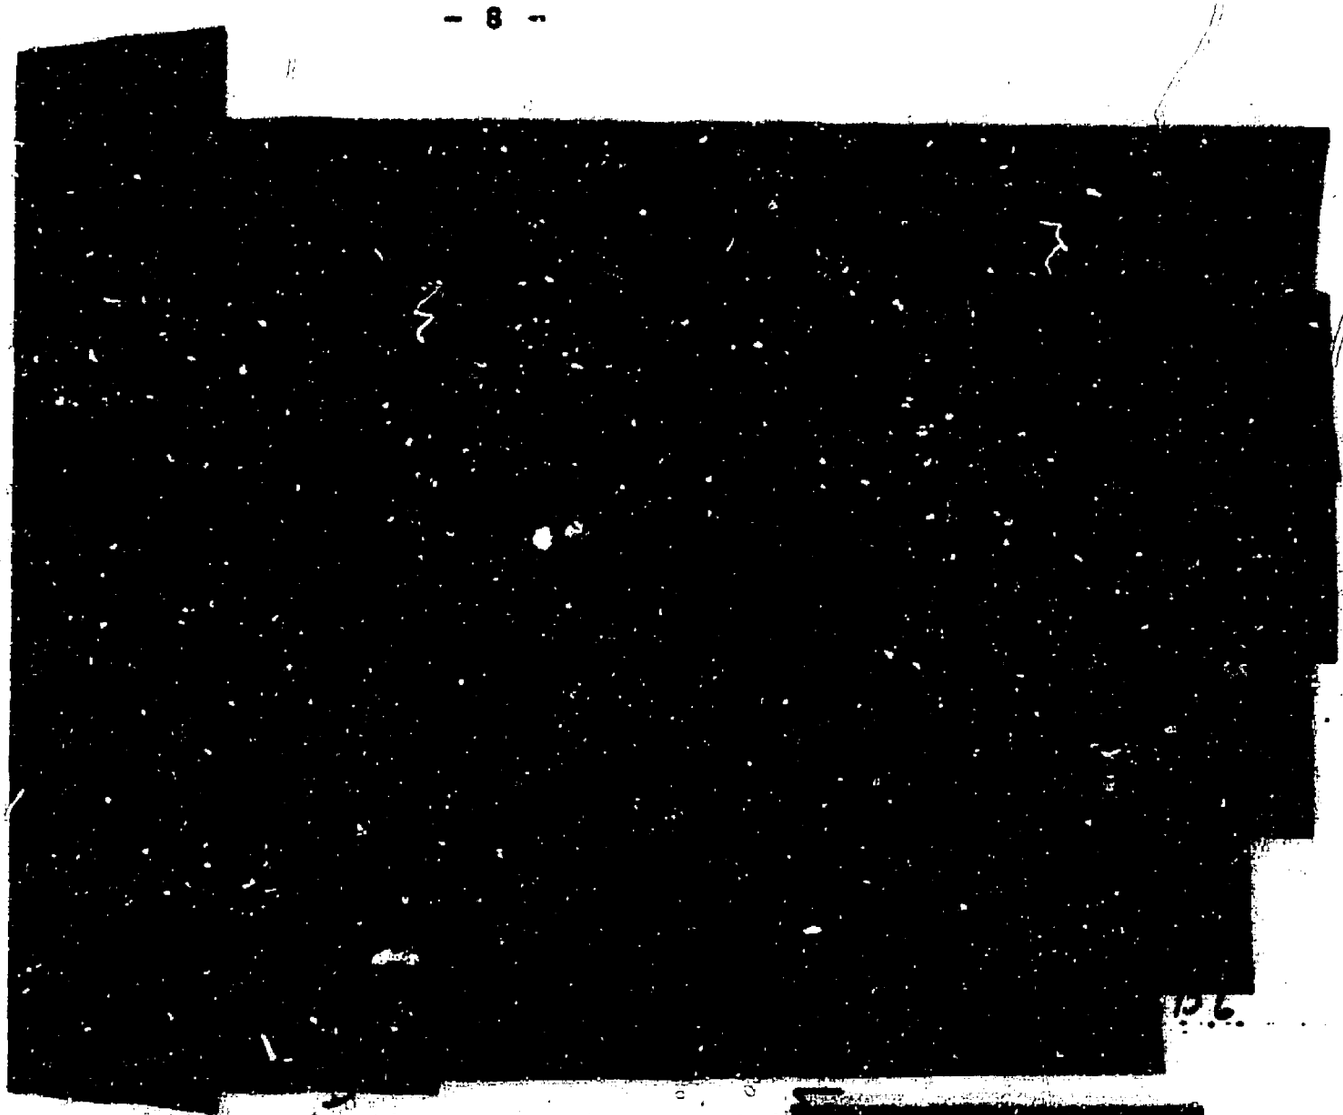
November, 1977



Later in the month I met with [redacted] on the Stoen case. They complained at what they thought to be biased on the part of the Embassy against the Temple on this case. I pointed out that the policy of the U.S. Government on this case was not to take sides since all the disputees were American citizens. I mentioned the conversation I had with Assistant Secretary Barbara Watson at the Port of Spain Consular conference to assure them of the Embassy's impartiality of this case.

I was informed by Peoples Temple representatives of the death of Emmett Griffith at Jonestown due to cancer. According to Peoples Temple representatives cause of death was bone cancer. I was informed that Mr. Griffith had been buried in Georgetown upon the wish of his wife, Mary. I advised Temple representatives that they should secure a local report of death and arrange for Mrs. Griffith to come to the Embassy so that paper work and an office report of the death of an American citizen abroad could be filed. I also informed the representatives that Mrs. Griffith should bring with her any receipts that she has in her possession for the payment of burial expenses. I said that Mrs. Griffith may be eligible to apply for a lump sum gratuity payment by social security, if she and her husband were eligible, and that the surviving members of the family may also be eligible for social security annuity.

December, 1977

Mrs. Griffith accompanied by I believe Sharon Amos came to the Consulate to learn, and if possible to complete the formalities pertaining to lump sum gratuity payments and other possible social security payments that she may be eligible for. After the converstion with Mrs. Griffith, I determined that she was indeed eligible for such benefits and gave her a number of applications for her to complete and informed her of the documents that she would need in order to qualify for these benefits. I met with Mrs. Griffith on one other occasion in December but I cannot recall what the conversation pertained to. Most likely it involved some normal consular question. I had several visits and meetings with Peoples Temple representatives about their desire of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Oliver to visit their sons at Jonestown. Basic question and response of these conversations is continued in (Georgetown telegram 3356, Log No. 59).

January, 1978

Early January I informed the Peoples Temple that I would be coming to the community on January 11. I told the representatives that I would have to discuss some inqieries relating to social security cases as well as again talking with individual members of the community concerning their activities. I mentioned that the Embassy was continuing to receive numerous requests concerning the health and well being of individuals at Jonestown, so therefore, I would have to see quite a few people. I provided the Temple representatives with a list of some but not all those that I wished to see. Temple representative attempted to get other names from me but I avoided giving them to him. Temple representative again complained about what he considered to be harrassment. Again I reiterated the position that the Embassy has no axe to grind in these matters, we were simply responding to legitimate requests from the Department of State to determine the well being of American citizens. I repeated my earlier remarks that given the police reports that had appeared in the United States alleging criminal activity on the part of the Temple it was only normal that relatives of Temple would be concerned and would be inquiring about there well fair. I said obviously the more times a Consular Officer or other persons visited the community and found nothing illegal taking place the better their credibility in refuting such charges would be enhanced. The representative who I believe was Mike Prokes, continued to express his unhappiness and the unhappiness of the community because the U.S. Government would not let them live in peace. I responded that I did not wish to cause anyone to be unhappy but that I had a job to do and I would do it. [redacted] called about a day later and asked whether [redacted] could accompany me to Jonest n since she had to return to Jonestown on Temple business. I answered that I had no objection and informed him of when and where we should meet.

Several days after my visit to Jonestown, Peoples Temple representatives frantically attempted to me because of the Embassy's assistance to permit the Stoen's to remain longer in Guyana. (Reference Georgetown telegrams: 0201, 0202, and 0270 Log No. 75, 76 and 80). Temple was very unhappy at the Embassy's assistance to the Stoen's and in a meeting on January 16, in their attempt to present information showing Jones as the natural father of John Stoen as well as accusing Tim Stoen of being a transvesdite. I responded that Tim

Stoen's morals had no bearing on whether I would assist them. That the members actions were solely favored upon proper assistance to American citizens when they have been unfairly treated by a local government. When Temple representatives charged that the Embassy had never assisted them especially with Jim Jones who was under the threat of arrest, therefore, we were biased against them. I refuted this statement by pointing out that I had contacted Paula Adams and strongly suggested that Jim Jones appear in court to avoid the necessity for being arrested. I also stated that no one from the Temple had ever asked our assistance on any particular matter. The Temple members continued their lorang for a bit longer and also apparently tried to convince me that Tim and Grace Stoen were anarchists who had been asked to leave the organization because they wanted the Temple to carry out violent acts against the U.S. Government and that Jim Jones and other Consul members had disapproved of such activity and had asked that they leave the organization. I repliad that all this information really didn't mean anything to me that they were just simply going to have to accept the fact that I had a job to do, that I was a professional, and that I would do it and that there were times when they were simply not going to like what I do but were going to have to live with it. They then took a different approach to me saying that they understood this and that the community had been impressed with my objectivity and that they continued to believe me but when I went out and helped the Stoen's and interfered in Government of Guyana activities, then they simply didn't know what to understand. I concluded the conversation by telling them that the only thing they should understand is that I was going to conduct affairs that I was responsible for, as the U.S. Consul in Georgetown objectively and without bias, which meant that at times this would work against them and I suppose at times this would work for them. I had several other meetings with them. Normally with [redacted] although 136 at times [redacted] Again as usual they came to see me to complain they were not being treated fairly by the Embassy. One complaint they had was that during the recent court hearings I always accompanied the Stoen's but never the Peoples Temple. I countered that argument by saying that most of the time they never showed up in court. However, it really didn't matter to me who I went to court with although I was not adverse to appear at the court wit them, because when I reported court proceedings I reported them exactly as to what occurred so that no one could accuse either me or the Embassy of exerting any bias in this case.

On January 20 I received a frantic phone call from Sharon Amos in which she was very upset over the fact that Tim Stoen had made a complaint at the Tamairi police station that several Peoples Temple members had threatened his life. I told her I was unaware of this but that, of course, if it was true the Guyanese would obviously look upon this complaint very seriously. Amos vociferously denied the allegation and asked my assistance in stopping the GOG investigation. I answered that I could not stop the investigation since it is my understanding that once a written complaint had been made to the police they would investigate it, and if the threats had not been made then presumably those named in the complaint would have nothing to worry about. Amos said they had contacted the police Commissioner who had professed ignorance of the entire affair. I pointed out to her that the police Commissioner had a lot better things to do than worry about a complaint by an American against other Americans. I asked her did she know where the complaint was made. She replied Tahmari airport. I said that explains why the police Commissioner is unaware of it. I continued that in any event this was a matter for the criminal investigation division to investigate and not a matter that the police Commissioner would handle personally. [redacted] wanted to know what I was going to do about it. I answered that I wasn't going to do anything about it because I couldn't to anything about it. She said she couldn't understand my attitude since I had intervened with the GOG to have Grace and Tim Stoen's visa's extended so, therefore, why couldn't I intervene in this matter. I answered that they were two separate issues and this one was simply one that I could not get into. I said I was certain that the competent police authorities would investigate the matter and would determine whether the complaint was justified or not. She asked if I had seen Tim Stoen and I replied that I had not.

Note: Tim Stoen and I later discussed this problem and Stoen decided to withdraw the complaint, since he realized that it was going to be strictly his word against the Temple.

After the charges were formally dropped and I was so informed by the police, I informed the Temple that the police were no longer investigating the matter.

Sometime during January, I believe the early part of the month, [redacted] They and [redacted] launched into a rambling discourse of the bad character of Tim and Grace Stoen and how such a wonderful life John Stoen had in Jonestown. Both Mr. Blacken and I again reiterated the Embassy position. I again pointed out that these accusations that the Peoples Temple were bringing against the Stoen's whether they were true or not, simply did not count with us nor would these accusations in any way lessen the appropriate assistance that we would give to the Stoen's if necessary. At this point [redacted] said the community just would not give up John Stoen. Mr. Blacken said if the courts decided against the Peoples Temple and warranted custody of John Stoen to the parents that the court order would be enforced and the Peoples Temple would have to accept it. [redacted] then said before they would let John (Stoen) go they would all die first. I asked what did she mean by that and she said that they would all commit suicide (they were willing to die for him rather than permit him to be returned to a mother who did not love him). I told her to quit talking nonsense that if the case went against them John Stoen would be returned to the parents and that would be that, so I didn't understand what all this talk about committing suicide was for, because there was no point in discussing that any further. On that cheerful note, I believe the meeting was ended. I had one contact with Peoples Temple to arrange the visit of our Desk Officer and Deputy Chief of Mission on February 2.

February, 1978

I had a number of meetings with the Peoples Temple during this month again relating to the John Stoen custody case. The conversations were along the lines of those that took place in December and January. The only unusual aspect of our conversation was when Mike Prokes of the Temple commented to me that Temple shipments had been held up in Customs both in the U.S. and Guyana and he said that one present shipment they had not been able to get out of Customs for quite some time, even though it contained articles that were clearly on the duty free immediate list such as medical equipment. He said that this time he was formally requesting for Embassy help in clearing the goods for Customs. I responded that the Embassy was not in a position officially to request that the goods be cleared because we could only do this on official U.S. Government shipments into Guyana, but that I would be happy to make a telephone call to a Customs Officer I knew to see what the problem was.

Note: I was aware that the Guyanese Customs Office had been concerned about the large number of Temple shipment that had been entering the country based upon a conversation I had with the Chief of Customs several months previously.

[redacted] while not completely happy with my response said that he would appreciate anything I could do to help.

Note: My assistance consisted of a telephone call to the Secretary of the Chief of Customs asking her who the Peoples Temple could contact in this matter. She gave me a name which I later passed on to the Temple. However, I did not telephone Customs and ask that the shipment be cleared expeditiously.

I had one other conversation with Amos, Prokes and Carter in which they informed me extensively about congressional interest in the Stoen custody case. They complained that Tim Stoen was making outrageous statements to members of Congress who were pressuring the Department of State to intervene on the side of the Stoen's. I replied that there is a lot of Congressional interest in the case but I could not characterize it as being for or against the Stoen's or the Temple, but simply a matter of interest to them in which they were requesting information. I said that the Embassy and the Department of State had replied based upon the position that had been made clear from the very beginning, that since the case was being decided in the local courts neither the Embassy nor the Department could take sides.

see me to discuss what they claimed to be a planned attack on Jonestown by mercenaries hired in the U.S. by the Concerned Relatives organization. They wanted Embassy assistance in stopping such an attack. I told them that the Embassy was not in a position to provide this kind of assistance since Jonestown was located in Guyana and under the jurisdiction and protection of the Guyanese government and that as such any requests for protection would have to be directed to that government. They said that these plans were being developed in the United States by Tim Stoen and others and that they were basically helpless against such attack. I told them that if any group of American citizens was planning an armed attack against any person or persons it was a violation of American law and as such they should have their members in the United States contact appropriate law enforcement organizations.

In early May I was again visited by [redacted] and again there to express their concern over this alleged mercenary threat in which they complained the community was defenseless and that the people were living in fear. I asked whether they had contacted the Guyanese police and they said that they had, and I reiterated that that was all they could do. That the Embassy was not in a position to assist them in this matter. I reiterated that if they had evidence to support this assertion they should have their people in the United States contact their appropriate American law enforcement agencies that they were responsible for investigating such activity. During these interviews, of which there were several concerning this subject, I recall on at least one occasion of asking them whether the community had any weapons. I was told there were few weapons but nothing that would protect an attack from a well armed force. At no time during these conversations did I suggest that the Temple should arm themselves.

Also in early May I made arrangements to travel to Jonestown and contacted the Peoples Temple to inform them I was coming. I had a large number of people to see including questions to some about whether they had become Guyanese citizens, others about births, and others about mistreatment. I discussed the visit with, I believe, [redacted] B6 [redacted] and gave them some names, but by no means all and most of those names that I did give them pertained to individuals who I was seeing on normal Consular business. The results of this visit are detailed in another memorandum. I had only two other telephone conversations in the earlier part of the month responding to inquiries about [redacted] B6 [redacted] that are also detailed in a separete memorandum.

I left Guyana on May 13 and returned May 23. On May 24, I was called by the Peoples Temple, I believe, by Sharon Amos who asked if I knew anything about a [redacted] B6 I replied I didn't know, since I had just returned to Guyana from the United States. Ms. Amos then again launched into a lengthy diatrod about [redacted] activities in Guyana. I cut her off to say that if [redacted] was in Jonestown, she should contact the Public Affairs Officer of the Embassy, Mr. Kibble, for any information since I did not normally become involved with Journalists, and that was Mr. Kibble's responsibility.

Note: A report concerning [redacted] B6

This was a rather bizarre instance as explained in this telegram. The Guyanese police believe the Peoples Temple was responsible for what happened, but they could not prove it, and except for several unofficial opinions of police officers, which would not state for the record the Peoples Temple was responsible. On the evening of May 25, the Marine Security Guard called me at my home and asked that I please telephone Tim Carter that it was an emergency. I contacted Mr. Carter by telephone and he immediately wanted to know why I had been contacting the police earlier that day about the arrests of Peoples Temple members. At this point, for the first time in my contacts with Temple representatives, I lost my temper. I told Carter it was none of his god damn business about my contacts with the police. Furthermore, I was very concerned to learn that he had even heard of my inquiry, especially, since I had been very careful not to mention the Peoples Temple in connection with this rumor. I asked Carter if he had a guilty conscious and had he in fact been arrested for illegal criminal activities against an American citizen because if this was so then this indeed was a very serious matter. I continued that I was also very concerned and I am sure the Commissioner of Police would be concerned to find out that the Peoples Temple had subourned individuals to report to them about official conversations between the American Consul and members of his staff. I asked Carter whether the Peoples Temple was in fact doing this. Carter denied this allegation of subourning police officers and then I asked how else could he find out. Did he have my telephone taped. Carter was obviously flustered at this point, he tried again to come back at me and I told him I refused to discuss the matter further, but warned him that if in fact the Peoples Temple persisted in involving themselves in such activities with officials of the Government of Guyana, this could affect their entire Mission in Guyana and certainly affect their credibility with me. I then hung up.

Note: I made myself unavailable. I refused contact with the Temple until May 30, when [redacted] came to see me.

They expressed concern about my attitude. I told them that my attitude was not surprising since I was very concerned about what apparently was Temple activities, which appeared to be running counter to their assertions of being innocent. I also mentioned to them the fact that I had heard they were also in contact with the Soviet Embassy and asked if they were such a peaceful organization, who only wanted to be left alone, why in fact were they involving themselves with foreign diplomatic Missions. I told them as far as I was concerned they could talk to whom they pleased and invite to Jonestown whom they pleased, but that this activity simply did not jive with what they had been telling me. The trio was obviously not very happy with the way the conversation was going and apologized for Carter's statements. They said that they were presently concerned about my attitude because there before I had always been friendly and now it appeared I was being hostile to them. I patiently explained to them for what probably was the 100th time that my attitude was neither friendly or hostile, but that I simply did my job based upon the facts that were presented to me, and that they should not construe my relationship as being one either of support for or against the Peoples Temple.

June, 1978

During the first two weeks of June, I had a number of contacts with the Peoples Temple which were short because at that time Consular Section was shorthanded. Most of the contact pertained primarily to the Hunter episode during which I reiterated to the Peoples Temple that while I had no official confirmation of their activities, vis a vi, [redacted] they had certainly caused concern of unspecified areas. At this point, Sharon Amos in particular tried very hard to draw me out to take either a personal or official U.S. government position on the upcoming referendum that was to take place in Guyana on July 10. In every instance, I told her that the referendum was an internal Guyanese affair for which neither I or the Embassy had any position. The U.S. Government believed that the referendum was a matter for the Guyanese people to decide themselves. On a number of occasions, Amos would continue to probe and I would just cut her off by mentioning how busy I was and conversation would be concluded.

Note: Conversations were always conducted with another Vice Consul present, since the Ambassador believed that for my own protection another officer should always be present at these interviews.

Amos and company came to see me during the later part of June to ask about the status on the Stoen case. I responded that there had been no movement on the case, since the judge had been out of the country for some time, but that I thought he was likely to render a decision within the next 60 days when he returned from his vacation. In late June the Temple came to complain about the actions of two Jonestown families in the National Enquirer. They indicated that these journalists had been to Consulate for assistance. I told them they had been to see me and said they wanted to do a story about the Peoples Temple and I referred them to the Peoples Temple office. I simply assumed that they had contacted the Peoples Temple and that I had not had any further contact with them. When they (Amos pleaded for additional details, I pointed out that their conversation with me would come under the privacy act and that I could not discuss any further details. I closed the conversation by stating that this is a matter between the Peoples Temple and the National Enquirer. About a week following this conversation Amos called again in a frantic voice asking for an appointment. When I agreed to see her Arvird Holm who was in Guyana on temporary duties sat in on this and all other conversations I had with the Temple. Amos reported that a a private plane had suddenly appeared over Jonestown and circled it several times. This incident caused great consternation in the community and as a result one elderly member had suffered a heart attack. Amos claimed that the Embassy should do something. I responded that the Embassy was not in a position to do anything about this particular incident, that they should report it to the authorities, although I wasn't sure what if any law had been broken. However, this was a matter for the Guyanese government to determine. Amos again went into a liteney of past stories about mercenary attacks against Jonestown and claimed that the Temple had a tape from a member of the organization who had been at a meeting of the Concerned Relatives organization when such an attack was discussed. I replied that telling me this really wasn't going to solve the matter because I did not have any authority in which to resolve their problem. If, in fact, the organization had a tape or other evidence that indicated illegal activity about to take place, then they should place it in the hands of the proper authorities in the United States. I suggested that they report the incident if they had not already done so to the Guyanese authorities. I asked if they were able to get the tail number of the airplane. They said they had in fact turned all this over to the Guyanese. I told them then that that was all that could be done.

I had about four meetings with the Peoples Temple over this period all of which Mr. Holm's was also present. Most of the contacts pertained to my complaints about the failure of the Peoples Temple administration to follow up on getting documents to record the deaths and births of Jonestown residents, and what I could only conclude was an increasing warriness on the part of the Temple concerning my attitude toward them. Sharon Amos in particular still attempted to show that the Temple considered me a good friend, but since Tim Carter and some others whom I had confrontations with were never present it seemed to me that the Temple knew of my immenent departure from Guyana and was biding their time until I left. I had mentioned to them that I planned to visit Jonestown the first week in August in order to enable my replacement to have the opportunity of visiting Jonestown soon after his arrival in Guyana. [redacted] seemed to be very interested and concerned about the attitude of the new Consular. I informed her that I could not speak for him, but that I assumed that he would run the affairs of the Consulate consistent with rules and regulations set by the Department of State and that if the Temple was truthful and cooperative they would probably get along.

When it became apparent that I would be unable to travel to Jonestown first because of the lack of an available charter plane, and second due to the closure of the Port Kaituma airstrip plus the closure of the road between Matthews Ridge and Port Kaituma, the Peoples Temple requested to meet my replacement, Don Ellice. [redacted] thanked me profusely for my cooperation and hoped that Temple and Mr. Ellice would have a amicable relationship. I told them that as Consular my door had always been open to all American citizens, including the Temple in order to provide whatever assistance I could. Obviously much more could be accomplished when the atmosphere was amicable rather than in an adversary relationship. I wished them luck and that concluded the interview.

Adendum

I had many more contacts with the Temple that were reported here, however, I can simply not recall the dates of these conversations. For example, on two occasions I was requested by the Temple for possible assistance in the medical evaluations of two Jonestown residents, one a small child with a head injury, the other a young adult male who had his leg injured. In both cases I provided appropriate assistance and advised the Temple. Although in every case it was evident that the injuries were either not as serious as originally told or that there was competent local medical service available in Georgetown. On another occasion Mrs. Marceline Jones, Jim Jones' wife, made a courtesy call on Ambassador Burke accompanied by Sharon Amos and Terri Bueford. Nothing of substance was discussed accept for some remarks by Sharon Amos concerning the John Stoen custody case. This Ambassador not withstanding Ms. Amos' tears simply said that this was a matter for the courts to decide and the Peoples Temple and Mr. and Mrs. Stoen would have to abide by the courts decision which ever way it went.

Note: Neither the Ambassador or I believed Ms. Amos' tears were authentic.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE A/CDC/MR
REVIEWED BY John Simms DATE 3-17-81
PORTIONS DENIED AS INDICATED

Mr. Cyrus Vance
Secretary of State
Washington, D. C.

Dear Secretary Vance:

We would express our thanks to you and to our government for the decisions and the actions made for citizens and in particular for [redacted] after the tragic day in Guyana. E 86

If it is possible to extend our thankful appreciation to those who kept vigil at the Guyana desk and who were unfailingly sympathetic and helpful, we would be grateful. And we thank those whose difficult task it was to return the bodies and make it possible for us to take up our sad part of the burial.

We commend you to the blessing of God, as we have [redacted] in the hope of the resurrection through Christ, our Lord.

Sincerely yours,

[redacted]

E 86

It was on the day of Saint Barbara, December 4, that verification of [redacted] death was received from the Guyana desk of the State Department. St. Barbara's day begins the Christmas celebration in Syria. Her faith and love, her outstanding goodness made her an example to the children. The translation of her story begins, "Barbara, the saint, was elected of God. She gave her bread to the poor..." E 86

The multiplying tragedy of Guyana during the week of Thanksgiving brought us all to the Feast of Christ the King. The Gospel for the day concluded this Church Year with the words of our Lord: "Come, O blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world; for I was hungry, I was thirsty, I was a stranger, I was naked, I was sick, I was in prison and you came to me ... Truly, I say to you, as you did it to one of the least of these my brethren, you did it to me."

[redacted] E 86

[redacted] some weeks after her [redacted] of July, she worshipped at Calvary Lutheran Church in Georgetown, Guyana. Pastor Samuel Seeram, whose helpfulness has given great comfort, prayed with us via overseas telephone:

✝ Almighty and everlasting God, the Consolation of the sorrowful and the Strength of the weak, may the prayers of them that in any tribulation or distress cry unto Thee, graciously come before Thee, so that in all their necessities they may mark and receive Thy manifold help and comfort; through Jesus Christ, Thy Son, our Lord.

[redacted] 86

[redacted]

[redacted] her concern for personal activity in bringing help to those in need was also expressed in projects of the People's Temple. She eagerly anticipated an entirely new area of service as she undertook the teaching of children in the agricultural mission in Guyana. Her letters have indicated only that she found joy and fulfillment in her life and work there.

✝ Happy are they who consider the poor and needy!
The Lord will deliver them in time of trouble.
He does not hand them over to the will of their enemies. (Psalm 41)

The Lord has given and the Lord has received.

For all whose care and love has sustained us, phrases from Christina Rossetti:

✝ O Lord Jesus, who knowest them that are thine,
When thou rewardest thy servants the prophets, remember, we beseech thee, for good those who have taught us, counseled us, guided us, and in that day show them mercy:
Nor forget any, nor forget us,
but in that day show us mercy,
O Lord, thou lover of souls.

The closing bid of the Christmas Carol Service, King's College, Cambridge:
"Lastly, let us remember before God all those who rejoice with us, but upon another shore and in a greater light, that multitude which none can number, whose hope was in the Word made flesh, and with whom, in this Lord Jesus, we for evermore are one.

✝ "The Almighty God bless us with his grace;
Christ give us the joys of everlasting life;
and unto the fellowship of the citizens above may the King of Angels bring us all!"

✝ Memorial Service, December 9, at four o'clock.

GUYANA TASK FORCE

Report #4

December 14, 1978

DEPARTMENT OF STATE A/CDC/MR
REVIEWED BY John Summs DATE 3-17-81
PORTIONS DENIED AS INDICATED

1. Arrestees [redacted] E 26

2. Survivors - It was reported Georgetown (4258) of 12/13/78 that any person now being detained would be free to leave Guyana as soon as they gave testimony at the preliminary inquiry. The hearing was postponed until 12/14 and should be completed by 12/22.

3. Property and Federal Benefits - Susie Tucker and Frank Hall should be meeting shortly with Terry Fortune (L) who just returned from Georgetown.

4. Identified Bodies - As of COB yesterday 617 bodies had been identified.

5. Notification of next-of-kin - We have contacted persons regarding 515 deceased individuals.

6. Released Bodies - Yesterday 44 bodies were released. Total to date 72.

7. Unclaimed Bodies - The total number of bodies not to be claimed is now 34. However, one additional cable covering 9 bodies has requested that the Government pay for cremation in Delaware and then pay to ship the remains to California.

8. List of Identified - The Guyana Branch is still compiling the list for release to the press. Hopefully, the list will be completed Friday afternoon.

9. Mayor's Task Force - The list of unidentified children under the age of sixteen (16) has been prepared and is being typed to forward to California.

10. Report from Dover AFB - Messrs. White and Dozier had tentatively scheduled a meeting on Friday to discuss cremation and/or burial in Delaware. Mr. Edward Kafader, Ass't Attorney General in Delaware and Dr. Patricia Schramm, Secretary of Health in Delaware were supposed to attend. However, on December 13, the Governor of Delaware sent a telegram to President Carter which requested that all the remaining bodies be shipped to California.

Copy of cable attached.

JONESTOWN

FOR RELEASE: IMMEDIATE
Dec. 13, 1978

GOVERNOR ASKS REMOVAL OF BODIES TO CALIFORNIA

Governor du Pont has sent the following telegram to President Carter today requesting the removal of bodies from Dover Air Force Base to California. The text is as follows:

"In reference to 900 deceased Jonestown victims now awaiting disposition at Dover Air Force Base, I request your assistance in m U. S. military aircraft available to remove all victims to California, the site of most victims' families and of the religious cult responsible for the appropriate disposition of its deceased members.

"This request is made in conjunction with the efforts of Congresswoman Yvonne Burke of California, and on behalf of the many families who wish, but cannot afford, to have their deceased relatives returned to them for burial.

"Delaware is prepared to expedite and assist in the release of all the deceased from the State for air transport to California.

"I would urge the fastest possible action in the return of the victims to California, and we are prepared to assist you in any way possible."

Your letter to the Deputy Secretary concerning the recent tragedy in Guyana has been referred to me for reply.

The tragedy of Jonestown has no parallel. On Sunday, November 19, the U.S. Government faced a crisis situation in Guyana. A U.S. Congressman and others in his party had been killed. A settlement believed to include about 1,000 Americans was involved, and its situation was uncertain. It was apparent that the limited transportation and other resources of the Government of Guyana might be insufficient to cope with these events in an isolated area 120 miles from the capital. Medical evacuation for the injured Americans by U.S. military aircraft was immediately authorized, and the U.S. Government offered assistance to the Government of Guyana to prevent further loss of life.

The Guyanese indicated they needed helicopter lift and other support. As events progressed, it became evident that many Americans were dead. For a time, it was believed that there might be many survivors in the jungle, and the United States adjusted and increased its assistance to help the search by Guyana police and military. Finally, when the number of dead was clear, the operational requirements were to continue support of the extensive ongoing investigation of serious crimes and to identify, treat with dignity, and remove the bodies as quickly as possible to a facility that could deal with this immense problem. Extensive mortuary facilities were essential in the process of identification and investigation. Only the U.S. military had the equipment and facilities to handle this enormous problem. The removal of the bodies from Guyana was at the specific request of the Government of Guyana.

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

[redacted] E 6

The President, acting under his constitutional authority as Chief Executive and Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces, ordered the departments of our government to take action to deal with this emergency. The operational decisions within the U.S. Government in this unique situation were made by the Secretary of State in conjunction with other members of the Cabinet.

The Federal Government does not ordinarily pay to bring back the remains of Americans who die abroad. That is a responsibility of their families. If no next of kin can be found, the country where the death occurred is responsible for burial. It was evident, however, that it was beyond the ability of individual families or of the facilities available in Guyana to resolve the unprecedented problems that characterized this situation. In fact, it was not even clear who the next of kin were without identification being established. The families of those who died at Jonestown are, of course, expected to bear the responsibility for the disposition of the remains in the United States.

The costs to the Government of an effort of this magnitude obviously are considerable although substantially less than the $8 million figure used in some press reports. It will be some time before the total is known. The Office of Management and Budget, together with other agencies, is reviewing the financial aspects.

The Department of Justice is fully exploring possible legal remedies which can be used to recover the cost the U.S. Government has incurred in removing and processing the bodies of Americans from Guyana. It will be some time before the results of these efforts are known, but you may be assured that we will continue to make every effort to keep the costs to the U.S. government to the minimum necessary.

Sincerely,

Hodding Carter III

Honorable Warren M. Christopher
The Deputy Secretary of State
Department of State
2201 Avenue C
Washington, D.C. 20520

Dear Mr. Christopher:

I was talking to our mutual friend [redacted] and he suggested I write to you. I have a question which I would like you to answer for me if you can. Could you kindly tell me what legal or moral obligation the United States Government had in returning the bodies of the people who elected to leave our Country and spend their life in Guyana? Is this a privilege accorded to all U. S. citizens who die abroad or just to certain religious groups or cults? E 84

I personally find the whole situation extremely disgusting and particularly much so by our Government's in depth involvement and fantastic cost to the tax payer. If you or one of your staff would give me a reply and possibly an answer to my original question I would appreciate it.

Thank you for your cooperation in this request.

Very truly yours,

Your letter of November 28 to President Carter has been referred to me for reply. On behalf of President Carter please accept our condolences on [redacted] tragic death.

On December 1 we informed [redacted] E 86 that [redacted] had been identified as a victim of the Jonestown, Guyana incident, and subsequently a member of my staff spoke to you regarding the procedures to follow to claim [redacted] body.

For your information, death certificates are presently being prepared by the Government of Guyana. After the certificates are completed, they will be delivered to the United States Embassy at Georgetown. The Embassy will then prepare a Consular Report of Death for each person. The Consular Report of Death is the standard legal document which is provided for by law, and once completed, it will be made available to you.

Once again let me assure you that you have our deepest sympathy.

Dear Mr. President,

[redacted] left for Guyana in July or August of 1977. I am inclined to believe that [redacted] was one of the many that died in the Guyana massacre.

I don't believe she took poison of her own free will. She had too much to live for. Before she left for Guyana, she told me that if anything happened to her, I was to write to you and ask for your help. She was a staunch supporter of yours Mr. President.

[redacted] E 86

[redacted] always advised me that assistance from you would always bring satisfactory results.

She was a WW II veteran of full disability drawing Social Security.

Mr. President, this is all the help that I had.

I would like to get her death certificate, and have her ashes sent to me.

Since she went to Guyana, I have not received one of her Social Security checks. I always made the deposits for her.

Thank you for your help.

FROM: H - J. Brian Atwood

SUBJECT: Budget Authority for Guyana Operation

I phoned the staff directors of the SFRC, HIRC, and House and Senate Foreign Operations Subcommittees today to inform them of the Administration's decision to fund the Guyana operation using the Foreign Affairs Contingency Fund and the Economic Support Fund (formerly SSA). I explained that the Contingency Fund would not be adequate to fund the operation fully since it contains only $3 million against an estimated total cost of $3.5 million to $4 million. I advised [redacted] (Senate Foreign Operations) and [redacted] that their Chairman would be receiving official notifications concerning the reprogramming of Economic Support Fund allocations. b6

[redacted] of the SFRC, [redacted] were critical of the decision. I provided background information describing the urgency confronting the Executive Branch at the time of the crisis, explaining that the initial order was based on the perceived need to deal with live American citizens and recounting our request to the Government of Guyana to permit a burial in that country.

[redacted] reiterated Chairman Sparkman's view that foreign assistance appropriations should not be used to pay for the operation. [redacted] expressed the belief that U.S. government money should not have been used at all to transport the bodies. [redacted] said that Chairman Clarence Long and others on his subcommittee would be highly critical of the decision to use ESF.

LIMITED OFFICIAL USE

EXCISE

[redacted] said that the decision "might cost the Administration a $100 million reduction in the Foreign Aid Appropriations Bill," but said that his chairman would support us.

Recommendation:

In sending the reprogramming notification, we should place strong emphasis on our efforts to recoup these funds from the Peoples Temple and provide a solid legal justification for our decision to use ESF.

TO: ARA - Mr. Brandon Grove

THROUGH: ARA/CAR - Ashley Hewitt

FROM: ARA/CAR - Richard A. McCoy

SUBJECT: Your Request for Information Concerning Passport Issuance to [redacted] E BC

You had been requested by Mr. George Berdas, HIRC staffer conducting the preliminary investigation for Chairman Zablocki into the Jonestown tragedy to determine how [redacted] four year old female, was allowed to depart the United States singly or with her grandmother. E BC

I had CA/PPT review their records including both computer and hand searches. However, they found no record that any passport was issued to [redacted] The grandmother's passport application was also checked but did not include [redacted] so PPT cannot state how she departed the U.S. E BC E BC

I was told in January, 1978 by the grandmother that she (the grandmother) had brought [redacted] to Guyana. I do not remember whether I saw [redacted] passport during my visit, in that month to Jonestown, however, I am certain I must have since that was the procedure I followed in all such cases. E BC E BC

You should be aware that U.S. citizens are not required to have a passport to depart the United States to travel to countries in the Western Hemisphere. What puzzles me about this reported lack of a passport is that after I believe, January 1, 1976 the Government of Guyana required passports of all individuals entering Guyana. I am certain that [redacted] did not enter Guyana until the summer of 1977 therefore, she should have had a passport. E BC

Loren Lawrence, formerly Deputy Assistant Secretary for Passport Services indicated to me that their records check is only about 85 percent accurate so there is a margin for error. Also there is a possibility the passport was issued under another name.

I trust the above information is sufficiently detailed for you to answer Mr. Bardas' inquiry.

President Carter
The White House
Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. President:

On the 30th Anniversary of the United Nations Declaration of Human Rights, I wish to protest your failure to show concern for the Guyana dead and their families, particularly the right of our dead to a timely burial.

While we are aware of the magnitude of the task of identifying the victims, we are at a loss to understand why those for whom a positive identification [redacted] made (in the case of [redacted] eight days ago) a release has not been forthcoming; particularly since the legalities of the situation have been settled

Mr. President, we have suffered a terrible shock, one we would not wish on anyone else. It is being prolonged by the failure of our government to do all they can in this matter

Respectfully Yours,

Dear Mr President

It is with sadness to know that Congressman Ryan was "Murdered" and it was no accident that this great tragedy happened.
I wrote you a letter a few months back about [redacted] who at this time is still in "Guyanna" and not only do i fear for [redacted] life but the people who truly want to get away from that hell hole. I hope this will make you and the rest of the people see just how much people are in danger of being kept against their will, and i hope you will do something about this matter before more innocent people are murdered.
This should make people see that what is being said about this paranoid man is ttue, and we with kin and friends in guyanna want our loved ones back with us. As i said in my first letter to you [redacted] is being kept against his will as is other people wanting to get away but can't.
This is where you can make people take back the things they are saying about the President, people feel that you are not doing all you promised to do for the people, i for one think you are doing a wonderful job. But i also feel that you should have looked into this matter long ago, and this could have been prevented, and congressman Ryan would still be alive and the people that were with him would not have been shot, and put through unecessary changes. You have got to know that the Goverment in guyanna is just as much to blame for Ryans death as if he were the one that fire that shot that killed him, all that i am saying i mean every word. This Jim Jones has got to be stopped and stopped now, he is going to have everyone killed who gets close to the truth be it woman or child he will killed them all, to keep the truth fro m being known. Congressman Ryan knew much more than he should have and Jones knew this, and this is why he was killed, to keep from reporting what he knew, and that was only what we have been saying to the people for so long. Jim Jones is a fake and he means nothing but evil.
I know you will not let this incident go overlooked this is what it took for before anyone would believe this man is "sick". It is sad that a life was taken before anyone took this matter t heart and know just how serious this is. And all the people who had the chance to talk to Mr. Ryan their lives too is in great danger, and they too will be killed, or poisoned. I ask you again to help me get [redacted] back to the United States befor something happens to him, and this will kill me if something were to happen to him not to mention what it would do to [redacted] and hi [redacted] it would hurt everyone in the family. And i know how Mrs. Ryan must be feeling and my heart goes out t her and her family. Mr. President know that i know that you will do all that you can to end this for everyone concerned, you must know that this is going to make the people watch you to see if you are going to really do something about this, and i am as a concerned [redacted] want to know if you will go yourself and see the everything i have said and you have heard isn't the truth.
As i said in my first letter to you if you can get [redacted] to the NW nearest airport i can do the rest. as i said before i just do not have the kind of money that it would take to go get him and come back, even though i have taken on another job to try and get the money, it still would not be quite enough.

I cried when i heard on thenews that Mr.Ryan had been killed trying to do good for the people,and this told us that he did believe in the things that he heard,and he wanted to help and it is so sad that he lost his life for wanting to help the PEP people . This goes back to the time that Prerident Kennedy was shot for the same thing,wanting to help the people.
How many innocent people must be murdered before things are done.how many more lives will be taken before this man is stopped.If he isn't stopped now he will go on killing people if you let him get away with this.I as a people want to know just what you are going to do about this,and if you plan to go see for yourself just what is going on. This proves just what we the people have been saying all along about this "Psyco" man.His mind is so wrath and he is full of evil that he doesn't care who he hurts of it will keep people from knowing the full truth about him.
This is a sad day for all of us because we felt that Mr. Ryan was our ## only hope for all the people to see just what kind of man that this jones person is.if indeed he is a person.
No human being can be that cruel to kill someone in cold blood and not even show some kind of emotions,i can't believe that there are peole like ### him living in this world.
Mr. President i would appreciate if you would let me know just what is going to happened after this,and will you please look into this before someone else is k illed.
Your aide or someone answered my first letter and i was most happy to know that you took time out to answered my letter,i read the letter from you all the time and can almost read it without looking.
Mr. President please help me to get [redacted] back and as soon as possible He will have a birthday on Christmas day he will be (19) and he will be spending ### birthday away from home somewhere i know he hates. Like the rest of the people he was brainwashed and threatened.Jones threatened the members with harming their family if they turn on him and don't do as he say,i know this is what happened to [redacted] to keep his family from being hurt he he went against his own better judgement.And now he is paying to high a price ,giving up ones freedom is a high to pay,no matter what.
If you can read my first letter to you and see that i was not lying about this crazy man.You have got to stop him and stop him now,don't let him kill more innocent people,and victimized and torment this world by having him thinking he can get away with this.
For him to go unpunished for this crime he had commited will be a great unjustic to Congressman Ryan, and to know that what he was trying to do was all in vain.
I must know if [redacted] is still alive i have no way of knowing this and it is tearing me apart,i have to know this and you are my only hope. Can you find out for me if [redacted] is airight and if he is in good health.
After this killing everyone with reallives in that hell hod is sitting on needles,not knowing is killing all of us.
Once again i give you [redacted] name and hoping you will help me and the others who have people over there in the jungles.
His name is [redacted]
[redacted] the family [redacted] weigh about 100 or maybe no is less,due to the fact that the people are half eatingbecause they aren't being fed.
If justice is indeed fair and for the people you will see that this man is stopped.

Please tell me how and what i can do to get [redacted] back home.
There must be a way to get him from over in Guyana.i just have to know where to start, and you can help me and tell me just what is to been done.
Once again i am sorry to know that innocent people were hurt and i hope this is the last time something like this will happened.
Will you please help me.please help me.
For all i know [redacted] could have been one of the people who was hurt or maybe dead,i don't know.
Help me,please help me.Tell me what it is i can do to help get [redacted] back where he belongs.
Please answer this letter .Also is there a toll free number i can call in Washington.without charge to me because i don't have that kind of money to call and find out the kind of information i need.
I await your reply regarding this matter,and i hope you will help me to get [redacted] back home.please help me.

Sincerely and with warm regards

[redacted]

P.S.
Please my poor
typing with all the many errors.

I have just recently heard that people are taking their own lives to be rid of their torment,meaning that the people in Guyana would rather take their lives than to go through with the living hell they are having in the jungle.
I have written to the American Embassey with no response.
If this is the way the goverment help the people then all I can say is, God help us all.
What is going to happen to this world if people don't care to get involved, you must get involved to make this a better place to live in.
I help people every day, people i don't even know .
All i am saying is why are the little people like myself being overlooked when we ask for help,we are still part of the big world we live in,we are a people too.
I am asking for your help and i am also writing to the American Embassey again,and hope I will get some kind of response from this time.You may or may not think this is important but i can assure you it is vital,and it is a problem.
Please heop me to get [redacted] back you cant't imagine the the hel i am going through not knowing just what is going on in that par of the world.
Help me to get [redacted] back and the sooner the better,you can't know how much this would mean to me.
Is thatr a toll free number i can call one for Washington and one for the Embassey in Guyana,to find out more information.
You answered my letter before please answered this one and let me know what is being done.
I ask you is it worth people killing themselves and being killed just because some man is crazy and paranoid,is it really worth all the grief,and is it worth the heartache i am suffering and the pain other people are feeling.
I hope someone will hear our cry for help,because we can't do it along.
Once again i am truly sorry for the lives that were taken in Jonestown guyana,and i say again it was no accident that this did happened, Jones has said many times before he would kill anyone who tried to destroy him,and this proves what everyone has been saying for the longest.
He has always said he would have people killed if they betrayed him,and he has said he would kill outsiders who came to upset hi his so call town.
So you see this is war on anyone who comes close ro the real facts.Help me Mr. President,you as a parent must know how i feel and the feelings of other parents.
Don't let this crazy man get away with this stop him before he kills someone else.

Her male companion was [redacted] E.O. 12356 or at least he was from 1969 to 1973 according to what we could figure out. Since our mail was returned in 1974 from Berkeley we have not heard from her. Dear Mr. President:

I am writing this letter in regards to the terri... tragedy in Guyana with the People's Temple Cult. I am sure that I speak on behalf of all concerned relatives.

The manner in which this is being handled is terrible. It seems that no one really cares that lives have been lost, innocent children killed. How can life be compared in dollars and cents in something as ... as this. I tried to get help for [redacted] but no one seemed to care. Some lives [redacted] have been saved had some action been taken.

We cannot even find out if our loved ones are living or dead. The search for more survivors have been stopped. Our country does not even want to see to it that the victims have a decent burial. Now the load is being pushed on the families who tried to get help. Many relatives simply do not have the money it takes to get a proper burial considering most of us had at least four loved ones in Guyana.

Surely, our country will handle this in a better way, if [redacted] are gone nothing in this world can replace [redacted] but by writing this letter I'm hoping and praying that they are alive.

Mr President, please see to it that every step is taken to find survivors and that families are notified soon if their loved ones are gone and that they can get at least a proper burial in De... here if so desired, as that would make it so much easier on the families concerned, we have suffered so much.

Thank you, I feel that you will do what you can to help.

Dear Mr. President,

Im writing you regarding several things. First, there are all sorts and means of helping the less advantage people, such as welfare (and there are some people on welfare who could be working) and low rent, the federal housing authority and the public housing agency. Then they get the food stamps for little or nothing, there is the senior peoples discount and senior people home. Secondly, there are the more advantage or "rich" people. Now, they are benefiting from the tax cut, and from the community redevelopment, whereas if this type of work was done in my neighborhood we would have to pay for it. Third, there are what you might call the middle class people. Now I fit into this category [redacted] My money goes to the welfare, I use to used a help with the senior citizens discount. Now, I am benefiting from the tax cut right now, but when it is time for income tax returns, IRS always manage to make me pay money back [redacted] there is no way for us to get ahead. We have ever considered, stop working and getting on welfare. We have

The one [redacted] is the only body already identified. The others are not among the survivors; so there is only a matter of time for identification on the others.

Thank you very much for your time and understanding as well as your consideration.

Sincerely Yours,

considered this because, there are [redacted] who have died (possibly shot) in Guyana. We would like to have a funeral (one big funeral) but we can't afford it. So that's why we would like to have as many bodies possible, that United States can account the money found over in Guyana as Jim Jones fault to help pay for these funerals [redacted] I would like to know now [redacted] was receiving social security checks over there. Will these checks be returned to the families or will they go back to the government [redacted] also cashed in insurance policies equal to Jim Jones. I would just like to know how this money will be divided or who will be responsible for taking care of it. I am another who had wrote the United States embassy regarding [redacted] over there and I got no satisfaction from the letter that they sent me. I still have the letter should you want to see it.

Mr. President if there is no way to recover this money, could you possibly assist me with any type of aid or suggest any type of help. I am not asking for anything for myself, but I am desperate for assistance on these 6 funerals. I would appreciate your response in my grieving moments as soon as possible. On the next page you will find a list of name of [redacted]

Dear Mr. Christopher:

I was talking to our mutual friend [redacted] and he suggested I write to you. I have a question which I would like you to answer for me if you can. Could you kindly tell me what legal or moral obligation the United States Government had in returning the bodies of the people who elected to leave our country and spend their life in Guyana? Is this a privilege accorded to all U. S. citizens who die abroad or just to certain religious groups or cults? b. 3C

I personally find the whole situation extremely disgusting and particularly much so by our Government's in depth involvement and fantastic cost to the tax payer. If you or one of your staff would give me a reply and possibly an answer to my original question I would appreciate it.

Thank you for your cooperation in this request.

Yours truly yours,

TO: TEXT OF LETTER FOLLOWS:
DEAR MR. PRIME MINISTER:
I AM WRITING YOU IN CONNECTION WITH THE TRAGIC EVENTS OF NOVEMBER 18, 1978, WHICH HAVE AFFECTED BOTH OUR COUNTRIES. THE DEATH OF REPRESENTATIVE LEO J. RYAN, A MEMBER OF THIS COMMITTEE, AND THE EVENTS AT JONESTOWN, GUYANA, HAVE SERIOUSLY DISTRESSED THE U.S. CONGRESS AND THE AMERICAN PEOPLE.
IN THIS RESPECT, I WOULD LIKE TO TAKE THIS OPPORTUNITY TO EXPRESS MY GRATITUDE TO YOU AND THE GUYANESE PEOPLE FOR THE EXPRESSION OF DEEP SYMPATHY EXTENDED TO ME IN MY OFFICE AT A MEETING REQUESTED BY AMBASSADOR LAURENCE MANN SHORTLY AFTER THE TRAGEDY. AT THAT TIME, AMBASSADOR MANN ALSO PLEDGED THE FULL COOPERATION OF YOUR GOVERNMENT IN OUR MUTUALLY DESIRABLE INTERESTS TO FULLY INVESTIGATE THIS TRAGIC EVENT.
DURING OUR MEETING, I ADVISED AMBASSADOR MANN THAT IN AN ATTEMPT TO OBTAIN NECESSARY INFORMATION IN CONNECTION WITH THE EVENTS OF NOVEMBER 18, I HAD ORDERED A COMMITTEE STAFF INVESTIGATION INTO ALL OF THE CIRCUMSTANCES WHICH MIGHT HAVE A BEARING ON THE DEATH OF CONGRESSMAN RYAN. THAT INVESTIGATION HAS BEEN UNDERWAY SINCE NOVEMBER 21, 1978, AND HAS INCLUDED INTERVIEWS WITH MORE THAN 50 PERSONS BOTH HERE IN WASHINGTON AND IN CALIFORNIA.

THE COMMITTEE STAFF INQUIRY HAS NOW REACHED THE POINT AT WHICH THE COMMITTEE BELIEVES IT NECESSARY TO TALK WITH VARIOUS OFFICIALS OF THE GUYANESE GOVERNMENT I AM THEREFORE RESPECTFULLY REQUESTING YOUR COOPERATION IN AGREEING TO ALLOW OUR STAFF GROUP TO INTERVIEW CERTAIN GUYANESE GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS DURING THE WEEK OF MARCH 11, 1979. UPON RECEIPT OF YOUR HOPEFULLY POSITIVE REPLY TO THIS REQUEST IT IS MY URGENT DESIRE THAT THIS INVESTIGATION CAN BE COMPLETED IN THE NEAR FUTURE.
IF YOU AGREE, I WILL CONTACT AMBASSADOR MANN TO INFORM HIM OF THE PEOPLE WE WOULD LIKE TO SEE, AND TO WORK OUT MUTUALLY SATISFACTORY PROCEDURES FOR CARRYING OUT THE INTERVIEWS.
SINCERELY YOURS, CLEMENT J. ZABLOCKI, CHAIRMAN. VANCE

IF WAS APPOINTED TO THE APPEAL COURT IN GUYANA IN 1969 AND WON THE CACIQUE CROWN OF HONOUR, GUYANA'S HIGHEST AWARD FOR SERVICE, IN 1975. HE IS MARRIED AND HAS ONE DAUGHTER.
5. (C) CRANE HAS A REPUTATION FOR BEING THOROUGH AND METICULOUS. HE IS PROBABLY CONCERNED, AS MOST GUYANAES LAWYERS OF GOOD REPUTE WOUD BE, TO AVOID ANY ACTION THAT MIGHT PREJUDICE THE OUTCOME OF THE BEIKMAN AND LAYTON MURDER TRIALS.
THERE ARE INDICATIONS THAT CRANE MAY BE EITHER THE NEXT

IT SEEMS QUITE OBVIOUS THAT IN THE PERIOD SINCE THE ENACTMENT OF THE PRIVACY ACT IN 1974, AND THE ISSUANCE OF GUIDELINES BY THE DEPARTMENT, AS WELL AS OTHER AGENCIES OF THE EXECUTIVE BRANCH, THAT THERE HAS BEEN AN INHIBITION ON REPORTING WHICH MISSIONS MIGHT HAVE DONE ON THE ACTIVITIES OF PRIVATE AMERICANS ABROAD. THIS INHIBITION IS QUITE UNDERSTANDABLE IN VIEW OF THE PERSONAL LIABILITY FEATURE WHICH THE PRIVACY ACT IMPOSES ON INDIVIDUAL OFFICERS SHOULD THEY ENGAGE IN REPORTING ON AMERICAN CITIZENS WHICH IS LATER DEEMED IMPROPER UNDER THE TERMS OF THE

IN FACT, EACH OFFICER IS NOW ALMOST OBLIGED TO BE HIS OWN LAWYER IN DECIDING WHETHER OR NOT A PARTICULAR REPORT CONTRAVENES THE SECTIONS OF THE PRIVACY ACT, BECAUSE OF COURSE, MOST MISSIONS ABROAD ARE WITHOUT THE SERVICES OF RESIDENT LEGAL ADVISORS QUALIFIED TO PROVIDE EXPERT ADVICE IN THIS AREA.

1. (UNC) HIGH COURT JUDGE GEORGE POMPEY ON AUGUST 1 HEARD THE REQUEST OF PEOPLES' TEMPLE LAWYER SIR LIONEL LUCKHOO THAT PROPER SERVICE BE MADE TO THE WRIT REGARDING THE GOVERNMENT'S CLAIMS ON THE PEOPLE'S TEMPLE ASSESTS IN GUYANA, AS, ACCORDING TO LUCKHOO, THE WRIT HAD BEEN IMPROPERLY SERVED ON DEBORAH TOUCHETTE WHO CLAIMED TO BE A DIRECTOR OF THE TEMPLE. LUCKHOO NOTED THAT MS. TOUCHETTE IS A PLAINTIFF IN THE SUIT BEING BROUGHT BY THE PEOPLES' TEMPLE SURVIORS AND, AT THE SAME TIME, A DEFENDANT IN THE SAME SUITE AS AN ALLEGED DIRECTOR OF THE TEMPLE. JUDGE POMPEY POSTPONED HEARING THE ACTION FOR TWO WEEKS

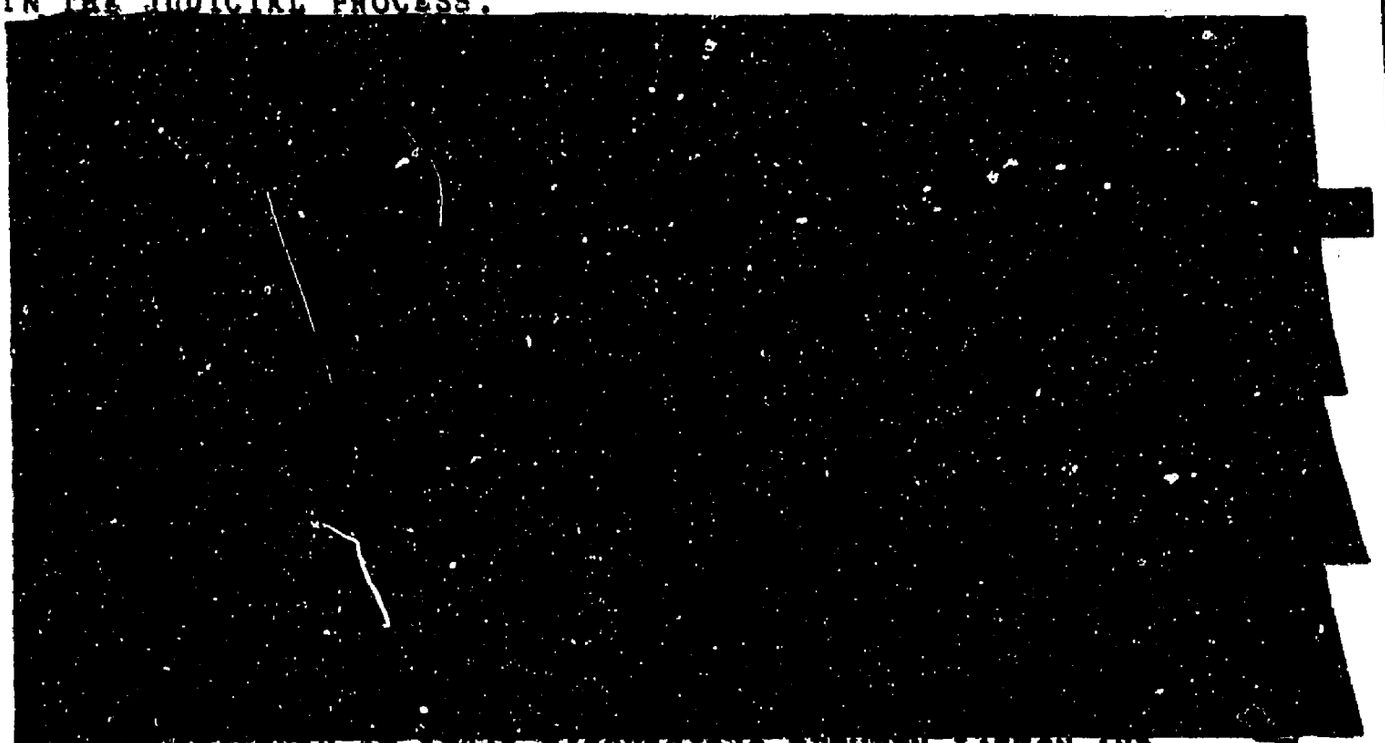
1. CONOFF VISITED AMCIT LAURENCE LAYTON IN GEORGETOWN PRISON JANUARY 14, 1980. AS PER REFTEL, EMBASSY HAD REQUESTED AND RECEIVED AUTHORIZATION FOR PRIVATE INTERVIEW WITH MR. LAYTON. MEETING OF JANUARY 14, 1980, WAS FIRST OF ANY CONOFF WITH LAYTON SINCE HIS ARREST DURING WHICH NO PRISON OFFICIAL WAS PRESENT. 2. CONOFF WAS ACCOMPANIED BY LAYTON'S U.S. ATTORNEY, ANTOHONY TAMBURELLO, WHO WAS PRESENT DURING SOME OF THE DISCUSSIONS. CONOFF DID, HOWEVER, EMPHASIZE TO LAYTON, TAMBURELLO, AND TO PRISON AUTHORITIES THAT EMBASSY WAS NOT PARTICIPATING IN DIS CUSSIONS OF LAYTON'S LEGAL SITUATION, AND THAT USG CONCERN WAS LIMITED TO QUESTIONS OF DETENTION CONDITIONS AND UNDUE DELAYS IN THE JUDICIAL PROCESS.



3. ON INITIATION OF LEGAL DISCUSSIONS BETWEEN LAYTON AND ATTORNEY TAMBURELLO, CONOFF WITHDREW FROM THE MEETING AND RETURNED TO EMBASSY.

1. (U) JUST A YEAR AGO, THE GOVERNMENT OF GUYANA (GOG) ANNOUNCED THAT COURT OF APPELAS JUSTICE VICTOR CRANE WOULD HEAD A COMMISSION OF ENQUIRY TO LOOK INTO THE ACTIVITIES OF THE PEOPLES TEMPLE IN GUYANA WHICH CULMINATED WITH THE SUICIDES/MURDERS OF MORE THAN 900 AMERICAN CITIZENS AT JONESTOWN IN NOVEMBER OF 1978. SINCE CRANCE'S APPOINTMENT THERE HAS BEEN VIRTUALLY NO FURTHER WORD ABOUT THE ENQUIRY IN THE GOVERNEMENT-OWNED MEDIA, ALTHOUGH THE OPPOSITION WEEKLIES HAVE COMPLAINED PERIODICALLY ABOVUT THE INACTION OF THE GOVERNMENT. IN THE INTERIM, CRANE HAS FIRST BEEN APPOINTED CHIEF JUSTINCE AND MEN CHANCELLOR OF THE JUDICIARY, THE MOST SENIOR JUDICIAL POSITION IN GUYANA.

APPOINTMENT OF GRANCE, THE GOVERNMENT-OWNED "CHRONICLE" OF MARCH 27 ENQUIRY COMMISSION. DISCUSSING THE JONESTOWN ENQUIRY COMMISSION, CHANCELLOR CRANE IS REPORTED TO HAVE STATED THAT HE WOULD INDEED CARRY OUT THE INQUIRY "ONCE HE IS CALLED UPON BY THE GOVERNMENT" TO TO DOS. THE NEWSPAPER ARTICLE REITERATED THE STATEMENT OF THE MINISTRY OF INFORMATION ISSUED PREVIOUSLY THAT THE ENQUIRY SHOULD NOT PREJUDICE THE LEGAL RIGHTS TO FAIR TRIALS OF INDIVIDUABEFORE THE COURSE, I.E., LAWRENCE LA AND CHARLES BEIKMAN.

3. (C) COMMENT: THAY TRIAL IS SCHEDULED TO BEGIN APRIL 1, 1980. THE TRIAL OF BEIKMAN IS ALSO SET FOR THIS SESSION OF THE ASSIZES, ALTHOUGH NO SPECIFIC DATE FOR THE LATTER HAS YET BEEN DETERMINED. ACCORDING TO OFFICIALS IN THE DIRECTOR OF PULBIC PROSECUTIONS' OFFICE, IT IS LIKELY LAYTON WILL BE FIRST TRIED FOR ATTEMPTED MURDER. BECAUSE THE GOG HAS BEEN UNABLE TO OBTAIN THE PREREQUISITED WITNESSES FROM THE UNITED STATES, THE CHARGE AGAINST LAYTON OF THE MURDER OF CONGRESSMAN RYAN AMD FOUR OTHERS PROBABLY WILL NOT BE PROSECUTED, IF AT ALL, UNITL A LATER DATE.

THE EMBASSY GIVES LITTLE CREDENCE TO SPECIFIC PPP ALLEGATIONS, CONTAINED IN A NOVEMBER 22 PPP PRESS RELEASE, THAT TWELVE DECEASED JONESTOWN RESIDENTS APPEAR ON THE NORTH WEAT DISTRICT ELECTORAL LIST (REFTEL). THE DECEMBER 7 GOVERNMENT DAILY "CHRONICLE" PRINTED A HOME AFFAIRS MINISTRY PRESS RELEASE OF THE PREVIOUS DAY WHICH REFUTED THESE ALLEGATIONS. THE ARTICLE TERMED IT A COINCIDENCE THAT TWELVE JONESTOWN DECEASED SHARED NAMES WITH LIVING AND PROPERLY REGISTERED GUYANESE IN THE AREA, PUBLISHING PHOTOGRAPHS AND BIOGRAPHIC DATA OF SEVERAL OF THESE GUYANESE. ADDITIONALLY, THE GUYANA REGISTRAR GENERAL AND ELECTIONS COMMISSION CHAIRMAN VIGOROUSLY DENIED THE PPP'S ALLEGATIONS TO AN EMBOFF ON DECEMBER 7.

Jonestown Update

This will bring you current on several Jonestown issues: USG funding, disposition of the remains, and reimbursement from the Peoples Temple.

Funding

Several weeks ago OMB decided that most Jonestown related expenses would be funded under section 531 of the Foreign Assistance Act, using Contingency Fund appropriations and, to the extent these were insufficient, Economic Support Fund appropriations.

Subsequently, we were told by Senate Foreign Relations Committee staff that Senator Church intended to send you a letter challenging this use of AID funds and asking you to withhold funding pending a GAO investigation. I spoke with [redacted] about the letter. [redacted] have agreed that in lieu of the Church letter, they would accept Committee report language noting that the Guyana payment had been made, that it was unprecedented and extraordinary, and that it did not constitute a precedent for casual resort to the AID funds. AID is drafting this language. We have agreed to withhold funding until they and we agree on the language.

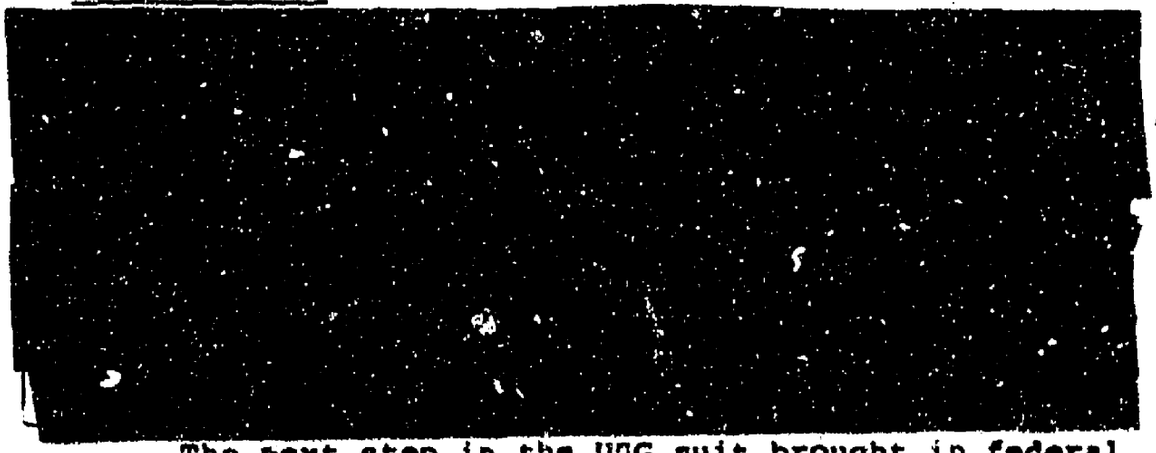
Meanwhile, piqued at the delay, DOD sent the bills for Jonestown expenses to the Department -- but has said they will take them back once they get a fund cite.

Disposition of the Remains

The California Superior Court held a hearing on Monday, February 26, to review the Emergency Relief Committee's (ERC) plan for disposing of the remains. The California Attorney General's office opposed transporting unidentified bodies to California on the grounds that they had no connection with that state. The judge asked for further information; CA is providing a memo indicated that 227 out of the 253 unidentified bodies have a nexus with California.

There may not be enough liquid Peoples Temple (PT) assets to defray the costs of transportation and disposition, but the court-appointed receiver is attempting to obtain a commercial loan to fund the ERC plan. The court is expected to issue a final ruling on the ERC plan early next week. CA and DOJ representatives at the California hearing anticipate a favorable ruling. If this holds up, it will solve a problem that we have been wrestling with for weeks.

Reimbursement



b5 acp awp

The next step in the UDG suit brought in federal district court in California to recoup our expenses will be the filing of an answer to our complaint -- probably in mid-April.

MARCH 28 1979

Dear Mr. Chairman:

Thank you for your letter of March 13 requesting whatever information the Department may have on foreign travel by Mr. Timothy Stoen as part of your official inquiry into the death of Congressman Ryan and the subsequent murder/suicides in Jonestown, Guyana. A review by our Legal Advisor's Office of the provisions of the Privacy Act cited in your letter has determined that 5 U.S.C. 552a(b)(9) does permit disclosure to your Committee in this instance.

Dear Senator Heflin:

I refer to your inquiry of April 11 concerning [redacted] request for assistance in identifying the body of [redacted] Jerry Balisok, whom she believes died in Jonestown, Guyana. B6

As [redacted] stated in her letter, she has been in contact with several members of my staff as well as personnel at the Dover Air Force Base Mortuary where the bodies were stored. She has been advised of the methods being used to identify the remaining bodies and has submitted for that purpose the necessary medical records of her son. She has subsequently been informed many times that the records she submitted do not match any of those made from the remaining unidentified bodies. She has also been informed that neither Guyanese immigration records nor United States passport records give any indication that her son was in Guyana at the time of the tragedy. Mrs. Balisok still insists, however, that her son is a Jonestown victim. She bases her belief mainly on a photograph in Life Magazine showing an aerial view of the Jonestown Settlement aftermath which she contends shows clearly the body of her son. B6

[redacted] is dissatisfied with the methods being used to identify the bodies, i.e., fingerprints, footprints, skull and dental x-rays. She maintains that a pelvic x-ray would disclose the steel pins that were placed in her son's hip during an operation. Mrs. Balisok will not be satisfied until all the bodies have been x-rayed. The United States Government cannot justify such an action, as you know, especially with no other indication whatsoever that Jerry Balisok was ever in Guyana. B6

Howell Heflin,

Dear Senator Lugar:

We know you are a very busy man but whatever time you could spare to read this and any help or advice you may be able to give us certainly will be greatly appreciated.

My husband's mother, Esther Lillian Mueller, was one of the many who died in Jonestown, Guyana November 18, 1978. Perhaps you are wondering why I waited so long to write. Senator Lugar, we were waiting to give the State Dept. and Calif. plenty of time to settle things up as we realize under such terrible circumstances it does take time. No one can realize the anguish we have gone through this past year, not to mention the past years that my husband and I tried to prevent this from happening but she, like so many wouldn't listen. The Indianapolis Star of 12/15/78, stated "Lugar tried to help parents get son back from Jonestown". Because of this we felt you would understand our situation. Also, when my husband tried to get the necessary information he needed at the local social security office, we couldn't get any satisfaction. Thanks to your office personnel here, I believe her name was Patty Cook, he did get results, and we appreciate this so much. It is hard to go through such a sad ordeal and to get the so-called "run-around" doesn't help any. I know you will be glad to know your office here has helped us.

What we would like to know is why we haven't received any of Father's personal effects. When my husband made arrangements with the Reese Funeral Home in Dover, Del. to have her remains sent here, he was told there was a packet of her personal belongings that we would receive. Then we were told to contact the State Dept., which we did and they didn't seem to know anything about such a packet. Our attorney has tried also. Where do we go from here? I feel there must have been something over there as well as in California that she had. Why hasn't California contacted us about her things? I truly believe our attorney has done all he could as he seems most helpful when we do [illegible]

Once when you were on a local television station, I called immediately as we wanted to talk to you, but we were told you had already left the studio. I can't tell you everything in a letter due to some things being so confidential, although I wish we could see you as there is so much to be said, but I guess this can't be. We are still going through a lot (as are other survivors) so please let us know what we can do.

On the b right side of things, our son was in the Pontelli High School Marching Band for four years, so he got to see you several times from afar when the band and you were at the same public functions. He was so proud of being a member of the band and getting to share some activities with you even though as I said it was from afar.

Thank you again for your time and patience. We truly appreciate it.

Sincerely,

MEMORANDUM

TO: Mr. John Bushnell,
Deputy Assistant Secretary, ARA

FOR: All Guyana Working Group Personnel

FROM: William F. Hope, Director, Operations Center

SUBJECT: Instructions For Use of Phones

The following is a brief run-down of how the phones are to be used:

YELLOW COLORED LINES -- for use by the forward room of the Task Force Area where next-of-kin calls are being handled, for incoming calls only.

RED COLORED LINES -- for use by personnel in the back of the Task Force Area for incoming calls only.

BLUE COLORED LINES -- to be used whenever you wish to make an outgoing call. (Information on additional outgoing lines is provided below.)

ALL WORKING GROUP PERSONNEL SHOULD ALSO READ THE FOLLOWING:

Our phone lines are strained to capacity. It is essential to utilize the system we have with maximum efficiency. Here is a further explanation of how it works.

Division of Labor

The Georgetown Open Line and all CA operational personnel have moved to the back of the Task Force area, where PA and ARA personnel are also working. The forward room is now for SCS personnel answering next-of-kin, body disposition, and similar calls from private citizens.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE A/CDC/MP
REVIEWED BY [illegible] DATE 3/2/81
PORTIONS DENIED AS INDICATED

Phone Allocations

A. Incoming

The yellow phone lines, which are on a rotary working off extension 26610, are allocated exclusively to forward room personnel, for receiving incoming next-of-kin type calls only. The three rotary lines working off 23172 will also be available to this group, again for incoming calls only.

The red phone lines, which are a rotary working off extension 29380, will be allocated to the remaining CA, ARA and PA personnel operating in the back of the Task Force Area, for incoming calls.

B. Outgoing

All outgoing calls are to be placed on the blue color-coded lines available to each phone console. In some cases, these will not be enough. At those times, persons needing to call on outgoing lines can find 4 additional lines available on phones (for outgoing calls only) in the large conference room adjacent to the Task Force Area. Outgoing calls are not to be placed on any red or yellow lines.

Secretarial Stations

There are three secretarial stations exclusively dedicated to answering incoming next-of-kin phone calls. These are immediately adjacent to the forward room of the Task Force Area. A fourth station for this purpose, if needed, can be located in the room itself, at the main table. It is essential that secretaries assigned by CA to these stations be given no work other than telephone receptionist duties and coordination between them and the SCS personnel handling private citizen calls at the table in the forward room be closely monitored and supervised by one individual designated by CA/EX for this purpose.

There will be one or more stations, as necessary, in the back of the Task Force Area, for secretarial personnel, provided by ARA, to answer the red color coded incoming lines. Again, these people should not be assigned other secretarial work. Typing should be given to additional secretaries brought in for that purpose. ARA/EX should make sure this arrangement works well at all times.

Instructions for Taking Calls

Phone receptionists answering at the forward area phones should answer only the phones designated for the forward room. They should not pick up on the red coded lines. Answer, "Guyana Working Group, May I help you?" If the caller wants to make a press inquiry or talk to one of the ARA personnel, or discuss other subjects not related to next-of-kin and body disposition matters, the person should be asked to call back on the red coded rotary line , extension 23980 (or 632-3980 if the call is from outside the building).

Phone receptionists at the back of the area, handling the red lines, should answer "Guyana Working Group, May I help you?" If the caller wishes next-of-kin information, he or she should be asked to call back on lines 26610 and 23172 (from outside, 632-6610 and 632-3172). These final few instructions should minimize the amount of running back and forth which secretaries answering the phone have to do.

Need to Hang Up in Front Room

All personnel working in the Task Force forward room should familiarize themselves with the procedures for hanging up after a call and for using the phone consoles at the central table. Secretaries should also do this so they can spot problems as they arise.

Names of Personnel on Duty

As much as possible, Officers from CA and the other participating units in the Working Group should keep secretaries apprised of who they are and what their duties are, so that secretaries can more easily pass phone messages when they are received.

Iran Working Group

Calls for the Iran Working Group should be referred to:

20448, 20449, 20915 and 20313.

Procedures For Notification
Of Next Of Kin Of Deceased
From Guyana

1. Take the name of deceased as received from Delaware.
2. Check Card Box in Miss Day's Office and pull card for deceased. If no card, make a notation next to name on list. If there is a card but no next-of-kin information note that also on the list.
3. Select likeliest next of kin from card or passport application. (Begin with widow/widower, childern, parents or other adopted/blood relatives or legal custodians such as brothers/sisters over 18 and go on to grandparents, aunts/uncles cousins etc. Call a friend as last resort.
4. Give the person called information as follows:

INFORMATION FOR CALLERS

Notification to next of kin once body identified at Dover.

A. Remains of _____ have been identified by U.S.A.F. morturary authorities, Dover.

B. You should have your local funeral home contact one of the following morturaries in Dover to arrange for shipment of _____ remains to your area.

Give at least 3.

C. When you contact your local mortician, you should be prepared to furnish him some sort of proof that you are the legal next-of-kin or are so empowered to act on behalf of the next of kin.

D. If asked about costs, timing, etc., response should be "the mortician will be best source for this information".

5. List of morticians in Dover Area. Give at least three and on next call use next three and soforth until starting at the top again.

Talking Points For Conversation With Congressman Paul McCloskey
(R-California)

QUESTION:

Since the federal government has already expended 3 1/2 - 4 million dollars on the Jonestown operation, why not expend the additional funds necessary to fly the bodies to California by military aircraft?

ANSWER:

The State Department and the Bureau of Consular Affairs has no authority or funds to transport the bodies of United States citizens who die overseas back to the United States nor to dispose of the remains.

In this case:

1. The removal of the bodies from Guyana [redacted] This operation was considered essential in handling the emergency situation which existed in Guyana at the time. [redacted] Most of the expenditures incurred by the United States were at the request of the Government of Guyana in an attempt to alleviate the catastrophe and to promote economic and political stability there.

   The President, acting under his constitutional authority as Chief Executive and Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces, ordered the departments of our government to take action to deal with this emergency. The operational decisions within the United States Government in this unique situation were made by the Secretary of State in conjunction with some of his Cabinet colleagues.

2. However, the authority to use United States military aircraft ceased once the bodies were returned to the United States. There is no legal basis presently in existence authorizing commitment of United States funds and military aircraft for the purpose of transporting bodies to California at the request of the families.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE A/CDC/MR
REVIEWED BY [signature] DATE 3/2/81
PORTIONS DENIED AS INDICATED

3. The funding for the operation was authorized under the Contingency Fund of AID (Foreign assistance Act). This funding is considered to be economic/ emergency aid to the Government of Guyana.

4. The public reaction to the expenditure of funds for the Guyana operation has been largely negative. We believe that the general public would find unacceptable the expenditure of additional public funds to remove the bodies to California. It is a private family matter and the responsibility of the next of kin.

5. The request presents practical and moral questions. While there are a large number of next of kin who reside in California, by no means does California have a monopoly on the next of kin. Relatives of the deceased reside in many states. If we were to transport bodies to California it would seem only equitable that we do likewise for next of kin who request transportation of bodies to other states. This effort would require aircraft to fly bodies all over the United States - not just to California.

6. Moreover, 292 bodies have already been claimed by next of kin and transported at their expense for burial. These persons could conceivably request reimbursement for the money they have expended for transportation.

7. Respectfully, as I stated earlier, the bottom line is that there is no authority and no appropriated funds for assuming the financial responsibility of the families of these tragic victims.

QUESTION:

What efforts are being made to obtain funds from the People's Temple to pay for burial of the Jonestown deceased?

ANSWER:

1. The Department of Justice is exploring the possible legal remedies that can be used to recover the cost the United States Government has incurred in removing and processing the bodies of the United States citizens who died at Jonestown.

2. The Justice Department is presently attempting to identify PT assets and sequester and freeze these assets pending any court action against the PT.

3. A Petition of Dissolution of the People's Temple Corporation is presently pending before the California Superior Court. A hearing is scheduled for January 23, 1979.

4. [redacted]

b5 AWP

5. In any event, it will be sometime, probably months, before the results of these efforts are known. We cannot hold in abeyance our decisions regarding the disposition of the bodies pending the results of this litigation.

QUESTION:

What will you do with the bodies that are unclaimed?

ANSWER:

That is a problem. However, we are counting on the families making arrangements. There are other options such as cremation (cost about $215.00) or burial in an area near Delaware. Persons interested in these options could contact Jay A. Rini on 202-632-3712.

MEMORANDUM OF CONVERSATION

PARTICIPANTS: Assistant Secretary Barbara M. Watson, CA
James Schollaert, Staff Member, House International Relations Committee
Hume Horan, Deputy Assistant Secretary, CA

TIME: 12:30 p.m., January 22, 1979

PLACE: International Club

SUBJECT: Jonestown

DEPARTMENT OF STATE A/CDC/MR
REVIEWED BY [signature] DATE 7/27/81

Mr. Schollaert began lunch with Miss Watson by generally criticizing the role of the State Department and the Embassy in their handling of Congressman Ryan's briefings, and of the situation in Jonestown. After having read the masses of documents on Jonestown provided to the HIRC by the Department of State, he believed one could have concluded from the information available that Jonestown was a real trouble spot and that more should have been done. He tended to agree with Jackie Speier that the Congressman had not been as deeply briefed as he could have been. In discussing Georgetown's 1815 which asked the Department if the Embassy could prompt the GOG to pay more critical attention to Jonestown, Schollaert said the message was so carefully worded as to have almost solicited the narrow, legal, negative reply which was forthcoming.

Miss Watson explained to Schollaert the limitations that Embassies had to respect in their dealings with local Americans. These restrictions stemmed from the First Amendment, and the Privacy and Freedom of Information Acts. Consular officers are in no sense investigators and they could n initiate the sort of action Schollaert seemed to recommend without clear evidence that crimes were being committed. Schollaert said two things should have suggested to the Embassy that something criminal was going on: 1) Debbie Blakey's statements to Dick McCoy, and 2) a statement made

It was again pointed out to Schollaert the Embassy could only act if really convincing evidence of criminal action were available. The USG had to consider that 75 consular interviews had taken place in which specific allegations of maltreatment had been pursued. Every case proved negative. This was a persuasive body of negative evidence when placed against the accusations that had been made against Jonestown.

Schollaert said he doubted the Congress would let an issue as tragic and dramatic as Jonestown pass. There was a good deal of pressure that the USG should have done something, and this pressure would become greater as California representatives continue to hear from their constituents.

Miss Watson said Congress had written the Freedom of Information and Privacy Acts, and these were interpreted by lawyers and the courts. Consuls could not act on their instincts or some notion of equity. If they did not comply with the law they could be sued and could risk a fine or imprisonment. High-ranking people from the Watergate era were still in prison for not having respected our laws. If the Congress were to modify the law, Consuls would work by something else. But could any legislation moves be made in that direction without stirring up reactions from other segments of the public?

Schollaert remarked the Embassy did not have a good reputation for being helpful to visiting newsmen. He could cite only the case of two newsmen who had been refused admission on arrival without visas in Georgetown and deported. Miss Watson reminded him how the Embassy had obtained Guyanese permission for some of the newsmen accompanying Congressman Ryan to enter the country although they had no visas and one was found to be violating the Guyanese currency laws.

b(1) EB/ED

b(6)

[redacted]

Schollaert also informed Miss Watson he had heard that Jackie Speier might run for Congressman Ryan's seat. He concluded if she would have the physical strength for a campaign.

Schollaert said Dick McCoy had handled himself well during his 12 hours of discussions with HIRC staff members. Schollaert had not personally taken part in these hearings; he had been so close to the issue and the Committee's Staff Director thought the exchanges would seem more objective if he were not to attend. Schollaert did not think there would be formal Committee hearings on Jonestown, but confirmed there would be at least one more wrap-up session with McCoy by the Committee Staff.

Miss Watson, in leaving the Club, asked Schollaert to call her if he had any further questions on any aspect of the Jonestown issue, be they policy questions or of small detail.

Comment: Schollaert is a former FSO who has served in Moscow and Vienna. [redacted] b6

MEMORANDUM FOR THE FILES

SUBJECT: Guyana Bodies, AID Funding

[redacted] of the SFRC staff called this afternoon, at [redacted] request.

I told him that an enormous amount of time had been spent on the funding problem; we were convinced that DOD did not work as a source of funds; AID did not work perfectly but it was the best we could do.

I said we hoped that the Chairman would not ask GAO for an opinion, or ask us to withhold funding. Given the amount involved, the bizarre nature of the tragedy, and the amount of time already devoted to this issue, it was time to move on.

[redacted] said he understood. He asked how we would feel about language in their Committee report this year noting that the Guyana payment had been made, that it was unprecedented and extraordinary, and that it did not constitute a precedent for easy or casual resort to the AID funds. I said that would be acceptable.

[redacted] called back a few minutes later to say that the letter would not be sent if we could agree on language. He asked that we draft the language and that we not pay any bills until it had been agreed to and I reported this conversation to Chuck Costello (AID/GC) and asked him to draft the language. He will do so.

Jonestown Update

This will bring you current on several Jonestown issues: USG funding, disposition of the remains, and reimbursement from the Peoples Temple.

Funding

Several weeks ago OMB decided that most Jonestown related expenses would be funded under section 531 of the Foreign Assistance Act, using Contingency Fund appropriations and, to the extent these were insufficient, Economic Support Fund appropriations.

Subsequently, we were told by Senate Foreign Relations Committee staff that Senator Church intended to send you a letter challenging this use of AID funds and asking you to withhold funding pending a GAO investigation. I spoke with [redacted] about the letter. [redacted] and other SFRC staff have agreed that in lieu of the Church letter, they would accept Committee report language noting that the Guyana payment had been made, that it was unprecedented and extraordinary, and that it did not constitute a precedent for casual resort to the AID funds. AID is drafting this language. We have agreed to withhold funding until they and we agree on the language.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE A/CDC/MR
REVIEWED BY [redacted] DATE 3/2/81
PORTIONS DENIED AS INDICATED

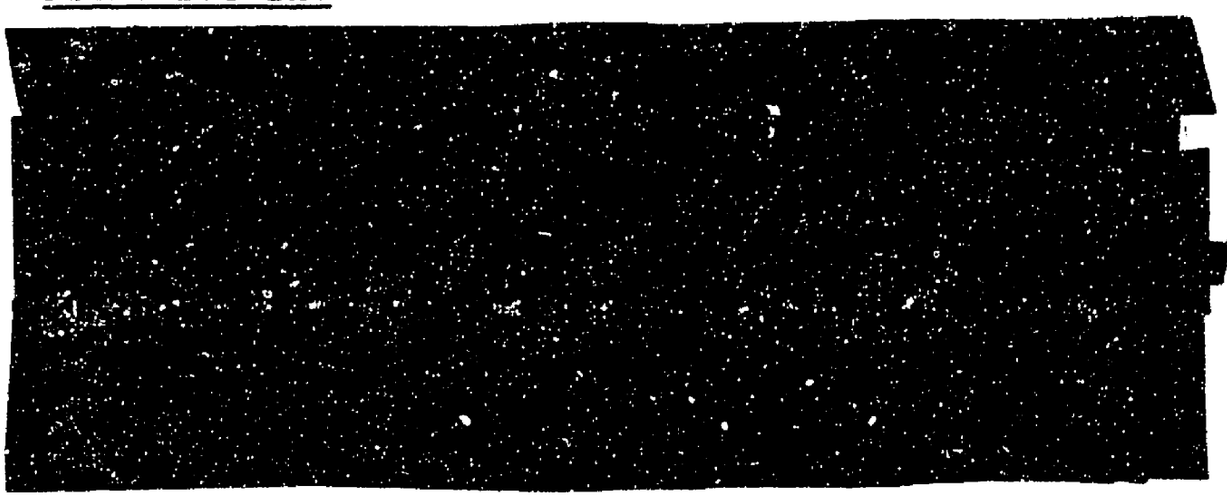
Meanwhile, piqued at the delay, DOD sent the bills for Jonestown expenses to the Department -- but has said they will take them back once they get a fund cite.

Disposition of the Remains

The California Superior Court held a hearing on Monday, February 26, to review the Emergency Relief Committee's (ERC) plan for disposing of the remains. The California Attorney General's office opposed transporting unidentified bodies to California on the grounds that they had no connection with that state. The judge asked for further information; CA is providing a memo indicated that 227 out of the 253 unidentified bodies have a nexus with California.

There may not be enough liquid Peoples Temple (PT) assets to defray the costs of transportation and disposition, but the court-appointed receiver is attempting to obtain a commercial loan to fund the ERC plan. The court is expected to issue a final ruling on the ERC plan early next week. CA and DOJ representatives at the California hearing anticipate a favorable ruling. If this holds up, it will solve a problem that we have been wrestling with for weeks.

Reimbursement



The next step in the USG suit brought in federal district court in California to recoup our expenses will be the filing of an answer to our complaint -- probably in mid-April.

SUBJECT: Report of Official Travel

PROJECT OFFICER: Mr. William G. Courtney

DATE OF TDY: 16 - 17 Mar 1979

PLACE OF TDY: San Francisco CA

PURPOSE OF TDY: To visit [redacted] in order to correct error made in releasing wrong remains [redacted]

INDIVIDUALS CONTACTED: Mr. Don Morris, Agent in Charge, Department of State Field Office, San Francisco CA

Mr. David A. Botsko, Special Agent, Department of State Field Office, San Francisco CA

Mr. Mike Silva, Passport Office, Department of State Field Office, San Francisco CA

On 14 Mar 79 I was contacted by Col Taylor, AF/MPXJ, who advised me that through administrative error, two deceased had duplicating numbers and that one of the deceased had been released to the NOK. Upon investigation it was determined that the wrong remains had been released (Atch 1 and 2).

Col Taylor and I discussed how this could have occurred and what should be done now to rectify the situation. I recommended that the NOK who received the wrong remains be contacted as soon as possible and in person. I suggested that notification be carried out by at least two representatives from Department of State (DOS). I felt it appropriate for DOS to do this as they were the officials responsible for contacts with the families and in obtaining disposition of remains.

Col Taylor indicated that State may not wish to do this. We agreed that it could be placed in our (DOD) laps due to it being our (AFIP) mistake. In this regard, Col Taylor brought up the possibility of me being tasked with the responsibility. I asked that this be considered only if DOS refuses and there are no other options.

ATCH 1

On 15 Mar I was notified by Capt LeBeouf, AF/MPXJ, that DOD would have to assist the DOS in making the notification to the NOK (Atch 3). I was asked to proceed to California on Friday, 16 Mar, and meet with Mr. Don Morris, DOS, who would work with me in contacting the NOK.

I called Mr. Morris to discuss my arrival and to set up some preliminary plans. Mr. Morris was not at all familiar with the agreement reached between DOS and Office of Secretary of Defense, General Council (GC). Mr. Morris advised me that he would have to contact his HQ and call me back. I relayed this information back to Capt LeBeouf.

I received a call later that evening at home from Mr. Morris. He informed me that his HQ advised him that he is not to participate as they were not aware of any of the arrangements made by DOS and OSD/GC. However, he has arranged for my accommodations and will have someone meet me at the airport.

On 16 Mar I advised Capt LeBeouf of the above and departed for San Francisco. I was met upon arrival by Mr. David Botsko, DOS Special Agent. We went directly to the Federal Building where I met with Mr. Morris. Mr. Morris informed me that he still had not received instructions from Washington that he was to assist me in any way. I showed him a copy of the letter giving me my authority and instructions. While he placed a call to Mr. DiPlacido, DOS, Washington DC, Special Agent Botsko and I went down to the FBI office to review their files on this family. This was done in order to find out more about the NOK and his family.

I was able to review the interview of the one surviving sister of the deceased and in doing so satisfied myself that there was no apparent Peoples Temple connection with the NOK. Although not much was learned about the NOK, I was satisfied that there wasn't any potential problem.

Upon return to Mr. Morris' office he advised me that he had been instructed not to assist me in any way. To put it mildly, I was strictly on my own and would have to arrange any transportation, security, etc., on my own. It was learned, however, that someone in the passport section would be tasked to assist me.

Mr. Mike Silva, passport office, was tasked (he was the only one left in the office). I briefed Mr. Silva on the purpose of the visit. He was not aware of the details and had been instructed to accompany me only. In other words, sit tight and let me do the talking, which is exactly what happened. I rented a car and Mr. Silva and I proceeded to Oakland. I called [redacted] from a phone booth and made arrangements to visit with him.

[redacted] was suspicious of my call, but was very gracious to allow our visit. We arrived at his residence at 1810. I introduced myself and Mr. Silva. I then proceeded to explain the purpose of my visit. [redacted] had few questions and seemed to understand very well what had happened.

[redacted] advised me that he had his daughter and step-daughter cremated by [redacted] Their ashes were then sent to [redacted]

I asked [redacted] what he desired us to do now. I assured him that we would assist him in every way possible. [redacted] stated he assumed State would pay for any expenses. [redacted] was emotional and had to excuse himself during our conversation. However, he expressed his understanding and appreciation for the personal visit.

Upon return to my quarters I contacted Capt LeBeouf and advised him of the outcome of my visit. He agreed that there was no further need for me to stay in San Francisco.

On 17 Mar I made several attempts to contact [redacted] prior to my departure. I was unable to reach him. I did leave my name and duty phone number with him and asked that he call me if I can assist him in any way.

COMMENTS: I feel that the DOS did not fulfill their responsibility in this matter. Regardless of who made the mistake or why, I still feel that State as the focal point for NOK contact since the beginning of the Guyana operation, should have taken a larger role. I cannot emphasize my disappointment with their lack of support and apparent lack of compassion for the deceased's family.

1. Shivalila Society - Three members of this Society recently came in for passport renewal and indicated the Indian police had gone out to talk to them recently. We are trying to confirm the report of the deaths of four children. We will do this both through the post and through defectors here in the U.S. It might be a good idea to have the post relay any future passport applications to the Department before issuance so we could try to get the necessary information on the deaths. The recent applicants also mentioned that they would be moving to the south of India during the winter months. The GOI has apparently indicated to them that they must have the proper documentation in order to stay in India and they are, therefore, revalidating their passports.

2. Nicaragua update - There are 17 people at the Embassy now, including one consular officer who is not issuing visas but concentrating on welfare cases. No more evacuation flights are scheduled, however, there should be some more relief flights bringing in supplies from Panama and they hope to have them take out classified files.

6. Loss of Nationality Processing - The instructions to the field are being simplified and streamlined and will be reissued in a format similar to the Arrest Handbook.

6. London's Suggestion regarding Repatriation - We agree that the primary concern in purchasing repatriation tickets for American citizens should be total cost to the USG, however, for the London suggestion to be workable we would have to be reimbursed by HEW for the additional cost to State. This will be looked into with HEW.

Dear Dick:

Please find enclosed a set of documents given to me by a visiting free lance journalist who is planning a book on Jonestown. He received a quantity of material from one of the surviving Temple members still resident in Lamana Gardens who purportedly found them under a pile of cases of empty beer bottles. He culled out what he considered to be the most interesting documents which he shared with me. He states that he expects to share the whole with the FBI in San Francisco upon his return there. [redacted] B6

It may well be that Don already has copies of this material from the Jonestown documents. The handwritten notes are said to be in Sharon Amos' handwriting, however, and appear to be notes of telephone calls or meetings, possibly used for reporting by radio to Jonestown, made during Congressman Ryan's visit.

The bells of St. Margaret's across the street are tolling for Fr. Darke (he is being buried from Brickdam Cathedral), and Main Street seems rather empty -- although it may just be my imagination.

With best wishes,

Sincerely,

Richard A. Dwyer

Chris Webster, the new Econ-Commercial Officer and Ambassador Roberts have had recent useful consultations with the World Bank on Upper Mazaruni, Exim Bank and the Bauxite people at the Bureau of Mines. Hopefully, they will both be well prepared on that subject when they arrive in Georgetown. I envy all of you, George Roberts will be an excellent replacement for Ambassador Burke and I know you will all find his wife Zora delightful.

George will be able to fill you in on the direction that our policy assessment of Guyana will take. I'm not sure when Guyana will come up before the Consultative Committee. I look forward to my return to Georgetown, please let me know if I can bring anything such as potatoes etc.

Regards to all.

[illegible] POSSIBLE SUICIDE VICTIMS [illegible]

GUYANA MASSACRE WAS SET UP BY FBI, CIA, & MAFIA TO SMUGGLE HEROIN INTO U.S. TO DESTROY THE CHURCHES AND TO ENSLAVE AMERICANS! A TERRIBLE CONSPIRACY!!

I received this frightening information early this fall, in a letter to me from a close friend who had taken her family to Guyana the year before. I was not given her name for fear her relatives will be harassed as it increased. She told me she was scared and they would not let her leave, and if anything should happen to her that I should release this information.

She said she was one of "Daddy's" women and was very close to him, even sleeping with him. Jim Jones confided to her where she told him she was scared and could never "step out" or question outside Jones statements a little happened [illegible] was sworn close to Jones control his guards "methods for the FBI, CIA and Russian intelligence using counter suits, who were to torment all his organizations, and "tell" him what to do. Then he was unable to get a car of their sight except when he went to bed. He knew her weight this information to somewhere "in the event of any death" because Jones knew any friend would kidnap him for her - and kill him. I opened the letter only after I read her comments on these who had died or been kidnapped. I honeymoon have an attached by anything to say this. They would kill me tonight this happy, as I am sending [illegible] thousands of copies anonymously and telling them all what [illegible] to make 25 thousand people and send them out, anonymously, to presidents, congressmen, friends, officials, Senators and Congressmen, talk shows, police stations, musicians and entertainers, labor unions, churches, radio and TV stations, 'underground' and radical papers, ethnic groups they might call 'color' etc. etc. Post in public places, on bulletin boards, letters to the editors of papers etc. Stand to expose you think may investigate my story and pass this information on to others.

She wrote "I didn't even think that I am going to get out of this alive. I worry about all the beautiful children, too. Daddy hasn't been sleeping with me lately (he has many other women now) and given me threatening looks. I only think it is because he told me the truth one night and probably wondered if I really did send you this letter. I know he plans to go to Europe soon. Maybe the whole thing was a hoax. But I feel it was not."

She told me that Jones had told her about the suicide behaviour that were being planned, but warned her that he would survive and take her with him when it was safe as those who survived would need a leader. He told her one night that he was concerned that he had millions of dollars hidden away in banks in America and Europe and that soon the "Promise Outsider" would be the real thing. He said he was working with the government—the CIA people, who were using the People's Temple members as 'guinea pigs' in a mind control experiment. That if this worked, it would take be used elsewhere on a massive scale after the terrible depression came, so them who would not do what the government ordered them to do. He talked wildly for about an hour, spewing a weird and complex tale about the CIA funding and setting up this entire community as an invasion in mind and body control to be used later on other churches and groups they were planning an awful catastrophic catastrophy in 1978 which would enable the government to declare a national emergency and consider powers that had been made lawful for such emergencies.

Jones told her that in addition to which control train, the CIA, with his help, had vast amounts of heroin hidden in the jungle, and when the real suicide order was given, 2-3 [illegible] kilos of heroin would be hidden inside each body and smuggled into the U.S. without detection. That they had done this successfully with the bodies shipped to the states from Vietnam, and that each body would contain heroin worth 200 million dollars of street value. The plan was to get the bodies into the U.S. where it would be sold cheaply by the CIA. Some of it, Jones said, was to be stored in Ft. Knox for later use to enslave the population through drug addiction and mind control. Jones told her to "watch the papers after the suicides", that in about 6 months the crime rate in the major cities would be so high, due to the heavy influx of cheap heroin, that the people would demand more money be put into crime prevention and the government do something about it immediately. He said this will take place about the time the stock market panic occurs, sometime in the latter part of 1978. It was planned this way by people 'high in power', mostly in Europe, to wreck the economy of the U.S., create a national panic when the factories, stores and banks closed down. The big banks were the people mainly behind this. Jones once talked about all the money in the world being taken from Rockefeller and no one could buy food or anything else unless they had the 'government number'.

Although Jones didn't believe everything the Bible said, he did tell her that the Armageddon and the "lamb of God" was going to happen because this was all planned. The government, he said, would eventually force everyone to have a number stamped by a laser beam on their hand in order to enslave the people of this world. Jones revealed that the government is only identification before they always used would put the heroin into the corpses and 'special executions' in the prison would take it out. Jones said the people would really be surprised who was behind all this. He mentioned names like Rockefeller as the contact between the CIA and the mafia, Kissinger, Rothschilds etc. who had been setting up this situation for many years in order to control all the money in the world. At the same time it 'would wreck the churches', that the Guyana colonies would inflame the public to demand the government and the laws that oppressed church and state.

I am a born again Christian and feel that the people should know what is happening in this country behind our backs. My friend wrote, "Remember the sheep stories we use, "A Distant Thunder"? Well, Jones said it would be like that because they would try to make it happen like the Book of Revelations, because that way the Christians would accept it because they don't think there is anything they can do about it." "Daddy was very contemptuous and said, "They're too stupid and cowardly to unite or and don't realize they could prevent it if they would quit fighting among their selves and band together and do something about it." This would shatter the Christians going to the guillotine rather than taking the "mark", but I don't think it has to end this way. The Beast in Revelations, said Jones, was really a number of 'secret organizations, mainly banking interests', who intend to enslave the world through computer technology and laser markings. I believe if enough people circulate this letter that an investigation can happen and will expose this whole terrible conspiracy before it can happen. Jones said there would be a real effort to get the churches quarreling and fighting with one another so they couldn't see what was coming down on them. I can't look my friends in the face. I am going mad with fear that I will be deceived. You all must act NOW to save your soul, your liberty, your churches, your religious freedoms. Demand an IMMEDIATE investigation by civilians (not government or military people). Remember Kennedy and the Warren Commission. Do you really believe their story? Jim Jones may have been taken over by the devil because years back I heard him preach the gospel of Jesus Christ. I warn all Christians, no matter that the devil has not yet gotten into all our churches because of one man's demonic possession. I want all Christians to know about the Armageddon being planned and the Mark of the Beast the bankers plan to implement in lieu of money. Anyone who takes the mark will surely die and lose his eternal soul. Demand that the bodies be inspected by civilians, not 'body snatchers'. They will see the bodies have all been able open and the organs removed. They may have placed the heroin in the coffins, but Jones said the plan to use the corpses was safer. DEMAND AN INVESTIGATION NOW! EXPOSE THOSE IN GOVERNMENT WHO ARE TRYING TO COVER THIS WHOLE THING UP. CREATING A SMOKESCREEN TO DIVERT THE REAL TRUTH! We must make people aware. My friend said Guyana was only the beginning—they plan to do it again and again until the churches are destroyed by public opinion, laws, violence or foreign invasion.

I believe the story my friend told me is true. She did not use drugs and she did not return from Guyana. I saw her name listed in the newspaper. She had to be forcibly injected with poison. I know her too well; I know she would never commit suicide. She was murdered. So was Jim Jones murdered—by the CIA and the FBI people who knew that he KNEW too much for comfort either. I am an God-fearing Christian so do something about this NOW before it is too late. There are twenty-one days or ninety days to very high places and is beyond comprehension in some of us. Guyana was just the tip of the iceberg. DEMAND A FULL AND IMPARTIAL INVESTIGATION NOW BEFORE THE REST OF THIS INSANE PLAN TO ENSLAVE US ALL CAN BE CARRIED FURTHER! WE ARE NOT MORONS! [illegible] US AND ALL FREE SPIRITS WITH SOULS CREATED BY GOD ALMIGHTY!!

Sincerely, Concerned Christian

SYNOPSIS
Predicated upon allegations made by [redacted] (6)(7)(D) this investigation was commenced in February of this year. Cooperation of various Federal and local law enforcement agencies was solicited.

The body of the report and cumulative Exhibits 1 and 2 contain published and sworn allegations and photographs of JONES' compound-type mission in Northern California which may be of interest to other agencies and is forwarded for INTERPOL and State Department information.

JONES.

Prior to this meeting [redacted] had met with an intermediary of theirs who had told a bizarre tale of the goings on within the Church. These allegations were checked with a senior member of the Mendocino County Sheriff's Department who acceded to their probability and acknowledged that the people who had left the church had cause for concern over possible physical harm as a result of their leaving.

(b)(3)

The following allegations were made at the [redacted] meeting:

1. That in 1974 JONES had put out an appeal for all unregistered weapons his people could acquire.

[redacted] (b)(3)(b)

2. That the weapons were subsequently taken to Guiana via chartered aircraft out of Miami.

[redacted] (b)(7)(b)

4. These monies are normally shipped via mail c/o [redacted] (b)(7)(b) at the mission in Guiana.

5. That JONES is an active supporter of both the Black Muslim and Black Panther organizations.

6. That JONES had considerable political power, both in Mendocino and San Francisco Counties.

7. That JONES had aspirations toward a political appointment to Guiana, possibly an Ambassadorship.

8. That JONES was seen throwing tear gas into a demonstration in Guiana in 1975.

9. That JONES would like to become a "factor" in the Guiana government or power structure.

10. That he has upward of 27,000 acres in Guiana, approximately 30 miles up river from Georgetown, where upon he has his Agricultural Mission.

[redacted] (6)(2)

11. That he surrounded himself with a paramilitary force of bodyguards known as the Democratic Guardians. Surveillance at the Redwood Valley, CA, Temple verified the presence of an armed patrol around that compound.

12. That he had had an agreement with the Guianese government whereby all shipments to the Agricultural Mission would be labeled as "farm implements" or "road clearing," and would not be inspected by local officials.

[redacted] (6)(7)(C)

13. JONES communicates from Guiana to San Francisco in code by short wave radio.

(b)(7)(C)

On [redacted] spoke at length with [redacted] in an attempt to dissuade him from further association [redacted] Subsequently, that conversation was aped by [redacted] the end of that meeting and the following Friday night [redacted] received a total of five letters revealing the substance of the [redacted] and threatening reprisals to those who had spoken out.

(b)(6)(C)

Due to JONES' infiltration of the political structure in San Francisco, it has impossible to get a local investigation into the allegations of voter fraud, child abuse (including the use of electric cattle prods on children), sado-masochistic practices, welfare fraud, etc., started. It was then decided by [redacted] attempt to arouse interest within [redacted] team of investigative reporters.

(b)(7)(C)

As a result of this action, a continuing series of magazine, newspaper, radio, and television articles and coverage has been given to JONES and the Church. Subsequently, investigations have been initiated by San Francisco and Mendocino counties.

JONES has returned to Guiana and is apparently selling all property here and urging his people to come to the "Promised Land."

Lookouts have been posted at Miami, Houston, and New Orleans for shipments destined to the mission in Guiana.

Included as Collective Exhibit 1 is a preponderance of the material printed since July 13, 1977, on this matter.

Because investigation disclosed allegations that JONES intends to establish a political power base in Guiana, and that he may currently have several hundred firearms in this country, the above information is furnished to Intelligence and the U.S. State Department for the purpose of alerting the British Guiana Government to JONES' prior activities in the United States. JONES' method of operation in establishing a political power base is apparent from the attached investigative news reports. Since JONES demands unquestioned obedience from his followers, any such political support lent by JONES or his followers in British Guiana should be closely observed.

Political impact can be expected to become significant in the coming months as JONES shifts his church emphasis away from the United States. This shift in emphasis is readily apparent here in that JONES as a result of exposé news articles has reportedly called for his U.S. followers to liquidate their holdings and come to Guiana.

The State Department Passport Office in San Francisco confirmed that they have been "deluged" with passport applications from JONES' followers to travel to Guiana. Also, there are unverified reports several hundred members are currently enroute to Guiana, along with large quantities of supplies, description unknown.

This report essentially deals with JONES' alleged activity in the United States and his current emphasis in building his British Guiana base.

Guyana Tragedy Points To A Need For Better Care And Protection Of Guardianship Children

About one third of the 913 individuals who died in the 1978 Peoples Temple tragedy in Guyana were children, few of whom were wards of adult members of the Peoples Temple. The tragedy raised many questions about the adequacy of protection afforded children under the guardianship of adults not related to them.

The Peoples Temple tragedy points to a need for the Department of State to establish specific procedures for reviewing passport applications for guardianship children. Furthermore, the Department of Health and Human Services should increase the protection afforded California guardianship children and make sure that they are not placed in homes with more children than can be adequately cared for. The Department should also recover Federal overpayments to States for guardianship children not eligible for foster care maintenance assistance.

This report describes how the Departments of State and Health and Human Services can help improve the care and protection of guardianship children. This report also discusses (1) the placement of foster and guardianship children with Peoples Temple members and (2) excessive Federal payments to California on behalf of guardianship children.

Our review was made at the request of the Chairman, Subcommittee on Child and Human Development, Senate Committee on Labor and Human Resources.

We are sending copies of this report to the Director, Office of Management and Budget and the Secretaries of State and Health and Human Services.

COMPTROLLER GENERAL'S REPORT TO THE CONGRESS

GUYANA TRAGEDY POINTS TO A NEED FOR BETTER CARE AND PROTECTION OF GUARDIANSHIP CHILDREN

D I G E S T

The Chairman, Subcommittee on Child and Human Development, Senate Committee on Labor and Human Resources, requested GAO to review the placement of foster children with members of the Peoples Temple. After finding that some of the children had guardians, GAO expanded its review to examine guardianship children in California.

GAO found that:

--No children while in foster care, died in Guyana. However, a few of the victims of the tragedy were wards of Peoples Temple members and were taken to Guyana without court approval.

--California guardianship children frequently did not receive all the protection intended for them by State law.

--California received Federal foster care maintenance payments for guardianship children who did not meet Federal eligibility criteria.

--The health and safety of some children may have been jeopardized by placing them in small foster family homes which housed children in excess of capacity.

CHILDREN WITH THE PEOPLES TEMPLE

Of the 294 children who died in Guyana in November 1978, GAO found that:

--None was in foster care when they died. Seventeen had been in foster care, but were terminated from such care (returned to parent or guardian, or adopted) before the tragedy. (See p. 8.)

--Twenty-one were wards of Peoples Temple members. Nineteen of them had apparently been relocated to Guyana without the court approval required for changing the residence of guardianship children outside California. (See p. 13.)

--Peoples Temple adult members and their children usually did not travel to Guyana together. However, no fraudulent activities relative to taking children to Guyana were identified by U.S. Passport Services' investigations. (See pp. 14 and 15.)

To exercise better control over the travel of children, the U.S. Passport Services should verify before issuing passports that, where required, guardians have obtained court approval to take their wards outside the country. (See p. 16.)

SERVICES TO CALIFORNIA GUARDIANSHIP CHILDREN

To determine the type of protective services provided to California guardianship children, GAO reviewed such activities in three counties. In two of the counties, required suitability reports on petitioners for guardianship of nonrelative children usually were not prepared, and other protective services were not available to all the children. (See p. 21.)

Those suitability reports that were prepared included good assessments of whether the petitioner could meet the child's psychological and social needs, but these reports could have more comprehensively addressed the child's physical well-being. (See p. 23.)

State regulations covering assessment and reassessment of guardianships were inadvertently terminated in January 1980. Even when in effect, the State regulations had not been fully implemented. (See p. 25.)

In fulfilling the Federal role as an advocate for the welfare of the Nation's children, the Secretary of Health and Human Services (HHS) should direct the Office of Human Development Services to encourage California to

--reiterate to State court judges the importance of county social workers' preparing suitability reports on petitioners for nonrelative guardianship children,

--help the counties expand suitability report criteria to more fully address the physical well-being of guardianship children, and

--reissue regulations specifically covering guardianships and require compliance by county social service agencies. (See p. 27.)

FEDERAL OVERPAYMENTS FOR GUARDIANSHIP CHILDREN

Guardianship children do not meet the Federal eligibility criteria for foster care maintenance payments if their care and placement is not the responsibility of the California Department of Social Services, the State agency designated to carry out the federally funded foster care program.

Federal overpayments occurred in the three California counties reviewed because the counties obtained Federal reimbursement for guardianship children whose care and placement were not the responsibility of the Department of Social Services. These overpayments totaled $320,000 for 104 children.

The overpayment period per child ranged from 1 month to 6 years. (See p. 29.)

The Secretary of HHS should direct the Office of Human Development Services to:

--Issue instructions to all the States notifying them that guardianship children are not eligible for Federal reimbursement for foster care maintenance payments when responsibility for such children is removed from the responsible State agency.

--Obtain retroactive adjustments for Federal overpayments that were made for California guardianship children.

--Determine if other States are receiving Federal overpayments for ineligible guardianship children, and act to identify and recover these overpayments. (See p. 33.)

PLACEMENTS IN EXCESS OF CAPACITY

Children have been placed in 16 State-licensed small family homes that housed more children than they were licensed for. This situation occurred because guardianship children were not being considered or included in the maximum number of children that the homes were licensed for. (See p. 38.)

The Office of Human Development Services should work with California to assure that federally eligible children are placed only in licensed facilities that fully meet State health and safety requirements. (See p. 41.)

HHS, DEPARTMENT OF STATE, AND STATE OF CALIFORNIA COMMENTS

HHS and the Department of State agreed to take actions that, for the most part, were in line with what GAO had recommended.

The State of California has taken or planned to take actions in areas where GAO pointed out that there was a need for action.

However, while the State did not agree with GAO's conclusion that guardianship children should be counted in determining whether a licensed home had children in excess of capacity, it planned to take a number of actions relating to the licensing procedures for foster family homes. GAO believes that the State's procedures will enable foster home operators to continue to obtain increased capacity by seeking guardianship of their foster children without providing the protections of large family or group home licensing requirements.

CHAPTER 1

INTRODUCTION

This report discusses the circumstances of the placement of foster and guardianship children with the Peoples Temple members who died in Jonestown, Guyana; problems associated with the care and protection provided for guardianship children in three California counties under State law and regulations; and excessive Federal payments made to California for the care of guardianship children.

On February 28, 1979, the Chairman, Subcommittee on Child and Human Development, Senate Committee on Labor and Human Resources, requested us to review the placement of foster children with Peoples Temple members. (See app. I.) In accordance with the Chairman's request, our initial objectives were to determine:

--The extent and circumstances of such placements.

--The amount of Federal funds used to place and/or support these children.

--The circumstances under which foster children were removed from the United States to Guyana.

--Whether any foster children died in Jonestown.

--Whether any Federal funds were diverted from their statutory purpose.

On May 31, 1979, we testified before the Subcommittee in Los Angeles on the results of the initial phases of our review. At the time of our testimony, we agreed to expand our review to determine the:

--Legal requirements and restrictions placed on non-relative guardians by California statutes.

--Extent and adequacy of reviews of potential non-relative guardians by social services agencies.

--Extent and adequacy of continuing social services agency evaluations of nonrelative guardianship children in unlicensed homes.

--Extent of foster care payments to nonrelative guardians and the Federal portion thereof.

The following sections provide background on the Peoples Temple, foster care, guardianships, and freedom of citizens to leave the country.

BEGINNING, GROWTH, AND DEMISE OF THE PEOPLES TEMPLE

Since the mass murders/suicides in Jonestown, much has been written about the Peoples Temple and its leader, Rev. James Jones, Sr. Rev. Jones started his own church in Indiana in the 1950s. By the early 1960s, the church, now referred to as the Peoples Temple, was listed as affiliated with the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ). In the mid-1960s, an envisioned nuclear holocaust prompted Rev. Jones to settle with more than 100 followers in northern California. A temple was built in Redwood Valley, a small community in Mendocino County near Ukiah. Within a few years, Rev. Jones opened facilities in San Francisco and Los Angeles--later, the headquarters of the Peoples Temple was moved to San Francisco. Peoples Temple members included attorneys who assisted Rev. Jones and other members on legal questions ranging from obtaining guardianships of children to operating nonprofit corporations that were primarily engaged in acquiring property for the Peoples Temple.

Rev. Jones became involved in political activities and was publicly identified with many political figures. In late 1976, he was appointed Chairman of the San Francisco Housing Authority Commission by the city's mayor. In August 1977 a national magazine article criticized life in the Peoples Temple. By this time, the Peoples Temple membership of about 1,000 had begun to migrate to the agricultural development community that Rev. Jones had established in Guyana in late 1973. Nearly half of the Peoples Temple members migrated to Guyana in July and August 1977. In late 1977 Rev. Jones resigned from the San Francisco Housing Authority Commission while he was in Guyana.

Small numbers of Peoples Temple members were still arriving monthly at the agricultural development community when the tragedy at Jonestown occurred on November 18, 1978, and 913 Peoples Temple members died.

HOW CHILDREN ENTER AND EXIT FOSTER CARE

Children who reside outside the home of a parent or, in some cases, the home of a specified relative are referred to as foster children. States provide financial assistance to foster parents when the foster child is placed by a court and/or through a State-approved placement agency.

Children normally enter foster care by (1) a court directing placement because of the child's behavior and/or home situation or (2) the parents voluntarily allowing an agency, such as a welfare department, to place the child outside the home. Also, a child can enter the foster care system in California when a nonrelative legal guardian applies for foster care maintenance payments.

Children exit from foster care by (1) returning home, (2) being adopted, (3) becoming the ward of a guardian, (4) reaching majority, or (5) other ways, such as marrying or joining the military services. After children exit foster care, the State social services agencies do not have any further responsibilities to them unless services are requested in the children's behalf or a complaint is filed with the social services agencies concerning the children's well-being.

FEDERAL FUNDING OF FOSTER CARE PROGRAM

Title IV-A of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 608) makes Federal matching funds available to the States under the Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) program for foster home care of dependent children. In fiscal year 1979, Federal funding for title IV-A foster care was $241 million.

The Federal Government also contributes to the support of foster children through titles IV-B (42 U.S.C. 620) and XX (42 U.S.C. 1397) of the Social Security Act. These programs provide Federal matching funds to support child welfare services and social services to adults and children. In fiscal year 1979, Federal funding was $56.5 million for the title IV-B child welfare services program and $2.9 billion for the title XX social services program. The total State and Federal titles IV-A, IV-B, and XX funds allocated for foster care was almost $1.2 billion nationwide for fiscal year 1977, the latest year for which this information is available.

As indicated earlier, there are several ways for a child to enter foster care. Only court-directed placements, however, are eligible for Federal financial participation in the AFDC foster care maintenance payment program. Also, for a case to be eligible for Federal funding, there must be a plan containing information on the foster child's needs and a redetermination of Federal eligibility every 6 months. No Federal regulations require visits by social services caseworkers to check on the well-being of foster children.

While there is no Federal program specifically dedicated to aiding children living with guardians, Federal title IV-B funds can be used for maintenance payments to guardians, and title XX funds can be used to provide services to guardianship children. In chapter 4, we explain why guardianship children are not eligible for title IV-A Federal foster care maintenance payments. The Federal programs for aiding children are administered by the Department of Health and Human Services' (HHS') 1/ Office of Human Development Services and Social Security Administration.

CALIFORNIA'S FOSTER CARE PROGRAM

The California Department of Social Services has overall responsibility for administering the State's foster care program for children. However, under State delegation, the counties operate their own foster care programs. The State gives the counties administrative guidance, program oversight, and fiscal support in operating their programs.

In fiscal year 1979, California spent about $50 million of Federal funds authorized under titles IV-A and XX and about $170 million of State and county funds for its foster care program involving about 28,000 children. The State did not spend any of its title IV-B funds for foster care.

1/Effective May 4, 1980, a separate Department of Education commenced operating. Before that date, the activities discussed in this report were the responsibility of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

CALIFORNIA GUARDIANSHIP OF CHILDREN

Guardianships in California are based on authority provided in the State probate code. For purposes of this report, a guardian is defined as an adult appointed by a court to take care of the person or estate, or person and estate of a minor. Any person may petition the court for guardianship of a minor. Our review concentrated on nonrelative guardianships of persons or persons and estates. Sections 1440 and 1443 of the California Probate Code include requirements for preguardianship suitability investigations by the county agency responsible for public social services. Section 1500 of the [redacted] requires court permission for the guardian to establish a minor's residence outside the State. No statewide figures are available on the actual number of relative or nonrelative guardianships in California. Records on guardianships are on file only at the county probate courts.

RIGHT OF CITIZENS TO LEAVE COUNTRY

Before leaving the country, citizens ordinarily come into contact with only one Government organization--the Passport Services of the Department of State. The Passport Services' primary responsibility is to issue passports to U.S. citizens. A concurrent responsibility is to prevent issuance of a passport to an applicant who is not the person the applicant claims to be or in any other case where fraud is suspected.

Anyone 13 years of age or older may execute a passport application in his or her own behalf. A parent, a legal guardian, or a person in loco parentis (in the place of a parent) must personally appear and execute an application for a child under 13.

OBJECTIVES, SCOPE, AND METHODOLOGY

Our review of Peoples Temple children in Guyana was made at the Department of State headquarters, HHS headquarters, the HHS San Francisco Regional Office, the San Francisco Passport Services, the California Department of Social Services, and 13 California counties. We coordinated our work with the review efforts of the HHS Inspector General and the California attorney general.

From two Department of State lists of verified and unverified Peoples Temple members who died in Guyana and from a list compiled by a Peoples Temple attorney of persons who migrated to Jonestown, we identified 294 names of children under 18 years old who died in Guyana. We used this list to identify and analyze foster care and/or guardianship childre

All of the names of the Peoples Temple members who migrated to Guyana were checked against the State's Medi-Cal files. (Medi-Cal is the State Medicaid program funded under title XIX of the Social Security Act.) In addition, we subpoenaed and examined county welfare records of the children that were identified in the Medi-Cal files. With the assistance of State and county officials, we identified the children who had a welfare history and reviewed the available case files for these children. Available court records on Peoples Temple guardianship children who migrated to Guyana were also obtained.

Our review of guardianship activity in California was made from August through November 1979 at the State Department of Social Services and in three counties--Alameda, Los Angeles, and San Diego--and included an analysis of:

--Probate court records of over 200 guardianship children to determine extent of guardianship protection provided.

--Social services files of 385 of the over 600 children in nonrelative guardianship status as of November 1979 to determine extent of Federal participation in maintenance payments.

--Several foster family homes or other facilities to determine if guardianships were being used to circumvent foster care licensing requirements.

In San Diego County, our review included files of all 72 nonrelative children available. However, because of the large number of nonrelative guardianship children in Alameda and Los Angeles Counties, we limited our review to files of 136 of the 233 children in Alameda County and files of 177 of about 300 children in Los Angeles County. The files of the nonrelative guardianship children in Alameda County were not readily available for our review. Consequently, we reviewed all of the files of children (136) that were given to us by the county during our review at the county offices. In Los Angeles, we selected for review 9 of the 20 suboffices that had the largest number of nonrelative guardianship children and reviewed the files of all of the 177 children at those suboffices.

The objectives of our review are discussed on pages 1 and 2.

- - - -

HHS, the Department of State, the State of California, and officials of the California Judiciary were given an opportunity to comment on our draft report. Written comments were received from HHS on October 22, 1980; from the Department of State on October 27, 1980; and from the State of California on October 24, 1980. These comments, which are set forth in appendixes II, III, and IV, respectively, have been considered by us in preparing this report. Specific comments concerning our recommendations are summarized at the end of each chapter. A California Judiciary official informed us orally on October 21, 1980, that the officials had no comments to offer on the draft report.

CIRCUMSTANCES OF THE TRAGIC DEATHS OF PEOPLES TEMPLE CHILDREN

The exact number and names of all the children who died in Guyana will never be known. More than 200 of the young victims of the tragedy were not individually identified before burial in California. We identified 294 names of persons under the age of 18 years who reportedly died with the Peoples Temple group in Guyana in November 1978.

Most of the children had some history of welfare aid in California before relating to Guyana. Seventeen had previously been in foster care, but had been terminated from foster care (returned to parent or guardian, or adopted) before the Guyana tragedy. Of the 21 children who died in Guyana who were wards of nonrelative Peoples Temple members, 19 were there without the court approval required to change their residence to Guyana. Information regarding Peoples Temple children is discussed in the following sections of this chapter.

MANY OF THE PEOPLES TEMPLE CHILDREN HAD RECEIVED WELFARE ASSISTANCE

Of the 294 children identified as probable victims in Guyana, more than three-fourths (228) had a welfare history in California--206 were previously recipients of both cash grant and noncash aid programs, and 22 were previously recipients of such noncash aid programs as food stamps and Medi-Cal. Of the 206 children in cash grant programs, 189 were previously in the AFDC family group/unemployed parent program, and 17 were previously in foster care.

Demographics and other data on the 17 former foster children who died in Guyana

None of the 17 former foster children who died in Guyana were under the care and custody of the California

Department of Social Services while in Guyana. 1/ Since they had been terminated from the foster care program before migrating to Guyana, no foster care maintenance payments were made on their behalf while they were in Guyana. 2/

Sex, ethnic background and age

Of the 17 Peoples Temple children who had been in foster care, 10 were female and 7 were male. Fourteen of the children were black, and three were white. At the time of death, two children were from 5 to 7 years old, three were from 8 to 10 years old, six were from 11 to 13 years old, and six were from 14 to 16 years old.

First contact with Peoples Temple

Four of the 17 children came into contact with the Peoples Temple by placement actions of county agencies. However, all four exited from foster care through adoption or other court action. Three children were adopted by their Peoples Temple foster parents. The fourth child was a juvenile delinquent placed into a facility operated by Peoples Temple members. The probate court later made this child the ward of a Peoples Temple member and gave approval for the guardian to take the child to Guyana. (See p. 11 for detailed discussion of this case.)

The other 13 children were first exposed to the Peoples Temple by members of their own family, usually the mother.

1/On page 14, we discuss a California attorney general report which addresses a broader Department of Social Services responsibility for Peoples Temple children in Guyana.

2/One child was in foster care while in Guyana, but she survived because she was in Georgetown, Guyana, when the tragedy occurred. In this case foster care maintenance overpayments for 7 months occurred (no Federal funds involved), and the State has taken action to recover these overpayments.

Time spent in foster care

The time spent in foster care by the 17 children ranged from 5 to 156 months. The average time spent in foster care was just under 2 years, excluding two children who were in foster care for 13 years each. The breakdown:

Time in foster care	Number of children
Less than 1 year	5
1 to 2 years	4
2 to 3 years	2
3 to 4 years	4
13 years	2
Total	17

Ten of the 17 children spent all of their time in foster care with Peoples Temple members--including the 2 who were in foster care for 13 years each. The other seven children's foster parents were not Peoples Temple members.

Time out of foster care before migration to Guyana

Four of the children had left foster care less than 6 months before departure, two from 6 months to 1 year, four from 1 to 2 years, six from 4 to 5 years, and one over 6 years.

For the four children who had left foster care within 6 months before their migration to Guyana, we obtained the following information.

--A child's foster parent or guardian took the child to Guyana in July 1977. County foster care payment checks were issued in July and August 1977 and sent to the foster parent's former address in California, but were returned to the county by the Postal Service. The county terminated the child from foster care as of June 30, 1977, because the foster parent or guardian failed to maintain contact with the county. The foster parent or guardian had obtained court approval to take the child to Guyana.

--In July 1977, a U.S. district court judge placed a mother on 3 years' probation and released her to the Peoples Temple agricultural development community in Guyana. The Federal judge permitted the mother to take her 5-year-old child to Guyana. The child had been living with foster parents from October 1976 to July 1977, when foster care payments were terminated because the child was returned to the mother. Passport documents show that the child was taken to Guyana in August 1977 by nonrelative Peoples Temple members; the mother did not arrive in Guyana until January 1978.

--A child who was a ward of the juvenile court had been living with foster parents from June 1974 to March 1976, when the court removed him from foster care to place him in a juvenile detention facility. In April 1976, a nonrelated Peoples Temple member obtained guardianship and court approval to take the child to Guyana. In June 1976, the child, now 13 years old, went to Guyana apparently unaccompanied. We found no evidence that the guardian ever went to Guyana. A newspaper reported that the guardian left the Peoples Temple group shortly after his ward went to Guyana.

--A child was in foster care from May 1973 through March 1977. During this period, she was under two separate guardianships with different nonrelated guardians who were Peoples Temple members. In August 1977 the child arrived in Guyana accompanied by nonrelative adult Peoples Temple members. Her guardian did not migrate to Guyana until March 1978.

The other two children whose foster care status was terminated within 1 year before going to Guyana were in foster care from July 1964 to June 1977. In July 1977, their foster mother began procedures to adopt the two children. State subsidized adoption payments were made to the adoptive parent concurrent with the termination of foster care maintenance payments. The two children were taken to Guyana by their adoptive mother in April 1978, the same month that their adoption was finalized.

For most of the other children, foster care payments were terminated because the children had returned to a relative, usually their mother, before they migrated to Guyana.

Children's family status and persons accompanying children to Guyana

At the time of departure to Guyana, 4 of the 17 children had been reunited with and were accompanied to Guyana by one or both of their parents or a relative; six of the children had been living with a relative, but were not accompanied by a relative; two children were accompanied by their adoptive mother; one child was accompanied by her legal guardian; three children had legal guardians, but did not depart with their guardians; and one child had been adopted, but did not depart with his adoptive parents.

Passport applications frequently indicated trip to Guyana was for vacation

We reviewed the passport applications that were available for 16 of the 17 foster care children to obtain information on their reported reasons for leaving the United States. The passport applications showed that 10 of the children were leaving for a "vacation" for a period of from 20 days to 6 months. Of the other six children, three were reported leaving for Peoples Temple agricultural mission work, one for Peoples Temple human services work, and two did not give a reason for leaving. Peoples Temple members migrating to Guyana commonly stated on their passport application that the purpose of the trip was for a vacation. On the passport application, the section for stating the purpose of travel is optional.

Extent of foster care maintenance payments for the form foster children

Foster care maintenance payments for 3 of the children had been claimed by the State for Federal participation, while the other 14 were funded solely by the State and counties. Payments to the foster care parents of the 17 children who spent some time in foster care totaled $66,000 for the total period of foster care. This included $42,000 paid to foster parents associated with the Peoples Temple. About $5,800 of the $66,000 was provided from title IV-A funds for the three federally funded foster care children. Included in the $5,800 was $750 of Federal funds for a child placed in foster care with a person who was not a Peoples Temple member. This child was a voluntary placement and was later determined by the State to be ineligible for Federal funding.

PEOPLES TEMPLE MEMBERS WERE LEGAL GUARDIANS FOR SOME OF THE YOUNG VICTIMS OF GUYANA

Twenty-one of the 294 children who died in Guyana were wards of nonrelative guardians at the time of their deaths. Seven of the 21 children were included in the 17 children with some history of foster care previously discussed. In addition to these 21 guardianship cases, other children had been wards of nonrelative Peoples Temple members. Peoples Temple members had filed guardianship petitions for more than 50 children. Such children, other than the 21 who were wards at the time of their deaths, reached majority or were returned to their parents before the migration to Guyana.

Guardianships used to circumvent foster care licensing procedures

In the early 1970s, children were being placed in foster care in unlicensed homes of Peoples Temple members in Mendocino County by placement agencies of other California counties, primarily Alameda County. To stop such placements, Mendocino County officials advised the counties that this practice was contrary to State and county regulations, which required that foster children be placed in licensed facilities. Peoples Temple attorneys and members then began filing petitions with probate courts for guardianship of children for Peoples Temple members. Children were placed in the homes of Peoples Temple members who, as guardians, were exempt from the foster care licensing requirement. Only one of the seven homes receiving foster care maintenance payments for guardianship children had a foster care license.

Guardianship children were taken out of country without court approval

Nineteen of the 21 children who died while under California guardianship arrangements had been taken out of the United States for relocation in Guyana without the court approval required by California statutes for change of residence. Guardians of the other two children, both former foster children, had obtained court approval to take their wards to Guyana.

Section 1500 of the California Probate Code requires the guardian to obtain probate court approval to change the residence and domicile of the ward outside the State. The code does not require court approval for absences from the State if residence and domicile are not changed.

Proof of court permission to take guardianship children out of the country not required by Passport Services

The primary purpose of the U.S. Passport Services is to help U.S. citizens obtain passports. The principal documentation required is proof of identity and of U.S. citizenship. Passport officials attempt to verify that the person applying for the passport is the person purported to be, that the person is not a fugitive, and that the passport is not being obtained for illegal purposes. Passport Services does not have procedures that require documentation of court approval for a guardian to take his or her ward outside the United States.

The Passport Services' San Francisco agency processed Peoples Temple members' applications in accordance with existing laws and regulations. Passport officials said that the number of children and elderly persons going to the jungles of Guyana was considered unusual, so they monitored applications from Peoples Temple members for potential passport fraud and kept their national office advised of passports issued to Peoples Temple members.

A California attorney general report 1/ on the Peoples Temple discusses the contact between Department of State and California officials concerning the children taken to Guyana. The report states that there were discussions between California and State Department personnel regarding complaints against Peoples Temple activities in Guyana, including possible foster children being there. However, no fraudulent activities concerning children were established by the Passport Services.

1/ "Report of Investigation of People's Temple," April 1980.

MOST OF THE PEOPLES TEMPLE CHILDREN DID NOT TRAVEL TO GUYANA WITH A PARENT OR GUARDIAN

In migrating to Guyana, the children and the persons who had legal responsibility for the well-being of the children--biological or adoptive parent, other adult relative, or legal guardian--usually traveled separately. An analysis of Department of State passport data and other documentation concerning travel of the 294 children to Guyana showed that:

--96 traveled with parents.

--9 traveled with other relatives.

--2 traveled with legal guardians.

--147 traveled with someone other than parents, guardians, or other adult relatives.

--40 travel arrangements were unknown.

Thus, over half of the children for whom we were able to obtain data went to Guyana without being accompanied by a parent, other adult relative, or guardian.

Peoples Temple files in the custody of the court-appointed trustee in San Francisco contained documents authorizing travel of children. Typically, there were three documents for each child that were signed by a parent or a guardian:

--Limited power of attorney.

--Release of liability.

--Consent to travel and visit.

These documents had the effect of virtually turning the children over to the control and custody of almost anyone within the Peoples Temple. Without ruling on the legality of such documents, in November 1979 a California deputy attorney general told us that the existence of such authorization could establish the voluntary intent of those persons with legal custody of the children to allow other Peoples Temple members to take their children to Guyana.

CONCLUSIONS

Peoples Temple children were commonly transported to Guyana with nonrelative Peoples Temple members. While children frequently went to Guyana without their parent or guardian, no fraudulent activities involving taking the children to Guyana were identified by Passport Services investigations.

We did not identify any children who were under the supervision and care of the California Department of Social Services when they died in Guyana. We identified 17 children, under 18 years of age when they died, who had previously been recipients of foster care maintenance payments. All of the children had been terminated from the foster care program before migrating to Guyana (returned to parent, adopted, or placed in guardianship).

Twenty-one children were wards of nonrelative Peoples Temple member guardians when they died in Guyana. Guardians of only 2 of these children had obtained court approval for their wards to settle in Guyana--the other 19 children had apparently been relocated to Guyana without the court approval required for changing the residence of guardianship children outside California. No regulations require Passport Services to verify that guardians have obtained court permission to take their wards outside the United States.

RECOMMENDATION TO THE SECRETARY OF STATE

We recommend that the Secretary require the U.S. Passport Services to adopt policies and procedures to verify, before issuance of passports, that where required by State law, guardians have obtained court approval to take their wards outside the country for travel and/or residence abroad.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE COMMENTS AND OUR EVALUATION

The Department of State said that its procedures could be adapted for processing passport applications of minors in guardian situations to accomplish the purpose of our recommendation. The Department also said that, under its procedures, a person who is not a parent of the minor applicant must provide proof of the legal relation to the child before a passport is issued and that passports will not be issued if Passport Services is notified in advance that an adult who is a parent, guardian, or person in loco parentis and is normally entitled to travel outside the United States with the child, no longer has that right. The Department added that Passport Services would be willing to inform the States of the availability of this measure to prevent the issuance of a passport to a minor whose guardianship order does not allow travel outside the United States.

We believe that the State Department proposal will help prevent children who are under court-approved guardianship arrangements and who do not have the right to travel outside the United States from obtaining passports to leave the country. However, we believe that there is a need to assure that passports are not given to guardianship children when no advance notice is given to the Passport Services that a child is not permitted to travel outside the country and when State law, such as the California law, requires that guardianship children obtain court approval to reside outside the United States. Therefore, when the Department informs the States of the measure that it has available, the States should be requested to provide pertinent information on State laws regarding the preexisting conditions that are required for taking guardianship children out of the country. The Passport Services should use the information obtained from the States in developing its policies and procedures to insure that passports are not given to guardianship children contrary to State law.

CHAPTER 3

CALIFORNIA'S PROCEDURES FOR HANDLING NONRELATIVE GUARDIANSHIPS ARE NOT ADEQUATE TO ENSURE THE WELL-BEING OF CHILDREN

Since some of the children who died in Guyana were under court-approved guardianship arrangements, our review was expanded to examine the care and protection provided for nonrelative California guardianship children. We found that, although probate court and social services agency protection was potentially available to all children entering or already in nonrelated guardianships in California, neither the probate courts nor the social services agencies were adequately providing this protection.

California probate laws and Department of Social Services regulations include various procedures that can contribute to the well-being of children who are, or are about to become, wards of nonrelative guardians:

1. Suitability reports--State law requires the county public social services agency to report on the suitability of a potential nonrelative guardian's home before guardianship is granted.

2. Continuing periodic reviews--Regulations of the State Department of Social Services require the county public social services agency to perform semiannual assessments of homes after guardianship is granted if foster care maintenance payments are being made to the guardian on behalf of the child.

3. Probate court reviews--Probate court judges grant guardianships and can periodically review such placements. Biennial probate court reviews are required for guardianship children who have estates.

However, these procedures were not consistently implemented, and children frequently did not receive the protection available.

Many children have become wards of nonrelative guardians who had previously obtained community care (foster care) licenses. To obtain licenses, the homes had been investigated by State or county social services agencies. Thus, in addition to the three types of protective procedures discussed above, children entering these homes obtain a fourth type of protection.

To see how well nonrelative guardianship children were being protected, we looked at the probate court files of 208 children in three California counties. Of these, 106 were recipients of foster care maintenance payments, and 102 were not. The petitions for guardianship on all 208 children were submitted after the requirement for suitability reports became effective in 1976.

Except for court reviews of children with estates, the only protective procedure required under State law is a report on the suitability of placing a specific child in the home of a nonrelative who has petitioned the court for guardianship of the child. The other procedures, such as foster care licenses, while not required, can contribute to the well-being of guardianship children.

CALIFORNIA LAW NOT CONSISTENTLY FOLLOWED AS TO WHEN AND HOW PREGUARDIANSHIP SUITABILITY ASSESSMENTS SHOULD BE DONE

California law does not require nonrelative petitioners for guardianship to obtain foster care licenses. Instead, the law requires suitability reports to be prepared to assess the suitability of the homes of nonrelative petitioners. However, such reports generally were not prepared. Therefore, children have been placed in nonrelative guardianships without benefit of an adequate investigation that might help the court assure that the child's needs would be met.

State and county officials have made different interpretations of the State probate code section requiring suitability reports on petitioners applying for guardianship of nonrelated children. While State officials believe that the county social service agency should prepare a report in every nonrelative guardianship case, some county probate judges believe that reports should be done only when the child may also be involved in adoption proceedings or when directed by the court.

The probate code section governing suitability reports states:

> "Sec. 1440.1 Petition for adoption: reports
> If a petition states that an adoption petition has been filed, a report with respect to the suitability of the petitioner for guardianship shall be filed with the court by the agency investigating the adoption. In any other case the local agency designated by the board of supervisors to provide public social services shall file a report with the court with respect to the petitioner of the same character required to be made with regard to an applicant for foster family home licensure."

In a September 16, 1975, letter explaining the intent of the originating bill submitted for the Governor's approval, its author, California State Senator Nicholas Petris, wrote:

> "This bill provides that in all cases where a petition for guardianship over a minor is filed by a nonrelative (who was not named in a will as guardian) a report on the suitability of the petitioner must be filed with the court."

Senator Petris then went on to explain who must file the report: the agency investigating adoptions if an adoption petition had also been filed, or the foster home licensing agency if no adoption petition had been filed.

The State Department of Social Services has interpreted the law in accordance with the intent expressed by Senator Petris in his September 1975 letter. In a February 1976 policy memorandum, the department communicated this to the California county social services agencies. This policy memorandum also explained several of the law's other provisions, describing the flow of information necessary to implement the law, such as the (1) guardianship petitioner's attorney must submit a copy of the petition to the State Department of Social Services' Adoptions Operations Bureau and (2) Adoptions Operations Bureau must, in cases where no adoption is pending, notify the applicable county social services agency that a petition has been filed, so that the local agency can begin the suitability investigation. Meanwhile, the probate court receives the petition and sets a hearing date, which becomes the deadline for the social services agency to complete the report.

Only one of three counties routinely makes preguardianship suitability investigation

Of the three counties reviewed--Alameda, Los Angeles, and San Diego--only Los Angeles County routinely performed preguardianship suitability investigations. Probate judges of the other two counties did not interpret the law according to Senator Petris' stated intent that a report be provided to the court in each case. Rather, they interpreted the law to mean that they should get suitability reports from the local social services agency only when requested or when an adoption petition has been filed for the child.

As a result of the probate courts not requiring the submission of suitability reports and the failure of the county social services agencies to prepare suitability reports unless directed to do so by the probate judges, such reports were not prepared for most children, as shown in the following table.

County	Number of cases reviewed that required preparation of suitability reports	Suitability repoits prepared
Alameda	101	3
Los Angeles	56	42
San Diego	51	3
Total	208	48

Thus, in Los Angeles County, 42 of 56 (75 percent) of the petitioners for nonrelative guardianship were reviewed for suitability. In contrast, only 6 of 152 (less than 4 percent) of the petitioners in the other two counties--Alameda and San Diego--were reviewed for suitability. Two factors seem to account for this difference. First, Los Angeles County probate judges actively enforced the requirement for the local social services agency to prepare and issue suitability reports. In fact, the judges went beyond the State law requirements by directing the petitioners' attorneys to notify the local social services agency directly to make the suitability review, instead of, or in addition to, notifying the State Adoptions Operations Bureau. Secondly, Los Angele County judges have demonstrated a willingness to delay the guardianship hearings to allow the social services workers time to prepare the suitability reports.

When the direct notification to the county social servi agencies was not required by county probate judges (such as in Alameda and San Diego Counties), the required procedure for the State Adoptions Operations Bureau to notify the coun social services agency of the guardianship petition was frequently untimely. As a result, the local agency often did not have time to make the suitability review and report befo the guardianship hearing date. Thus, suitability reports were not prepared unless the judges (such as those in Los Angeles County) required them and were willing to set guardianship hearing dates to accommodate the review. Court officials stated that, without suitability reports, a judge normally grants a nonrelative guardianship of a child based on the merits of the petition and the lack of relative opposition to the petition.

ALTHOUGH NOT REQUIRED, OTHER PROTECTION IS AVAILABLE TO SOME CHILDREN

We assessed the use of other procedures that could have contributed to the well-being of the 160 guardianship childre for whom suitability reports were not prepared. We found that other protective procedures existed to contribute to the well-being of 129 of the 160 children as shown below.

Protective procedure	Number of children
Continuing periodic reviews and foster home licensure investigation	63
Continuing periodic reviews, only	19
Foster home licensure investigation, only	45
	129

Thus, 31 of the children reviewed (160 minus 129) did not benefit from the required suitability report or any of the other protective procedures potentially available.

SUITABILITY REPORTS AND LICENSING EVALUATIONS COVER DIFFERENT ISSUES--ELEMENTS OF BOTH MAY BE NEEDED

State law requires that the suitability reports be of the same character as those made regarding an applicant for foster family home licensure. However, the suitability report criteria developed by Los Angeles and San Diego Counties were quite different from foster home licensing criteria. The licensing criteria covered primarily the physical aspects of the home. On the other hand, the suitability report requirements and actual investigations were much more comprehensive in appraising the social and psychological aspects of the home environment. They also evaluated the merits of guardianship as a placement alternative for the child and the petitioner's motives in seeking guardianship.

Primarily from the perspective of the child's physical well-being, the licensing criteria included three important items not covered by suitability report requirements: (1) evidence of a criminal record check, (2) a physician's certification of the health of the petitioner and other home residents, and (3) a fire clearance for the housing of non-ambulatory children. Suitability reports could be strengthened by incorporating these licensing criteria.

ONGOING REVIEWS OF GUARDIANSHIPS NOT PERFORMED CONSISTENTLY

Preguardianship suitability reports and placement of children with guardians who have foster care licenses do not provide assurances of the continued well-being of children in guardianships. Two types of periodic reviews can provide this ongoing protection: probate court reviews and county social services agency reviews.

California probate courts have not routinely reviewed guardianships unless the children have estates, and social services agency involvement with guardianship children has not been consistent. These findings are discussed in the following sections.

Probate courts do not routinely review guardianships unless the children have estates

California State probate law does not specify whether probate courts must periodically review guardianships of children who do not have estates. Although the probate code refers to periodic reviews of guardianships, it addresses only matters of financial accounting in cases where the guardian has taken custody of the child's estate. It does not address the guardian's "accountability" for a child's physical, social or psychological welfare. Sections 1904 and 1553 of the California Probate Code require that, at the end of 1 year from their appointments, guardians must present their accounts to the court for settlement and allowance. Thereafter accounts must be presented to the court as often as required by the court, but at least biennially.

The lack of a requirement for continuing periodic needs assessments of ongoing guardianships is of particular concern for children not receiving foster care maintenance payments and not living in licensed homes. (Examples of such children are the 31 children shown as receiving no protection on p. 22.) When financial assistance was provided or the home was licensed, the Department of Social Services regulations require periodic contact with the home. However, where no money or license was involved, both the probate court and the social services agency could lose all contact with the child. Contact would only be reestablished if a complaint was made that the child was being neglected or abused.

Social services involvement with guardianship children is not consistent among counties

Although the probate courts do not monitor ongoing guardianships of children without estates, some children--those whose nonrelative guardians were receiving foster care maintenance payments--were afforded some protection through the visits of social services staff. These visits can indicate when the child's needs are not being met and could alert the social services agency of the need to apply appropriate protective service measures, such as involuntary removal of the child for abuse or neglect.

State Department of Social Services regulations 1/ used by county workers in reviewing the eligibility of guardians for financial assistance stated that financial assistance could not be provided until county social workers, in accordance with the "Standards for Social Services," had determined that the home or facility met the child's physical, social, and psychological needs. One section of the standards required the local department of social services to assess a child's needs and determine whether they were being met in the foster home. Another section stated that an initial assessment must be made for each child and that reassessments should be made as frequently as needed but at least every 6 months. This last clause, which established a condition on eligibility for financial assistance, meant that homes receiving assistance for their ward(s) must be reviewed by a social worker, in addition to a (financial) "eligibility" worker, at least every 6 months or lose their funding.

While Alameda and San Diego Counties were enforcing these regulations, the Los Angeles County Department of Public Social Services operated with the understanding that it had little authority for supervising guardianships, since the probate court gave legal responsibility for the child's care to the guardian. Consistent with this understanding, Los Angeles County interpreted the State's financial eligibility regulations as follows: The Department of Public Social Services could initially deny a guardian funds if the first social assessment found the home unsuitable or if the guardian did not cooperate with the social worker. However, once the home was found suitable and funding was approved, the department would not stop payments if the guardian did not allow the social worker to reassess the home. Rather, the rate of financial support would be reduced to the base level (minimum rate paid by the county) and the case would then remain open only for providing the monthly maintenance payment.

1/Although the department did not intend to reduce protection for children in guardianship arrangements, in January 1980 its regulations covering guardian situations were revised and reference to guardians was inadvertently deleted. Current State regulations do not provide guidance for handling guardianships. A State official advised us that actions will be taken to reinstate the State regulation covering guardianships.

CONCLUSIONS

County public social services agencies did not always report to the court on the suitability of petitioners for guardianship of nonrelative children. This noncompliance with California State law was attributed to (1) judges not requiring the reports and (2) insufficient time to prepare the reports before the guardianship hearing dates. The result was that most of the children we reviewed in two of the three counties did not receive the protections provided by State law.

When prepared, suitability reports included an assessment of whether the proposed guardianship arrangement would meet the child's psychological and social needs. We believe the assessment should be expanded to address more fully other areas, such as evidence of criminal records check, physician certification of health of petitioner and other residents of the home, and a fire clearance for the home if the petition is being filed for a nonambulatory child.

While suitability reports were intended for all nonrelative guardianship children, two other types of protection exist for many children. First, some children, because their guardians receive foster care maintenance payments on their behalf, benefit from continuing periodic reviews of the guardianship home by county social workers. Second, the guardians of many of the children were previously investigated for a foster care license. Nevertheless, 15 percent of the children in our review received none of the three major types of protection offered by State laws and regulations.

Although no cases of abuse were noted, one of the counties we reviewed had a policy which would allow foster care maintenance payments to continue to guardians who did not let county social workers periodically visit the home to assess whether the child's needs were being met. This policy was contrary to State regulations and should be corrected. Recent revisions to State regulations inadvertently deleted guidance to the counties on how to handle guardianship cases. According to a State official, this oversight will be corrected.

RECOMMENDATIONS TO THE SECRETARY OF HHS

HHS has acknowledged its role as an advocate for the welfare of all the Nation's children. In fulfilling this role, HHS could be instrumental in improving the protection provided to guardianship children. To accomplish this goal, we recommend that the Secretary direct the Office of Human Development Services to encourage California to:

--Reiterate to the probate court judges the importance of county social workers' preparing suitability reports on petitioners for nonrelative guardianship children.

--Help the county social services agencies expand criteria on suitability reports to cover more fully the physical well-being of children, such as criminal checks and health certificates for petitioners and fire clearances for petitioners' homes.

--Reissue regulations governing guardianship situations and require compliance by county social services agencies.

HHS AND STATE OF CALIFORNIA COMMENTS AND OUR EVALUATION

HHS

According to HHS, we were correct in stating that California should emphasize the importance of having county social workers prepare meaningful suitability reports on the petitioners for guardianship children to further ensure the children's well-being. However, concerning our recommendation that it encourage California to reissue its regulations, HHS misinterpreted it to mean that we are recommending that HHS issue Federal regulations governing guardianships where the care and maintenance of such children is not the responsibility of the State agency's federally funded foster care program. HHS, therefore, said it lacked legal authority to issue the regulations, and it did not inform us of any actions it would take in response to our recommendation.

State of California

The Director, California Department of Social Services, agreed with our recommendations and stated that the following actions have been or will be taken:

--Asked the California attorney general to issue, and circulate to all probate court judges, a legal opinion on the Probate Code concerning the necessity for preparing a suitability study before awarding guardianships.

--Issued directives to county social services departments reiterating and redefining their role and responsibilities in conducting home suitability studies. These directives also address the need to cover the physical well-being of children when conducting home suitability studies. Also, the directives instruct the counties to notify the court of any delay and to seek postponement of the hearing if necessary to enable them to file the report before the granting of guardianships.

--To alleviate the problem of insufficient time allotted to counties to prepare suitability studies, the department has sponsored State legislation to increase from 15 to 60 days the time frame for completion of the studies.

--Regulations governing guardianship situations are being prepared to replace the regulation inadvertenly deleted. In addition, a State law was recently enacted which specifies requirements to be met before children living with nonrelated legal guardians are eligible for financial assistance: (1) the legal guardian must cooperate with the county welfare department in developing a needs assessment, updating the assessment every 6 months, and carrying out the service plan, and (2) the county social services department must complete the needs assessment, update it every 6 months, and carry out the service plan.

CALIFORNIA IS RECEIVING FEDERAL FOSTER CARE REIMBURSEMENT FOR INELIGIBLE GUARDIANSHIP CHILDREN

Guardianship children do not meet the criteria for Federal reimbursement of foster care maintenance payments under title IV-A. The Social Security Act requires, among other things, that the care and placement responsibility for foster children reside with the State IV-A agency (in California, the Department of Social Services). We reviewed cases for 385 nonrelative guardianship children in three California counties to determine whether Federal reimbursement was being claimed. We found that the counties improperly requested and received Federal reimbursement for foster care maintenance payments for guardianship children amounting to about $320,000. Generally, the counties were not aware of the Federal requirement to terminate Federal financial participation for guardianship children no longer under the care and placement of the State IV-A agency.

The following sections discuss the requirements for AFDC Federal financial participation and our findings in the three counties reviewed.

CERTAIN CONDITIONS MUST BE MET FOR CHILDREN TO BE ELIGIBLE FOR FEDERAL FINANCIAL PARTICIPATION

To be eligible for AFDC Federal financial participation, a child must meet the Federal requirements in sections 406 or 408 of the Social Security Act. Federal aid under title IV-A AFDC is available to

--a dependent child (1) who has been deprived of parental support, (2) who is living with a specified relative, (3) who is under 18 (or under 21 if regularly attending school), and (4) whose family meets income eligibility requirements--this category is referred to as AFDC family group/unemployed parent program--or

--a dependent child removed from his or her home by judicial determination (1) whose placement and care are the responsibility of the agency specified by the title IV-A plan, (2) who was placed in a State licens or approved foster care facility, and (3) whose famil meets income eligibility requirements--this category is referred to as AFDC foster care.

Nonrelative guardianship children are not eligible for Federal financial participation under either aid program. Guardianship children are not eligible for the AFDC family group/unemployed parent program unless the guardian is a rel tive as specified in section 406. Similarly, guardianship children are not eligible for AFDC foster care because the probate courts remove federally eligible foster children fro the care of the State agency and give the responsibility of caring for the children to the guardians. The responsibility for placement of these children is also taken from the State agency and retained by the court. To remove such a child fro his or her guardian, the State agency must obtain court revie and approval.

At the time of our review, HHS was not aware that California was receiving reimbursement for guardianship children under the Federal foster care program. Also, HHS had not issued any instructions to California notifying it that guard ianship children were not eligible for Federal reimbursement under the program.

CALIFORNIA COUNTIES RECEIVING FEDERAL REIMBURSEMENT FOR INELIGIBLE GUARDIANSHIP CHILDREN

Each of the three counties we reviewed had received Federal reimbursement for foster care maintenance payments on behalf of guardianship children. These Federal overpayments occurred when the county agencies did not terminate children from Federal foster care financial participation when they became wards of guardians. Such children originally met the requirements for Federal financial participation under sectio 408 of the Social Security Act. After becoming wards of guar ians, they remained eligible for State foster care maintenanc payments, but lost their Federal eligibility.

State regulations allow payments to nonrelative guardians under foster care provision

California Department of Social Services regulations allow nonrelative guardians to request and receive foster care maintenance payments for their wards. Every 6 months the county agencies are required to assess whether the needs of the child are being met in the guardian's home.

Federal overpayments for guardianship children identified at three counties reviewed

The following sections describe our findings on nonrelative guardianship children reviewed in each county.

Alameda County

As of November 1979, 233 children were in nonrelative guardianship status in Alameda County receiving maintenance payments under the State's foster care provisions. Upon reviewing case files on 136 of these, we found that Federal foster care maintenance payments were made for 61 children after guardianship was granted. In most cases, dependency was terminated within a few months after guardianship was granted, and in some cases, Federal financial participation was also terminated. The Federal overpayments ranged from 1 to 75 months per child and totaled $173,000.

Foster care maintenance payments for 39 of the 61 guardianship children were still being federally supported at the time of our review. Alameda County officials said these children will continue to be classified as federally eligible, and adjustments to reimburse the Federal Government for the overpayments will not be made unless the county is directed to do so by the State Department of Social Services.

Los Angeles County

As of November 1979, about 300 children were in nonrelative guardianship status in Los Angeles County receiving maintenance payments under the State's foster care provisions. We reviewed case files on 177 of them and found that Federal foster care maintenance payments were made for 26 children after guardianship was granted and dependency was terminated. Federal overpayments ranged from 1 to 79 months per child and totaled $107,000.

Foster care maintenance payments for 20 of the 28 guardianship children were still being federally supported at the time of our review. Los Angeles County officials stated that appropriate actions have begun to classify all guardianship children as non-Federal and that adjustments to reimburse the Federal Government were being made in all cases.

San Diego County

As of November 1979, 72 children were in nonrelative guardianship status in San Diego County receiving maintenance payments under the State's foster care provisions. We reviewed all the case files and found that Federal foster care maintenance payments had been made for 17 children after guardianship was granted and dependency was terminated. The Federal overpayments ranged from 1 to 57 months per child and totaled $40,000.

None of the guardianship children were being federally supported at the time of our review. San Diego County policy was revised to appropriately indicate that guardianship children are not eligible for Federal financial participation in foster care maintenance payments. The county has not received Federal reimbursement for foster care maintenance payments for guardianship children since February 1979. County officials stated that adjustments to reimburse the Federal Government for the overpayments received for guardianship children will be made only if the county is directed to do so by the State Department of Social Services.

CONCLUSIONS

The three California counties we reviewed had received Federal reimbursement for foster care maintenance payments made on behalf of guardianship children who were not eligible for Federal financial participation.

Alameda County officials indicated that they will continue to claim these children as eligible for Federal financial participation unless directed otherwise by the State Department of Social Service. The other two counties reviewed have taken action to terminate guardianship children from Federal reimbursement, and one, Los Angeles County, has initiated actions to reimburse the Federal Government for the overpayments involved. These overpayments occurred because the counties were not aware of the requirement to identify and terminate the Federal eligibility of guardianship children who were no longer under the care and placement responsibility of the State Department of Social Services.

Because of the problems noted in the three California counties, we believe that Federal overpayments for guardianship children could be occurring in other California counties and other States. HHS needs to issue clarifying instructions to all the States explaining that guardianship children lose their eligibility for Federal foster care maintenance payments when the care and placement responsibilities of such children are taken from the State title IV-A agency. Also, HHS officials need to survey the situation nationwide to assess the overall significance of Federal overpayments for ineligible guardianship children.

RECOMMENDATIONS TO THE SECRETARY OF HHS

To ensure that Federal financial participation in maintenance payments to foster children is made only for those meeting the Federal criteria, we recommend that the Secretary direct the Office of Human Development Services to:

--Issue instructions to all the States notifying them that guardianship children are not eligible for Federal reimbursement for foster care maintenance payments when responsibility for such children is removed from the State title IV-A agency.

--Follow up on Federal overpayments for ineligible guardianship children and work with California to identify and make retroactive adjustments for the overpayments in the three counties reviewed and the counties not reviewed.

--Determine whether other States are erroneously including guardianship children as federally eligible for foster care. If so, act to identify and recover the overpayments.

HHS AND STATE OF CALIFORNIA COMMENTS AND OUR EVALUATION

HHS

Regarding our first recommendation, HHS stated that:

> "GAO is correct that Federal financial participation in maintenance payments for foster care should be made only for those children meeting Federal criteria. Existing regulations clearly define the conditions under which States can claim Federal financial participation for foster care maintenance. Pursuant to the recently-enacted Adoption Assistance and Child Welfare Act of 1980 (P.L. 96-272), regulations are being developed which will further define the requirements for FFP [Federal financial participation] for foster care maintenance. The new legislation and regulations pertaining thereto, will also require States to arrange for a periodic, independently conducted audit of this program, to occur no less frequently than once every three years. This law, and the regulations to follow, also mandate a minimum set of reporting requirements to this Department relative to the status of the program. It is expected that there will be no lack of clarity in determining for whom Federal payments may be made for foster care maintenance. In addition, program reviews conducted by this Department will reveal any lack of adherence to the requirements for Federal financial participation."

Concerning our second recommendation, HHS stated that Social Security Administration regional staff will be directed to determine whether there were ineligible guardianship children for whom the State claimed Federal financial participation under the AFDC foster care program. HHS said the review will also determine whether the guardianship status of the children terminated the placement and care responsibility of the State or local agency administering the State plan or any public agency with whom the State or local agency had an agreement which included provisions for assuming development of a plan of care. A disallowance will be made for cases that are determined to have been ineligible for AFDC foster care payments under title IV-A.

As to our third recommendation, HHS stated that the Office of Human Development Services, which assumed responsibility for the AFDC foster care program on October 1, 1980, from Social Security's Office of Family Assistance, will make efforts to ensure that only children who meet the program's eligibility requirements are included in the States' claims for Federal participation. HHS added that the Office of Family Assistance will request HHS' Audit Agency to review States' expenditures for AFDC foster care for periods before October 1, 1980, and to take appropriate action.

We believe that actions to identify the disallowance of ineligible Federal foster care payments should not be delayed because of provisions of Public Law 96-272, enacted on June 17, 1980, entitled the Adoption Assistance and Child Welfare Act of 1980, which affect future payments to States for foster care. This legislation provides that the fiscal year 1978 Federal foster care payments to States are to be used as the ceiling and basis for payments to States for fiscal year 1981 and later years. The legislation also provides that payments made to States in fiscal year 1981 and beyond will not be subject to recovery for excessive payments resulting from overstated fiscal year 1978 payments. Therefore, action should be taken to reduce the 1978 base-year payments for any overpayments as soon as possible.

State of California

The State said that Federal eligibility currently exists in certain guardianship cases where the detention order making a child the responsibility of the county social services department is not dismissed but guardianship is awarded. We agree with the State since, in these cases, the care and supervision of the guardianship child remains with the county social services department. The State agreed that Federal foster care maintenance funds are not available for other children living with nonrelated legal guardians. The State also expressed the view that HHS should implement regulations which provide for title IV-A funding for such children.

The State also requested that all action relative to recovery of funds be postponed until (1) HHS issues instructions to the States and (2) the State of California has reviewed each case GAO found to be ineligible for Federal funds.

As previously discussed, we believe that actions should be initiated as soon as possible to follow up on ineligible payments because of the impact of Public Law 96-272 on determining payments to States for foster care starting in fiscal year 1981.

CHAPTER 5

GUARDIANSHIPS HAVE BEEN USED TO OBTAIN CHILDREN IN EXCESS OF THE NUMBER AUTHORIZED BY FOSTER HOME LICENSING REGULATIONS

The operators of 16 State-licensed small family homes appeared to have more children than authorized by community care (foster care) licensing criteria. More children were in these homes because guardianship children were not counted or considered as foster care children. Transfer of licensing responsibility at the State level along with failure to address the problem allowed these placements to continue for many years. Potentially, the health and welfare of all the children are jeopardized when residing in a home with more than the number of children the house is licensed for. In early 1980, the State initiated action to review these homes.

During our review of guardianship children, we noted that certain homes contained many of these children. (See chs. 3 and 4.) Using this information, we reviewed licensing records and identified 16 homes in Los Angeles County where the number of children appeared to exceed licensed capacity. No such homes were identified in Alameda and San Diego Counties.

MANY OF THE CHILDREN IN THESE HOMES ARE PARTIALLY SUPPORTED BY FEDERAL FUNDING

The operators of the 16 small family homes receive moneys from the California Department of Social Services and Developmental Services for taking care of children with developmental disabilities (including mental retardation, cerebral palsy, epilepsy, and autism). The homes receive foster care maintenance payments for the guardianship children and the non-guardian foster children placed in the home. Developmentally disabled children are difficult to place and require more attention than most foster children. Los Angeles County pays individuals that take disabled children a premium rate of up to $743 per month per child depending on how much extra attention the child requires. Payments for many of these children include Federal foster care or Supplemental Security Income funding. In December 1979, the 16 homes had 112 children for whom they were receiving foster care maintenance payments. Federal and State payments to each of the 16 homes ranged between $30,000 and $80,000 per year, with total annual payments to all the homes of about $1 million.

CHILDREN RESIDE IN 16 FOSTER HOMES IN EXCESS OF EVALUATED CAPACITY

Social services placement agencies have placed children in each of 16 small family homes in Los Angeles County having in excess of six children, the capacity of each of these State-licensed homes.

Community care licensing laws are meant to prevent children from being placed in residences that do not meet certain health and safety standards. The standards that apply vary with the number of children for which the home is licensed. In California no more than six children, in addition to the operator's own children, can reside in a small family home. None of the homes had more than six nonguardian foster children. However, operators of the 16 homes were able to circumvent the the licensing laws and house more than six children by obtaining guardianship on some children and still have up to six nonguardian foster children placed in their homes. This occupancy of children in excess of evaluated capacity of the homes has occurred because State and local social services personnel have not counted the guardianship children among the children placed in the homes in determining compliance with licensing capacity.

Requirements for large family homes are more stringent than for small family homes

Homes licensed for more than six children (large family homes) must meet more stringent requirements than homes licensed for six children or fewer (small family homes). These requirements include:

--Meeting more stringent fire regulations.

--Hiring a social worker as an ongoing consultant to the operator to plan for each child's daily activities.

--Hiring skilled employees.

--Keeping records on revenues and expenses.

Because of the more stringent requirements applicable to large family homes, the operators of the 16 homes have benefited by retaining their small family home classification. Simultaneously, they have operated more like a large family home without having to meet the requirements for large family home classification.

REORGANIZATIONS OF THE LICENSING AGENCIES AND VARYING INTERPRETATIONS OF REGULATIONS ALLOWED THE SITUATION TO CONTINUE

The problem of whether guardianship children should be counted for licensing purposes stems primarily from the ambiguity of regulations regarding the status of such children. This ambiguity has been perpetuated, in part, because the State agency responsible for licensing has changed twice in recent years. Before 1974, the State Department of Mental Hygiene had licensing responsibility for these homes. Under its policies, guardianship children were included in the maximum number of children that could be placed in a home. From 1974 to 1978, the State Department of Health was responsible for licensing small family homes. The regulations and policies of the Department of Mental Hygiene were no longer in effect, and the Department of Health foster care regulations did not refer to guardianship children. Therefore, some State licensing offices that had managers from the prior Department of Mental Hygiene staff continued to count guardianship children, but other licensing offices that did not have managers from the prior department did not count the guardianship children in determining compliance with the licensing capacity.

In 1978 licensing responsibility was again transferred, this time to the Department of Social Services, Community Care Licensing Division. Department of of Social Services regulations state that small family homes are licensed to provide care for not more than six foster children. These regulations, like the prior Department of Health regulations, do not instruct the licensing offices on whether or not guardianship children should be included or excluded from the maximum number of children that can be placed in a small family home.

The large number of children in these homes came to our attention in September 1979, and we visited two of the homes. At that time, we discussed the problem of placements with Los Angeles County licensing personnel. In December 1979, the State licensing office in Los Angeles requested the State Community Care Licensing Division's policy staff to resolve the problem, since placing children in homes in excess of licensing regulations results in overcrowding, inadequate services, and potential neglect of children.

In March 1980, a State Community Care Licensing Division memorandum directed the State licensing office in Los Angeles to consider guardianship children in the maximum number of children (six) that a small family home can be licensed for. Homes not in compliance with required criteria will be evaluated and will be required to obtain a large home license, if they are able, or reduce the number of children placed with them if they choose to remain a small family home.

CONCLUSIONS

The health and welfare of children are jeopardized when they are placed in a home in excess of the capacity to care for them. This may have occurred in 16 small family homes in Los Angeles County which have obtained guardianship for some children. Because of ambiguous regulations and inaction by the State licensing agency, children residing in the homes (including guardianship children) have exceeded the limitation of six for which they were evaluated and licensed.

After our review, the State Community Care Licensing Division issued instructions to assess the placement of children in foster homes when total number of children in the home may exceed its capacity for care. The instruction specified that guardianship children must be considered in establishing the number of children that each home is licensed for.

Although the 16 homes in Los Angeles County are being reviewed, the placing of children in homes in excess of licensed capacity could continue if any of the homes have the capacity to care for more than six children. We believe that foster home operators can continue to obtain increased capacity by seeking guardianship of their foster children without providing the protections of large family or group home licensing requirements.

RECOMMENDATION TO THE SECRETARY OF HHS

We recommend that the Secretary direct the Office of Human Development Services to work with California to see that Federal funding is provided only for children placed in licensed facilities that fully meet State health and welfare licensing requirements.

HHS AND STATE OF CALIFORNIA COMMENTS AND OUR EVALUATION

HHS

HHS concurred with our recommendation and said that a dialogue has been initiated between departmental staff and the State Department of Social Services regarding the review of licensing standards, procedures, and practices and the need for corrective action in this area.

HHS also said it would soon be issuing regulations governing the administration of the Adoption Assistance and Child Welfare Act of 1980 that will further define and reiterate the requirement that a foster home must meet the standards prescribed by the State licensing agency. Further, HHS said it would furnish ongoing technical assistance and guidance to the State agencies and assist them in reviewing their programs to ensure compliance with these standards.

State of California

While California did not agree with our conclusion that guardianship children should be counted in the six foster children that the homes are licensed for, it planned to take a number of actions dealing with the licensing procedures for foster family homes.

The State said that the Department of Social Services' Community Care Licensing Division would issue a release to all licensing agencies to reaffirm the importance of current State regulations for small family homes and children and foster family homes which require an evaluation of the presence of other members of the household to determine the extent to which these individuals impair or affect the ability of the foster parent(s) to adequately care for the foster children. Also, after the review, the presence of another individual could result in a reduction of the licensed capacity based on the inability of the foster parent(s) to care for a specific number of foster children because of the needs of other household members.

In addition, the State plans to propose new regulations which will --require notification to the licensing agency when additional members are added to the family, --authorize the licensing agency to reduce capacity based upon these additions to the family, and

--require notification to the licensing agency if members of the household leave when those individuals were responsible for the provision of care and supervision.

We believe the State's proposed action and the plans to review each of the 16 homes to determine if their licensed capacity should be reduced because of the presence of the guardianship children should be beneficial. It does not appear, however, to address the principal issue that we believe should be considered--foster homes should not be allowed to obtain guardianships in order to house more than the number of children they are licensed for. The placing of children in homes in excess of licensed capacity could continue if the homes have the capacity to care for more than six children. We believe that foster home operators can continue to obtain increased capacity by seeking guardianship of their foster children without providing the additional protections of large family or group home licensing requirements.

We believe that HHS in its dialogue with the State should emphasize that federally funded children should not be placed in facilities that do not fully meet State health and welfare licensing requirements.

COMMITTEE ON HUMAN RESOURCES
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20510

February 28, 1979

Honorable Elmer B. Staats
Comptroller General
General Accounting Office
441 G Street, N. W.
Washington, D. C. 20548

Dear Elmer,

A number of reports about the alleged placement of foster children in homes or facilities operated by the People's Temple or by its members -- and the deaths of an unknown number of these foster children in Jonestown, Guyana, -- have come to my attention in connection with hearings before the Subcommittee on Child and Human Development on abuse of children in out-of-home placements. The first day of these hearings was held in San Francisco, California, on January 4; a second day was held in Washington, D.C., on January 24, 1979.

I believe that it is important to learn whether there is any foundation for these reports and the extent to and purpose for which federal funds have been utilized in connection with any such placements. I am also deeply concerned about the implications of these reports for Congressional efforts to reform the foster care system. As you know, your report (No. HRD-77-40) in February of 1977 on foster children and the steps for Congress to consider taking to improve their care stimulated a great deal of Congressional and Administration interest in enacting reform measures. Although we were not successful during the last Congress in seeing these measures enacted, legislation dealing with this problem passed both the House and Senate during the 95th Congress (H.R. 15511 and H.R. 6693 as passed by the Senate, and H.R. 7200 and H.R. 11711 as passed by the House). I certainly plan a renewed effort during the 96th Congress to enact legislation in this area.

Hence, I am requesting that the General Accounting Office conduct an investigation of the allegations that foster children were placed in homes or facilities operated by the People's Temple or by its members; the extent to which federal funds, if any, were utilized for the placement or support (or both) of children in homes or facilities operated by the People's Temple or its members; the extent to which any such federal funds were diverted from their statutory purpose; whether any foster children died in Jonestown; the circumstances under which any foster children were placed in homes or facilities operated by the People's Temple or by its members (including what information was known to the local agency when the placement was made); and the circumstances under which any of those foster children were removed from the United States to Guyana (including what information was known to the local agency immediately prior to their removal and during their residency there).

If there appears to be any foundation to the reports regarding the placement of foster children in homes or facilities operated by the People's Temple or by its members, I would also like your opinion as to whether the reform measures which passed the Senate (or were proposed in S. 1928 or H.R. 7200 as passed by the House) during the last Congress could have -- if enacted and implemented years ago -- prevented or reduced the likelihood of this result. I would also appreciate any suggestions for improvements in the legislation which passed the Senate.

I would appreciate very much your immediate attention to this matter and your response on an expedited basis. If you have any questions, please contact Susanne Martinez, counsel to the Subcommittee on Child and Human Development (224-9151).

Thank you for your cooperation with the Subcommittee.

Sincerely,

Alan Cranston

Subcommittee on Child and Human Development

Dear Mr. Ahart:

The Secretary asked that I respond to your request for our comments on your draft report entitled, "After the Peoples Temple Tragedy--Actions Required to Improve the Care and Protection of Guardianship Children." DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES COMMENTS ON GAO DRAFT REPORT "AFTER THE PEOPLES TEMPLE TRAGEDY-- ACTIONS REQUIRED TO IMPROVE THE CARE AND PROTECTION OF GUARDIANSHIP CHILDREN"

GAO Recommendations (page 27)

HHS has acknowledged its role as an advocate for the welfare of all the Nation's children. In fulfilling this role, HHS could be instrumental in improving the protection provided to guardianship children. To accomplish this goal we recommend that the Secretary, HHS, direct the Office of Human Development Services to encourage the State of California to:

Reiterate to the probate court judges the importance of county social workers preparing suitability reports on petitioners for non-relative guardianship children.

Assist county social services agencies in expanding criteria on suitability reports to cover more fully the physical well-being of children, such as criminal checks and health certificates for petitioners, and fire clearances for petitioners' homes.

Reissue regulations governing guardianship applications and require compliance by county social services agencies.

Comment

GAO is correct that States (including California) should emphasize the importance of having county social workers prepare meaningful suitability reports on the petitioners for guardianship children to further ensure the children's well-being. However, the Department lacks legal authority to issue Federal regulations governing guardianship when the care and maintenance of such children is not the responsibility of the State agency's federally funded foster care program.

GAO Recommendation - (Page 33)

That the Secretary, HHS, direct the Office of Human Development Services to determine whether other States are erroneously including guardianship children as federally eligible for foster care. If so, action should be taken to identify and recover the overpayments.

APPENDIX II

Comment

The Office of Human Development Services assumed responsibility for the AFDC-Foster Care program effective October 1, 1980. Through State Child Welfare Program Reviews, and other mechanisms, OHDS will make on-going efforts to ensure that only those children who meet this program's eligibility requirements are included in States' claims for Federal financial participation.

Regarding States who may have erroneously included guardianship children as federally eligible for foster care, prior to October 1, 1980, the Social Security Administration's Office of Family Assistance will request the Department's Audit Agency (through the Inspector General's Office) to review States' expenditures for AFDC-FC for periods prior to October 1, 1980 and to take appropriate action.

GAO Recommendation - (Page 33)

That the Secretary, HHS, direct the Office of Human Development Services to follow-up on Federal overpayments for ineligible guardianship children and work with the State of California to identify and make retroactive adjustments for the overpayments in the three counties reviewed and the counties not reviewed.

Comment

Inasmuch as this recommendation pertains to a period of time when the Social Security Administration administered the foster care maintenance program, the Social Security Administration Regional staff will be directed to determine whether there were ineligible guardianship children for whom the State claimed FFP under the AFDC-Foster Care program. The review will include a determination as to whether the guardianship status of the children terminated the placement and care responsibility of the State or local agency administering the State plan or any public agency with whom the State or local agency had an agreement which included provisions for assuming development of a plan of care. A disallowance will be made for those cases which are determined to have been ineligible for AFDC-FC payments under Title IV-A.

GAO Recommendations - (Page 33)

To ensure that Federal financial participation in maintenance payments to foster children is made only for those meeting the Federal criteria, we recommend that the Secretary, HHS, direct the Office of Human Development Services to issue instructions to all the States notifying them that guardianship children are not eligible for Federal reimbursement for foster care maintenance payments when responsibility for such children is removed from the State Title IV-A agency.

Comment

GAO is correct that Federal financial participation in maintenance payments for foster care should be made only for those children meeting Federal criteria. Existing regulations clearly define the conditions under which States can claim Federal financial participation for foster care maintenance. Pursuant to the recently-enacted Adoption Assistance and Child Welfare Act of 1980 (P.L. 96-272), regulations are being developed which will further define the requirements for FFP for foster care maintenance. The new legislation and regulations pertaining thereto, will also require States to arrange for a periodic, independently conducted audit of this program, to occur no less frequently than once every three years. This law, and the regulations to follow, also mandate a minimum set of reporting requirements to this Department relative to the status of the program. It is expected that there will be no lack of clarity in determining for whom Federal payments may be made for foster care maintenance. In addition, program reviews conducted by this Department will reveal any lack of adherence to the requirements for Federal financial participation.

APPENDIX II

GAO Recommendation - (Page 41)

That HHS direct the Office of Human Development Services to work with the State of California to see that planned corrective action is taken and that Federal funding is provided only for children placed in licensed facilities that fully meet State health and welfare licensing requirements.

Comment

The Department concurs with this recommendation. Dialogue has already begun between Departmental staff and the State Social Services Agency regarding the review of licensing standards, procedures and practices, and to plan corrective action in this area. In addition, Departmental staff, in concert with State Social Services staff, will conduct follow-up reviews of other relevant areas. These will include social assessments for placements, Social Work supervision of placements and the types of children placed, monitoring of counties' placements, use and length of stay in emergency shelter care, the recruitment of foster parents, and establishing the extent to which foster parents are a resource. On site work will be initiated in January 1981.

The Department will soon be issuing regulations governing the administration of the Adoption Assistance and Child Welfare Act of 1980 (P.L. 96-272) that will further define and reiterate the requirement that a foster home must meet the standards prescribed by the State licensing agency. We will furnish ongoing technical assistance and guidance to the State agencies and assist them in the review of their programs to ensure compliance with these standards.

Enclosure:
As stated

GAO DRAFT REPORT:
"AFTER THE PEOPLES TEMPLE TRAGEDY -- ACTIONS REQUIRED TO IMPROVE THE CARE AND PROTECTION OF GUARDIANSHIP CHILDREN"

The GAO draft report concerning the care and protection of guardianship children states on page 24 that "[t]here are no regulations that require Passport Services to verify that guardians have obtained court permission to take their wards outside the United States". The report recommends that Passport Services establish procedures for verifying whether the state laws governing guardianship relations requires specific court permission to take a ward out of the United States, and whether such permission was granted for each guardian applying for a passport for his or her ward.

While such a specific regulation as GAO recommends is not part of Passport Services procedures, present procedure is rigorous enough to be adapted for processing passport applications of minors in guardian situations to accomplish the purpose contemplated in GAO's recommendation. Under present procedure a person who is not a parent of the minor applicant must provide proof of the legal relation to the child before a passport is issued. Furthermore, passports will not be issued if Passport Services is notified in advance that an adult who is a parent, guardian or person in loco parentis and is normally entitled to travel outside the United States with the child no longer has that right. Such notification frequently occurs in child custody situations, where one of the child's parents does not have the legal right to travel with the child or to obtain a passport for him or her by virtue of a court order granting sole custody to the other parent.

Present passport regulations are fully compatible with denying passports based upon notice and the presentation of an order by a court establishing a guardianship relation for a child which does not permit the child's travel outside the United States. Such notice would be effective everywhere within the United States, and would be specifically applicable only to those few cases of guardianship where foreign travel is not permitted, while not inconveniencing the majority of guardians who have the right to travel abroad with the ward. Furthermore, it does not incur the risk of a guardian successfully evading the wishes of the court by misrepresenting the terms of the guardianship relation.

Passport Services would be willing to inform the States Attorneys of the states, territories and the District of Columbia of the availability of this measure to prevent issuance of a passport to a minor whose guardianship order does not allow travel outside the United States. Passport Services further proposes to emphasize to its agents that all guardianship situations do not contemplate or permit travel outside the United States, and to change the relevant internal regulations to reflect this situation.

Mr. Gregory J. Ahart, Director

Dear Mr. Ahart:

U.S. GENERAL ACCOUNTING OFFICE (GAO) REPORT ENTITLED, AFTER THE PEOPLE'S TEMPLE TRAGEDY — ACTIONS REQUIRED TO IMPROVE THE CARE AND PROTECTION OF GUARDIANSHIP CHILDREN

This will provide you with the California Department of Social Services' comments concerning the findings and recommendations contained in the above mentioned report. Also attached is a detailed response to each of the report's findings. Please see Attachment A.

The four major issues identified in the GAO examination are:

1. The circumstances of the placement of foster and guardianship children with the People's Temple members who perished in Jonestown, Guyana.

2. Problems associated with the care and protection provided for guardianship children in California.

3. Alleged excessive federal payments made to California for the care of guardianship children.

4. Placement of children in foster care homes unrelated to guardianship children.

The first issue in your report concerned the findings and conclusions of our own investigation into public and [illegible] that 168 foster children lived in Jonestown, Guyana. [illegible] Department's investigation, conducted by the Fraud Prevention Bureau, [illegible] a report entitled, "Investigation Report on People's Temple" [illegible] November 1978, that no children under [illegible] State Department of Social Services or any other [illegible] Services Departments died in Guyana. [illegible] attached. (See Attachment B)

The second issue identified by your investigation [illegible] by California's courts and state and county [illegible] relative to the processing of guardianship petitions [illegible] applicants of guardianship after they are granted.

In this issue, your staff finds that a lack of protection exists for children placed in court-ordered guardianships where the guardians are either receiving no public assistance or the guardian is related to the child.

Your report also finds, without citing any specific instances of conflict or abuse, a lack of consistency by the California courts in ordering home suitability reports from county social services departments. In addition, your report finds county social services departments inconsistent in performing nonrelative guardianships and inconsistent criteria being used in conducting the home suitability studies.

In response, we would like to briefly state for the record that neither California nor federal law calls for the continued monitoring of children once they are placed by the courts in the home of a relative or in a home where the guardian receives no public assistance payments.

In this issue, your staff has raised a long-standing, unanswered and potentially volatile social policy issue. In response, I ask you these questions:

- Should not government assure that a relative-guardian will properly care for a child who is their own flesh and blood?
- Should not the government encourage the public to revise the long-standing social policy of allowing children to enter into long-term public dependency, and, instead, actively encourage the integration of the child back into the community by stabilizing the family, or if that is not possible, to have him/her become a permanent part of a family through the adoption or guardianship process?

At present, our department has no plans to ask the Legislature to create an state policy system of monitoring the homes of legal guardians, who do not receive public cash assistance, or are related to the child.

California's guardianship children are presently protected by the same social welfare and criminal laws which protect all the state's children. This is true regardless of whether they live in the home of the natural parents or in the home of a legal guardian. Child abuse in California is a crime regardless of where it occurs.

The courts are an independent branch of state government. The executive branch of government, of which the State Department of Social Services is a part, has absolutely no authority to require that judges on a consistent basis request home suitability studies be developed on each and every guardianship petition that comes before them. Our interpretation of the law is that all nonrelative guardianship petitions should receive a home suitability study before the courts rule on guardianship petitions, and only the Attorney General can force the courts to enforce state law. This apparently has not been done on a uniform basis.

In pursuit of our interpretation of the law, we have asked the California Attorney General to issue a legal opinion and guidelines to all Probate Court judges, explaining the requirements of the State Probate Code concerning the necessity for a suitability study prior to awarding guardianships. (See Attachment C.) Likewise, we have issued directives to county social service departments reiterating and reaffirming their role and responsibilities in conducting home suitability studies. These guidelines also reiterate and define uniform criteria to be used in conducting home suitability studies. A copy of these directives is attached. (See Attachment B.)

The third issue identified by your staff centers on alleged overdue federal payments made for care of guardianship children. Our attached detailed response addresses this question in depth, hence it does not require elaboration here. However, we would like for you to know that it is our belief the federal government should assume its financial responsibilities for guardianship children as contained in Public Law 96-272, and implement regulations to provide Title IV-A money to children living with nonrelated court appointed guardians.

The fourth issue raised by your staff recommends that State Department of Social Services' staff should automatically reduce the licensed capacity of a foster care facility by the number of the foster parents' guardianship children. We disagree. Department of Social Services feels that each case should be determined on its own merits. Existing state regulations require an evaluation of the presence of other members of the household to determine the extent to which these individuals impair or affect the ability of the foster parent(s) to adequately care for the foster children. After a review of the circumstances of a particular foster home applicant or licensee, the presence of another individual (including a guardianship child) can result in a reduction of the licensed capacity. Such a reduction would appropriately be based on the inability of the foster parent(s) to care for a specific number of foster children because of the needs of other household members.

We will take steps to re-emphasize and clarify these provisions of the law to state licensing workers. These steps are outlined in detail in our attached point-by-point response.

If you should have any future questions concerning this response, please call Laura Williams, Chief of the Adults Evaluation and Financial Appeals Section. Her telephone number is (916) 323-0274.

Sincerely,

[redacted]
Director

CALIFORNIA STATE DEPARTMENT OF SOCIAL SERVICES RESPONSE TO THE GAO REPORT ENTITLED, "AFTER THE PEOPLE'S TEMPLE TRAGEDY--NEEDED REFORMS TO PROTECT THE CHILD AND PROPERTY RIGHTS OF GUARDIANSHIP CHILDREN"

FINDING NO. 1

No children who were in foster care or under the supervision and care of the California Department of Social Services, perished in Guyana. However, a few of the victims of the tragedy who were taken to Guyana without court approval were kinds of People's Temple members.

GAO Recommendation:

GAO recommends that the Department of State have the U.S. Passport Service adopt policies and procedures which would verify, prior to issuance of passports, that where required by state law, guardians have obtained court approval to take their wards out of the country.

State's Response:

Since this recommendation is directed at a federal agency and does not affect SDSS, we have no comment.

FINDING NO. 2

Guardianship children in California frequently did not receive all the protections intended for them by state law because:

Item A. California law is not consistently followed as to when and how pre-guardianship suitability assessments should be done.

Item B. Although required, investigation (other than suitability reports) was not made available to case workers, i.e., identifying periodic review of guardianships not receiving assistance payments and foster care licensure investigations on guardianship homes who were foster care families.

Item C. Periodic reviews of guardianships were not consistent, i.e., the Probate Court, predominantly those where financial accountability for the child's estate was involved; county social services departments were inconsistent in performing ongoing reviews of guardianship cases receiving assistance payments.

Item D. Suitability reports do not take the physical environment of the child.

Item E. State regulations governing investment and reinvestment of guardianships were inadvertently terminated by the state in January 1978 and/or were not fully implemented in some counties.

GAO Recommendations:

In fulfilling the federal role as an advocate for the welfare of the nation's children, the Secretary of HHS should direct the Office of Human Development Services to encourage the State of California to:

-- reiterate to state court judges the importance of county social workers preparing suitability reports on petitioners for nonrelative guardianship children,

-- assist the counties in expanding suitability report criteria to more fully address the physical well-being of guardianship children, and

-- release regulations specifically covering guardianships and require compliance by county social service agencies.

State's Response:

Item A. The GAO report concludes the inconsistent application of state law relative to preguardianship suitability reports by county social services departments was caused by: 1) failure of the Probate Court judges to require the reports because of inconsistent court interpretation of the Probate Code, and 2) insufficient time (15 days) allowed to counties to prepare the reports prior to hearing dates.

The Department wishes to clarify that under California statutes, the attorney for the person seeking guardianship is required to file a copy of the petition for guardianship with SDSS. If a suitability study is required, SDSS notifies the county social service agency that such a report must be completed.

This notification process does not always work because of the short time frame between when SDSS receives a copy of the petition and the scheduled court hearing date for the petition. In addition, some court judges have interpreted the Probate Code as not requiring suitability studies in all cases and therefore have not required the study be presented during the court proceedings. We have no jurisdiction over the courts. However, we firmly believe a report should be filed in every nonrelative guardianship case and have been proceeding to process all guardianship petitions received by this Department on that basis. In order to reaffirm this Department's role in guardianship proceedings and to pursue means of encouraging consistent court interpretation in that area, we have taken the following actions:

1. We have completed and distributed an All-County Letter (Attachment 1) reiterating the requirements of the Probate Code and the need to file such a report. The letter instructs counties on detailed procedures and information to be contained within the report and provides the time frames within which the report must be submitted to the courts. It also instructs counties to notify the court of any delay and to seek postponement of the hearing if necessary to enable them to file the report prior to granting of guardianships.

APPENDIX IV

2. To encourage consistent interpretation of the Probate law by the courts, we have requested the State Attorney General to issue a legal opinion on the pertinent Section of the Probate Code and distribute that opinion to all Probate Court judges. (Attachment 2.)

3. To alleviate the problem of insufficient time alloted to counties for preparation of the studies, the department has sponsored state legislation (SB 14 Preprint) to amend the current 15-day time frame for completion of the studies to allow for 60 days. (See Attachment 3)

Item B. The report states there are no continuing periodic reviews of guardianship cases.

Once the guardianship has been granted the child becomes a ward of the guardian. If the child is not receiving assistance payments, the county social services department has no further contact with, or jurisdiction over the child. SDSS and county social service departments have no legal authority to monitor such placements unless, of course, protective intervention is necessary as a result of suspected abuse or neglect.

The report also states there are no continuing foster home licensure investigations of guardianship homes that were previously foster care homes. SDSS regulations contained in Title 22, California Administrative Code, Division 6, Section 80105 (II) excludes from licensing those living situations where care providers are legal guardians (or natural parents) for all of the children in their care. (See Attachment 4.) If a licensed foster care home operator becomes the legal guardian of all foster care children in the home, the home is no longer subject to state licensing requirements. Neither the state nor county licensing agency have statutory authority to continue conducting licensing studies in those situations.

Item C. The report states that ongoing reviews of guardianships are not performed consistently and states that two types of periodic reviews either by the Probate Court, or by county social services departments, could provide ongoing protection.

As noted in the report, annual or biennial court reviews of all guardians are not required by the Probate Code. To effect such a requirement would necessitate a change in the current code. In cases where the child does not receive AFDC-FHI or other services from the California Department of Social Services, this Department has no jurisdiction over the child and any periodic review would have to be conducted by the court establishing the guardianship.

When the child in guardianship placement receives AFDC-FHI payments, the county social services department must complete a routine six-month reassessment of AFDC-FHI eligibility and assure that the needs of the child are being met. SDSS recently completed a statewide survey of foster care cases, reviewing case record compliance for AFDC-FHI six-month eligibility determination. Based on this survey, corrective action is planned for those counties found to be out of compliance with the six-month reassessment mandate.

Item D. The report states that suitability studies should address the physical well-being of the child. The department agrees and has reiterated this requirement which is contained in the Probate Code to the counties in All-County Letter No. 80-93, dated October 1, 1980. The letter requires onsite evaluations of unlicensed homes similar to those conducted for foster family homes. (See Attachment 1.)

Item E. SDSS is in the process of implementing regulations similar to the one identified as being deleted. However, it should be noted that while the regulation which was deleted stipulated that aid payments could not be provided for a child placed under certain circumstances (one of which was guardianship) unless a determination had been made that the home/facility met the physical, social and psychological needs of the child, it did not create the requirement for such a determination. Such a determination is required in Section 30-205.13 of the SDSS Manual of Policies and Procedures. (See Attachment 5.) The Department of Social Services did not intend, in any way, to reduce protection for children in guardianship arrangements. State Assembly Bill 2749 (Statutes of 1980, c. 1166) clarifies state law with regard to children who may be aided under the AFDC-FC Program and provides statutory authority which addresses AFDC-FC eligibility for children living with non-related legal guardians. Specifically, this law requires that the following requirements be met before AFDC-FC payments are made:

a. The legal guardian must cooperate with the county welfare department in developing a needs assessment, updating the assessment every six months, and in carrying out the service plan.

b. The county social services department must complete the needs assessment, update it every six months and carry out the service plan.

FINDING NO. 3

California received federal foster care maintenance payments for guardianship children who did not meet federal eligibility criteria.

GAO Recommendation:

The Secretary of HHS should direct the Office of Human Development Services to:

Item A. Issue instructions to all the states notifying them that guardianship children are not eligible for federal reimbursement for foster care maintenance payments when responsibility for such children is removed from the State Title IV-A Agency.

Item B. Obtain retroactive adjustments for federal overpayments that were made for guardianship children in California.

Item C. Determine if other states are also receiving federal overpayments for ineligible guardianship children, and if they are, take action to identify and recover the overpayments.

State's Response:

Item A. The state believes this recommendation to be inconsistent with the statements contained in the report defining HHS' role as that of an advocate of children in need of care and protection. We firmly contend that HHS could be instrumental in improving the protection provided to guardianship children nationwide and that action should be taken immediately to achieve those improvements. We also believe that this is the appropriate time for HHS to consider the intent of PL 96-272 which clearly is to encourage the utilization of stable placement for children such as guardianships provide.

As an advocate for all of the nation's children, HHS should ensure that the protection extended to guardianship children includes aid payments as well as services. Children living with nonrelated guardians should be currently eligible for Title IV-A funding. HHS should implement regulations which provide for Title IV-A funding for such children. Currently, federal funding is refused for children living with nonrelated legal guardians under Title IV-A and is not provided for under the proposed Title IV-E.

Notwithstanding the state's contention that federal funding should be made available for all nonrelative guardianship cases, it is the state's position that federal eligibility does currently exist at least in certain guardianship cases where the detention order making a child the responsibility of the county social services department is not dismissed but guardianship is awarded. When this occurs, care and supervision remains with the county social services department and federal financial participation should be available for children meeting all other eligibility requirements.

Item B. The state cannot address this finding directly without reviewing each individual case record for the children for which the alleged overpayments were made and examining the circumstances leading to guardianship status. We would also ask that all action relative to recovery of funds be postponed until HHS has issued instructions to the states as suggested in the GAO Recommendation, Item A, and until such time as the state has had the opportunity to review each individual case found by the GAO to be ineligible for federal funds.

Item C. The state has no comment.

FINDING NO. 4

The health and safety of some children have been jeopardized by placing them in small foster family homes which housed children in excess of licensed capacity.

GAO Recommendation:

The state has initiated action to stop the out-of-home placement of children (including guardianship children) in homes in excess of licensed capacity. However, the Secretary of HHS should direct the Office of Human Development Services to follow-up on and work with the State of California to ensure that federally eligible children are placed only in licensed facilities that fully meet state health and safety licensing requirements.

State's Response:

SDSS does not agree that guardianship children should always be counted as placements against the licensed capacity of the foster care facility. However, state law does recognize that in some situations the presence of other children or adults in the home affects the care provided to the foster children. Current state regulations for both Small Family Homes-Children and Foster Family Homes (Title 22, California Administrative Code, Section 81005 and Section 85101), require an evaluation of the presence of other members of the household to determine the extent to which these individuals impair or affect the ability of the foster parent(s) to adequately care for the foster children. (See Attachment 6.) After a review of the circumstances of a particular foster home applicant or licensee, the presence of another individual (including a guardianship child) can result in a reduction of the licensed capacity. Such a reduction would appropriately be based on the inability of the foster parent(s) to care for a specific number of foster children because of the needs of other household members.

As an interim response to the GAO findings, the Department of Social Services' Community Care Licensing Division will issue a release to all licensing agencies to reaffirm the importance of these regulations and provide instructions for reducing licensed capacity if it is determined that the presence of other household members impairs the ability to provide care to the foster children. This will be done on a case-by-case basis and reductions in capacity will only occur if the individual case evaluation supports this action.

The long range action plan is to propose new regulations which will more definitively outline those circumstances where a reduction in capacity is necessary by identifying those "other" individuals including adults, who also require a significant amount of care and supervision thereby limiting the ability of the foster parent(s) to care for the maximum allowed number (six) of foster children. Such proposed regulations could result in some circumstances of a greater reduction of capacity than a reduction based on the GAO's suggested mathematical formula of reducing capacity by one person for each guardianship child.

In addition, the regulations will:

1. Require notification to the licensing agency when additional members are added to the family composition;

2. Authorize the licensing agency to reduce capacity based upon these additions to the family's composition; and

APPENDIX IV

3. Require notification to the licensing agency if members of the household leave when those individuals were responsible for the provision of care and supervision (i.e., if the foster parents become separated).

We believe that these short and long range actions responsibly address the findings of the GAO's Report relative to the issue of considering guardianship children in determining licensed capacity.

C. Virginia - Press reports of the last week indicate that the Attorney General is satisfied that our documentation of the victims would be sufficient to bury or cremate in Virginia. A letter from Attorney General is being forwarded.

D. New Jersey - Cremations are presently being done in New Jersey. We have requested, for the record, a statement from the Attorney General that our documentation is sufficient for burial in New Jersey.

E. Maryland - Discussions are in progress with the new administration regarding burial/cremation. We have received a number of written proposals from cemeteries in Maryland.

5. DOD - Indications are that DOD, MAC headquarters, and Dover AFB will require that the remaining bodies be removed from Dover AFB no later than April 1, because a new division and its equipment will be moving onto the base.

6. California Dissolution Proceedings - In the proceeding before the Superior Court, Judge Brown gave the Guyana Emergency Relief Committee one month to submit a plan regarding the transportation and disposition of the bodies remaining at Dover AFB. In the absence of total cooperation by the Department it is unlikely that the Committee will be able to effectively set forth a realistic, organized plan taking into account all the variables.

7. Coroner's Inquest Report from Guyana - We have received the report, and the exhibits to the report will be available to the Embassy by Friday.

8. California Birth Certificates - We are attempting to obtain birth certificates for those unidentified victims who were born in California. The birth certificate will indicate the hospital in which the child was born. Hopefully, we will then be able to secure medical records (footprints) from the hospitals. However, the State has requested, citing proposition 13, that a $3.00 fee be paid for each certificate. Mr. Gise suggested that we contact Ambassador Beverly Carter's office and see if the fee can be waived.

DISPOSITION OF BODIES OF JONESTOWN VICTIMS REMAINING AT DOVER, DELAWARE

Q: Does the State Department have a plan for disposition of the unclaimed and unidentified bodies still at Dover AFB?

A: The Interagency Group on Guyana has agreed on procedures for disposing of the unclaimed and unidentified bodies of the Jonestown victims. However, on January 23 the California Superior Court in San Francisco granted the Interfaith Relief Emergency Committee 30 days to come up with a plan for transportation and interment of the bodies. In light of the California Court's decision, it would be improper for the USG to take any further actions with regard to the bodies until the court has issued its ruling on the Emergency Relief Committee's plan.

Q: What is the Emergency Relief Committee?

A: The Emergency Relief Committee is composed of the San Francisco chapter of the Council of Churches, The Rabbis Association of San Francisco and the Bishop of the Catholic Archdiocese of San Francisco. It was apparently formed to assist in the disposal of the Jonestown bodies.

Q: Will the Department cooperate with this Emergency Relief Committee?

A: If approached, the Department plans to cooperate fully with the Emergency Relief Committee.

Q: What will happen if the California Court disapproves of the Committee's plan?

A: The Department will then be in a position to execute the Interagency Group's plan for disposition.

Q: What is the Interagency Group's plan?

A: We are not going to release the details of that plan until we are in a position to implement it.

Q: Have state officials in Delaware been apprised of this decision?

A: Officials here in the Department have informed Delaware state and Congressional representatives of this decision.

Q: What are the latest figures on identification, etc.?

A: As of COB January 31, 1979, 641 of the 913 bodies have been identified: 325 bodies have been released to the next-of-kin or interested parties; 316 bodies have been identified but not released. Of the unidentified bodies, approximately 210 are those of children. The Department has sought the assistance of California state officials in obtaining dental charts, footprints, etc., to assist in the identification of these children.

Q: Have you notified next-of-kin of all those bodies positively identified?

A: We have been unable to notify or locate next-of-kin for 26 of the 641 identified bodies.

Q: Have any next-of-kin refused to claim a body or bodies?

A: The next-of-kin of some 69 victims have indicated that they cannot or will not claim the bodies.

Dear Mr. Mysak:

Reference is made to our several telephone conversations concerning the New Jersey laws relative to burial and cremation of bodies of persons who died outside of New Jersey.

Please find enclosed sample copies of the documents that presently accompany the body of each of the Jonestown, Guyana deceased when the body leaves the Dover Air Force Base Mortuary. These documents are:

1. Opinion of the Attorney General of Delaware dated December 6, 1978.

2. Statement of Assistant Delaware Attorney General Edward Kafader dated December 8, 1978.

3. Statement of Transit indicating the destination of the body.

4. Statement of Identification prepared by Dr. William R. Cowan, Chief of the Identification Team of the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology.

5. Release of Liability (Assumption of Liability Statement).

6. Letter of the Solicitor General of Guyana dated December 4, 1978.

7. Guyana death certificate for those that have been identified.

In addition, we have three additional documents that may be of interest to you. In a letter dated December 9, 1978 the Guyanese Solicitor General indicated that the death certificates being prepared by the Government of Guyana for the Jonestown deceased are sufficiently complete to satisfy Guyana legal requirements for burial and cremation in Guyana. We have also obtained a statement from Dover Air Force Base Mortuary Officer Charles Carson indicating that all the bodies have been embalmed and placed in hermetically sealed caskets and pose no health hazard. Copies of these two documents are enclosed. In addition, we are in possession of a certified true copy of the jury verdict of the Coroner's inquest held in Guyana in connection with these deaths. We have also obtained a copy of the "Notes of Evidence" that resulted from this proceeding.

It would be greatly appreciated if you would indicate what the requirements of New Jersey law are relative to burial and cremation of bodies in New Jersey. Specifically, what documentation must be presented before the body of a person who died outside New Jersey can be buried or cremated in New Jersey. We are studying the feasibility of burying in New Jersey and neighboring states the bodies of identified Jonestown deceased upon the request of the next-of-kin, as well as the possibility of burying the bodies of unclaimed and unidentified Jonestown deceased in New Jersey and surrounding states. Any citation to pertinent New Jersey laws or regulations you might be able to provide in the course of your response would be most appreciated.

Your assistance and cooperation is greatly appreciated.

Way Cleared to Move Cultists' Bodies

Wash Post 2/2/79

REP. THOMAS B. EVANS JR.
...outlines body transfer plan

By Ward Sinclair
Washington Post Staff Writer

The way was cleared yesterday for the transfer of 558 unclaimed bodies of Peoples Temple murder-suicide victims from Delaware to California, according to Rep. Thomas B. Evans Jr. (R-Del.).

Evans said a pledge of cooperation by the State Department will now allow an interfaith religious group in San Francisco to speed up the body transfer process.

Under the plan, the Emergency Relief Committee, using money obtained in the dissolution of Peoples Temple assets—estimated to be at least $12 million—will oversee the transportation effort.

The bodies, embalmed and placed in plastic bags inside coffins, have been at Dover Air Force Base in Delaware since they were flown from the temple's jungle settlement in Guyana, where more than 900 died in a murder-suicide last November.

Since last month Evans had been pressing the State Department to assist in transferring the bodies—272 of which remain unidentified—from Dover AFB to California.

"They made a mistake in taking the bodies to Delaware in the first place," Evans said yesterday. "I felt the State Department should have made the decision some time ago to transport the bodies to California."

The congressman said that "virtually all" of his Delaware constituents feel the state should not bear the responsibility of disposing of the bodies. He added that he intends to introduce legislation requiring transfer of the bodies if the new agreement breaks down.

Evans said, however, that the agreement, disclosed to him during a meeting with Barbara Watson, assistant secretary of state for consular affairs, will allow the relief committee to move ahead with transfer plans.

The committee is obtaining bids from private carriers to move the bodies, Evans said, but no decision has been made on when the move will occur or where the bodies will be taken in California.

He also said that truck lines, railroads and air carriers are being considered as contractors, but that in any case the transfer cost will likely be less than the estimate of $140,000 if done by the Defense Department.

"We are working with the Emergency Relief Committee in securing bids from the private sector," Evans said. "It is apparent to me that the private sector can do it for less."

The committee is expected to deliver its plan for movement and disposal of the unclaimed bodies by Feb. 23, the deadline set by a California court.

Dear

On behalf of the Department of State let me offer you our deepest symptahy on your loss.

We have received your earlier communication authorizing the Department to make final arrangements for the disposition of the body of your relative(s).

We urge you to read the attached letter which is self-explanatory, and suggest that you contact the Emergency Relief Committee if you are interested in its plan.

Sincerely,

DEPARTMENT OF STATE

Washington, D.C. 20520

Dear

The Department, in a continuing attempt to assist the next of kin of the victims of the Jonestown, Guyana tragedy, is providing the following information for your consideration.

On January 23, a Superior Court in San Francisco, California granted the Emergency Relief Committee 30 days to submit a plan for the transportation and burial of the victims still remaining in Dover, Delaware. The Emergency Relief Committee is composed of representatives of the San Francisco Council of Churches, the Northern California Board of Rabbis, and the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of San Francisco.

In order to present its plan to the court, the Committee urgently needs you to contact them. The Committee needs to know your desires concerning burial arrangements for your deceased relative(s). The Committee's plan will request payment for transportation and burial or other disposition from People's Temple funds. In order to have your wishes taken into consideration you should contact either Ms. Donneter Lane or Ms. Helen Helton at (415) 433-3024. The address of the Emergency Relief Committee is 944 Market Street, 4th Floor, San Francisco, California 94102.

If you have an interest in the transportation and burial or cremation of your deceased relative(s) in California, or where you are located, we encourage you to contact the Committee as soon as possible. If you have already made funeral arrangements, you may wish to contact the Committee concerning the possibility of reimbursement for a part of the money you have spent, although the final decision will be up to the Superior Court.

Sincerely,

Jay A. Rini

In reply refer to:
Burial and Cremation laws of Delaware

Senator Herman Holloway
Legislative Hall
Dover, Delaware

Dear Senator Holloway:

This letter is in reference to our telephone conversation of January 30th concerning the burial and cremation laws of Delaware.

As promised, I am enclosing a memorandum in which we set forth our view of Delaware law on the subject of burial and cremation of bodies in Delaware in cases where the person's death occurred outside the state. I have also enclosed copies of the relevant Delaware statutes. As I mentioned during my appearance before the Delaware Senate on January 25th, our interpretation of Delaware law differs from that of Delaware Secretary of Health and Social Services Patricia Schramm. Secretary Schramm's views are contained in her December 1, 1978 memorandum to Governor du Pont. A copy of this memorandum is attached for your information and convenient reference. Please note that I am forwarding a copy of this letter and memorandum to Senator Robert Bardt who also expressed an interest in the relevant Delaware laws.

On January 25th one Senator mentioned that a Delaware statute specifically provides for burial or cremation of veterans in Delaware. I am enclosing for your information a list of veterans and their dependents whom we have identified to date among the Jonestown deceased. I would appreciate receiving a copy of this statute for our files.

I would also appreciate receiving a copy of the transcript of the January 25th Senate hearing for our records. Thank you again for giving the Department the opportunity to explain to the Senate the Department's past and present willingness to fully cooperate with and keep informed Delaware officials regarding the disposition of the Jonestown deceased.

Thank you for your personal cooperation. If you have any questions concerning any of the enclosures or any other matter, please do not hesitiate to contact me or Mr. Bruce E. Dozier on (202) 632-3712.

Dear Mr. Tranter:

Reference is made to our telephone conversation of January 5 concerning Maryland laws relevant to burial and cremation of bodies of persons who died outside of Maryland.

Please find enclosed sample copies of the documents that presently accompany the body of each of the Jonestown, Guyana deceased when the body leaves the Dover Air Force Base Mortuary. These documents are:

1. Opinion of the Attorney General of Delaware dated December 6, 1978.

2. Statement of Assistant Delaware Attorney General Edward Kafader dated December 8, 1978.

3. Statement of Transit indicating the destination of the body.

4. Statement of Identification prepared by Dr. William R. Cowan, Chief of the Identification Team of the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology.

5. Release of Liability (Assumption of Liability Statement).

6. Letter of the Solicitor General of Guyana dated December 6, 1978.

Jack Tranter
Assistant Attorney General
Maryland Department of Health
201 W. Preston Street
Baltimore, Maryland 21201

7. Guyana death certificate for those that have been identified.

In addition, we have three additional documents that may be of interest to you. In a letter dated December 9, 1978 the Guyanese Solicitor General indicated that the death certificates being prepared by the Government of Guyana for the Jonestown deceased are sufficiently complete to satisfy Guyana legal requirements for burial and cremation in Guyana. We have also obtained a statement from Dover Air Force Base Mortuary Officer Charles Carson indicating that all the bodies have been embalmed and placed in hermetically sealed caskets and pose no health hazard. Copies of these two documents are enclosed. In addition, we are in possession of a certified true copy of the jury verdict of the Coroner's inquest held in Guyana in connection with these deaths. We have also obtained a copy of the "Notes of Evidence" that resulted from this proceeding.

It would be greatly appreciated if you would indicate what the requirements of Maryland law are relative to burial and cremation of bodies in Maryland. Specifically, what documentation must be presented before the body of a person who died outside Maryland can be buried or cremated in Maryland. We are studying the feasibility of burying in Maryland and neighboring states the bodies of identified Jonestown deceased upon the request of the next-of-kin, as well as the possibility of burying the bodies of unclaimed and unidentified Jonestown deceased in Maryland and surrounding states. Any citation to pertinent Maryland laws or regulations you might be able to provide in the course of your response would be most appreciated.

Your assistance and cooperation is greatly appreciated.

Re: PPT/FM-KESSLER, DONN
Letter of January 5, 1979

Dear Mr. Dozier:

Thank you for your letter of January 5, 1979, regarding possible burial in Virginia of identified and unidentified bodies from Jonestown, Guyana.

As I understand your question, you desire to know what documentation will be required from the Commonwealth for the Department of State to have a number of the bodies buried or cremated in Virginia. Before answering such question, let me review the facts you have presented to this Office.

At this time, the United States has a total of 913 bodies from the Jonestown tragedy at the Dover Air Force Base Mortuary in Delaware. All of the bodies which may be buried in Virginia have been prepared for burial, are hermetically sealed, and in the opinion of the mortuary officer, pose no health hazard. In addition, you have the necessary documents to transport the bodies out of the State of Delaware and have death certificates from the Government of Guyana. It is also my understanding that before disposition the inquests by the Government of Guyana will have been completed.

After a review of the pertinent statutes and discussion with David Wiecking, Chief Medical Examiner of the Commonwealth, and Deane Huxtable of the Commonwealth's Bureau of Vital Statistics, this office has determined that the requirements which must normally be fulfilled before final disposition of bodies in Virginia are: (1) Obtaining of transit permits; (2) Autopsies where violent death is suspected; (3) Filing of death certificates with the Bureau of Vital Statistics. As explained below, however, the only requirement which must be met here is that transit permits from Delaware must accompany the bodies into Virginia. In addition, autopsies may have to be performed upon the happening of certain events described below.

(1) Transit Permits

Normally, Virginia statutes require transportation permits to remove any human body from the state where death occurred in Virginia. No such permit is required, however, for transportation of a body into the Commonwealth provided that the State from which the body is being transported has issued a burial-transit permit and such permit accompanies the body. See § 32-353.22(c) of the Code of Virginia (1950), as amended.[1] Since the Attorney General of the State of Delaware has issued an opinion that you have the necessary documents to transport the bodies from Delaware, those documents should suffice to meet the requirement of § 32-353.22 of the Code, provided that they accompany the bodies into Virginia.

(2) Autopsies

Section 54-260.74 of the Code provides that no funeral director or funeral service licensed in Virginia shall remove or cremate a dead human body where there is an indication that violence or a crime caused the death unless permission is obtained from the state medical examiner or a person acting for

---

[1] Section 32-353.22(c) of the Code states that:

"A burial-transit permit issued under the law of another state which accompanies a dead body or fetus into this State shall be authority for final disposition of the body or fetus in this State."

(3) Death Certificates

Section 32-353.20 of the Code requires that a death certificate shall be filed with the registrar of the district in which the death occurred. Such section, however, is limited to deaths which occur in the Commonwealth and would not apply to the bodies brought in from Guyana.[4]

Thus, in conclusion, the Department of State need not obtain a state burial transit permit to bring the bodies into Virginia, provided that the burial transit permits from Delaware or their equivalent accompany the bodies and no death certificate would have to be filed with the State Bureau of Vital Statistics. Furthermore, at the present time, no autopsy would have to be made before final disposition, although the funeral directors should seek written permission from the Chief Medical Examiner to bury or cremate the bodies before final disposition. Finally, an autopsy will have to be performed if the Commonwealth's Attorney or a judge of the circuit court where the body is to be brought requests an autopsy.

This opinion has been limited to any state requirements you would need to seek before final disposition of any of the bodies. You should also be aware, however, of several requirements which will have to be met by the funeral directors[5] before final disposition.

[4]Section 32-353.20 of the Code provides, in pertinent part, that:

(a) A death certificate for each death which occurs in this State shall be filed with the registrar of the district in which the death occurred...

While Section 32-353.20(d) requires the medical examiner to complete and sign the medical certification portion of the certificate, when death occurred without medical attention or when an autopsy is required, such requirement would only apply to deaths occurring in the Commonwealth. In addition, it is my understanding that all states abide by the procedure that death certificates are filed only at the place where death occurred.

[5]Sections 54-260.73 and 54-260.73:1 of the Code make it unlawful for anyone other than a person licensed by Virginia to engage in the funeral service establishment to act as a funeral director or embalmer. Out-of-state licensees may, however, be granted a courtesy card to arrange funerals in Virginia. See § 54-260.70. Thus, the disposition of any of the bodies in the Commonwealth must be done through the above persons or to persons licensed in other states for a single disposition of bodies. Id.

Section 54-260.74 of the Code prohibits a person licensed to perform the practice of funeral services to accept a dead human body from any public officer[6] without first having made

> ...due inquiry as to the desires of the next of kin and of the persons who may be chargeable with the funeral expenses of such decedent...

If any kin are found, their directions for disposition of the decedent must be followed. Thus, in this case, the funeral directors will have to make a good-faith attempt to determine the kin of any identified bodies in order to obtain their directions for disposition before accepting the bodies. In the case of unidentified bodies, which I understand that the federal government has made exhaustive attempts to identify, the directions of the State Department or other appropriate federal agency would be followed.

In addition, in accordance with § 32-353.29 of the Code, the funeral directors will have to keep records identifying receipt, removal and delivery of the bodies and file a list of all caskets furnished and of funerals performed with the Registrar of Vital Statistics.[7]

[6] With several exceptions not pertinent to this matter.

[7] Section 32-353.29 of the Code provides, in pertinent part, that:

> ...(c) A funeral director, embalmer, or other person who removes from the place of death or transports or is in charge of final disposal of a dead body or fetus, in addition to filing any certificate or other form required by this chapter, shall keep a record which shall identify the body, and such information pertaining to his receipt, removal, and delivery of such body as may be prescribed in regulations adopted by the State Board of Health...
> (e) Not later than the tenth day of the month following the month of occurrence, each funeral director shall send to the Bureau of Vital Statistics a list showing thereon all caskets furnished, and of funerals performed where no casket was furnished, by the funeral director during the preceding month. Such lists shall be on forms provided by the State Registrar of Vital Statistics.
> (f) Records maintained under this section shall be retained for a period of not less than ten years and shall be made available for inspection by the State Registrar of Vital Statistics or his representative upon demand.

Finally, the State Department, the funeral directors or the cemetaries involved in the disposition of the bodies should also attempt to determine whether any of the local governmental authorities where the bodies are to be disposed have any ordinances or regulations under which the disposition or holding of the bodies may be considered a nuisance.

I hope this letter answers your questions in this regard. If this office can be of any further help to you, please feel free to call on me.

Sincerely yours,

It is my understanding from Mr. Huxtable that the information referred to in § 32-353.29(c) of the Code is contained on the form referred to in § 32-353.29(e) of the Code and the funeral directors should have copies of such forms.

him.[2] In this regard, § 32-31.19 of the Code provides that if the medical examiner or Chief Medical Examiner advises that it is in the public interest to perform an autopsy or if the Commonwealth's Attorney or the circuit court where the body is present requests an autopsy, an autopsy shall be performed by the Chief Medical Examiner or by a pathologist or toxicologist designated by him.

In discussing this question with the Chief Medical Examiner, Dr. Wiecking has indicated that he does not feel that the public interest requires autopsies to be done on these bodies. It would be advisable, however, for the funeral directors who may be employed to bury or cremate the bodies to seek written permission of the Chief Medical Examiner to dispose of the bodies. In addition, you may desire to seek the opinion of the Commonwealth's Attorney and the judges of the circuit court where such bodies may be disposed of in order to determine whether they will request autopsies.

[2] Section 54-260.74 of the Code provides, in pertinent part, that, "No person licensed for the practice of funeral service shall remove or embalm a dead human body when he or she has information indicating crime or violence of any sort in connection with the cause of death nor shall a dead human body be cremated, until permission of the medical examiner, or some other duly qualified person acting in the capacity of the medical examiner, if there be no medical examiner, has first been obtained.

Section 32-31.19 provides, in pertinent part, that:

> "If in the opinion of the medical examiner or the Chief Medical Examiner it is advisable and in the public interest that an autopsy be made, or if an autopsy is requested by the attorney for the Commonwealth or by the judge of the circuit or corporation court of the county or city wherein such body is, such autopsy shall be made by the Chief Medical Examiner, or by such competent pathologist or toxicologist as may be designated by the Chief Medical Examiner for the purpose. A full record and report of the facts developed by the autopsy and findings of the person making such autopsy shall be promptly made and filed with the medical examiner and in the Office of the Chief Medical Examiner..."

PLAN FOR BURIAL OF GUYANA DEAD

In response to the order of the Superior Court, the Guyana Emergency Committee, representing the Archdiocese of the Catholic Church, the Board of Rabbis, and the San Francisco Council of Churches, offers the following data and plan for the burial of those who died in Jonestown, Guyana.

Our recommendations are based on the following criteria:

1. The concern of the religious community is that a plan be followed which will help survivors, relatives and the community to work through their grief, despair, hopelessness, fear and anger, so that all may return to a productive and meaningful life. The peace and psychological health of our City depends on it. Therefore, we are convinced that "cost" factors — while important — should not be primary. Rather, that should be most important which accomplishes at best as possible the resolution of this catastrophe.

2. While "cremation" would be far less expensive, especially if done in Delaware, and a few individuals may request this method, our Committee is not recommending mass cremation. In fact, we are convinced that authorizing a plan of cremation would not solve our problems, but only agravate them. Because most of the victims are Black, we feel we must reflect the thinking of that community, which weighs extremely heavy the experience of the burial of their dead to work through their grief. Honoring a proper burial is crucial for these people and cremation would only add to their despair and create an anger that could explode. As one grandmother said again and again, "I hope they bury my grandchildren nearby, because I might not know which grave is theirs — as they haven't been able to identify them — but I'll know they're out there and I can go to the cemetery and know they are there."

3. We believe that People's Temple money should be primarily responsible for burying their dead. Many of these people who died in Jonestown, as well as a number of survivors, gave up their property and income for that church. That church, through its assets, should return at least enough to guarantee a proper burial for its followers. We consider this a primary responsibility of Peoples' Temple.

4. Finally, we who represent the religious community, desire that the relatives and survivors of this tragedy, as well as others affected by it, continue to live and worship in this City with as few scars as possible from this experience. For this reason we are concerned that arrangements are made that utilize reputable services which refrain from commercializing on the situation. We would hope that those services are used in which the relatives would find a comfortable and comforting experience — preferably also from the community or relating well with the community.

UKIAH AND LOS ANGELES

b) Long Beach Colonial Mortuary in Southern California has been contacted by Mr. Paul Fuller and has agreed to the same service and costs as the other Bay Area morticians. Transportation to the Los Angeles area would cost———

THE COMMITTEE RECOMMENDS that the criteria outlined above be very seriously considered in determining what money is made available and how the Guyana dead are buried. To transport the bodies to the Bay Area seems to only be determined by cost and assurance of performance, ~~although we would prefer air transportation~~. We would recommend the use of those morticians from the community who are reputable, able to best communicate with the families, and do so at a reasonable cost. The Black Morticians listed in Mr. Fullers plan seem to fulfill this criteria, although we would not be opposed to the use of the 27 morticians of San Francisco who met with our representative. Most cemeteries mentioned offer reduced rates. Concern must be centered about obtaining a cemetery for the mass burial of the unidentified and unclaimed. The Court may see fit to approve of—

a) a Transportation plan for all bodies....Approximately $140,000.

b) a set ~~amount~~ for claimed bodies to provide minimum service, and provide the information and relatives make the choice. Suggest approximately $500..approximately $175,000.

c) a plan for mass burial and graveside services approximately $ 85,000.

The Committee has been in direct contact with the State Department and other governmental agencies and will gladly share the information obtained -- such as the problem of death certificates. Presumptive death certificates for the unidentified had not been processed as of the writing of this Plan. It should also be noted that some of the above costs, especially for the claimed could be reduced by seeking Social Security death benefits and insurances, etc.

MATTER OF REIMBURSEMENT

The final request of the Committee is that the Court approve reimbursing those families who already have seen to the burial of their dead. Most of them had to borrow and go deep in debt to accomplish such a burial. We should not penalize those families who didn't wait until the Court acted to provide costs. (In addition we firmly believe that much of the money from these people was taken by Peoples' Temple unjustly.) Thus justice and fairness would be served. ~~Such reimbursement would be approximately $150 per body for approximately $900,000.~~

Finally, the Guyana Relief Committee will work with the Courts in every way possible to assist in bringing about an equitable plan for the burial of the dead. A number of the Pastors related to the Council of Churches has already been busy counseling many families and will continue to offer such services. We will encourage the clergy serving these families at the funerals, to do so without charge. We are very grateful for the Court's consideration of our request and we are very impressed at the humane approach it has shown. God Bless You.

TO: EMERGENCY RELIEF COMMITTEE

FROM: FR. JOHN O'CONNOR

RE: TRANSPORTATION OF THE GUYANA VICTIMS BODIES BACK TO THE BAY AREA

The following is an updated report. The report I submitted on January 30, 1979, was as follows:

TRANS INTERNATIONAL AIRWAYS:

TIA expects to be able to move the bodies on two cargo jets, on six flights over two weekends. The total projected cost is $137,177. However, this does not include loading at Dover, which TIA expects will be performed by the Air Force. Or surface transportation in Oakland to the storage facility. Contact person is Mr. Gene Ehlers - 577-6200.

UNITED AIRLINES:

Including surface transport in Oakland, United expects to be able to perform the task for $137,850. However, it is not clear whether this includes loading in Dover, and I have not yet been able to clarify this. Contact person is Ms. Nicole Cetteau - 876-3902.

PAUL FULLER, FUNERAL DIRECTOR:

Including surface transport from Dover, funeral arrangements and burial, Mr. Fulle estimated a total cost of $497,170. Of this amount, the transportation component is $209,650."

Since then I have examined the following additional ground transportation, compan and bids:

AMTRAK:

Shipping the remains from Philadelphia to San Francisco and not including any tra port from Dover to Philadelphia, or from San Francisco to Oakland, Amtrak's estim is $162.85 per casket, a total of $97,547. Contact is Mr. Bell at 556-5755 or Tim Aufmuth at (202) 383-2044.

[illegible] John Wahl called to inform me that Gary Carmino (202-225-4165) from [illegible]gressman Evans, Del. office had called him with the following Amtrak bid [illegible]d contact. He had been in touch with Mr. Schumacher from Amtrak (no telephone [illegible]ber) who quoted a price for transportation from the 30th Street Station in [illegible]iladelphia to San Francisco of $105.00 for an adult and $86.40 for infants. [illegible] total cost for 582 bodies would therefore be $60,159.50. As of this writing, [illegible] Schumacher was to get back to me with the cost of transportation from Dover [illegible]Philadelphia.

[illegible]should also be noted that Amtrak cannot move more than five bodies per regu[illegible]rly scheduled train, and this obviously creates a scheduling bottleneck in [illegible]rms of moving the remains from Dover to Philadelphia. (over 100 cars)

DEFENSE TRANSPORT:

[illegible]uch transportation from Dover to Oakland at a total cost of $175.00 per coffin, [illegible]$104,825 for 599 bodies. Contact is Mr. Friedman at (301) 799-4000.

ALL STATES TRUCKING:

[illegible] checking around, this was the lowest estimate I could obtain. This company [illegible]kewise offered a "ball-park estimate" of about $19,500. This estimate [illegible]sumed 6 full trailers between Dover and Oakland, assumed casket proportions [illegible]: 84" x 18" x 24", and assumed they needed to be shipped in refrigerated trailers. [illegible]ny caution, however, that paperwork must be carried out by us or the government; [illegible]permit for transporting each body will be needed for each state they pass through.

[illegible] regards timing, All States indicated all the bodies could be moved within a [illegible]ek. Amtrak indicates it cannot move more than five bodies per regularly scheduled [illegible]ain, and this obviously creates a scheduling bottleneck in terms of moving the [illegible]mains from Dover to Philadelphia.

[illegible]TE: As you will note all the bids are not exactly the same. The TIA, United [illegible]d Paul Fuller bids were based on 599 bodies; the bid from Mr. Ball and Mr. [illegible]Smith of Amtrak was for 599 bodies, whereas, the Schumacher was for 582 bodies. [illegible]e Chesapeake Transport and All States Trucking were for 582 bodies.

QUESTIONS TO BE CONSIDERED BY EMERGENCY RELIEF COMMITTEE IN DEVELOPING PLAN FOR TRANSPORTATION AND DISPOSITION OF THE REMAINS OF THE JONESTOWN DECEASED AS REQUESTED BY JUDGE BROWN OF THE CALIFORNIA SUPERIOR COURT.

1. QUESTION: WHICH BODIE SHOULD BE COVERED BY THE PLAN?

The following should be covered by the plan: 2/13/79 Number

1. Unidentified remains. 265
2. Identified remains that are unclaimed. 305
3. Identified remains that are unclaimed whose next-of-kin have indicated in writing that they will not be making a claim for their relative's body and who have authorized the State Department to dispose of the body. (79)

It can also be argued that bodies in all of the above listed categories should be covered by the plan since the People's Temple owes the same obligation to all its deceased members. For this reason, persons who have already expended funds to make a claim for a relative's body should be reimbursed up to the same amount that is expended for each of the bodies that have not been claimed. Even in cases where the next-of-kin have specifically indicated that they do not wish to claim certain bodies the court should authorize disbursal of funds for burial, as the disbursement theory rests upon an obligation flowing from the People's Temple to the deceased - not to their next-of-kin.

In summary, the reasons for including a reimbursement provision in the plan are:

1. The People's Temple owes the same obligation to all its deceased members.
2. Equity. The families that expended their own funds should not be penalized for waiting until the Court acted to set aside PT assets for this purpose.
3. There are 343 opportunities for suit by next-of-kin who have expended their own funds. They may attempt to enter the Superior Court case in an effort to obtain reimbursement and/or an injuction against disbursement of any PT funds for a transportation (burial) plan that did not contain a reimbursement provision.

On the other hand, the following are reasons why a reimbursement provision in the plan may be ill advised:

1. The Court may view reimbursement as an unnecessary expense. The court may only wish to use FT assets to pay for transportation and disposition of bodies still on the Base.

2. The receivor might oppose reimbursement for the same reason as (1) above. In addition, the receivor might take the position that any reimbursement could compromise his position in a suit against next-of-kin who have claimed bodies.

3. It is much less likely that a waiver by the U.S. Government for priority may occur if reimbursement for funds already expended is included in the plan.

4. A reimbursement provision may be reviewed by the court as being beyond the contemplated scope of the plan.

5. Inclusion of a reimbursement provision may be challenged by other parties for the proceeding.

As of February 13, 1979, 343 deceased have been released to next-of-kin.

If a reimbursement provision is included in the plan each next-of-kin should be reimbursed some set amount that is agreed represents an "average cost" for transportation and burial. If the next-of-kin did not expend as much as the average cost they should only be reimbursed for actual out of pocket expenses.

2. QUESTION: WHAT MANNER OF FINAL DISPOSTION OF THE REMAINS SHOULD BE ADVOCATED IN THE PLAN?

Ground burial should be selected. While burial at sea and cremation are inexpensive alternative means of disposition they should not be selected because:

The bodies would be beyond recovery. In individual cases nonrecoverability could prove to be undesirable since identification data from each body will be stored in a computer and records maintained by the unit in charge of the Government's identification effort. (The Armed Forces Institute of Pathology in Washington, D.C.)

Therefore, at a future date relatives could submit newly discovered identification data and identify the body of their relative. If ground burial was chosen the body could be disinterred and buried at a site of the relative's choice. If the unidentified body was buried at sea this option would obviously not be available.

Similarly, if additional investigations of whatever kind (e.g. criminal investigations, inquiries concerning administration of estates, inquiries regarding insurance claims, etc.) necessitated a re-examination of the bodies it would not be possible if the bodies were buried at sea or cremated. The Committee could thus obviate lawsuits or public criticism by choosing ground burial over any other option.

In addition to the advantage of recoverability, ground burial would also provide the relatives of the deceased an opportunity to visit their relatives' final resting places.

3. QUESTION: WHO PRESENTLY HAS CUSTODY OF THE BODIES OF THE JONESTOWN DECEASED THAT ARE PRESENTLY ON THE DOVER AIR FORCE BASE?

The U.S. Government.

4. QUESTION: TO WHOM WILL CUSTODY BE TRANSFERRED?

Custody will be transferred to whomever has undertaken the responsibility to transport and [illegible] case of the bodies.

5. QUESTION: WHEN WILL THIS TRANSFER OF CUSTODY OCCUR?

At such time as each body is released for transportation from Dover Air Force Base.

6. QUESTION: WHAT ARE THE LEGAL RAMIFICATIONS OF THE ASSUMPTON OF CUSTODY?

The party who receives custody assumes full legal responsibility for transportation and dispostion of the body, casket, and any personal effects contained in the casket including any and all liability that may be incurred as a result of such custody and responsibility.

7. QUESTION: WILL THE PARTY WHO ASSUMES CUSTODY OF THE BODY BE REQUIRED TO SIGN AN ASSUMPTION OF LIABILITY STATEMENT?

Yes. A sample of the assumption of liability statement presently in use is attached.

8. QUESTION: HOW SHOULD THE BODIES BE TRANSPORTED?

Various options come readily to mind. The three most viable options would, however, appear to be by:

1. Air. This could be accomplished by utilizing regularly scheduled commerical flights or through a charter arrangement. If a charter is used, the possibility exists that the plane will be granted permission to land at Dover Air Force Base and a DOD air facility at destination. Such an arrangement would obviate the necessity of incurring the additional expense of transporting the bodies to the Philadelphia or Baltimore/ Washington Airports.

2. Rail. (ICC requires petition for declaratory statement)

3. Truck.

No matter which mode of transporation is chosen care should be taken to insure that no damage is done to the caskets in transit. In particular, stacking of the caskets should be avoided. The use of a cardboard packing crate might be advisable. If the bodies are transported by truck the vehicles used by various casket makers come specially equipped with shelves designed to minimize or prevent damage.

The Committee should be ascertaining costs of each mode now.

If rail or truck transportation is utilized certain states may require that transit permits be issued before the bodies are allowed to move through the state. We are in receipt of an opinion of the Delaware Attorney General to the effect that the documents presently accompanying each body constitute a satisfactory transit permit under Delaware law. It is, however, unclear whether all the states through which the bodies would need to travel would reach the same conclusion as Delaware. It therefore would be the responsibility of the carrier to inquire in advance with the officials of each state through which the bodies would travel to ascertain whether the documentation presently available would satisfy the states laws concerning transmit permits.

9. QUESTION: WHAT SHOULD BE THE ULTIMATE DESTINATION FOR THE BODIES?

While a majority of the next-of-kin of the deceased reside in California a number of the next-of-kin (6 8) reside in other states.

In its plan the Committee may wish to advocate that each body be transported to the destination chosen by the next-of-kin. If this approach is taken there are several inherent logistical and administrative problems. Specifically, the next-of-kin who opt for burial in states other than California will incur different transportation and burial expenses from the California next-of-kin. For example, a next-of-kin may request burial in New York, Pennsylvania, Texas, Illinois or some other state. Therefore, the next-of-kin should be contacted in advance in order to ascertain their wishes to the location of the final resting place of their deceased relative. Any body that would be buried other than in California should probably not be shipped to California but rather depending upon the distances involved should be transported directly from DAFB to the burial site if such site is closer to the base than to California.

If this approach is chosen, the committee will have to decide whether to advocate in the plan an average amount of money to be made available to non-California next-of-kin for burial and transportation or whether provision will be made for each case individually in the plan. It is worth noting that if the non-California next-of-kin are thus accommodated the next-of-kin in California will also have a strong case for individual treatment, e.g., delivery to any cemetery they choose within the state.

However, even if two or three cemeteries are chosen in California it seems that various next-of-kin might complain if the cemetery of their preference is not selected for burial of their relative. The next of kin might perfer one cemetery for reasons of location, aesthetics, etc. Nevertheless, if a cemetery were selected in the Los Angeles area and another in the Bay area, given the location of many of the next-of-kin, this might prove to be a satisfactory solution.

Some of the above problems might be avoided by utilizing direct billing from morticians hired by the next-of-kin and paying such morticians directly a set amount. The next-of-kin would pay the balance, no matter where they were located.

10. QUESTION: WHAT IF A NEXT-OF-KIN PREFERS CREMATION TO BURIAL?

It would seem that such a request should be honored. If a next-of-kin wants their relative's body cremated it probably should be cremated on the East Coast. The ashes could then be shipped to the location chosen by the next-of-kin or scattered at sea, depending upon the wishes of the next-of-kin.

Cremation should occur on the East Coast, because it would probably be cheaper than the cost of transporting a body to California for cremation thee.

If a next-of-kin chose cremation it would reduce the overall costs and would also eliminate other logistical problems. It is much cheaper to ship the ashes than to transport the body itself to California as the body would not have to be stored on the West Coast before burial, and there would be no necessity for obtaining a grave.

(a) How should the crematory be chosen?

The Committee could shop around for the lowest price in the Delaware vicinity including Delaware, Maryland, Pennsylvania and New Jersey. Another option would be to send this out for bids.

Of course, inquiries have been made concerning the law on cremation in these states in order to ascertain whether the documentation presently available will satisfy the state laws on this subject. So, far, Pennsylvania and New Jersey have been satisfied. We are continuing our efforts of complying with other states' laws.

11. QUESTION: IS THE DOCUMENTATION PRESENTLY AVAILABLE SUFFICIENT TO ALLOW FOR BURIAL IN CALIFORNIA? IS SUCH A BURIAL POLITICALLY ACCEPTABLE ON BOTH THE STATE AND LOCAL LEVEL?

The appropriate state officials should be consulted in order to obtain the necessary assurances on this subject. We believe the documentation is adequate. List of documents attached.

12. QUESTION: ONCE THE BODIES HAVE REACHED CALIFORNIA, WHAT PROVISIONS WOULD HAVE TO BE MADE FOR THEIR STORATE?

Before a storage site is chosen local officials should be contacted regarding any local rules, suggestions for sites and public acceptance. The storage site should be in a relatively safe neighborhood, if possible. It should be equipped with appropriate locks, lighting and guards should be available. A police escort might be considered for any mass shipment of the bodies from storage to gravesites. California law may allow for storage of bodies only for a limited period of time. The Committee may have to request an extension from the appropriate authorities, usually at the State Department of Health.

It is recommended that if at all possible the need for storag be obviated by having final destination preplanned and timed to coincide with arrival in California. (e.g. - all graves dug in advance and merely take body to site from arrival poin

13. QUESTION: HOW WILL A CEMETERY BE CHOSEN IN CALIFORNIA?

The committee can shop around for the best price or put it out for bids. (This should be done immediately)

14. QUESTION: WHAT SHOULD THE COMMITTEE LOOK FOR IN A CEMETERY?

a) perpetual care and an escrow account in a bank to finance

b) the age amd repuration of the cemetery. A check of the cemetery should be made with both the California and National Cemetery associations.

c) Is a burial vault or liner required by the cemetery or sta law? If not, should the plan include a provision for an outl of funds for this purpose?

d) Does the cemetery include a religious service either at th cemetery, at another site, or both?

e) Should individual grave markers be obtained?

f) Insure in any agreement with the cemetery that the cemeter will not become an "attraction" open to the public for a fee.

g) Will the cemetery quote include the cost of transportation from the storage facility to the cemetery? If not, it will be necessary to contract for this service.

15. - QUESTION: WILL THE SUPERIOR COURT INCLUDE IN ITS ORDER A PROVISION DESIGNATING THE COMMITTEE TO BE THE ORGANIZATION TO WHOM THE STATE DEPARTMENT RELINQUISHES CUSTODY?

This eventuality would seem to be desirable. If this was not to occur, then the Department would have to insist upon receiving releases from the next-of-kin indicating that the Committee was being authorized to act on their behalf.

16. QUESTION: WILL THE COMMITTEE ASSUME THE RESPONSIBILITY FOR SERVING AS AN INFORMATION CENTER TO WHICH THE NEXT-OF-KIN CAN TURN TO RECEIVE ANSWERS CONCERNING TRANSPORTATION, BURIAL AND RELATED MATTERS?

Yes. Once the committee assumes custody of the bodies it should be prepared to receiv e telephoen queries from the next-of-kin as to all phases of the ensuing operation. Specifically, the Committee will have to keep the NOK informed as to the means of transportation, time of arrival of the bodies in California or other locations, location of storage facilities, time of funeral service, directions to the cemetery and any other questions that might arise.

17. QUESTION: WILL THE COMMITTEE ASSUME THE RESPONSIBILITY FOR MAKING ANY CLAIMS THAT MIGHT EXIST FOR BURIAL/DEATH BENEFITS FROM THE SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION AND THE VETERAN'S ADMINISTRATION.

Yes. Each next-of-kin should be asked to assign these benefits to the committee. The committee could in turn reduce the cost of the plan by this amount.

18. QUESTION: HOW SHOULD THE EMERGENCY RELIEF COMMITTEE PLAN BE EXECUTED?

The court should empower the receiver to take whatever action is necessary to ensure that each and every step of the plan is executed with all due speed.

19. QUESTION: HOW SHOULD THE EMERGENCY RELIEF COMMITTEE PLAN BE FINANCED?

The court should charge the receiver with all necessary authority to utilize PT assets to assure the complete execution of the plan. In this regard it is recommended that the court grant to the receiver the authority to:

a. use liquid PT capital, and

b. liquidate PT assets by auction to the degree required to finance the execution of its plan, and

c. obtain a commercial loan in any amount necessary to execute the plan. In this regard, the receiver should be authorized to pledge PT assets as collateral, and

d. act to provide any and all other means of financing the venture.

SUPERIOR COURT OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA

FOR THE CITY AND COUNTY OF SAN FRANCISCO

PEOPLE'S TEMPLE OF THE DISCIPLES OF CHRIST, Petitioner, vs. THE ATTORNEY GENERAL OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA, Respondent.	No. 746-571 RECOMMENDED PLAN FOR REMOVAL, AND INTERMENT OF BODIES REMAINING AT DOVER, DELAWARE, OF INDIVIDUALS WHO DIED IN JONESTOWN, GUYANA, ON NOVEMBER 18, 1978

INTRODUCTION

THE EMERGENCY RELIEF COMMITTEE, Amicus Curiae in this action (hereinafter referred to as ERC) consists of twenty-seven (27) individuals who are representative members of the following religious organizations, or organizations which are a part of, or are related to, the following religious organizations: (1) The Northern California Board of Rabbis; (2) The Roman Catholic Archdiocese of San Francisco; and (3) the San Francisco Council of Churches. The ERC is a special association, unincorporated, and organized not-for-profit, with a direct and special interest in the expeditious burial of all of the unburied dead, victims of the November 18, 1978 tragedy which occurred in Jonestown, Guyana. On January 8, 1979, the ERC filed its application to appear as Amicus Curiae in this action. On January 15, 1979, this Court ordered that the ERC be allowed to appear as Amicus Curiae in this proceeding.

On January 23, 1979, in open court, this Court directed the ERC to present a plan, within thirty (30) days for the transportation (from Guyana, Delaware) and interment of the unburied bodies of those individuals who died at Jonestown, Guyana, on November 18, 1978. Accordingly, the ERC respectfully presents herewith its plan, in response to the Court's order.

THE PLAN

1. Criteria.

The concern of the ERC, and insofar as we can perceive it, the concern of the religious community, is that a plan be developed which will help survivors, relatives, and the whole community to work through the remaining grief, despair, hopelessness, fear, and anger so that all members of the community may return to a productive and meaningful life. The peace and psychological health of our city --- and other parts of our nation --- depends on it. Therefore, we are convinced that "cost" factors, while important, should not be the primary consideration. The most important factor is the best possible resolution of the human problems remaining as a result of the November 18, 1978 catastrophe.

Accordingly, while cremation would be far less expensive, especially if done in Delaware, the RRC does not recommend mass cremation. Further, the United States government (hereinafter referred to as USG) strongly recommends against cremation of the unidentified bodies. Also, a plan of cremation would not solve the problems which we attempt to deal with, but would aggravate these problems. Most of the victims are black, and the black community, in general, is opposed to cremation as a method of interment. The experience of the burial of the dead is of extreme importance in the black community, in the process of working through grief. Honoring a proper burial is crucial for the survivors of the black victims, and cremation would only add to their despair and create an anger that could have said repercussi

The RRC believes that PEOPLE's TEMPLE assets shou be the primary source of money for the burial of the remain unburied bodies. PEOPLES TEMPLE assets resulted, in significant part, from the assets of the victims, and in view of the extraordinary circumstances surrounding the present problem, those assets should be looked to for the burial of the PEOPLE'S TEMPLE dead.

Finally, as representative members of the religio community, we desire that the relatives and survivors of this tragedy, as well as others affected by it, continue to live in this city, and in other places, with as few scars as possible from this experience. For this reason, we have great concern that arrangements are made that utilize reputable services which refrain from commercializing on the situation. We hope that services are used in which the relatives of the dead could find a comforting experience -- we also hope that services are held which relate well with the survivors, and the particular community to which the survivors may belong.

II. Elements of the Plan.

The ERC has gathered information as to costs and services, with regard to transportation, and with regard to morticians/funeral directors' services. We attach to this plan, in order that full disclosure may be made, all of the information we have gathered.

1. Transportation.

We have ascertained that the cheapest and most effective manner of transporting the bodies from Dover, Delaware, is by truck. Although we have received an oral bid of a "ballpark" figure of $19,500 from the ALL STATES TRUCKING COMPANY of Newark, Delaware, we have not obtained a written commitment from that company in response to our request for a written proposal.

The next cheapest proposal, and the one which meets the criteria of the committee in all respects, is the proposal of the LARMORE MOVING SYSTEMS COMPANY of Wilmington, Delaware. That proposal has been made in writing, and is attached in photocopy form as an exhibit to this plan. That proposal was made at the time when there were 582 bodies at Dover, and the bid is $55,440. (There are now 570 bodies at Dover, and it is not clear as to whether the bid remains at the same price, or would be reduced pro rata.) The considerable sensitivity, and sense of responsibility, evidenced in the LARMORE proposal, as well as the cost, makes the LARMORE proposal the one that should be accepted. This bid is more than $90,000 cheaper than the lowest air transportation bid we received (from United Airlines), although that air-transportation bid was made on the basis of 599 bodies, which is more than are currently at Dover. The LARMORE bid is also almost $5,000 less than the rail bid we received (from AMTRACK, and both the LARMORE bid and the rail bid were based on the same number of bodies (582). Also, rail transportation could not be accomplished in one shipment, but would involve shipping approximately five bodies per train, and would stretch over 100 days. It is clearly in the best interest of all concerned to ship all the bodies at the same time, and inter them as soon as possible.

For more specific information, see the attached transportation breakdown provided by Reverend JOHN O'CONNOR of the ERC.

2. Interment.

We are of the opinion that no package plan, submitted by anyone of the four package bidders (whose bids are attached) should be accepted.

Two of the four package bidders (ASSOCIATED FUNERAL DIRECTORS, INC., and the NEPTUNE SOCIETY) provided bids which were lower than the total cost-package-allowance for claimed bodies, recommended by the ERC. One of the four package bidders (ASSOCIATED FUNERAL DIRECTORS, INC.) provided a bid which was lower than the total cost-package for unidentified bodies, recommended by the ERC. However, we are of the opinion that these packages do not meet the criteria that we have generally outlined.

The bids of the four package-bidders average out to $400.66 for ASSOCIATED FUNERAL DIRECTORS, INC., $500.00 for the NEPTUNE SOCIETY, $[illegible].00 for PINLEY ENTERPRISES, and $726.[illegible] for PAUL R. FULLER. (These figures were based on 599 bodies. Our information is that as of February 15, 1979, there were only 570 bodies at Dover. It is not clear whether the per body figure would still apply for these bidders, with the reduced number of bodies.)

The ERC recommends providing a cost-allowance, for use by next-of-kin who claim bodies, for obtaining individual services as desired by each next-of-kin. The recommended cost-allowance, for services of morticians/funeral directors and grave and endowment care, is $540.00 per body, and is based on the survey we have made of minimum costs in this area (attached). The ERC strongly recommends a plan which allows individuals who are claiming bodies, to have individual, private interment, and not be compelled to be part of one single mass proceeding.

The ERC recommends that unidentified bodies be buried together, in a cemetery within a relatively short distance from San Francisco. (We believe that the cemetery proposed in the ASSOCIATED FUNERAL DIRECTORS, INC. package - which is Hidden Valley Cemetery near Pacheco, California — does not meet the criterion.) Accordingly, the ERC recommends SKYLAWN CEMETERY in San Mateo. There will be no morticians/funeral directors costs for burial of the unidentified bodies, since the LAUMORE company will deliver the bodies directly to the cemetery, and the cemetery cost includes opening and closing the grave. Skylawn's cost per body (which includes endowment care and a concrete grave liner) is $349.00. (The Skylawn offer is attached.)

Our plan, of course, contemplates no expense for clergy. None is needed. Our clergy, and many cooperating clergy, will either provide services without cost, or request other clergy (as may be requested by next-of-kin) to do so. (It also appears that there will be an adequate number of voluntary pall-bearers from the community.)

There are approximately 50 identified bodies which need to be shipped to Los Angeles, and approximately 50 that need to be shipped to Ukiah. The trucking company will be able to send one truck to the Bay Area via the Ukiah area, and one truck to the Bay Area via the Los Angeles area. Bodies destined for burial in those places, may be loaded last, by the trucking company, in each truck, and may be off loaded in these areas.

With regard to mortician/funeral directors, and cemeteries, for claimed bodies, we recommend the use of those from the community who are best able to communicate with the families and do so at a reasonable cost. Mr. Fuller has listed several black morticians in his general package-bid-plan, and we believe that they fulfill this general criterion, as do 27 other morticians in San Francisco who met with the BRC representative. The recommended individual allowance of the amount of $540.00 should be made available for morticians/ funeral directors' services, including grave and monument care, for next-of-kin who claim bodies -- but only such part of that amount as is actually expended for such services -- per body.

3. Reimbursement.

The ERC believes that in justice, and in equity, it is only fair to provide an amount of reimbursement for the families who have already seen to the burial of their dead. We have gathered information which shows that many of them had to borrow and go deeply into debt in order to accomplish such burials. We should not penalize those families, who did not wait until the court acted, in seeing to the burial of their dead. Further, of course, many of the already buried victims (or their relatives) provided monies which became part of the PEOPLE'S TEMPLE pool of assets. Accordingly, the Court should approve reimbursement in at least the amount authorized for the unburied claimed bodies. Many of the ERC members feel that an additional amount should be provided for those who have already buried their dead, because their shipping costs (at the least) were much greater than those we have been able to arrange.

III. GOVERNMENTAL PARTICIPATION

The ERC gratefully acknowledges the generous assistance of the United States Department of State, which has cooperated fully in the continuing work on this matter. The State Department will assist in providing all necessary permits for the truckers to bring the bodies across the country. The USG, which has custody of the bodies, will release them upon the signature of the appropriate person on the release form attached to this Plan. It should be noted that this release form involves an assumption of liability by the person signing it. It is assumed that the funeral director who will be used will sign the form (or the cemetery director in the case of the unidentified).

The ERC also gratefully acknowledges the generous assistance of Congressmen Evans (of Delaware), Phillip Burton (of California), and McCloskey (of California), as well as Senators Cranston and Hayakawa, and Mayor Feinstein of the City and County of San Francisco.

IV. NUMBERS.

At this writing, our information is that there are 570 bodies remaining at Dover. Of those bodies, 255 are unidentified. (Of the identified, 79 next-of-kin have indicated in writing that they authorize the State Department to dispose of the bodies. Accordingly, those bodies could be treated in the same manner as the unidentified remains.) The total cost of implementation of this plan, (1) assuming that $540.00 is paid for mortician's services and graves for the 236 bodies which are identified and are expected to be claimed, and (2) assuming $349.00 is paid for the grave for each unidentified body (and for each of the 79 bodies which will be interred in the same manner as the unidentified bodies), and (3) assuming $55,440 is paid to the LARMORE Company for transportation, is $302,796.

If reimbursement is provided, in the per-body country. The USG, which has custody of the bodies, will release them upon the signature of the appropriate person on the release form attached to this Plan. It should be noted that this release form involves an assumption of liability by the person signing it. It is assumed that the funeral director who will be used will sign the form (or the cemetery director in the case of the unidentified).

The ERC also gratefully acknowledges the generous assistance of Congressmen Evans (of Delaware), Phillip Burton (of California), and McCloskey (of California), as well as Senators Cranston and Hayakawa, and Mayor Feinstein of the City and County of San Francisco.

IV. NUMBERS.

At this writing, our information is that there are 570 bodies remaining at Dover. Of those bodies, 255 are unidentified. (Of the identified, 79 next-of-kin have indicated in writing that they authorize the State Department to dispose of the bodies. Accordingly, those bodies could be treated in the same manner as the unidentified remains.) The total cost of implementation of this plan, (1) assuming that $540.00 is paid for mortician's services and graves for the 236 bodies which are identified and are expected to be claimed, and (2) assuming $349.00 is paid for the grave for each unidentified body (and for each of the 79 bodies which will be interred in the same manner as the unidentified bodies), and (3) assuming $55,440 is paid to the LARMORE Company for transportation, is $302,786.

If reimbursement is provided, in the per-body unidentified bodies, and the USG will provide those death certificates to whoever implements the plan.

WHEREFORE, the ERC respectfully requests the Court to adopt its recommendations above set forth, and order the implementation of the Plan by the Receiver.

DATED: February 16, 1979.

MEMORANDUM TO: CA/EX - Mr. Ronald K. Somerville

FROM: OCS - Alan A. Gise, Deputy

SUBJECT: Extension of Travel Orders for Charles M. Wyman at Dover AFB, Delaware

REF: My memorandum of February 27 re Travel Requirements

I have just learned that Mr. Wyman's travel orders expire today. Since the issue of disposition of the bodies from Dover has not been resolved and bodies are still being claimed by next of kin, it is necessary to continue Mr. Wyman's temporary assignment to Dover for at least another 30 days. (If you remember DOD insists on having a State Department liaison officer at Dover until the last body is removed.)

I anticipate that the judge in San Francisco will make a decision on the emergency relief plan within two or three days. Approval of this plan by the judge will facilitate removal of the rest of the bodies but I do not anticipate that the plan can be completed prior to the end of March.

Therefore I request urgent extension of Mr. Wyman's orders and telephone confirmation of this to either Jay Rini on ext. 28055 or myself so we may immediately notify Mr. Wyman at Dover.

cc: Mr. Dobrenchuk

SUBJ: PRIME MINISTER BURNHAM'S BREAKFAST FOR GUYANESE MEDIA
AT BELFIELD FEB. 11, 1979.

1. PRIMIN MIN FORBES BURNHAM HOSTED A SOMEWHAT UNUSUAL BREADKFAST FOR THE MEDIA ON SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 11 AT HIS COUNTRY RESIDENCE AT BELFIELD. THE BREAKFAST STARTED AT 7 A.M. ON SCHEDULE, BUT GUESTS DID NOT BEGIN TO LEAVE UNTIL 12:15 P.. AND SOME LINGERED ON AS LATE AS 4 P.M. THE PRIMIN WAS IN A JOVIAL MOOD, TRADING JOKES WITH GUESTS, AND MINGLING FREELY WITH THEM. MRS. BURNHAM AND THE CHILDREN WERE ALSO ON HAND TO MAKE SURE THAT THE GUESTS HAD PLENTY TO EAT AND TO DRINK. MOST OF THE 60-ODD GUESTS CAME FROM THE LOCAL MEDIA (CHRONICLE, GBS, RADIO DEMERARA, GIS AND A FEW NON-GOVERNMENT JOURNALISTS), CABINET MEMBERS, GUYANESE DIPLOMATS AT HOME ON CONSULTATTION, A FEW FOREIGN OFFICIAL MEDIA AND INFORMATION REPRESENTATIVES (TASS, HSIN HUA, LA PRENSA LATINA, USICA). FOREIGN PRESSMAN WERE NOT INVITED.

2. KESTER ALVES, SPECIAL ASSITANT TO THE PM, WAS

MASTER OF CERMONIES FOR THE LONG SPEECHMAKING PROGRAM (FROM 9 AM. TO NOON) WHICH CONSISTED OF SPEECHES BY THE LEADERSHIP OF THE GUYANA PRESS ASSOCIATION, MEMBERS OF NON-GOVERNMENT MEDIA, GUYANESE DIPLOMATS, CABINET MEMBERS, AND MRS. BURNHAM WHO REFERRED TO HER HUSBAND AS "A SUPERIOR MAN." THE PRIMIN HAD THE "LAST WORD" WHICH LASTED ABOUT ONE HOUR.

3. THE PRIMIN'S EXTEMPROANEOUS REMARKS FOCUSED ON TWO PRINCIPAL TOPICS, THE GOG'S PRIVATE INVESTMENT CODE, LAUNCHED THE DAY BEFORE, AND THE CONDUCT OF THE OFFICIAL AND NON-GOVERNMENT MEDIA IN GUYANA. THE PM MAINTANINED THAT THE INVESTMENT CODE WAS NOT A NEW CONCEPT, BUT A REAFFIRMATION AND CLARIFICATION OF THE LONG-STANDING INTENTION OF HIS GOVERNMENT TO MAINTAIN A TRISECTORAL ECONOMY (PUBLIC-COOPERATIVE-PRIVATE), AND THAT HE WAS NOT INTERESTED IN A MARXIST MODEL OF ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT, BUT WANTED A GUYANESE APPROACH TO SOCIALISM AND DEVELOPMENT THAT WOULD BEST SERVE THE INTERESTS OF THE PEOPLE. THE PRIMIN POINTED TO PEPSI COLA IN MOSCOW, COCA COLA IN PEKING, AND PRIVATE FARMS IN EASTERN EUROPE AS EVIDENCE THAT PRIVATE ENTERPRISES, AND FOREIGN INVESTIMENT CAN COEXIST WITH SOCIALISM.

4. ON THE MEDIA, THE PRIMIN SAID THAT THERE ARE TWO DISTINCT GROUPS IN GUYANA, OFFICIAL AND NON-GOVERNMENT. HE REMINDED THOSE WHO WORK FOR THE GOVERNMENT-OWNED PRESS THAT THEY MUST HAVE A CLEAR-CUT IDEA WHERE THEY STAND IN TERMS OF LOYALTY AND RESPONSIBILITY, AND THAT THEY SHOULD NOT ENTERTAIN ANY "UNREALISTIC IDEA ABOUT INDEPENDENCE OF THE PRESS." HE CLAIMED THAT EVEN IN THE U.S., THE PRESS IS NOT TRULY INDEPENDENT AS EVIDENCED BY THE FALL OF RICHARD NIXON AS THE RESULT OF PRESSURE FROM OWNERS OF CERTAIN SECTIONS OF THE AMERICAN PRESS. HE FAULTED THE OFFICIAL MEDIA FOR THEIR POOR PERCEPTION AND JUDGEMENT AS TO WHAT IS IMPORTANT FOR GUYANA. TO ILLUSTRATE THE POINT, HE COMPLAINED THAT JONESTOWN WAS GIVEN EXCESSIVE COVERAGE AND PROMINENCE FOR TOO LONG BY THE OFFICIAL MEDIA WHEN "EVERYONE KNOWS THAT JONESTOWN WAS AN AMERICAN PROBLEM TRANSPORTED TO GUYANA, AND THEREFORE, CLEARLY NOT A GUYANESE PROBLEM." HE POINTED OUT THAT JIM JONES CAME TO GUYANA WITH RECOMMENDATIONS, NOT FROM GUYANESE OFFICIALS, BUT FROM PROMINENT AMERICANS, NO LESS THAN MRS. CARTER AND VICE PRESIDENT MONDALE, AND THAT JONES CAME WITH CREDENTIALS, NOT FROM MAYOR CECIL PERSAUD OF GEORGETOWN, BUT FROM MAYOR MOSCONE OF SAN FRANCISCO. HE TOLD HIS GUESTS THAT WHEN DEPTUY PRIME MINISTER REID MET VP MONDALE IN WASHINGTON AT THE PANAMA TREATIES SIGNING CEREMONIES IN SEPTEMBER, 1977, THE VICE PRESIDENT HAD ASKED REID "HOW'S JIM?" THUS INDICATING A PERSONAL INTEREST IN THE PEOPLE'S TEMPLE LEADER. HE ALSO BROUGHT THE USSR INTO THE PICTURE BY REFERRING TO THE FACT THT THE PEOPLE'/S TEMPLE BEQUEATHED ITS FOREIGN BANK ACCOUNTS, NOT TO PNC, BUT TO THE COMMUNIST PARTY OF THE USSR. THE USSR CAME UNDER INDIRECT FIRE IN ANOTHER PORTION OF THE PRIMIN'S REMARKS IN WHICH HE HYPOTHESIZED THAT IF THE PPP WERE TO COME INTO POWER TOMORROW, IT WOULD TAKE THAT PARTY SEVERAL YEARS TO UNDO THE DAMAGE DONE TO THE COUNTRY BY THE IRRESPONSIBLE CONDUCT OF THE PPP'S MIRROR.

LIMITED OFFICIAL USE

(1) AS A PART OF A SERIES OF MEMORANDA PARTIALLY SUBMITTED UNDER COVER OF MR. DOUGLAS BENNET'S JANUARY 4 LETTER TO ME IT WAS THE COMMITTEE'S UNDERSTANDING THAT ALL U.S. GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS AFFILIATED WITH THE U.S. EMBASSY WHO HAD ANY KIND OF CONTACT WITH THE PEOPLE'S TEMPLE ORGANIZATION IN GUYANA, INCLUDING REPRESENTATIVES OF THE CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY, WOULD SUBMIT STATEMENTS SUMMARIZING THAT CONTACT. ON THE BASIS OF THAT UNDERSTANDING THE COMMITTEE ASSUMES THAT ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS WILL BE PROVIDED. THIS REQUEST APPLIES TO THE PERIOD FROM THE INCEPTION OF PEOPLE'S TEMPLE ACTIVITIES IN GUYANA IN 1974 THROUGH NOVEMBER 18, 1978.
(2) COPIES OF STATE DEPARTMENT LEGAL INTERPRETATIONS OF AND GUIDELINES FOR IMPLEMENTATION OF THE PRIVACY ACT WITH PARTICULAR REFERENCE TO THE QUESTION OF WHETHER, IN THE OPINION OF THE DEPARTMENT OF STATE, THE ACT APPLIED TO MINORS. IN THIS SAME CONNECTION THE COMMITTEE WOULD REQUIRE AN EXPLANATION OF THE TIMEFRAMES WITHIN WHICH SUCH INTERPRETATIONS AND GUIDELINES WERE FORMULATED

(5) A REPORT ON WHETHER ANY FOREIGN PASSPORTS WERE FOUND AMONG THE FILES IN JONESTOWN, GUYANA.
(6) A COMPLETE AND DETAILED REPORT ON ANY FREEDOM OF INFORMATION ACTS FILED WITH THE DEPARTMENT OF STATE INVOLVING PEOPLE'S TEMPLE BETWEEN 1974 AND NOVEMBER 18, 1978, INCLUDING AN INDICATION OF THE TIME LAPSES BETWEEN THE FILING OF SUCH REPORTS AND COMPLIANCE WITH THEM.
(7) ANY INFORMATION THE STATE DEPARTMENT MAY HAVE REGARDING THE VISITS TO ANY FOREIGN COUNTRIES, ESPECIALLY THOSE IN EASTERN EUROPE, OF MR. JIM JONES AND MR. TIM STOEN.
(8) DURING THE PERIOD OF FEBRUARY-SEPTEMBER 1977 THE U.S. CUSTOMS SERVICE UNDERTOOK AN INVESTIGATION OF ALLEGATIONS THAT PEOPLE'S TEMPLE WAS SMUGGLING GUNS AND OTHER COUNTRABAND INTO JONESTOWN. THE FINAL REPORT WAS SUBSEQUENTLY SUBMITTED TO INTERPOL. RELATIVE TO THE CUSTOMS SERVICE REPORT THE COMMITTEE IS INTERESTED IN LEARNING (A) IF THE REPORT WAS PROVIDED TO STATE AND WHEN AND WHAT DISTRIBUTION WAS MADE OF IT; AND (B) IF ANY SUBSEQUENT INTERPOL ACTION RELATIVE TO THE CUSTOMS REPORT BECAME KNOWN TO THE STATE DEPARTMENT, INCLUDING THE U.S. EMBASSY IN GEORGETOWN.
(9) THE PRECISE TIME AND THE METHOD BY WHICH THE U.S. EMBASSY IN GEORGETOWN LEARNED OF THE SHOOTING AT THE PORT KAITUMA AIRSTRIP. ALSO, THE PRECISE TIME AND METHOD BY WHICH THE SAME INFORMATION WAS CONVEYED FOR THE FIRST TIME TO U.S. GOVERNMENT OFFICIALSIN WASHINGTON.

2. QUOTE: I HAVE THE HONOUR TO REFER TO YOUR EXCELLENCY'S NOTE NO 6 OF 23 JANUARY REQUESTING THAT HER MAJESTY'S GOVERNMENT ASSIST THE GOVERNMENT OF THE UNITED STATES IN ITS ENDEAVOURS TO IDENTIFY AND IMMOBILISE ANY ASSETS OF THE PEOPLES' TEMPLE IN THE UNITED KINGDOM. HER MAJESTY'S GOVERNMENT WOULD LIKE TO HELP THE GOVERNMENT OF THE UNITED STATES IN THIS MATTER, BUT, AS FAR AS WE CAN DETERMINE AT PRESENT, THERE IS NO WAY UNDER ENGLISH LAW IN WHICH HER MAJESTY'S GOVERNMENT CAN ITSELF INTERFERE WITH THESE ASSETS. I AM, HOWEVER, CAUSING FURTHER ENQUIRIES TO BE MADE ON THIS ASPECT AND I WILL LET YOUR EXCELLENCY KNOW THE OUTCOME, TOGETHER WITH RECOMMENDATIONS FOR THE MOST APPROPRIATE ACTION WHICH THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT MIGHT TAKE. 1. REFTEL REPORTED THAT THERE ARE 114 LARGE CRATES CONSIGNED TO THE PEOPLE' TEMPLE AT VARIOUS SHIPPING COMPANIES IN GEORGETOWN, AND WE HAVE SINCE IDENTIFIED THREE MORE, FOR TOTAL OF 117.

2. GUYANESE CUSTOMS OFFICIALS HAVE SO FAR OPENED AND EXAMINED THIRYT-TWO CRATES. A CONSULAR OFFICER WAS PRESENT IN EACH CASE AND MADE A SUMMARY LIST OF CONTENTS, COPIES OF WHICH HAVE BEEN POUCHED TO CA/OCS/CCS. SOME OF THOSE CRATES, WHICH HAVE BEEN INSPECTED, CONTAIN A SIGNIFICANT QUANTITY OF IDENTIFIABLE PERSONAL EFFECTS OF PERSONS KNOWN TO HAVE PERISHED AT JONESTOWN. EXAMINATION OF ADDITIONAL CRATES HAS BEEN DELAYED DUE TO LACK OF MANUAL LABORERS TO MANHANDLE, OPEN AND RESEAL CRATES.

3. NOW THAT IT HAS BEEN ESTABLISHED THAT CRATES CONTAIN IDENTIFIABLE PERSONAL EFFECTS OF DECEDENTS, EMBASSY WILL REQUEST GUYANESE GOVERNMENT TO TURN OVER THESE EFFECTS TO CONSULAR OFFICIALS. BEOFRE MAKING FORMAL REQUEST, HOWEVER,

1. AT START OF FEBRUARY 25 SESSION ON HIGH COURT TRIAL OF LAYTON, SENIOR DEFENSE COUNSEL REX MCKAY MADE THREE SUBMISSIONS. THE FIRST ARGUED THAT CHIEF JUSTICE BOLLERS SHOULD DISQUALIFITY HIMSELF FROM THE TRIAL ON THE GROUNDS OF POSSIBLE PREJUDICE TOWARD THE ACCUSED. THE SECOND SUBMISSION MOVED THAT THE TRIAL SHOULD BE POSTPONED UNTIL THE APRIL SESSION OF THE HIGH COURT TO ALLOW MORE TIME FOR THE DEFENSE TO PREPARE ITS CASE. MCKAY ARGUED IN THE THIRD SUBMISSION THAT MAGISTRATE CHINTA DID NOT HAVE AUTHORITY TO PRESIDE OVER THE PRELIMINARY INQUIRY CONCLUDED LAST DECEMBER INTO THE MURDERS OF CONGRESSMAN RYAN AND FOUR OTHER AMERICANS, AND THAT THEREFORE LAYTON'S COMMITAL TO TRIAL IN THE HIGH COURT WAS IN ERROR.
2. BOLLERS DENIED THE FIRST SUBMISSION AND STATED THAT THERE WAS ABSOLUTELY NO REASON WHY HE SHOULD DISQUALIFY HIMSELF, EVEN IF THE ALLEGATIONS MADE BY THE DEFENSE IN THIS MATTER WERE TRUE. BOLLERS ALSO DENIED THE SECOND APPLICATION ON THE GROUNDS THAT THE DEFENSE HAD SUFFICIENT TIME TO PREPARE A DEFENSE.

1. EMBASSY HAS BEEN INFORMED THAT HFAC STAFF DEL, WHICH HAS BEEN CONDUCTING AN INQUIRY INTO THE PEOPLES TEMPLE, THE ASSASSINATION OF CONGRESSMAN RYAN, AND THE MASS MURDERS/SUICIDES AT JONESTOWN NOVEMBER 18, WILL BE COMING TO JONESTOWN MARCH 17 FOR ONE WEEK IN ORDER TO INTERVIEW AMBASSADOR AND OTHER STAFF MEMBERS. IT WOULD BE MOST VALUABLE TO THIS MISSION TO HAVE AVAILABLE TO US AT THE SAME TIME MR. TERRY FORTUNE OF L/ARA WHO, WE UNDERSTAND, HAS BEEN PRESENT AT INTERVIEWS BETWEEN ARA PERSONNEL AND THE STAFF DEL IN WASHINGTON. MR. FORTUNE SHOULD ARRANGE TO ARRIVE IN GEORGETOWN ON MARCH 17 IN VIEW OF THE FACT THAT STAFF DEL MAY WISH TO BEGIN ITS WORK ON SUNDAY, MARCH 18.

2. AT THE SAME TIME THAT HE IS IN GEORGETOWN IN CONNECTION WITH THESE INTERVIEWS, MR. FORTUNE COULD ALSO CONTINUE HIS DISCUSSIONS WITH LEGAL OFFICIALS OF THE GOVERNMENT OF GUYANA AS WELL AS THE LOCAL LAWYER WHO HAS BEEN

CFA: 14/41/1 MARCH 13, 1979

DEAR CONGRESSMAN,

YOUR LETTER ON JONESTOWN, TO THE PRIME MINISTER, THE TEXT OF WHICH WAS COMMUNICATED THROUGH A LETTER OF MARCH 2, 1979, ADDRESSED TO THE MINISTER OF FOREIGN AFFAIRS BY THE UNITED STATES AMBASSADOR IN GEORGETOWN, HAS BEEN PASSED TO ME FOR REPLY.

THE EVENTS WHICH OCCURRED ON NOVEMBER 18, 1978, AMONG AMERICAN CITIZENS ON GUYANESE SOIL CONSITITUTED IN THEIR CHARACTER, SCALE AND DIMENSIONS THE GREATEST SINGLE TRAGEDY WHICH HAS EVER OCCURRED IN THE HISTORY OF GUYANA. NOTHING IN THE TRADITIONS OF OUR OWN PEOPLE HAD TAUGHT US TO EXPECT THEM. THE SENSELESS AND WASTEFUL LOSS OF LIFE, INCLUDING THAT OF REPRESENTATIVE LEO J. RYAN, A MEMBER OF YOUR COMMITTEE, HAS DEEPLY SADDENED THE PARLIAMENT AND THE PEOPLE OF GUYANA. FROM THE MEASURE OF OUR OWN GRIEF, I CAN FULLY UNDERSTAND AND APPRECIATE THE DISTRESS FELT BY THE UNITED STATES

CONGRESS AND THE AMERICAN PEOPLE; AND I WOULD, THEREFORE, LIKE TO TAKE THIS OPPORTUNITY OF CONFIRMING AND REITERATING THE PLEDGE GIVEN TO YOU BY OUR AMBASSADOR IN WASHINGTON, MR. LAWRENCE E. MANN OF THE FULL CO-OPERATION OF THE GOVERNMENT OF GUYANA IN OUR MUTUALLY DESIRABLE INTERESTS TO MAKE FULL INVESTIGATION OF THIS TRAGIC EVENT.

AS YOU MAY KNOW, OUR CONCERN HAS LED US TO TAKE A NUMBER OF STEPS TO DEAL WITH THE AFTERMATH OF NOEVEMBER 18. MANY OF THESE STEPS, I AM HAPPY TO SAY, HAVE INVOLVED CO-OPERATION WITH AGENCIES OF YOUR GOVERNMENT. SUCH CO-OPERATION HAS BEEN FACILITATED BY A MINISTERIAL LEVEL COMMITTEE WHICH WAS ESTABLISHED WITH THAT OBJECT AS ONE OF ITS MAIN PURPOSES. IT WAS THIS COMMITTEE WHICH ARRANGED FOR THE CO-ORDINATION OF INVESTIAGATIONS BY THE F.B.I. AND OUR OWN CRIMINAL INVESTIGATION DIVISION AS WELL AS THE JOINT MILITARY/CIVILIAN TASK OF BODY IDENTIFICATION AND REMOVAL. IN ADDITION, THERE HAVE OF COURSE BEEN MANY OTHER STEPS SEPARATELY TAKEN BY OUR OWN AGENCIES. IN PARTICULAR, OUR LAW ENFORCEMENT AUTHORITIES HAVE INITIATED ACTION IN OUR COURTS WHICH SEEKS THE APPLICATION OF OUR LAWS TO SEVERAL ASPECTS OF JONESTOWN, ONCLUDING THE DEATH OF CONGRESSMAN RYAN. FINALLY, THE GOVERNMENT OF GUYANA HAS DECIDED TO CONDUCT A JUDICIAL INQUIRY INTO THE CIRCUMSTANCES OF JONESTOWN.

NOTE HAS BEEN TAKEN OF YOUR DECISION TO ORDER A COMMITTEE STAFF INVESTIGATION INTO ALL OF THE CIRCUSTANCES WHICH MIGHT HAVE A BEARING ON THE DEATH OF CONGRESSMAN RYAN AND OF YOUR REQUEST TO ALLOW YOUR STAFF GROUP TO INTERVIEW CERTAIN GUYANESE GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS. FROM THE POINT OF VIEW OF MAKING A CONCERTED APPROACH, THERE ARE TWO CONSIDERATIONS WHICH I IN TURN INVITE YOUR TO CONSIDER. FIRST, AND ALTOGETHER APART FROM QUESTIONS OF PROTOCOL, SENIRO GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS SAME OF WHOM YOUR STAFF MAY WISH TO INTERVIEW, ARE VERY LIKELY TO BE ALSO REQUIRED TO TESTIFY BEFORE OUR OWN JUDICIAL INQUIRY. SECONDLY, A NEATER AND POSSIBLY MORE CONVENIENT WAY FOR YOUR COMMITTEE TO BE SUPPLIED WITH THEIR EVIDENCE WOULD BE THROUGH THE REPORT AND FINDINGS OF OUR OWN INQUIRY, TO BE PROVIDED ON A BASIS OF RECIPROCITY. MAY I ADD THAT, SO FAR AS OUR INQUIRY IS CONCERNED, NO OVERLAPPING IS LIKELY TO OCCUR BECAUSE IT IS NOT CONTEMPLATED THAT OUR INQUIRY WILL BE SEEKING TO INTERVIEW GOVERNMENTAL WITNESSES UB THE UNITED STATES.

AS YOU MAY NOT HAVE HAD THESE CIRCUMSTANCES IN MIND, I WONDER WHETHER IN THE LIGHT OF THEM, SOU MAY WISH TO RECONSIDER THE NECESSIRY FOR FOR THE REQUEST MADE IN YOUR LETTER.

PLEASE ACCEPT THE ASSURANCES OF MY HIGHEST CONSIDERATION.

ALSO TO BE COMMENDED IS YOUR GOVERNMENT'S DECISION TO BEGIN A JUDICIAL INQUIRY OF THIS TRAGEDY. AS YOU KNOW, HOWEVER, OUR OWN INVESTIGATION HAS BEEN UNDER WAY SINCE NOVEMBER 21, 1978 AND THE INVESTIGATION GROUP'S VISIT TO GUYANA IS THE LAST PHASE OF THAT EFFORT.
GIVEN THE ENORMITY OF THE EVENTS OF NOVEMBER 18, 1978 WHICH YOU SO APTLY DESCRIBED AS QUOTE THE GREATEST SINGLE TRAGEDY THAT HAS EVER OCCURRED IN THE HISTORY OF GUYANA, UNQUOTE IT IS URGENT THAT THE INVESTIGATION BE COMPLETED IN A TIMELY AND COMPLETE FASHION. SURELY, PROSPECT OF DELAY OR INCOMPLETENESS IS ONE WHICH THE U.S. CONGRESS AND THE AMERICAN PEOPLE WOULD FIND DIFFICULT TO UNDERSTAND.
THE SUGGESTION TO EXCHANGE OUR RESPECTIVE INVESTIGATIVE REPORTS IS CERTAINLY ACCEPTABLE. AT THE SAME TIME, I AM COMPELLED TO RESPECTFULLY REITERATE MY FIRM BELIEF THAT A THOROUGH INVESTIGATION STILL REQUIRES THAT OUR INVESTIGATORS TALK WITH OFFICIALS IN GUYANA WHO CAN HELP THE COMMITTEE COMPLETE ITS INVESTIGATION. WHILE I UNDERSTAND THE LEGAL IMPORT OF THE FACT THAT

THOSE OFFICIALS MAY BE REQUIRED TO TESTIFY BEFORE YOUR OWN INQUIRY I AM DEEPLY CONCERNED THAT THE LACK OF INFORMATION THAT THEY SHOULD BE ABLE TO PROVIDE TO THE COMMITTEE WOULD LEAVE A CONSPICUOUS VOID IN THE REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE'S INVESTIGATION.
ACCORDINGLY, I HAVE DIRECTED THE STAFF INVESTIGATIVE GROUP OF THIS COMMITTEE TO VISIT GUYANA THE WEEK OF MARCH 18 FOR THE PURPOSE OF INTERVIEWING U.S. EMBASSY PERSONNEL AND OTHERS. YOUR KIND COOPERATION IN MAKING IT POSSIBLE FOR THE GROUP TO COME TO GUYANA IS DEEPLY APPRECIATED.

1. DR. LESLIE MOOTOO, GOG PATHOLOGIST, BELIEVES THERE HAS BEEN SOME MISUNDERSTANDING AS HE HAD NO FORMAL REPORT TO PRESENT TO FBI HGS AND HAD INTENDED TO ONLY MAKE ONLY AN INFORMAL ORAL REPORT.

2. MOOTOO STATES ALSO THAT HE DID NOT MAKE ANY TOXICOLOGY STUDIES OF THOSE ASSASSINATED AT PORT KAITUMA AIRSTRIP AS ALL VICTIMS DIED OF GUNSHOT WOUNDS.

3. FINALLY, WITH REFERENCE TO PRESS REPORTS THAT HE HAD GIVEN AMERICAN EMBASSY GEORGETOWN SAMPLES, DR. MOOTOO STATED THIS THIS REFERRED TO VIALS OF POISONOUS DRINK THAT HE HAD GIVEN ASST LEGATT GARRETTSON.

OUR REGARD FOR THE EXPECTATIONS OF OUR OWN PARLIAMENT AND PEOPLE ENABLES US TO FOLLOW YOUR STATEMENT THAT THE PROSPECT OF DELAY OR INCOMPLETENESS IN CARRYING OUR YOUR DECISION TO ORDER A COMMITTEE STAFF INVESTIGATION IS ONE WHICH THE UNITED STATE CONGRESS AND THE AMERICAN PEOPLE WOULD FIND DIFFICULT TO UNDERSTAND; AND I DO NOTE THE REITERATION OF YOUR FIRM BELIEF THAT A THOROUGH INVESTIGATION STILL REQUIRES THAT YOUR INVESTIGATORS TALK WITH OFFICIALS IN GUYANA WHO CAN HELP YOUR COMMITTEE ICOMPLETE ITS INVESTIGATION.

ON OUR PART, WE ARE FACED WITH THE FACT, YOUR UNDERSTANDING OF THE LEGAL IMPORT OF WHICH I AM GLAD TO NOTE, THAT SOME OF THOSE OFFICIALSMAY BE REQUIRED TO TESTIFY BEFORE OUR OWN ENQUIRY. MENTIONED IN MY EARLIER LETTER, IT IS NOT CONTEMPLATED HERE THAT OUR OWN ENQUIRY WILL BE SEEKING TO EXAMINE GOVERNAMENTAL OFFICIALS IN YOUR COUNTRY.
THESE CONSIDERATIONS CONSTRAIN ME TO SAY WITH THE UTMOST COURTESY THAT THE ONLY DISCOVERABLE METHOD WHEREBY THIS GOVERNMENT CAN WITH PROPRITY SATISFY ITS DESIRE TO ASSIST YOUR COMMITTEE WITH RELEVANT EVIDENCE OF OUR GOVERNMENTAL OFFICIALS WOULD BE BY MAKING AVAILABLE TO YOUR COMMITTEE THE REPORT OF OUR OWN JUDICIAL INQUIRY. 2. DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE HAS INQUIRED RE: CURRENT STATUS OF LAYTON TRIAL. JUSTICE HAS BEEN INFORMED THAT GOG MAY BE UNABLE TO CONVICT LAYTON BECAUSE OF REFUSAL OF WITNESSES TO RETURN TO GUYANA. U.S. ATTORNEY'S OFFICE IN SAN FRANCISCO BELIEVES IT HAS A STRONG CASE AGAINST LAYTON FOR VIOLATION OF STATUTE PROHIBITING ATTACK ON CONGRESSMEN. WHILE JUSTICE RECOGNIZES THE PRIMARY JURISDICTION OF GOG, IT IS UNDERSTANDABLY CONCERNED OVER THE PROSPECT THAT LAY-

TON MAY GO FREE.
3. EMBASSY IS REQUESTED TO REPORT ON PRESENT STATUS OF LAYTON CASE AND TO ASCERTAIN THROUGH CONTACT WITH ATTORNEY GENERAL SHAHABADEEN OR OTHER APPROPRIATE GOG OFFICIAL WHETHER GOG ANTICIPATES DIFFICULTY IN OBTAINING A CONVICTION. IF DIFFICULTIES ARE FORESEEN, EMBASSY MAY WISH TO INFORM GOG THAT ALTHOUGH U.S. HAS NO DESIRE TO INTERFERE WITH GOG EXERCISE OF JURISDICTION, BOTH COUNTRIES SHARE AN INTEREST IN SEEING THAT PERPETRATOR(S) OF ATTACK ON RYAN DO NOT GO UNPUNISHED. THEREFORE, IF DIFFICULTIES ARE FORESEEN AT PRESENT, OR AT ANY POINT IN THE FUTURE, U.S. WOULD APPRECIATE BEING NOTIFIED PROMPTLY OF THIS FACT BY GOG. IF CONVICTION IN GUYANA APPEARS UNCERTAIN, U.S. WOULD WISH TO EXPLORE POSSIBILITY OF RETURNINGLAYTON TO THE U.S. FOR TRIAL, EITHER BY EXTRADITION OR DEPORTATION. SHOULD THESE STEPS BECOME NECESSARY, IT IS OUR HOPE THAT GOG WOULD COOPERATE WITH OUR EFFORTS, AS IT HAS IN ALL ASPECTS OF THE RYAN CASE TO DATE.

4. FYI. IN EARLIER DISCUSSIONS, THERE WAS SOME CONFUSION CONCERNING WHETHER EXTRADITION TREATY WAS IN FORCE BETWEEN U.S. AND GUYANA. 1931 EXTRADITION TREATY WITH GREAT BRITAIN APPLIED IN GUYANA PRIOR TO INDEPENDENCE. IN A LETTER OF JUNE 30, 1966, TO THE SECRETARY GENERAL OF THE U.N., THE PRIME MINISTER OF GUYANA STATED, IN EFFECT, THAT PRE-EXISTING TREATIES WOULD CONTINUE IN FORCE UNTIL NOTICE OF TERMINATION WAS ISSUED BY GOG. NO SUCH NOTICE WAS ISSUED RE: EXTRADITION TREATY. THUS, IT REMAINS IN FORCE. CHRISTOPHER

MR. CARTER:

I JUST WANT TO NOTE FOR THE RECORD MY OWN STRONG OBJECTION TO, AND PROTEST OF, THE BREAKING OF THE EMBARGOED STORY ON THE REPORT BY TWO RETIRED FOREIGN SERVICE OFFICERS ON THE DEPARTMENT'S HANDLING OF THE GUYANA INCIDENT. JUST MADE -- THROUGH THE WASHINGTON STAR -- THE BEST ARGUMENT THIS BUILDING HAS FOR NOT RELEASING INFORMATION EARLY AND MAKING IT MORE POSSIBLE TO EXAMINE CLOSELY. I UNDERSTAND THAT'S A NEWS MANAGEMENT DECISION AT THE STAR. I THINK IT STINKS.

Q. HODDING, ABOUT THE GUYANA REPORT. FIRST OF ALL, DOES THE LEADERSHIP OF THE DEPARTMENT CONCUR IN THE CONCLUSIONS REACHED IN THAT REPORT?

A. THE LEADERSHIP OF THE DEPARTMENT ASKED FOR THE REPORT. A COPY HAS BEEN PROVIDED TO ALMOST EVERYBODY IN THIS BUILDING.

GIVEN THE FACT THAT IT WAS SUPPOSED TO BE RELEASED FOR TOMORROW, I DON'T HAVE AN OFFICIAL POSITION TO GIVE ON IT. I STILL WANT TO WAIT FOR TOMORROW MORNING'S BRIEFING BY THE AUTHORS OF THAT REPORT FOR A DETAILED CONVERSATION ABOUT WHAT THEIR FINDINGS WERE, BECAUSE OBVIOUSLY THERE ARE QUESTIONS THAT ARE RAISED THAT THEY ARE BEST ABLE TO DEAL WITH.

WE WILL, OF COURSE, BE STUDYING IT -- BOTH IN TERMS OF A BIT OF HISTORICAL RESEARCH, AND AS A GUIDE TO POSSIBLE

UNCLASSIFIED
CHANGES. WHAT THOSE MAY BE, I JUST DON'T KNOW.
NOW COPIES HAVE BEEN SENT UP TO THE HILL, BUT I WANT TO SEPARATE OUR REPORT FROM WHAT THE HILL IS CONDUCTING ITSELF. THE HOUSE COMMITTEE HAS A FULL INVESTIGATION AND REPORT COMING. I ASSUME THAT THEY WILL DRAW ON THIS TO SOME DEGREE. BUT THEY HAVE AN ENTIRELY DIFFERENT ONE.
UNCLASSIFIED
UNCLASSIFIED

IN ANY CASE, YES, WE WILL BE LOOKING SERIOUSLY -- THE SECRETARY OF STATE AND THE LEADERSHIP IN THIS DEPART-MENT -- AT THE REPORT, AND ITS CONCLUSIONS.
Q. TO FOLLOW UP ON THE POINT YOU RAISED ABOUT THE FUTURE-ORIENTED APPROACH TO IT. ASIDE FROM WHAT THE REPORT SAYS, HAVE THERE BEEN ANY CHANGES IN PROCEDURES THAT THE DEPARTMENT USES FOR HANDLING CONTROVERSIES INVOLVING AMERICANS ABROAD? HAVE ANY OF THE LESSONS THAT HAVE ALREADY BEEN LEARNED BEEN PUT INTO PRACTICE?
A. LET ME SAY, WITHOUT TRYING TO ITEMIZE EVERYTHING, THAT THERE HAVE BEEN SEVERAL STEPS TAKEN -- THIS REPORT BEING ONE -- BUT ALSO SOME SUGGESTIONS FOR AT LEAST IMPROVED FOCUS WITHIN THE CONSTRAINTS THAT ARE SO CAREFULLY NOTED IN THIS REPORT ON OUR ABILITY TO DEAL WITH AMERICAN CITIZENS ABROAD. THERE HAS BEEN AT LEAST AN ATTEMPT TO FOCUS ALL OF OUR POSTS' ATTENTION ON THE KIND OF PROBLEMS WHICH MAY ARISE WHEN YOU HAVE A LARGE CONCENTRATION OF AMERICANS ABROAD IN SPECIFIC KINDS OF SITUATIONS.
THE REQUEST FOR FOCUS PAYS CAREFUL HEED TO THE ABSOLUTE RIGHTS THAT AMERICAN CITIZENS HAVE TO OPERATE WITHOUT GOVERNMENT INTERFERENCE IN A NUMBER OF IMPORTANT WAYS
GUARANTEED BY THE FIRST AMENDMENT, THE CONSTRAINTS PLACED ON US BY THE PRIVACY ACT, AND AT LEAST SOME OF THE CONSTRAINTS PLACED ON US BY THE FREEDOM OF INFORMA-TION ACT.
Q. HODDING, OBVIOUSLY, LOOKING THROUGH THIS REPORT,
IT'S EASY TO SAY IN HINDSIGHT THAT SOME OF THE OFFICERS WHO DISREGARDED OR WHO DIDN'T TAKE SERIOUSLY SOME OF THE WARNINGS THEY GOT SHOULD HAVE TAKEN THEM MORE SERIOUSLY.
UNCLASSIFIED
UNCLASSIFIED

DOES THE DEPARTMENT AGREE WITH THAT? AND IF SO, HAVE ANY OF THE INDIVIDUALS WHO WERE INVOLVED IN THE HANDLING OF THE CASE -- EITHER HERE OR IN GUYANA -- BEEN REPRI-MANDED, DEMOTED, OR ANY OTHER KIND OF DISCIPLINE?
A. THE ANSWER TO THE LATTER THING IS NO, BECAUSE WE HAVE JUST NOW RECEIVED THE REPORT.
Q. YOU'RE NOT RULING OUT THE POSSIBILITY THAT THAT MIGHT OCCUR?

A. I'M NOT RULING ANYTHING ON THAT, BOB. I DON'T WANT TO LEAVE OPEN THE POSSIBILITY; I DON'T WANT TO TURN IT DOWN. I HAVE NO IDEA WHAT THE MECHANISMS OF THE DEPARTMENT MIGHT DO. WE HAVE TO EXAMINE THE REPORT. I THING YOU WILL JUST HAVE TO ASK SOMEBODY MORE FAMILIAR THAN I WITH THE WAY THINGS LIKE THAT WORK.
LET ME SAY THIS: A FAIR QUESTION TO ASK ME OVER A PERIOD OF TIME, AFTER THIS REPORT HAS BEEN DEIGESTED, IS WHETHER OUR CONCLUSIONS ARE SPECIFIC AS WELL AS GENERAL AS TO WHAT WE OUGHT TO DO OR LEARN FROM IT. BUT AS OF NOW, THERE IS NO ACTION NOR IS THERE ACTION CONTEMPLATED. THE REPORT HAS JUST BEEN RECEIVED.
I DON'T, AGAIN, WANT TO TRY TO JUDGE WHAT THE DEPARTMENT'S REACTION IS GOING TO BE TO THIS STUDY. BUT I WANT TO REPEAT, IT WAS DONE CAREFULLY AND THOROUGHLY. SOME OF THE POINTS THAT ARE MADE ARE CLEARLY GOING TO BE TAKEN INTO ACCOUNT. I THINK COORDINATION AND RESPONSIBILITY ARE A PROBLEM IN EVERY ORGANIZATION.
I HAD OCCASION TODAY TO LEARN JUST HOW DIFFICULT THAT
UNCLASSIFIED

CAN BE IN A NEWSPAPER IN WHICH EDITORS AND REPORTERS DON'T SEEM TO BE ABLE TO TRANSMIT INFORMATION BACK AND FORTH AS TO OBJECTIVE FACTS. SO I'M SURE THAT IT IS A DIFFICULTY IN A BIG, BUREAUCRATIC OPERATION LIKE THIS.
Q. WHEN SHOULD WE EXPECT TO HEAR WHAT THE DEPARTMENT IS GOING TO DO ABOUT THE REPORT?
A. I WAS SUGGESTING TO BOB THAT YOU HAVE TO JUST KEEP ASKING ME. I DON'T HAVE A SUGGESTION AS TO THAT.
Q. WHAT I WANT TO KNOW IS, WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO DO ABOUT THE STAR?
A. (LAUGHTER) IT'S A FREE COUNTRY -- CONSTRAINED BY ALL THE AMENDMENTS THAT I CAN THINK OF.
Q. NOW THAT THE REPORT HAS BEEN DONE AND THE HILL IS ABOUT TO APPARENTLY RELEASE SOME KIND OF REPORT, WILL THE DEPARTMENT RELEASE, UNDER THE FREEDOM OF INFORMATION ACT, THE DOCUMENTS THAT WE ALL REQUESTED BACK IN NOVEMBER AND DECEMBER?
A. I SUPPOSE THAT A LOT OF THE HOLDS THAT WERE PUT ON THAT MATERIAL BECAUSE OF THE TWO INVESTIGATIONS WILL SLIP. BUT I CAN'T SPEAK SPECIFICALLY FOR EVERY DOCUMENT. I DON'T KNOW.
THERE IS A TREMENDOUS BACKLOG OF REQUESTS. THERE IS A FANTASTIC AMOUNT IN THERE. I'M LOOKING AT SEVERAL OF YOU WHO HAVE THEM IN. BUT I HAVE BEEN MADE MORE IRRESPONSIBLE ON THE SUBJECT THAN NOT SINCE THAT WHOLE FUNCTION HAS BEEN MOVED FROM MY BUREAU TO ANOTHER ONE. BUT I WILL SEE WHAT THE SITUATION IS.
Q. SOME OF THE INFORMATION WHICH WE REQUESTED, AND HAS
UNCLASSIFIED

BEEN UNAVAILABLE FOR MONTHS, IS IN THIS REPORT -- WHICH, BACK TO THIS QUESTION THEN, WOULD YOU AT LEAST CHECK TO SEE NOW IF --
A. YES. I'M TAKING THAT QUESTION AS TO NOW WHAT -- I WILL ASK THAT OFFICE, WHICH IS NOW IN LIMBO BETWEEN TWO BUREAUS -- WHERE WE ARE.
Q. THIS REPORT HAS A LOT ABOUT OFFICES BEING IN LIMBO,
TOO. (LAUGHTER)
A. I AM FAMILIAR WITH ALL THAT.

WHAT APPEARS IN THE REPORT IS AN EXTENSIVELY EDITED VERSION OF THAT CABLE WHICH OMITS SEVERAL SENTENCES AND ODITS OTHER PORTIONS. BECAUSE THE JUNE CABLE EXCHNGE HAS SUCH IMPORTANCE AND BECAUSE CRIMMINS AND CARPENTER LAID SUCH HEAVY STRESS ON THE PRECISE LANGUAGE USED, I FIND IT INCOMPREHENSIBLE THAT THE VERBATIM TEXT WAS NOT REPRODUCED. THE JUNE 1 GOVERNMENT-OWNED DAILY GUYANA CHRONICLE CONTAINED THE FIRST COMPREHENSIVE COVERAGE ON THE SUBJECT REPORT, CONSISTING OF A FACTUAL PRESIS OF THE DOCUMENT WITH ONLY INDIRECT EDITORIALIZING. PORTIONS REFERRING TO DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER PTOLEMY REID'S INVOLVEMEN

THE EXCHANGE OF LETTERS REQUESTING PERMISSION FOR CONGRESSIONAL STAFF MEMBERS TO INTERVIEW GUYANESE OFFICIALS, THE ACTIONS OF BOTH U.S. AND GUYANESE CUSTOMS OFFICIALS, AND THE PERFORMANCE OF THE EMBASSY WERE LIBERALLY CITED. ALLEGATIONS OF MISCONDUCT BY GUYANESE OFFICIALS IN THEIR HANDLING OF PEOPLES TEMPLE, INCLUDING SEXUAL RELATIONSHIPS, WERE ALSO CITED.

2. THE JUNE 3 ISSUE OF THE CHRONICLE, HOWEVER, CARRIES A COMMENTARY ON THE REPORT DESCRIBING IT AS "AN INTERESTING DOCUMENT FOR A NUMBER OF REASONS - BUT FOR TWO IN PARTICULAR. TO BEGIN WITH, THE 782-PAGE DOCUMENT HIGHLIGHTS HOW ATTEMPTS ARE OFTEN MADE TO TRAMPLE ON THE DIGNITY OF

SUBJ: GOVERNMENT OFFICIAL REPLIES TO CRITICISM OF JCS RE JONESTOWN.

1. BEGIN SUMMARY. CHRISTOPHER (KIT) NASCIMENTO MINISTER IT THE OFFICER OF THE PRIME MINISTER, HAS WRITTEN A LENGTHY LETTER TO THE EDITOR OF CARIBBEAN CONTACT RESPONDING TO AN ARTICLE BY GORDON LEWIS CARRIED IN THE MAY ISSUE WHICH CRITICIZED THE GOVERNMENT OF GUYANA'S ROLE IN THE JONESTOWN AFFAIR. NASCIMENTO IDENTIFIES SEVERAL "ERRORS" INTHE LEWIS PIECE AND RIDICULES THE NOTION THAT AS MUCH INFORMATION WAS KNOWN, OR COULD HAVE BEEN KNOWN, ABOUT JONESTOWN BEFORE NOVEMBER 18, 1979, AS IS KNOW NOW. HE ALSO DRAWS AN INTERESTING PARALLEL BETWEEN THE INHABITANTS OF JONESTOWN AND THE "PILGRIM FATHERS" WHO SETTLED IN MASSACHUSETTS IN 1620. END SUMMARY.

2. NACIMENTO'S LETTER TO CONTACT APPEARS UNDER THE HEADLINE "GUYANESE GOVERNMENT MINISTER COMPARES JONESTOWN 'SETTLERS' WITH PILGRIM FATHERS." NASCIMENTO BEGINS

1. WE WERE FORMALLY NOTIFIED BY MR RALPH CARTER, TEXACO WEST INDIES LTD, IN LATE JUNE THAT THE AIR FORCE AND THE ARMY HAD NOT YET PAID FOR AVIATION FUEL PURCHASES TOTALING $99,621 INCURRED
DURING JONESTOWN AIRLIFT SUPPORT. WE ADVISED MR CARTER THAT AE
DID NOT HAVE BILLS AND SUPPORTING DOCUMENTS FOR THESE PURCHASES AND REQUESTED DUPLICATES IN ORDER TO EXPEDITE PAYMENT.
UNFORTUNATELY THE DUPLICATES ARE OF SUCH POOR QUALITY THAT THEY ARE PRACTICALLY ILLEGIBLE.
2. IN THE SAME CORRESPONDENCE MR CARTER INFORMED US THAT THE ORIGINAL BILLS WERE FORWARDED PER STATE DEPARTMENT INSTRUCTIONS TO THE U.S. EMBASSY FOR THE ATTENTION OF MR BOB MASON. MR CARTER

THESE BILLS AND ARE UNABLE TO LOCATE THEM.
3. REQUEST YOU PROVIDE LEGIBLE DUPLICATES IF AT ALL POSSIBLE BY MAIL TO HQ USAF/ACFS, ATTN: ANTHONY QUERRN, WASHINGTON DC 20330.
IF UNABLE TO COMPLY WITH THIS REQUEST, PLEASE RESPOND BY MESSAGE TO THIS EFFECT AND PROVIDE THE ADDRESS AND OFFICE SYMBOL IN THE

1. CONOFFS VISITED LAYTON IN GEORGETOWN PRISON FEBRUARY 1, 1980. INTERVIEW WAS CONDUCTED BY CONSUL, WHO DELIVERED A LETTER SENT C/O EMBASSY. LAYTON STATED THAT HE CONTINUES TO RECEIVE OUTSIDE MAIL REGULARLY.
2. AS PER REFTEL, PRISON AUTHORITIES HAD AGREED TO EMBASSY REQUEST FOR INSPECTION OF LAYTON'CELL AND OTHER PRISON FACILITIES. CONOFFS WERE ACCOMPAINED ON INSPECTION TOUR BY SUPERINTENDENT OF PRISONS, AND FOUND SIZE OF CELLS ADEQUATE.
3. LAYTON SHOWED NO SIGNS OF DELIBERATE PHYSICAL OR PSYCHOLOGICAL ABUSE, AND CONOFFS FOUND HIS GENERAL PHYSICAL CONDITION AND APPEARANCE IMPROVED. IN RESPONSE TO CONSUL'S QUESTIONS, LAYTON STATED THAT HIS OUTSIDE MEAL PLAN WAS SATISFACTORY, AND THAT THE WAS CONTINUING TO RECEIVE REGULAR VITAMIN SUPPLEMENTS AND OUTDOOR EXERCISE PERIODS. LAYTON HAD NO SPECIFIC MEDICAL COMPLAINTS.

NEWSPAPER STORY REPORTED THAT LAYTON WOULD BE CHARGED WITH ONLY ONE COUNT OF ATTEMPTED MURDER: OF VERN GOSNEY.

2. A CHARGE ATTEMPTED MURDER CARRIES THE POTENTIAL MAXIMUM PENALTY OF LIFE IMPRISONMENT. THE CHRONICLE ACCOUNT ADDED THAT "... BUT IT IS UNLIKELY THAT THIS SENTENCE WOULD BE IMPOSED ON (LAYTON) IF HE IS FOUND GUILTY." CHRONICLE STORY ATTRIBUTES THE FACT THAT LAYTON IS NOT BEING CHARGED WITH THE ATTEMPTED MURDERS OF DALE PARKS AND MONICA BAGBY TO THE FACT THAT THEY DID NOT RETURN TO GIVE EVIDENCE AT THE SECOND PRELIMINARY INQUIRY.

1. THE SECOND DAY OF THE TRIAL OF US CITIZEN PEOPLE'S TEMPLE MEMBER LAWRENCE LAYTON FOR THE ATTEMPTED MURDER OF VERNON GOSNEY AND MONICA BAGBY AT PORT KAITUMA ON NOVEMBER 18, 1979, SAW PRESIDING JUDGE COLLINS DECLARE THAT THE DIRECTOR OF PUBLIC PROSECUTIONS (DPP) HAD MADE A "PRIMA FACIE" CASE FOR THE INDICTMENT OF LAYTON. SENIOR DEFENSE COUNSEL REX MCKAY HAD CHALLENGED THE DPP'S INDICTMENT OF LAYTON ON PROCEDURAL GROUNDS AND HAD UN-SUCCESSFULLY REQUESTED THE COURT TO QUASH THE INDICTMENT. AFTER THE JUDGE RULING A JURY OF TEN MEN AND TWO WOMEN WAS SELECTED.

2. MCKAY REPEATEDLY INTERRUPTED THE TESTIMONY OF KEY PROSECUTION WITNESS VERNON GOSNEY CLAIMING THAT THE PROSECUTOR WAS NOT ONLY LEADING THE WITNESS BUT IN FACT ALSO PRESENTING FRESH EVIDENCE WITHOUT FIRST NOTIFYING

1. SUMMARY: THE FIFTH DAY OF THE TRIAL FOR ATTEMPTED MURDER OF US CITIZEN LAWRENCE LAYTON SAW PRESIDING JUDGE LINDSEY COLLINS RULE THAT THE CONFESSION GIVEN BY LAYTON TO THE GUYANESE POLICE ON NOVEMBER 22, 1978, WAS ADMISSABLE AS EVIDENCE. THE CONFESSION WAS READ TO THE JURY BY POLICE INSPECTOR JAG MOHAN. END SUMMARY.
2. THE SENIOR COUNSEL FOR THE DEFENSE REX MCKAY ARGUED THAT LAYTON'S SIGNED CONFESSION TO THE MURDERS OF US CONGRESSMAN LEO RYAN AND FOUR OTHERS AND TO THE CAUSING OF INJURIES TO SEVERAL OTHER PERSONS HAD BEEN OBTAINED BY DURESS. MCKAY CLAIMED THAT LAYTON HAD NOT BEEN FED FOR FOUR DAYS PRIOR TO HIS CONFESSION AND FURTHERMORE THAT THE POLICE HAD HAD NO EVIDENCE AGAINST LAYTON ON WHICH TO HOLD HIM UNTIL HE CONFESSED. LAYTON, TESTIFYING ON HIS OWN BEHALF, DECLARED THAT THE POLICE HAD KEPT HIM IN A DARK, FOUL-SMELLING CELL AT PORT KAITUMA AND AGAIN AT GEORGETOWN POLICE HEADQUARTERS AND THAT HE HAD BEEN DENIED ACCESS TO AN ATTORNEY, THE US

LAYTON HAD OPPORTUNITY TO MAKE SUCH COMPLAINTS BEFORE A MAGISTRATE AT THE TIME HE WAS CHARGED AND TO THE US CONSUL. LAYTON RESPONDED THAT HE HAD BEEN AFRAID TO MAKE THESE COMPLAINTS IN THE PRESENCE OF PRISON OFFICIALS.
4. JUDGE COLLINS REJECTED THE DEFENSE'S ARGUMENTS AND INSTRUCTED POLICE INSPECTOR JAG MOHAN TO READ THE CONFESSION TO THE JURY. TRIAL WILL CONTINUE ON MAY 12.

1. IN ACCORDANCE WITH REFERENCE A, EMBASSY GEORGETOWN HAS DISCUSSED THE MATTER OF THE CRATES WITH SIR LIONEL LUCKHOO, THE ATTORNEY REPRESENTING THE CALIFORNIA PEOPLE'S TEMPLE RECEIVER, ROBERT FABIAN. THE EMBASSY REITERATED TO SIR LIONEL THAT AS THE CRATES DID NOT APPEAR TO CONTAIN PERSONAL EFFECTS, THE EMBASSY NO LONGER HAD A CONSULAR RESPONSIBLITY FOR THEM (REFERENCES B AND C). AS ASSETS OF THE GUYANA PEOPLE'S TEMPLE ORGANIZATION, THEREFORE, THEIR DISPOSITION AND THAT OF OTHER TEMPLE ASSETS IN GUYANA WOULD AWAIT THE SETTLEMENT OF CURRENT LEGAL PROCEEDINGS ON THE ISSUE.
2. THIS SAME POSITION WAS EXPRESSED TO MINISTER OF HEALTH HOUSING AND LABOR HAMILTON GREEN, WHO WAS COORDINATOR OF THE GUYANESE GOVERNMENT'S TASK FORCE ON THE PEOPLE'S TEMPLE.
3. AS WE HAVE FINALLY REACHED THE DECISION THAT THE CRATES ARE NOT THE RESPONSIBILITY OF THE CONSULAR SECTION, WE ARE ANXIOUS TO AVOID ANY SUGGESTION THAT THE EMBASSY MAY IN ANY WAY BE LIABLE FOR STORAGE CHARGES WHICH MAY WELL BE MORE THAN THE VALUE OF THE GOODS CONCERNED.

THE RECEIVER THINKS THEY SHOULD BE DISPOSED OF BY GIFT OR SALE AS THE EMBASSY SEES FIT. LUCKHOO SAID THAT IN VIEW OF THESE INSTRUCTIONS, HE WAS NOT GOING TO TOUCH THE CRATES, ESPECIALLY SINCE SUBSTANTIAL STORAGE CHARGES WERE PROBABLY DUE.
4. WE SUGGEST THAT THE DEPARTMENT MIGHT WISH TO CONFIRM THIS POSITION WITH THE RECEIVER (MR. FABIAN). WE WOULD APPRECIATE RECEIVING INSTRUCTIONS AS TO WHETHER THE DEPARTMENT WISHES THE EMBASSY TO TAKE ANY ACTION WITH RESPECT TO THE CRATES.

Dear Congressman Brooks,

I'm writing you in concern with the incident occuring in Guyana which has been of mass confusion to most of the U.S. and surrounding countries. But my main inquire is what exactly did Rep. Leo Ryan of Ca have to do with the incredible suicide of an entire settlement. What affect if any do you think the mass suicide has had on the reputation of the U.S. towards the rest of the world.

If possible could you give me some back-ground information on Jim Jones so as to help us understand the situation somewhat better.

Yours truly,

Dear Mr. [illegible]:

I have received your communication of January 5 enclosing the inquiry of Mrs. Opal D. Fitchin, your constituent, concerning the Department's response to the Jonestown, Guyana tragedy.

The Department is cognizant of and sympathetic to the plight of the families of the Jonestown victims and has attempted to administer the disposition of the bodies in an orderly and efficient manner. As of January 29, 541 bodies had been positively identified; of this number, 323 had been claimed by the next-of-kin; and 272 bodies remain unidentified. We are continuing to attempt to identify deceased with the assistance of medical and dental records provided by next-of-kin.

The Department has set up a Guyana Working Group which has contacted or attempted to contact all known next-of-kin and has provided those person with information on retrieval of remains and possible avenues of financial assistance, e.g. the Social Security Administration or Veterans Administration. The group was initially staffed on a twenty-four hour basis, seven days a week and is now staffed an average of twelve hours a day.

The Honorable
Phillip Burton,
P.O. Box 36023
450 Golden Gate Avenue
San Francisco, California

The Federal Government cannot transport the bodies of identified Guyana deceased for burial on behalf of their next-of-kin. Authorization and funds are not available for this purpose and disposition of the deceased is considered to be the private responsibility of the next-of-kin.

I hope you find this information helpful in responding to your constituent. If you have further questions, please call Mr. Jay A. Hiui at 202-632-3118.

Sincerely,

Douglas J. Bennet, Jr.

Dear Senator Cranston:

I have received your communication of December 15, 1978 containing the inquiry of Mr. Sherwin Harris, your constituent, concerning the Department's response to the Jonestown, Guyana tragedy.

The Department is cognizant of and sympathetic to the plight of the families of the Jonestown victims and has attempted to administer the disposition of the bodies in an orderly and efficient manner. As of January 25, 641 bodies had been positively identified; of this number, 322 had been claimed by the next-of-kin; and 272 bodies remain unidentified. We are continuing to attempt to identify deceased with the assistance of medical and dental records provided by the next-of-kin.

The prices charged by morticians in Dover are a private matter between the next-of-kin and morticians over which the Department has no control. Likewise the arrangements for and shipment of remains are also private matters.

The Department has set up a Guyana Working Group which has contacted or attempted to contact all known next-of-kin and has provided those persons with information on retrieval of remains and possible avenues of financial assistance, e.g. the Social Security Administration or Veterans Administration. This group was initially staffed on a twenty-four hour basis, seven days a week and is now staffed an average of twelve hours a day.

The Honorable
Secretary
U.S. Department of State
Washington, D.C. 20520

Dear Mr. Secretary:

In connection with the continuing staff inquiry which I have ordered into the death of Representative Leo J. Ryan and the resulting incidents at Jonestown, Guyana, the Committee respectfully requests the following additional information and materials:

(1) As a part of a series of memoranda partially submitted under cover of Mr. Douglas Bennet's January 4 letter to me it was the Committee's understanding that all U.S. government officials affiliated with the U.S. Embassy who had any kind of contact with the People's Temple organization in Guyana, including representatives of the Central Intelligence Agency, would submit statements summarizing that contact. On the basis of that understanding the Committee assumes that additional statements will be provided. This request applies to the period from the inception of People's Temple activities in Guyana in 1974 through November 18, 1978.

(2) Copies of State Department legal interpretations and guidelines for implementation of the Privacy Act with particular reference to the question of whether, in the opinion of the Department of State, the Act applied to minors. In this same connection the Committee would require an explanation of the timeframes within which such interpretations and guidelines were formulated and provided to consular and embassy officials abroad.

(3) Any information which the Department of State may have regarding the exit from the United States and the arrival in Guyana of a minor child by the name of Dana Griffith.

(4) As of November 14, 1978, what was the State Department's and the U.S. Embassy's in Guyana understanding regarding the legal arrangement under which the People's Temple was obtaining and operating land in Guyana. Also did that arrangement limit or preclude entry by any individual or group? Lastly, would you provide us with a copy of the arrangement document?

[illegible]

(5) A report on whether any foreign passports were found among the files in Jonestown, Guyana.

(6) A complete and detailed report on any Freedom of Information Acts filed with the Department of State involving People's Temple between 1974 and November 18, 1978, including an indication of the time lapses between the filing of such reports and compliance with them.

(7) Any information the State Department may have regarding the visits to any foreign countries, especially those in Eastern Europe, of Mr. Jim Jones and Mr. Tim Stoen.

(8) During the period of February-September 1977 the U.S. Customs Service undertook an investigation of allegations that People's Temple was smuggling guns and other contraband into Jonestown. The final report was subsequently submitted to Interpol. Relative to the Customs Service report the Committee is interested in learning (a) if the report was provided to State and when and what distribution was made of it; and (b) if any subsequent Interpol action relative to the Customs report became known to the State Department, including the U.S. Embassy in Georgetown.

(9) The precise time and the method by which the U.S. Embassy in Georgetown learned of the shooting at the Port Kaituma airstrip. Also, the precise time and method by which that same information was conveyed for the first time to U.S. Government officials in Washington.

(10) Beyond the Jonestown guestbook, copies of which you have already provided, please provide information on any additional visitors to Jonestown of which you may be aware.

(11) The source of your understanding in your December 13 report that there were 33 weapons found in Jonestown after the tragedy. In addition, please indicate whether any new information has come to light which would change the total number of weapons found at Jonestown.

As always, your cooperation in responding to these questions will be deeply and genuinely appreciated.

Dear Mr. Bennet:

Enclosed is a copy of a letter I received from Mr. Kenneth W. Diehl, one of my constituents, regarding the unclaimed bodies located in Delaware which were brought from Jonestown.

It would be very much appreciated if you would have someone review his questions and furnish me with information which I could forward to my constituent.

Thank you for your attention to this matter.

Dear Mrs. Carter:

This will confirm some of our conversation of 1/25/79.

At Valley Forge Memorial Gardens on South Gulph Road in King of Prussia, Pa. we have 16 cemetery lots all together in one plot that we would like to dispose of. Current selling price of these lots are $350-$375.

Should you find that firm guidelines have been set-up by Veterans Administration or any other government agency as to price limitations, I would gladly accept a reasonable figure that would be submitted.

Should the above mentioned lots be disposed of and more were needed, 16 more would be available that belong to my brother-in-law. These to were part of my Father-in-laws' estate.

I think that this covers the needed detail, should you need any other information please feel free to contact me at home,766-4166 or here 245-4950.

I again want to thank you for the way you have tried to expidite this entire matter, I remain

Dear Mrs. Holt:

Taking the liberty to write to you in hope of getting some help.....

Several years ago my father-in-law died leaving my wife 16 cemetery lots in a beautiful cemetery in King of Prussia, Pa.. The lots that are being sold now are bringing $350-$400 each.

We tried selling them by using realtors, funeral directors etc. with no takers. Before moving to Glen Burnie 28 years ago I was a neighbor of Ed Garmatz, Ed prior to his leaving Congress was trying to put through a Bill for Veterans that they could purchase lots at $175 in public cemetery to relieve the crowded situation in some of the military cemeteri Did this bill ever go through?? If so will you kindly advise as to who to contact to discuss those above mentioned lots we have.

I was in Dover, Delaware 10 days ago and I was told that the bodies flown there that are still unclaimed from that Africa mess would be buried in the East. If this information is correct would you have any idea as to what department to contact to get more detailed information.

We would be most agreeable to sell all sixteen lots which are in one plot at any figure that they would consider being fair price.

Trusting my request did not incur to much trouble, I remain

Most Sincerely

SUGGESTED REPLY

Dear Reverend Jackson:

Thank you for your letter of November 25, 1978 requesting that a commission be appointed to investigate the tragedy at Jonestown, Guyana. As you may know, the Federal Government through the Departments of State and Defense have already expended millions of dollars to return the survivors and the deceased members of the Peoples Temple to the United States.

At this time, the House International Relations Committee has already begun an inquiry into the bizarre circumstances that caused the deaths of so many people. The Department of Justice is presently assisting the Guyanese authorities in their investigation of the murder of Congressman Ryan and others in his party as well as

I would like to know exactly which funds you are using to pay for the evacuation, and what efforts have been made to recoup the costs from the People's Temple funds. Can the U.S. government make a legal claim for the millions of dollars belonging to the People's Temple to help offset incurred costs?

Mr. Secretary:

I am desirous of obtaining information regarding the procedures necessary to institute a claim against the U.S. State Department, pursuant to the Federal Tort Claims Act. This claim pertains to three families of victims of the Jonestown, Guyana incident of November 18, 1978, namely the Naylor, Rodriquez and Bordenave families.

Specifically, we need information as to whether there is a particular form necessary to initiate such an action, or if this is accomplished by filing a complaint under the above Act, naming the State Department as a party. Further, what is the statute of limitations for such a claim?

Should there be such a form, please inform me of how, and or where, to obtain such a form and of any pertinent filing procedures. If a claim can only be brought by means of a complaint please inform me of where such a complaint must be filed, and also whether naming the U.S. Department of State specifically, would be proper. I would also appreciate information regarding my other relevant steps or procedures.

Thank you for your attention and cooperation in this matter. I look forward to hearing from you in the near future.

Dear Miss Oakar:

The Secretary has asked me to reply to your letter of January 9 concerning the Department's response to the Jonestown, Guyana tragedy.

The Justice Department is fully exploring possible legal remedies which can be used to recover the cost the U. S. Government has incurred in removing and processing the bodies of Americans from Guyana. Now that the emergency is substantially over, the Office of Management and Budget and other agencies are reviewing various operations to determine the exact cost to the United States Government. Although the costs to the United States Government of an effort of this magnitude obviously are considerable, they are substantially less than the $8 million figure used in some press reports.

At present, no decision has been reached concerning the ultimate disposition of the unclaimed bodies. Please be assured that we will report fully to appropriate congressional committees on these aspects of the operation upon completion of our review. Meanwhile, the Justice Department will make all efforts to recover the costs to the U.S. Government.

Dear Senator Schmitt:

Thank you for your letter of January 9 on behalf of several constituents concerned about the use of their tax dollars to pay for the transportation of the bodies involved in the tragedy of Jonestown, Guyana to the United States for burial.

The tragedy of Jonestown has no parallel. On Sunday, November 19, the U.S. Government faced a crisis situation in Guyana. A U.S. Congressman and others in his party had been killed. A settlement believed to include about 1,000 Americans was involved, and its situation was uncertain. It was apparent that the limited transportation and other resources of the Government of Guyana might be insufficient to cope with these events in an isolated area 150 miles from the capital. Medical evacuation for the injured Americans by U.S. military aircraft was immediately authorized, and the U.S. Government offered assistance to the Government of Guyana to prevent further loss of life.

The Guyanese indicated they needed helicopter lift and other support. As events progressed, it became evident that many Americans were dead. For a time, it was believed that there might be many survivors in the jungle, and the United States assisted and increased its assistance to help the search by Guyana police and military. Finally, when the number of dead was clear, the operational requirements were to continue support of the extensive ongoing investigation of serious crimes and to identify, treat with dignity, and remove the bodies as quickly as possible to a facility that could deal with this immense problem. Extensive mortuary facilities were essential in the process of identification and investigation. Only the U.S. military had the equipment and facilities to handle this enormous problem. The removal of the bodies from Guyana was at the specific request of the Government of Guyana.

forces, ordered the deployments of our personnel to take action to deal with this emergency. The operational decisions within the U.S. Government in this unique situation were made by the Secretary of State in conjunction with other members of the Cabinet.

The Federal Government does not ordinarily pay to bring back the remains of Americans who die abroad. That is a responsibility of their families. If no next of kin can be found, the country where the death occurred is responsible for burial. It was evident, however, that it was beyond the ability of individual families or of the facilities available in Guyana to resolve the unprecedented problems that characterized this situation. In fact, it was not even clear who the next of kin were without identification being established. The families of those who died at Jonestown are, of course, expected to bear the responsibility for the disposition of the remains in the United States.

The costs to the Government of an effort of this magnitude obviously are considerable although substantially less than the $1 million figure used in some press reports. It will be some time before the total is known. The Office of Management and Budget, together with other agencies, is reviewing the financial aspects.

The Department of Justice is fully exploring possible legal remedies which can be used to recover the cost the U.S. Government has incurred in removing and processing the bodies of Americans from Guyana. It will be some time before the results of these efforts are known, but you may be assured that we will continue to make every effort to keep the costs to the U.S. Government to the minimum necessary.

Dear Senator Chiles:

Thank you for your letter of January 26, 1979, concerning a request by one of your constituents, Mr. Jack Duncan, for information about the Peoples Temple ham radio operation.

The People's Temple used amateur short wave radios to communicate between their Georgetown and Jonestown offices. They also communicated by ham radio between their United States affiliate in San Francisco and the agricultural community at Jonestown, Guyana. The People's Temple did not have access to Embassy communications facilities as a private organization.

The Department is not in a position to investigate or to comment about the legality of their radio operations which would fall within the purview of the Federal Communications Commission.

I trust that the above information is helpful to your constituent. If you have any further questions, you may wish to contact Mr. Richard McCoy, Officer-in-Charge of Guyanese Affairs whose telephone number is [illegible].

Vice President Mondale and Mrs. Carter had only one meeting with Jim Jones, the leader of the Peoples Temple. They had both met Jones in San Francisco during a political rally in the 1976 Presidential election campaign. Neither the Vice President nor Mrs. Carter had any connection with the Peoples Temple.

Guyana is an independent country that calls itself the Cooperative Republic of Guyana. It is a constitutional democracy that is presently patterned after Great Britain from which it gained independence in 1966.

The Guyanese authorities have charged one member of the Peoples Temple with the murder of Congressman Ryan and other members of his party and he is presently on trial in Georgetown. Other members of the group that were involved in the assassination of the Congressmen were found dead in Jonestown along with other members of the community.

Dear Sir,

As a taxpayer I am concerned about the mounting expenses of maintaining the Jonestown bodies at Dover AFB. I am curious as to why the Government has never considered burial at sea. From Dover the remains could be taken to any one of numerous ocean or Bay ports, loaded on small Coast Guard ships and taken out beyond the Continental Shelf for a deep and expedient burial. This would also be humane as well. The cost obviously would be small, and the exercise could be tied in as a training mission.

I would appreciate a personal answer on this instead of the usual form letter.

Honorable Sir:

I read in the Charleston Newspapers that there is a question of putting the Guyana, Jonestown massacre people in West Virginia. As a lifelong resident of West Virginia I do not feel that this is a practical solution to contaminate the hills of West Virginia with such a mass suicidal group because more than likely none of the locks will want to set up a Temple or Shrine close to the burial site in West Virginia, and we have enough of these quasi religious Hare-Krishna and other religious groups in West Virginia. I think it would be much cheaper and much more desirable for the United States Government to bury these people at sea. This is a wonderful burial rite and ceremony and, of course, we will not contaminate the land mass of the United States with any other quasi religious temples.

As a tax paying citizen I also feel that the United States Government should take steps to confiscate, or to be reimbursed from the Temple funds for the transportation and the money spent to identify and bury these people, because I do not feel this is right for those of us who are tax payers to bear this extremely heavy burden of four to six million dollars since the Temple has such a massive assets.

We have all been saddened by the news of the massive slayings in Jonestown, Guyana. It is difficult to accept that a leader, such as Reverend Jim Jones, could have such control over his people to bring about the occurrences we hear about.

Yesterday on the 6:00 p.m. CBS news, we learned of the cost to the United States taxpayer to bring back the bodies of the suicide victims. They reported that an average cost is $22,000 per body. On the noon news today we learned that more bodies have been found bringing the current count to 775 or more. We could conceivably be looking at a cost to the United States taxpayers of $17 million.

We vehemently object to the United States taxpayer bearing the sole burden of this cost. We do hope that a tangible effort will be made to liquidate the assets, if neccesary, of the Peoples Temple for them to bear the costs of their apparent mistakes. To protect the separation of church and state which we enjoy in this country, we should not be giving them the advantage of United States tax dollars paying for their mistakes.

Dear Mr. Sonks:

Thank you for your letter of February 1 on behalf of Mr. Frank Ivins concerning his interest in various aspects of the recent tragedy involving the People's Temple.

As regards the involvement of Congressman Ryan, Mr. Ryan went to Jonestown out of personal concern over the allegations of aberrant behavior among the members of the people's Temple. His arrival seems to have served as a catalyst for the tragic sequence of events which followed.

Although we appreciate his interest and concern, we regret that we cannot be as responsive as we would like to Mr. Ivins's other questions, as they do not fall within the purview of this Department. The substantial coverage by the media to the events at Jonestown, the People's Temple, and its leaders, may provide a useful source of information to him.

Please do not hesitate to call on us should we can believe we may be of assistance.

RE: GUYANA TRAGEDY PAYMENT OF $9,000,000. BY UNITED STATES

Dear Senator Javits;

I received your letter of January 4, 1979. I note with interest the contents of your letter. I wrote because I was really not concerned with the losses to the families of the victims nor the future prohibition of such a bizarre tragedy. All I am concerned about as a taxpayer is the indiscriminate expenditure of taxpayer's money, in this case $9,000,000. or $9,000. per funeral of taxpayer monies to bring back these individuals to the United States and our participation in involving ourselves in Guyana with the followup after the tragedy. $9,000,000. is a substantial amount of money to expend for good will and humanitarian efforts.

I am informed that this organization, according to the papers, has substantial assets. Everything should be done to recover the expenditure of these monies by the United States Government. I would appreciate hearing from you in the future as to what means are being followed to recover the expenditure of taxpayer's money.

Very truly yours,

Henry J. Holley

Dear Sir:

It is not too often that I write letters to request my Senator to take positions and investigate matters concerning the administration of our Federal Government. However, in following the news reports on the Guyana situation I find it quite disturbing that the United States Government, under some general theory of the public interest or welfare, which is the only constitutional basis that I can consider as authority, that the United States is expending nine million dollars in the removal, burial and investigation in the Guyana incident. I question the constitutional authority to do such act or acts in expending public monies. I think an investigation should be made to determine who authorized the same and legislation introduced to prevent such reckless expenditures of public tax monies.

It is my understanding that the House of Representatives is the appropriation body for monies expended in the United States. I would like a reference as to what particular part of the budget these monies were expended from and by what authority. More importantly, since the monies have been expended, is the question of reimbursement since the reports indicate that this group identified as a cult has extensive accounts and holdings and should be held responsible for reimbursement to the Federal Government. As I compute the expenditures, we are in the area of $10,000 per person per processing and funeral. I do not recall in 22 years of practice ever seeing an undertaker's bill for this kind of money and I think someone has gone overboard in representing Uncle Sam and the taxpayers of the United States as the good guy in expending monies in this matter.

May I hear from you on this?

Very truly yours,

Henry J. Holley

Dear Senator Cranston

- The letter you received from Douglas J Bennet Jr re the State Department handling of the Jonestown victims adequately describes the conditions we're complaining of -

Why do relatives in California who are for the most part poor people have to deal with any particulars in Dover?

Why aren't the remains in California? It is not sufficient for them to state that this was private matter - These people are victims because of the State Departments Criminal Negligence in failing to protect - Even when the face of specific clear evidence of the danger they were facing - It is simply not sufficient for exchange letters every month while nothing happens!

Action must be taken to bring these

Dear Senator Byrd:

Thank you for your letter of February 1 in which you requested information on behalf of your constituent, Mr. Joe Teague, concerning the disposition of the remains of the Jonestown, Guyana deceased.

The United States Air Force removed 913 bodies from Guyana to Dover Air Force Base, in Dover, Delaware. Our government was requested by the Government of Guyana to remove the bodies. To date, 648 of the bodies have been identified and 265 bodies have not been identified. More than 200 of the unidentified are children. As of February 15, 343 bodies had been released to the next of kin, and 570 unclaimed and unidentified bodies remain on the base.

The Department believes that transportation and burial of the remains is a private family matter and the responsibility of the next of kin. Please find enclosed sample copies of several letters that the Department has sent to the next of kin. It is, however, recognized that a number of the bodies may remain either unclaimed by the next of kin or unidentified.

On January 23, a California Superior Court in San Francisco granted the Emergency Relief Committee 30 days to submit a plan for the transportation and burial of the bodies that still remain at the Dover Air Force Base Mortuary. The court is presiding over the dissolution of the People's Temple Corporation. The Emergency Relief Committee is asking the court to disburse People's Temple assets to finance the plan the Committee is preparing. The Committee has asked the assistance of the Department in developing the plan. The Department has agreed to cooperate fully with the Committee in this regard. While it is hoped that the court will accept the Committee's plan, the final decision is, of course, up to the Superior Court.

The Honorable
Harry F. Byrd, Jr.,
United States Senate.

Dear Mr. Lujan:

Thank you for your inquiry of February 16 on behalf of Dr. Manning Atterbom concerning the tragic events involving the People's Temple in Guyana.

The tragedy of Jonestown was so parallel. On Sunday, November 19, the U.S. Government faced a crisis situation in Guyana. A U.S. Congressman and others in his party had been killed. A settlement believed to include about 1,000 Americans was involved, and its situation was uncertain. It was apparent that the limited transportation and other resources of the Government of Guyana might be insufficient to cope with these events in an isolated area 120 miles from the capital. Medical evacuation for the injured Americans by U.S. military aircraft was immediately authorized, and the U.S. Government offered assistance to the Government of Guyana to prevent further loss of life.

The Guyanese indicated they needed helicopter lift and other support. As events progressed, it became obvious that many Americans were dead. For a time, it was believed that there might be many survivors in the jungle, and the United States adjusted and increased its assistance to help the search by Guyana police and military. Finally, when the number of dead was clear, the operational requirements were to continue support of the extensive ongoing investigation of serious crimes and to identify, treat with dignity, and remove the bodies as quickly as possible to a facility that could deal with this immense problem. Extensive mortuary facilities were essential in the process of identification and investigation. Only the U.S. military had the equipment and facilities to handle this enormous problem. The removal of the bodies from Guyana was at the specific request of the Government of Guyana.

The President, acting under his constitutional authority as Chief Executive and Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces, ordered the departments of our government to take action to deal with this emergency. The operational deci...sions within the U.S. Government in this unique situation were made by the Secretary of State in conjunction with other members of the Cabinet.

The Federal Government does not ordinarily pay to bring back the remains of Americans who die abroad. That is a responsibility of their families. If no next of kin can be found, the country where the death occurred is responsible for burial. It was evident, however, that it was beyond the ability of individual families or of the facilities available in Guyana to resolve the unprecedented problems that characterized this situation. In fact, it was not even clear who the next of kin were without identification being established. The families of those who died at Jonestown are, of course, expected to bear the responsibility for the disposition of the remains in the United States.

The costs to the Government of an effort of this magnitude obviously are considerable although substantially less than the $8 million figure used in some press reports. It will be some time before the total is known. The Office of Management and Budget, together with other agencies, is reviewing the financial aspects.

The Department of Justice is fully exploring possible legal remedies which can be used to recover the cost the U.S. Government has incurred in removing and processing the bodies of Americans from Guyana. In this regard, the Justice Department has filed suit against the People's Temple in an attempt to recover funds expended. It will be some time before the results of these efforts are known, but you may be assured that we will continue to make every effort to keep the costs to the U.S. Government to the minimum necessary.

Dear Mr. Chairman:

As a result of your letter of January 31, 1979, we have been in close communication with members of the Committee staff, and have also been in touch with our Embassy in Georgetown, Guyana. Our Ambassador in Georgetown is scheduled to meet with Prime Minister Burnham on March 3 to deliver a letter from you requesting agreement to members of the Committee staff traveling to Guyana to interview Guyanese Government officials and others. He will also inform the Prime Minister of some of the people whom the Committee staff wish to interview. Once the Prime Minister's agreement in principle has been obtained, I understand detailed procedures for conducting the interviews will be worked out between the Committee staff and the Embassy of Guyana here in Washington.

I trust this initiative will produce the desired results and lead to an early conclusion of the Committee staff investigation of the circumstances surrounding the tragic death of Congressman Leo J. Ryan.

Enclosed is a copy of a letter that we sent to Dover Air Force Base on Jan. 3, 1979. As yet, we have received no answer.

According to radio & TV reports, the bodies are to be shipped to California soon. We would like to have an answer before that happens.

We have no proof that our daughter was there. She apparently went to California in September or October of '78 "underground." From things that she said in her last letter, we think that she may have been involved with the People's Temple or some similar group.

Dear Sir:

I feel that the deaths of approximately nine hundred Americans, who met their deaths in the Jonestown, Guyana tradegy is so important as to merit the attention of a Congressional Investigation. It has caused a great vexation of the spirit of the American people and deep apprehension as to the cause of such a terrible debacle, of apparent self destruction. I believe this incident in our history has so many ramifications and so precedent setting that we must have an official version, of the facts, so we can put the thing behind us and if appropriate, bring to justice the guilty, if they are living. There is, without a doubt a scarcity of legal precedent to go on, and for our future course of action, there must be some sort of ground rules, made to assist us to handle similar cases, that without a doubt will occur.

I know it is a sticky mess and I feel sure that Congress will be able to indulge very little glory or political mileage to be squeezed from it, but it is a job that must be done, and done quickly so we can put it behind us and not be plagued with bits and pieces emitting from it, for years to come. There must be an accounting to the people, for the money that has been, and yet to be expended in bringing the bodies home and their disposal etc. There are other basic and fundamental questions such as: What and how much control and authority does this Government have over citizens, living in a foreign country and holding American Passports, what is the responsibility of This Government for the protection of its citizens who hold valid passports? I somehow feel, in general that, this Government has allowed American Citizens to be kicked around too much by other countries peoples. The recent incident of Ambassador Sabo, and the Marines in Iran, in my opinion requires some tough action, or have we as a nation, sunk so low that we have even lost our own self respect. While we have been so keen on protecting people of other lands we have disregarded the rights of Americans, whom this government is duty bound to protect, wherever they might be. Hoping that we may soon see some postive action along this line, in the near furture, I am -

Respectfully yours,

Douglas S. Gardiner

Dear Ms. Seigerman:

Thank you for sending the President a copy of the resolution recently passed by the Legislature of Rockland County about the tragedy at Jonestown.

It will be some time before the total is known. The Office of Management and Budget, together with other agencies, is reviewing the financial aspects.

I believe you will be pleased to know that the Department of Justice is fully exploring possible legal remedies which can be used to recover the cost the U.S. Government has incurred in removing and processing the bodies of Americans from Guyana. In this regard, the Justice Department has filed suit against the People's Temple in an attempt to recover funds expended. It will be some time be-

4 Claim Guyana Holds Them Illegally

BY DAVID F. SELMAP
Times Staff Writer

GEORGETOWN, Guyana—Four members of the Parks family of Ukiah, Calif., survivors of the People's Temple deaths three weeks ago, charged Sunday that they are being illegally prevented from leaving this South American country.

"They have no legal right to hold us here. It is against their (the Guyanese) constitution and our (U.S.) law," said Gerald Parks, 45, the family patriarch who joined the Jonestown farming commune in the northwestern Guyanese jungles earlier this year.

Parks' wife, Paulina, 44, died Nov. 18 at Port Kaituma airstrip, near Jonestown, in the ambush that also claimed the lives of Rep. Leo J. Ryan (D-Calif.) and three U.S. journalists. Later, the cult leader, the Rev. Jim Jones, and more than 900 of his followers died in a mass suicide murder at the Jonestown commune.

Guyanese authorities want the family to testify against Larry Layton, 32, of San Francisco, charged with murder in the airstrip deaths. But so far, neither Parks nor his three children have received a court summons, he said.

"The way it stands now, we want to get out by next Friday," Parks said, noting that Layton's preliminary hearing in Magistrates Court is scheduled to begin Tuesday.

"We should be able to tell the court all we know in two or three days, and we're going to insist on being allowed to leave on Friday," he added.

Only two of the 41 Peoples Temple survivors still here are being formally detained—Layton and Charles H. Beikman, 43, of Indianapolis.

Beikman, a former marine, is charged with cutting the throats of Mrs. Sharon Amos, a Peoples Temple executive, and her three children. His preliminary hearing was resumed to this morning when his defense counsel failed to appear in Magistrates Court Saturday.

Parks and his three children and many of the other survivors live at the Park Hotel, a shabby, wooden building on Georgetown's main street. Fifteen more survivors live in a suburban house owned by the temple where Mrs. Amos was slain. They can move freely in this capital but cannot leave the country.

"Our names are on a blacklist at the airport so that even if we try to leave we can't," Parks said.

The Parks family has no money.

"As far as medical help and hotel and food bills, the embassy is paying," Parks said. "We got a look at the (hotel) bill for 15 or 16 of us a couple of nights ago and it was $18,000.

"We had to sign a reimbursement form to pay the U.S. government back when we could, but when we signed it, we thought we were only going to stay several days.

"We are being kept here against our will. We shouldn't have to pay, and our lawyer is taking it up (with U.S. and Guyanese authorities)."

Christopher O'Neal, 20, of Ukiah, another survivor and the boyfriend of Parks' daughter Brenda, 18, was hospitalized briefly over the weekend after suffering shortness of breath and chest pains.

"We believe he had an anxiety attack," Parks said. "We've been cooped up in this hotel for three weeks and it's getting to all of us.

"Chris has been worried. He was standing against my wife when she was shot (as she stood in the doorway of one of the planes at the airstrip) and he thinks he might have done something to help her. He's very feeling guilty about that, and he shouldn't. There wasn't anything you could do."

Parks and his wife came to Jonestown in April, bringing their daughters Brenda and Tracy, 12, and his mother, Edith, 64. Dale had come three months earlier in January.

The elder Mrs. Parks and six of the older survivors were allowed to leave Guyana two weeks ago, and she is now in Ukiah. So far, 31 of the 79 survivors have departed.

"We've got to get back home and try to pick up the pieces that are alive and start over again," the elder Parks said.

The family lived in Ukiah 12 years, moving there from Springfield, Ohio, where the elder Mrs. Parks' family still lives.

"We want to see the (Springfield) family and try to explain as best we can what happened," Parks said.

He said they received a recent tele-phone call from his brother, Dennis in Ukiah.

"He said the people in Ukiah are very worried about us and so are the people where I worked (Safeway stores)."

Dale Parks, among the most articulate of the survivors, is a paramedic with training at Santa Rosa Junior College and a year at the UC Medical Center in San Francisco. He was employed at UC and at the College of California Medical Associates before coming to Jonestown.

"I want to further my education," he said, "but right now I just want to get back. Because I'm homeless and penniless, it's hard to make plans. We came out of (Jonestown) with the clothes on our backs. We're getting help from some people here, but it's difficult."

Temple's $3 Million Was for Killings, Woman Says

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A young woman who served as the Rev Jim Jones' top fiscal adviser says the People's Temple leader had planned to use money found at his jungle outpost — perhaps as much as $3 million — for "contracts" on his enemies.

In an interview published in Sunday's San Francisco Examiner, Terri Buford, 26, also said Jones had a plan in which his followers in San Francisco "were to stay alive at all costs and carry out the assassinations in the event of Jones' death."

She added, "I was told the money found in the jungle was to be used for putting out 'contracts' on people."

Buford said she left the Guyana mission Sept. 16 and had broken with Jones.

However, in Berkeley, two former Jones followers who run the halfway house called the Human Freedom Center for church defectors said they doubted Ms. Buford had split with the church.

"I think she's trying to cover herself," Wanda Johnson said. "This is just Phase 1 of her plan to carry out Jones' orders."

Al Mills said, "Terri's very inventive. But she's just as fearful of traitors as Jim Jones was."

Tim Stoen, a former Jones aide and former assistant district attorney in Mendocino and San Francisco counties, said: "She's Jones' top avenger. No person in the church had a greater loyalty to him personally."

Ms. Johnson and Mills, who were at the Human Freedom Center at the time of the mass suicide-murders in Guyana, said that shortly after the suicides residents told him that Jones had a "hit list" for his enemies and Ms. Buford was the leader of his attack squad.

Ms. Buford put the total cash assets of the temple at $1 million and said most of it was in numbered bank accounts in Panama and Zurich, Switzerland.

She said she was able to leave Jonestown because she convinced Jones that she could be of more use at the San Francisco temple in helping to prepare defenses against lawsuits against the church.

S San Francisco Chronicle Thurs., Aug. 23, 19

Former Deputy DA Named In Temple Property Probe

A former San Francisco deputy district attorney was alleged yesterday to have played a central role in a property transfer in which two ex-members of Peoples Temple claim their names were forged.

The accusations involve Timothy O. Stoen, a top adviser in the church who left his job with the district attorney's office last March. They are based on a series of tape-recorded phone conversations in 1975 between Stoen and Marvin Swinney, a former temple member.

According to Swinney and his private investigator, Joe Mazor, the tapes purport to show that Stoen was attempting to arrange a payment to Swinney and his wife Jackie in exchange for the couple's consent to a transfer of a Ukiah house.

The Swinneys claimed yesterday that the church was eager to avoid a legal fight threatened by the couple. The Swinneys said their signatures had been pasted onto an earlier transfer document witnessed by Stoen in 1973.

The tapes along with the records of the property transaction were handed over to deputy district attorney Robert Graham, who sent them on to the state attorney general's office yesterday for investigation.

Peoples Temple, and its leader, the Rev. Jim Jones, are being investigated by a number of state and local agencies in connection with charges that church leaders ordered beatings of members and pressured some into signing over real estate.

The Swinneys said they had followed Jones in 1965 when he moved his then-member congregation from Indianapolis to Redwood Valley, a small Mendocino county town near Ukiah.

In August of 1973, the couple decided to leave the church and live in South Carolina. But when they checked local property records, the Swinneys claimed, they found their names had been signed to a deed transferring their Ukiah home to the church.

The couple protested to Jones and Stoen, who was at the time a deputy district attorney for Mendocino county, a top legal adviser in the church and also the notary who witnessed the transfer that the Swinneys claimed was a forgery.

Though the Swinneys claimed the transfer had not in fact been signed by them, they decided not to take up the matter with authorities then.

"We were scared that the church would harass us and the only thing we wanted was to leave," Mrs. Swinney said yesterday.

Her husband taped three conversations with Stoen that detailed the final arrangements leading to a settlement regarding the contested property.

According to the taped remarks, Swinney said he would drop his protests and Stoen in return said the church would pay the couple $2000. Swinney said the sum later was raised to $10,000.

A copy of the tape was given to The Chronicle by Mazor, who said he is working for 18 families of former temple members.

The Swinneys said they had given an abstract of their property deed to church member Archie James when they were urged to by other church leaders in 1973.

But Mrs. Swinney said the couple never thought such a move would result in an official transfer.

Bodies of 3 victims arrive from Guyana

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — With no family or clergy members present, the first three bodies of victims of the Jonestown ritual murder-suicide arrived home yesterday at San Francisco International Airport.

Two of the bodies were identified as the remains of Ronald James and James Oliver Shak-Michele, and the third body that arrived later was not identified.

The first two bodies arrived in the hometown of the Peoples Temple in the cargo hold of a scheduled United Airlines flight from Philadelphia.

Meanwhile, in Georgetown, Guyana, police said they are still concerned about unpredictable activity among Peoples Temple members who are still in Guyana.

Police Commissioner Lloyd Barker, heading the investigation of last month's violence, said he is "still fearful of an untoward development taking place among the cult members remaining in Guyana."

Barker said police surveillance had been reintroduced at the Temple headquarters where four former Jonestown residents are staying, including Stephan Jones, son of cult leader Jim Jones; Paula Adams and Deborah Touchette.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Rev. Jim Jones had earmarked $3 million in cash found at the Peoples Temple colony in Guyana for death contracts on his enemies, according to a top Jones aide quoted in a published report.

The San Francisco Examiner reported that ex-Jones aide Terri Buford said Jones had instructed cultists in California "to stay alive at all costs and carry out the assassinations in the event of Jones' death."

Ms. Buford, 28, said in the interview in Memphis, "I was told the money found in the jungle was to be used for putting out contracts on people."

RICHMOND, Ind. (AP) — One of the sons of Peoples Temple leader Jim Jones says he can recall only one suicide drill at Jonestown and said no one was mistreated at the settlement in Guyana.

Tim Jones disputed stories of repeated drills and beatings that reportedly were the forerunners of the deaths of more than 900 of the cult's followers.

Santa Barbara, Calif., News-Press, Tuesday, November 28, 1978

SANTA BARBARA RESIDENT AMONG GUYANA SURVIVORS

A member of the People's Temple sect who was at the group's headquarters in Georgetown, Guyana, during the mass suicide at the group's camp at Jonestown was identified by acquaintances here today as a Santa Barbara resident.

Aurora Rodriguez, formerly of 825 Bond Ave., was listed by the Associated Press as one of the sect members in Georgetown when the weekend mass suicide in which 912 persons took their lives took place. She said other survivors were placed under police guard at the Georgetown headquarters, the AP reported.

Mrs. Rodriguez is the wife of Gregorio Rodriguez, who retired in April after 21 years as a custodian at Santa Barbara Junior High School. Efforts by the News-Press to contact Rodriguez today were futile.

Friends of Mrs. Rodriguez said that she had gone to Guyana in August with her three grandchildren, identified by the friends as Lisa, about 12; Terry, about 9; and Aurora, about 10. It wasn't known whether the grandchildren were in Guyana at the time of the Peoples Temple deaths.

Dear Senator Chiles:

Thank you for your letter of January 16 requesting additional information for your constituent, Alexander D. Hall, Jr., about the Government's role in the Jonestown tragedy.

Your constituent has asked for the specific statutory authority under which public funds were expended to return the deceased members of the People's Temple from Guyana. In answering this question it may be useful to recapitulate the events and the decisions that were made.

Initially, November 20-21, the Department of State and the U.S. Embassy at Georgetown had agreed upon local burial of the identified remains in Jonestown as the feasible solution to the existence of such a large number of unclaimed bodies. Accordingly, the Embassy advised the Government of Guyana of the U.S. Government's request, in compliance with local law, that interment should begin at once. However, on November 22 the Government of Guyana officially requested the United States to remove the bodies of American citizens at Jonestown and return them to the United States. Apparently, a basic consideration was the Government's fear that the possible flood of next-of-kin wishing to visit the Jonestown burial site and asking for disinterment of bodies of relatives would overtax the Government's transportation and administrative facilities in that part of Guyana. Both our Government and the Government of Guyana were also concerned that facilities were unavailable in Jonestown to identify the dead before burial.

The Honorable
Lawton Chiles,
State Office,
Federal Building,
Lakeland, Florida.

As was explained in my previous letter of December 20, 1978 because this was a unique situation almost without parallel there was no specific statutory authority that covered these costs. The President and his delegated representatives naturally have general authority to commit U.S. Government agencies when it is perceived to be in the national interest. The basic question that was faced by the interagency group was to determine the source for the funds.

Toward the end of November the Office of Management and Budget, together with the Departments of State and Defense, the Agency for International Development, and the other agencies involved, began reviewing all the financial aspects of the entire Guyana tragedy, both as to costs and sources of funds.

They examined a number of different sources of funds with which to reimburse the Department of Defense for those costs. They considered, among others, a 1979 supplemental appropriation request, but considered it inappropriate if already appropriated funds could be made available. They determined that, since the Jonestown catastrophe was totally unexpected and since the major actions of the U.S. Government were at the request of the Government of Guyana and were to assist that Government in circumstances beyond its capacities to cope, the most appropriate available funds are the unobligated amounts in the Contingency Fund authorized by the Foreign Assistance Act and, to the degree that they prove insufficient, funds to be reprogrammed from the Economic Support Fund.

They concluded that many of the costs should be considered as part of the normal operations of the agencies. For example, the ordinary salaries and expenses of the Embassy officials in Guyana would have been obligated whether or not the tragic events had occurred. Similarly, the Justice Department's investigative costs are simply part of its normal responsibilities to investigate the possible violation of Federal laws. The major unusual costs are those of the Defense Department relative to the assistance provided to the Government of Guyana in connection with searching for possible survivors of the tragedy around Jonestown and in complying with the request to remove the dead. They now expect total Defense Department costs to be approximately $4.2 million. Accordingly, the Department of Justice has filed suit in the U.S. District Court in San Francisco against the Peoples Temple for this amount.

Again, it is now too early to know whether the legal approaches by the Justice Department regarding the assets of the Peoples Temple organization will result in recoupment of the U.S. Government's expenses. The Department is pursuing every available approach.

I hope this letter provides you with the information on this subject which you desire. If you have any further questions, you may wish to contact Mr. Richard McCoy, Officer-in-Charge of Guyanese Affairs at 632-3449.

Douglas J. Bennet, Jr.

Dear Senator Warner:

I have enclosed a copy of my telegram to the Department of State concerning my disgust with their handling of the Guyana victims in regard to disposition.

There is no simple solution to this complex problem, but the very idea of cemeteries bidding for the interment of those bodies is as sickening as the massacre itself.

I still think my suggestion of mass burial, in caskets of course, with proper eulogy, on the Dover Air Force Base would be the proper solution. A proper memorial could be erected to all persons there in one place.

This could be established by Executive Order since a Federal Statute is time consuming. These bodies need to be buried and now.

I would appreciate your assistance in bringing this unfortunate situation to a proper termination.

Kindest regards,

Dear Mr. Carter:

I find the State Department's idea of receiving bids to bury the Guyana massacre unidentified, now casketed and stored at Dover Air Force Base, appalling and unbelievable. Every person is entitled to a decent burial, but by bid basis!!

I would suggest a federal statute or Executive Order that would allow all unclaimed and unidentified bodies be buried on the Dover Air Force Base, as it would require less than one acre of space, since the officials of the State of Delaware are less than cooperative for the burial in that state.

But please, for human dignity, do not bury these remains over the Eastern Seaboard on a bid basis. I have spoken with Bruce Dozier for your information.

Dear Doug:

This is to acknowledge and thank you for your letter of February 28 in partial response to my request of February 2 for additional information relative to this Committee's inquiry into the death of Representative Leo J. Ryan.

With respect to the Department's constraints under the Privacy Act relating to information on Tim Stoen, I am aware the Privacy Act does not authorize the disclosure of a record to Members of Congress acting in their individual capacities without the consent of the individual. However, I am sure you are aware that under 5 U.S.C. 552a(b)(9), the Act does permit such disclosure to any Committee of Congress to the extent to which such information is within the jurisdiction of such Committee.

The Committee on Foreign Affairs is presently investigating all the internationally-related aspects of the Jonestown incident and all events and factors that might have a bearing on this tragic incident. Accordingly, as Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Affairs, I respectfully request the information in question and regard such information as important to the Committee's inquiry on this subject.

DECEMBER 14 1978

Dear Senator Young:

Thank you for your letter of November 27, in which you requested, on behalf of your constituents, Dr. and Mrs. Gerald D. Meyer and Bruce and Ramona Langness, information about the U.S. response to the Guyana tragedy.

The tragedy of Jonestown has no parallel. On Sunday, November 19, the U.S. Government faced a crisis situation in Guyana. An American Congressman had been killed as well as other Americans in his party. A settlement believed to include about 1000 Americans was involved, and its situation was uncertain. It was apparent that the limited transportation and other resources of the Government of Guyana might be insufficient to cope with these events in an isolated area 120 miles from the capital. Medical evacuation for the injured Americans by U.S. military aircraft was immediately authorized, and the U.S. Government offered assistance to the Government of Guyana to prevent further loss of life.

The Guyanese indicated they needed helicopter lift and other support. As events progressed, it became clear that there were large numbers of Americans dead. For a time, it was believed that there might be many survivors in the jungle, and the U.S. adjusted and increased its assistance to help the search by Guyana police and military. Finally, when the number of dead was clear, the operational requirements were to continue support of the extensive ongoing investigation of serious crimes and to identify, treat with dignity, and remove the bodies as quickly as possible to a facility that could deal with this immense problem. Extensive mortuary facilities were essential in the process of identification and investigation. Only the U.S. military had the equipment and facilities to handle this enormous problem.

The Honorable
Milton R. Young,
United States Senate.

The removal of the bodies from Guyana was at the specific request of the Government of Guyana.

The President, acting under his constitutional authority as Chief Executive and Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces, ordered the departments of our government to take action to deal with this emergency. The operational decisions within the U.S. Government in this unique situation were made by the Secretary of State in conjunction with some of his Cabinet colleagues.

The federal government does not pay the expense of bringing back the remains of Americans who died abroad. That is a responsibility of their families or, if no next of kin can be found, the country where the death occurred is responsible for burial. It was evident, however, that it was beyond the ability of individual families or of the facilities available in Guyana to resolve the unprecedented problems that characterized this situation. In fact it was not even clear who the next of kin were without identification being established. The families of those who died at Jonestown are, of course, expected to bear the responsibility for the disposition of the remains in the United States.

The costs to the United States Government of an effort of this magnitude obviously are considerable although substantially less than the $8 million figure used in some press reports, but it will be some time before the total is known. The Office of Management and Budget, together with other agencies, is reviewing the financial aspects.

The Department of Justice is fully exploring possible legal remedies which can be used to recover the cost the U.S. Government has incurred in removing and processing the bodies of Americans from Guyana. It will be some time before the results of these efforts are known, but you may be assured that we continue to make every effort to keep the costs to the U.S. Government to the minimum necessary.

If you have any further questions, you may wish to contact Deputy Assistant Secretary John Bushnell in our Bureau of Inter-American Affairs on 632-0362.

Sincerely,

Douglas J. Bennet, Jr.

Dear Mr. Chairman:

I am replying to the letter from Mr. Spalatin of February 13 on behalf of Mr. James Cobb who has requested assistance in having his personal belongings returned from Guyana to the United States.

In order to assist Mr. Cobb in effecting the return of his personal belongings, we have forwarded copies of your correspondence to our Embassy at Georgetown. The Embassy has been requested to contact the appropriate authorities and to provide you with a report on its findings. I am certain that you will receive a reply soon.

If you have further questions in the meantime, please do not hesitate to contact Ms. Hobgood in our Office of Overseas Citizens Services on (202) 632-2827.

Sincerely,

Douglas J. Bennet, Jr.
Assistant Secretary for Congressional Relations

Dear Mr. Chairman:

This letter, along with my interim reply of February 28, completes the Department's response to your letter of February 2. The answers to your questions, information, and enclosures follow the order and format used in your letter.

(1) At Tab A are the statements you requested. To the best of our knowledge you now have the statements of everyone currently at the Embassy in Georgetown who had contact with the People's Temple. Your staff investigators have already met with Department personnel who had contact with the People's Temple.

(2) The material at Tab B contains guidelines issued by the Department and the Office of Management and Budget for implementation of the Privacy Act. In this connection included at Tab C is a compilation of Privacy Act requests received by the Department from the People's Temple. You will note that the Department received twenty-six such requests. The material at Tab C also contains an explanation of how these requests were processed.

Regarding your request for information on whether the Department believed the Privacy Act applied to minors, we have followed the guidelines issued on July 9, 1975 and supplemented on November 21, 1975 by the Office of Management and Budget. These guidelines state in part: "It should be noted that this provision is discretionary and that individuals who are minors are authorized to exercise the rights given to them by the Privacy Act or, in the alternative, their parents or those acting in loco parentis may exercise this in their behalf. This is not intended to suggest that minors are precluded from exercising rights on their own behalf. Except as otherwise provided the Act (e.g., general or specific exemptions) a minor does have the right of access to a record pertaining to him or herself (44 Federal Register 28970, as supplemented).

(3) The Department has not been able to locate any record of passport issuance to Dana Griffith. Our Embassy at Georgetown has also reported that Guyanese immigration authorities could find no record of entry for Dana Griffith, although their immigration records did show that other Griffith family members arrived in Guyana on August 11, 1977. As I mentioned in my previous letter to you of February 28, there is currently no method by which we can determine when Ms. Griffith departed the United States.

(4) As of November 14, 1978 the Department understood that the People's Temple occupied Jonestown and the surrounding agricultural lands under a lease agreement with the Government of Guyana. This understanding was provided by Guyanese officials to our Embassy in Georgetown. Although the Department was not aware of the precise details of the lease, we were informed that it granted the People's Temple the right to occupy a large tract of land in the Northwest District of Guyana. The Temple, in return, was obligated to clear specified portions of the land and to develop it for agricultural use. The Temple's rights, in a general sense, are understood to be those of any other lessee. Accordingly, the Guyanese Government stated that the Temple had the right to exclude from the lease-hold persons or groups attempting to enter without its permission.

A copy of a specimen lease, found in the files of the Temple at Jonestown, is enclosed at Tab B. We are attempting to obtain a copy of the specific lease from the Government of Guyana.

(5) Our Embassy reports that, to the best of its knowledge, of the 883 passports turned over by the Guyanese Police only two were British Honduran (Belizean) and one British.

(6) Attached at Tab B is a complete and detailed report of Freedom of Information Act requests filed with the Department of State between 1974 and November 18, 1978 relating to the People's Temple.

(7) The following information has been developed about Jim Jones' foreign travel since my last letter. Our Embassy has informed us that it had heard rumors that Jim Jones may have visited Cuba in October, 1976. However, we have reviewed the three Jones passports in our possession, and they do not contain any Cuban entry or exit stamps. This is not surprising since in 1976 a U.S. passport could not be used for travel to Cuba. The passports do show numerous visits to Guyana between August, 1974 and July 16, 1977, a 9-day stay in the United Kingdom from August 28 to September 6, 1974, and a 3-day stop in Grenada from May 5 to May 7, 1977. One of Jones' passports also has Kenyan, Zambian, and Tanzanian visas issued in 1973, but there is no evidence to show he ever visited these countries.

(8) (a.) The Office of Munitions Control in the Department received the Customs Service report of investigation on September 1, 1977 and forwarded a copy to the Bureau of Inter-American Affairs on September 6, 1977. The Bureau made no further distribution within the Department or to our Embassy in Georgetown. Mr. Clyde S. Bryant, Jr. of the Office of Munitions Control recalled that he was informed by the U.S. Customs Service by telephone around September, 1977 that a search of household effects being exported through Miami and belonging to members of the People's Temple had failed to uncover any firearms. Since there was no evidence of a violation of Section 38 of the Arms Export Control Act (22USC 2778), no further action by the Office of Munitions Control was taken.

(b.) The Department was aware that the Customs Service report was being forwarded to INTERPOL. However, neither the Department nor our Embassy in Georgetown was informed by either the U.S. Customs Service or the Guyanese Government of any subsequent INTERPOL action relative to the report. Our former Consul in Georgetown was aware that the Guyanese Customs Service had closely inspected some shipments destined for the People's Temple, but he was never told that this inspection was a result of a request by INTERPOL.

(9) A detailed recapitulation of the events of November 18 follows. The recapitulation begins at the time the Embassy learned of the shooting at the Port Kaituma airstrip. It includes information on the movement of the Guyana Airways' twin otter that was sent to pick up the Congressional party at Port Kaituma.

Guyana Airways Corporation (GAC) records show that the GAC twin otter left Georgetown's Timehri airport at 1852 hours November 18 and arrived at Port Kaituma at 1647 hours local time. The single engine Cessna arrived in Port Kaituma at the same time. The attack on the Congressional party took place approximately a half hour later.

At approximately 1800 hours, Prime Minister Forbes Burnham telephoned the Ambassador and requested that the Ambassador come immediately to the Prime Minister's Georgetown residence. At approximately 1815 hours, Embassy Second Secretary Joseph Hartman, who earlier in the day had helped to arrange the charter of the Cessna, was telephoned by a representative of the owner of the aircraft who informed Mr. Hartman that he had heard from a civil aviation official that there had been a shooting incident at the Port Kaituma airstrip.

Mr. Hartman immediately called Consul Douglas Ellice. He then went to Mr. Ellice's house, approximately 150 yards from his own. He informed Mr. Ellice of the telephone call he had received from the owner of the Cessna. Mr. Miller immediately telephoned the Ambassador, but the Ambassador had already left to go to the Prime Minister's residence. Second Secretary Peter Londono was at Timehri Airport together with MFAC staff Member James Sahollaark to meet the delegation upon its return from Port Kaituma. He was informed by the airport authorities at approximately 6:15 PM that a shooting had occurred at Port Kaituma and that the Ambassador was at that moment on his way to meet with the Prime Minister.

After receiving an initial briefing from the Prime Minister on the shooting at Port Kaituma as well as on what the Government of Guyana (GOG) planned to do to get security forces into the area, the Ambassador went directly to the Chancery, arriving at 7:55 PM according to the log book of the Marine Security Guard and dictated 78 Georgetown 3774 which was sent at 2030 hours local time (6:30 Washington time). The Ambassador also placed an overseas call to Ashley Hewitt, the Director of the Office of Caribbean Affairs. The call could not be completed immediately. Therefore, when the Ambassador left the Chancery to return to the Prime Minister's residence at 8:30 PM, he instructed his Secretary to read the text of his message to Hewitt when the call went through. This was done at approximately 8:40 PM.

(18) In addition to the visitors cited in the Jonestown guest book already provided to the committee, the following individuals are known also to have visited Jonestown: GOG Chief Medical Officer; GOG Minister of Foreign Affairs Fred Wills and Minister of Education Vincent Teekah; GOG Northwest Regional Development Officer; British High Commissioner Peter Gautrey; Chancellor of the University of Guyana; GOG Permanent Secretary of the Ministry of Public Works; GOG Assistant Director-General of National Service; GOG Northwest Regional Minister; a Dr. Albert Greenfield; Attorney Charles Garry; Guyanese Dental Surgeon Dr. Ng-A-Fook; the Reverend and Mrs. John Moore (whose two daughters perished on November 18 at Jonestown); GOG Permanent Representative to the UN Rashleigh Jackson (before his appointment as Minister of Foreign Affairs).

(11) The Department's information concerning the number of weapons found by the Guyanese Police was supplied by the FBI Legal Attache on temporary duty in Georgetown. The Attache was informed by the Guyanese Police that thirty-two weapons, including one signal flare pistol, were recovered by the Police at Jonestown. Together with the pistol allegedly taken from Laurence Layton by Dale Parks at Port Kaituma on November 18, this makes a total of thirty-three weapons. In addition, two weapons were seized by the Police in Port Kaituma from Tim and Michael Carter and Michael Prokes. This makes a total of thirty-five weapons taken from People's Temple members. Guyanese Police officials have informed our Embassy that they have no knowledge of any other weapons at Jonestown.

I hope this information meets your requirements. I assure you that the Department will continue to assist in every way possible your inquiry into the tragic events that occurred last November.

Dear Mr. Murray:

Thank you for your letter to Mr. Ward of February 23 on behalf of Joseph Getty and Michael Gindin concerning the tragedy in Guyana.

Although we have not yet received copies of your constituents' letters, I believe the following information will be responsive to their concern. The tragedy of Jonestown has no parallel. On Sunday, November 19, the U.S. Government faced a crisis situation in Guyana. A U.S. Congressman and others in his party had been killed. A settlement believed to include about 1,000 Americans was involved, and its situation was uncertain. It was apparent that the limited transportation and other resources of the government of Guyana might be insufficient to cope with these events in an isolated area 120 miles from the capital. Medical evacuation for the injured Americans by U.S. military aircraft was immediately authorized, and the U.S. Government offered assistance to the Government of Guyana to prevent further loss of life.

The Guyanese indicated they needed helicopter lift and other support. As events progressed, it became evident that many Americans were dead. For a time, it was believed that there might be many survivors in the jungle, and the United States adjusted and increased its assistance to help the search by Guyana police and military. Finally, when the number of dead was clear, the operational requirements were to continue support of the necessary onsite investigation of serious crimes and to identify, treat with dignity, and remove the bodies as quickly as possible to a facility that could deal with this insane problem. Extensive mortuary facilities were essential in the process of identification and investigation. Only the U.S. military had the equipment and facilities to handle this enormous problem. The removal of the bodies from Guyana was at the specific request of the Government of Guyana.

The President, acting under his constitutional authority as Chief Executive and Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces, ordered the departments of our government to take action to deal with this emergency. The operational decisions within the U.S. Government in this unique situation were made by the Secretary of State in conjunction with other members of the Cabinet.

The Federal Government does not ordinarily pay to bring back the remains of Americans who die abroad. That is a responsibility of their families. If no next of kin can be found, the country where the death occurred is responsible for burial. It was evident, however, that it was beyond the ability of individual families or of the facilities available in Guyana to resolve the unprecedented problems that characterized this situation. In fact, it was not even clear who the next of kin were without identification being established. The families of those who died at Jonestown are, of course, expected to bear the responsibility for the disposition of the remains in the United States.

The costs to the Government of an effort of this magnitude obviously are considerable although substantially less than the $8 million figure used in some press reports. It will be some time before the total is known. The Office of Management and Budget, together with other agencies, is reviewing the financial aspects.

The Department of Justice is fully exploring possible legal remedies which can be used to recover the cost the U.S. Government has incurred in removing and processing the bodies of Americans from Guyana. In this regard, the Justice Department has filed suit against the People's Temple in an attempt to recover funds expended. It will be some time before the results of these efforts are known, but you may be assured that we will continue to make every effort to keep the costs to the U.S. Government to the minimum necessary.

Dear Senator Javits:

Thank you for your inquiry of February 23 on behalf of Mr. Henry Holley concerning the tragedy in Guyana.

Dear Senator Johnston:

I have received your communication of January 26 enclosing the request of your constituent, Mr. [illegible] for information on the Cameroon Cyprus tragedy.

The aftermath of the tragedy continues to limit our ability to furnish complete answers to each of Mr. Hoyer's questions. I have, however, enclosed a fact sheet from the Department's Cyprus Working Group which contains up-to-date information.

In addition, of the 913 deceased individuals, four (4) were not United States citizens, and two (2) deaths were characterized as suicides according to the report of the Cayanese coroner.

I hope you find this information useful.

Dear Senator Cranston:

Thank you for your inquiry of March 8 on behalf of Mr. Gregorio Rodriguez concerning his claim to monies owed him by the People's Temple.

We regret that we cannot be of much direct assistance to your constituent. The suit filed by the Department of Justice against the People's Temple is an attempt to recover federal funds expended in removing and processing the bodies brought from Guyana to the United States. However, the Office of the Attorney General of the State of California has instituted legal proceedings for the dissolution of the People's Temple in the California Superior Court, and it may be possible for Mr. Rodriguez to file a claim for his property either in connection with those proceedings or by filing suit himself against the People's Temple. Mr. Rodriguez may wish to contact the California Attorney General's office for further details.

Gentlemen:

We, the undersigned loyal citizens of these United States of America and residents of the State of Idaho, have waited with enough patience for the answers to some questions. Since no explanation of the events which disturb us has been offered freely, we now ask you, as our representatives in the Congress of our country to give us brief and concise answers to the following questions in regard to the recent events in Jonestown, Guyana:

1. Under which statute of our country were our military ordered to go to Guyana to remove the bodies of these self-exiled people at the expense of the American taxpayer?
   a) Please state the statute number.
   b) Please quote its exact wording.

2. Which department of our government was responsible for giving the order which cost us taxpayers seven million dollars ($7,000,000.00) minimum?

3. What is the name of the individual, military, layman or whoever, who gave the order to send men and equipment to return to our country the bodies of individuals who, although carrying United States passports, chose to leave their monies to the U.S.S.R.?
   a) What is the official title of this individual?

4. If any of us, the undersigned, were to die in a foreign land while carrying our United States passports, can our families be assured that our remains will be returned to these United States by United States military personnel and equipment at the expense of the United States government?
   a) If no, why not?

We await your published answers with the greatest impatience.

Respectfully yours,

Dear Senator Warner:

Thank you for your letter of March 9 in which you requested information on behalf of your constituent, Mr. Joe Teague, concerning the disposition of the remains of of the Jonestown, Guyana deceased.

The United States Air Force removed 913 bodies from Guyana to Dover Air Force Base, in Dover, Delaware. Our government was requested by the Government of Guyana to remove the bodies. To date, 663 of the bodies have been identified and 250 bodies have not been identified. More than 200 of the unidentified are children. As of March 21, 359 bodies had been released to the next of kin, and 554 unclaimed and unidentified bodies remain on the base.

The Department believes that transportation and burial of the remains is a private family matter and the responsibility of the next of kin. It is, however, recognized that a number of the bodies may remain either unclaimed by the next of kin or unidentified.

On January 23, a California Superior Court in San Francisco granted the Emergency Relief Committee 30 days to submit a plan for the transportation and burial of the bodies that still remain at the Dover Air Force Base Mortuary. The court is presiding over the dissolution of the People's Temple Corporation. The Emergency Relief Committee asked the court to disburse People's Temple assets to finance the plan the Committee prepared. The court on February 26 held a hearing on the Committee's proposed plan, but as yet no decision has been rendered by the court. While it is hoped that the court will accept the Committee's plan, the final decision is, of course, up to the Superior Court.

Dear Senator Garn:

I refer to your inquiry of March 2 on behalf of Mr. Joe J. Christensen concerning a lecture given by the University of Oklahoma Campus Biblical Studies Association which included discussions on the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. This matter was previously brought to the Department's attention by Senator Hatch and a similar reply was sent to him.

Subsequent to the Jonestown incident, the Department was contacted by a person identifying himself as a member of the University of Oklahoma. He stated simply that the "University" was taking up a collection for the next-of-kin of the victims of Guyana. The caller was informed that if he wished to do so, he could write a letter to the Department providing information on how to obtain those funds so that it could be made available to the next-of-kin requesting assistance. No mention of the Campus Biblical Studies Association or of a lecture was made at that time.

The Department was advised later by Senator Hatch's office that the Campus Biblical Studies Association of the University of Oklahoma had sponsored a lecture on "Cults" and had advertised the lecture as a means to assist bereaved families of Jonestown victims and in such a way as to convey Department of State approval and cooperation. This information was confirmed by a telephone call to a Mr. Greg Botkin, a member of the Campus Biblical Studies Association and one of the sponsors of the lecture in question. The Department then received a letter from Mr. Botkin with a check for $35.00 to be made available to the next-of-kin.

Jake Garn,

Jonestown Update

This memorandum is to keep you informed on the status of the various Jonestown-related issues: disposition of the remains, USG funding and the House Foreign Affairs Committee ("HFAC") investigation.

Disposition of the Remains

On Thursday, March 29 the California Superior Court Judge in charge of the People's Temple dissolution proceedings ordered that all bodies of Jonestown victims at Dover Air Force Base be transported to California for burial at the expense of the People's Temple. There are 554 bodies at Dover (250 unidentified and 304 identified but unclaimed).

The judge ordered that the bodies be transported by truck but not in caravan style. The unidentified bodies will be buried in the San Francisco area. The identified bodies will be held at Oakland Army Base for 30 days (provided the USG agrees). During this time, the next of kin can claim the body and will be given up to $540 towards disposition. (Such financial assistance will only be available to those next of kin who state under oath that they are indigent.) Any bodies remaining unclaimed at the end of the 30-day period will be buried.

The People's Temple receivor and the Emergency Relief Committee ("ERC" - composed of interfaith clergy in the San Francisco area) will coordinate and implement the judge's order. They plan to meet this weekend to set a target date to begin implementing the plan.

UNCLASSIFIED

Although no appeal may be taken from the judge's order, a writ of prohibition could be filed. However, as yet we have no indication that anyone intends to file such a writ. USG representatives have assured the receivor and the ERC that we will cooperate fully to move the bodies from Dover Air Force Base as expeditiously as possible.

USG Funding

We successfully overcame Senator Church's objections to [illegible] AID's Contingency Fund to finance Jonestown-related expenses. We provided Committee report language to SFRC staff which AID/GC indicates has been accepted.

HFAC Chairman Zablocki has since sent a letter questioning this use of AID funds. A reply has been drafted but was not sent pending markup of the AID legislation in the HFAC. AID expects to send the reply next week and subsequently provide the long desired fund cites to DOD.

HFAC Investigation

Last week HFAC staff went to Georgetown, Guyana to interview the Ambassador and other U.S. Embassy personnel who had had any contact with the People's Temple. Pursuant to pre-agreed guidelines, these interviews were unsworn but on the record and an attorney from L was present. The staff appeared particularly concerned with Embassy personnel's understanding of the Privacy and Freedom of Information Acts, and the impact of these laws on reporting from the field. The HFAC investigation is apparently drawing to a close and they expect to issue their report in a month or two.

SUBJECT: House Foreign Affairs Committee Interviews in Georgetown, Guyana

During the course of the various interviews conducted by the House Foreign Affairs Committee delegation in Georgetown the delegation made several additional requests for documents and information from the State Department which I undertook to convey to you for appropriate clearance within the Department before release.

The delegation requested copies of the following documents:

1. The actual lease agreement between the Peoples Temple and the Government of Guyana (as you know they already have a specimen copy);

2. The Act of Parliament establishing the Peoples Temple as an entity in Guyana (I believe the Ambassador referred to this document and may have further information on it.);

3. Georgetown cable 2010, dated August 25, 1977 (The delegation also requested Georgetown cable 0671 dated April 1, 1977 but I believe the Department already provided a copy of this cable to them.)

4. Georgetown ~~4173~~ dated December 8, 1976.

5. The December 1978 visa application of a Ms. Pat Small.

6. The rough draft of Georgetown 4109 dated December 5, 1978. (This draft was mentioned in testimony by Dennis Reese. Doug Ellice has acknowledged that he has such a rough draft in his files but is reluctant to provide it absent instructions from the Department to do so.)

7. A memorandum to Dick Dwyer from Joe Bartmann detailing the time and sequence of his activities in the wake of the Ryan murder.

The delegation has also levied the following requests for information:

1. A legal memorandum describing Congressman Ryan's right of access to Jonestown; specifically did the Congressman have the same right of access as then-Consul McCoy.

2. A memorandum indicating whether the following documents were ever released under the Privacy Act:

   a. Georgetown 0671
   b. Georgetown 2010
   c. the Diplomatic Note sent by the U.S. Embassy to the Guyana Ministry of Foreign Affairs on September 16, 1977

3. Information on the status of the Singh memorandum. Dennis Reese and Nancy Mason indicated that they (and other Embassy staff) had been asked to review the as yet unpublished Singh manuscript on the Peoples Temple. Dennis originally indicated that he felt the manuscript had been provided "in confidence". If possible, the HPAC delegation would like a copy of this manuscript.

The delegation has also asked that the Department provide any additional information that may come to light having any relation to the investigation. Several Embassy personnel also asked that I convey their hope that the Department conduct its own investigation into the Dale Parks allegations.

the deaths of Peoples Temple members at the agricultural community.

The Department of Justice is also conducting its own investigation into the murder of Congressman Ryan and other federal offenses which may have been committed in connection with the operations of the Peoples Temple. In view of all of these pending investigations into the events at Jonestown, we believe that no purpose would be served at this time by an additional commission.

We do appreciate your suggestion, interest and concern about this terrible tragedy.

MEMORANDUM TO THE SECRETARY

FROM: Matt Nimetz

SUBJECT: Report on the Jonestown Affair

Issue for Decision

As a part of my over-all responsibilities with regard to the Department's follow-up of the events surrounding Congressman Ryan's visit to Jonestown, Guyana, in November 1978, I asked two retired senior Foreign Service officers to prepare for you an in-depth study of the performance of the Department and our Embassy in Georgetown in the People's Temple case. That investigation has now been completed, and the final report is attached (Tab 3). We need to transmit the report to the Congress and decide how best to release its findings to the public.

Essential Factors

Ambassador John Hugh Crimmins and Mr. Stanley S. Carpenter have conducted an excellent and probing examination of the Department's performance with regard to the People's Temple Agricultural Community. Their research has been meticulous, involving the review of thousands of individual documents, personal interviews with most of the government participants, and fact-finding trips to Guyana and California. The conclusions they have drawn are, in some instances, critical of the performance of the Embassy and the Department. Their final report contains a number of recommendations for further action.

A summary of the study appears at page xii, and the recommendations are contained on pages 99 to 102. The key analytical sections of the report examine:

-- The constraints under which the Department and the Embassy operated (pages 19 to 24).

-- The handling by the Department of the May 1978 petition addressed to you by concerned relatives of the People's Temple [illegible] (pages 45 to 50).

-- The treatment by the Department and the Embassy of the information provided in various forms by Blakey, a defector from Jonestown (pages 50 to 60).

-- The important exchange of telegrams between the Embassy and the Department in June 1978 (pages 60 to 67).

-- The roles of the Department and the Embassy in the preparations for Congressman Ryan's visit (pages 76 to 89).

I understand that the House Foreign Affairs Committee plans to complete its own investigation of the People's Temple and issue a report on its findings by mid-May. I believe you should meet with Crimmins and Carpenter to get a first-hand assessment of their evaluation and to thank them for their excellent work. I believe this report, which is unclassified, should be transmitted to the Hill and released to the public. I intend to send a courtesy copy to Ambassador Mann before the report is distributed to the press.

Dear Senator Weicker:

The question as to why I or any other taxpayer should have to bear the cost of recovery and identification of the bodies from the Jim Jones People's Temple in Guyana has been bothering me for some time.

Is it standard procedure to pay transportation cost of citizens who journey to foreign countries and pass away while there?

These people chose to live in Guyana. Why couldn't their bodies be buried there in their village?

Why should the taxpayer have to pay nine million dollars for the recovery operation of people who chose to leave the United States and who were considering moving to the U.S.S.R. or Cuba?

Honorable John C. Danforth

Washington, D.C. 20510

Dear Senator Danforth:

This is in further reply to your inquiry concerning Mrs. Mildred Brethauer, 1540 La Mae Drive, Ellisville, Missouri 63011.

Since the members of the Peoples Temple were living in a foreign country, they would not have been eligible for welfare payments.

Social security checks are sent to beneficiaries who live outside the United States. There were 196 beneficiaries receiving checks at the Peoples Temple Mission Village in Guyana. Their checks were stopped as of November 18, 1978, when the tragedy occurred. To date, only 8 of the 196 beneficiaries have submitted evidence of their identity and have had their benefits returned to new addresses in the United States.

I regret that we cannot answer Mrs. Brethauer's question about the return of the bodies from Guyana and their burial. The State Department rather than HEW was responsible for the expenditures incurred in returning both the Jonestown survivors and the victims of the Guyana tragedy to the United States. Therefore, I am forwarding a copy of your letter to the State Department for consideration.

You may be interested to know that Mrs. Brethauer also wrote to us about this matter and I replied on March 27.

Dear Mr. Chairman:

I am enclosing a copy of a study of the performance of the Department and the Embassy in Georgetown in the People's Temple case. I believe that it will be helpful to you and the Committee. I am also sending a copy of this report to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The study prepared at my request by Messrs. John Hugh Crimmins and Stanley S. Carpenter, both retired senior Foreign Service Officers, is comprehensive and detailed. A summary is at page iii. The findings and recommendations of this study, which you will find at pages 91 to 102, are now being examined within the Department and the Embassy in order to strengthen the areas of weakness identified in the study. I will keep you informed of our progress.

Meanwhile, Messrs. Crimmins and Carpenter would be pleased to discuss the study with you and other members of the Committee who might be interested.

Status of the Jonestown Remains

Pursuant to a California Superior Court order the Jonestown remains are being transported from Dover Air Force Base to California. Of the 913 bodies remaining at Dover, 397 have already left Dover. These bodies are identified and therefore are being transported by truck to either Oakland Army Base or Camp MacArthur (near Los Angeles) depending on the desires of the next of kin who will have 30 days to claim the remains.

The remaining 248 bodies are unidentified. They are to be transported to Oakland and buried in the vicinity. The court-appointed receiver is making arrangements with cemeteries and hopes to bury these bodies in more than one location in order to avoid creating a cult gathering site. The unidentified bodies will begin leaving Dover either May 4 or May 7. One truckload (approximately 50 bodies) will leave every three days thereafter. (The California Court directed that the bodies not be transported all at once.) Under this timetable, all the bodies should have left Dover AFB by the end of the month.

The Honorable Cyrus R. Vance
Secretary of State
Room 7226
Department of State
Washington, D.C. 20520

Dear Mr. Secretary:

We have reviewed the Crimmins-Carpenter report on "The Performance of the Department of State and the American Embassy in Georgetown, Guyana in the People's Temple Case."

In particular, we have noted recommendation F at page 101 of the report, that the Department

> "immediately increase the staff of the Assistant Legal Adviser for Consular Affairs (L/CA) in order to provide more effective support for the Bureau of Consular Affairs."

The report does not mention that on the Monday following the Jonestown incident a number of attorney advisers were placed in the Office of Citizens Consular Services of the Bureau of Consular Affairs (CA/OCS/CCS). These attorneys were detailed from the Passport Office in connection with the Bureau's reorganization. Several attorneys were immediately assigned to work on legal issues and negotiations connected with the Jonestown incident.

It is unclear whether the drafters of the report were aware of the legal capability now present in CA/OCS. We believe this factor should be taken into account when consideration is given to the implementation of recommendation F. It appears that several options are available to the Department to implement this recommendation. These include continuing to utilize the attorney advisers now assigned to CA/OCS/CCS or reassignment of several or all of these attorney advisers to L/CA.

MED

For your information, we have enclosed copies of several letters to Deputy Under Secretary Ben Read on the question of placement of attorney advisers in the Bureau of Consular Affairs rather than in the Office of the Legal Adviser.

We would be happy to pursue this matter as you deem appropriate.

Dear John:

I want to express my appreciation for the care, professionalism and insight with which you and Stan Carpenter examined the Department's performance in the People's Temple case. There was perhaps no other single event last year that was more disturbing in all of its implications. The dispassionate and objective manner in which you conducted your study and the constructive suggestions you put forward testify to the fact that there may be lessons to be drawn from even the most bizarre tragedy.

I very much appreciate your contribution to the Department in this matter.

Dear Mr. Fountain:

Thank you for your letter of April 24 addressed to Secretary Vance enclosing a copy of a letter to President Carter from your constituent, James Reston, Jr., concerning a Freedom of Information request for documents dealing with Rev. Jim Jones and the People's Temple.

Mr. Reston's Freedom of Information request was received in the Department of State on December 26 and his request was acknowledge on January 19. At that time the Department advised Mr. Reston that we anticipated a delay in processing FOI requests for the documents associated with the tragedy in Guyana. On May 4, the Department of State advised Mr. Reston that we were awaiting a decision from the Department of Justice as to the releasability of documents reviewed under the FOI Act in light of ongoing investigations by various State and Federal agencies. At that time, Mr. Reston was supplied a copy of the recently released Department of State investigatory report on the handling of the Jonestown situation.

To date, the Department of State has indexed a total of 2,062 documents associated with Rev. Jim Jones, Jonestown, and the People's Temple. Of that number, 902 documents were in the Department's files prior to or immediately following the Jonestown tragedy. At present, the Department interposes no objection to the release of 430 of these documents, pending the above-cited determination by the Department of Justice. In the meantime, the ...United States House of Representatives on the Peoples Temple tragedy is an interesting document for a number of reasons — but for two in particular.

The Peoples Temple tragedy

...

...

...

Probe committee findings reveal....

US Embassy felt Peoples Temple was 'unusual' group

SUPPORT extended to the Peoples Temple by Deputy Prime Minister, Dr. Ptolemy Reid, was apparently not generated for illegal reasons.

That was one of the "important findings" of the Staff Investigative Group to the Committee on Foreign Affairs United States House of Representatives.

The investigation of the Peoples Temple by the Group ... with the Peoples Temple but noted that it had been very difficult to get a clear picture of what was happening in Jonestown.

However, on their return visits of which are very different to what both in Washington and Georgetown the investigators advised that they were "the beneficiaries of assistance in the events which preceded November 18, 1978".

The staff investigative group was mandated to examine a complaint by relatives of the international community of the Peoples Temple as the events that led to the murder of United States Congressman, Leo J. Ryan and the mass suicide/murder of over 900 members of the Peoples Temple in the North West Region of Guyana last November.

Dealing with the support extended to the Peoples Temple by Dr Reid, the investigators commended that while this support was "explained" in the sense that "he had the ultimate effect of furthering Peoples Temple objectives, it did not appear to be generated for illegal reasons" but was born out of "an ideological compatibility with and endorsement of the Temple's socialist philosophy".

Committee chairman, Clement Zablocki, had requested ... investigation for a ... of ... activities ... Subsequently ... Embassy ... became ... Government had decided to set up its own ... inquiry into the disaster and it would be ... to the same officials in your embassy.

And, in an ... published on the ... report, Foreign ... in the Middle ... Affairs Mario Dyett, ... investigation ... Embassy ... Georgetown ... procedure under which items consigned to the Peoples Temple were cleared into Guyana especially customs inspection or no inspection at all.

In such circumstances, the investigators felt, the Peoples Temple could have smuggled large sums of money and guns into Guyana in suitcases and take heroin out of them. However, in their investigations they only found credible testimony that these items might have been observed out of the United States in the last month.

ALLEGATIONS

They explained that the U.S. Customs Service, acting on allegations that narcotics might have been shipped to Jonestown, launched an investigation in February, 1977 but the investigation was completed and one month after it began.

They alleged that a Guyanese Police Officer contributed to the cost planning of these investigations by delaying a copy of a Customs Service report which was sent the Guyanese Police in order to allow Paula Adams or Carolyn Layton of the Peoples Temple and one of them" passed on the information to Temple leader Jim Jones.

The investigators also reported that the U.S. Customs Service investigations were concluded in August, 1977 after a shipment of crates destined for Jonestown was opened and inspected by the Customs Service in Miami in August 1977. "Shortly thereafter, a report on the investigations was filed with negative results", they explained.

But they added "Nonetheless, investigators apparently felt enough residual suspicion to send copies of the report to Interpol and the U.S. Department of State because their investigation produced allegations that Jones or ... to smuggle ... power base in Guyana and that he may currently have firearms in that country".

CUSTOMS SERVICE

They also explained that ... the standard routine ... interpol provided that a copy of the Customs Service ... sent to ... the U.S. ... country ... there ... that a new ... sent with ...

... on the Peoples Temple ... with the ... Customs Service ... of how to deal ... with the ethical and ... of their findings were to ... heavily made by Jim Jones ... who presumably ... their ... due to "high officials in the Guyana Government".

The report said that allegations that "unknown officials" of the Guyanese Government may have taken action to influence the outcome of the Shora custody case proceedings in the Guyanese court system were "unfounded and ... unsubstantiated".

In their 180 page document, the staff investigators also dealt with a number of other matters related to the Jonestown disaster. These included the role and performance of the U.S. State Department, allegations about a CIA agent ... Jones and the Peoples Temple, Jones' ... the treatment of his followers, the ... from Guyana of ... and the media, the ... of public officials, and the ... of the U.S. Congressional Inquiry.

And, in their ... opinions of the U.S. Embassy's dealings with the Peoples Temple, they concluded that "the vast majority of ... and ... and ... appear ... from these dealings.

The embassy, they recommended further, "should have applied greater outside judgment and a more aggressive posture" despite the ... lack of legal ... under which it ... operated.

"The U.S. Embassy in Guyana did not demonstrate any ... insight, sensitive ... and appreciation of ... regarding ... of highly ... and ... citizens of ... The embassy said. They noted that at ... there was "a fundamental breakdown in ... between ...

the embassy and the State Department.

They noted however, that there were a number of encouraging factors such as the fact that the embassy did not have an investigative and political function and the fact that in the case of each liaison with the shelter "U (sic) trying to remain objective in the face of two opposing groups of Americans, often presenting contradictory stories."

The latter factor, they said, was reinforced by numerous letters, articles, and documents reflecting equally pro and con opinions on Jones and the Peoples Temple.

"Out of that balance the embassy developed only that Peoples Temple group in November 18, 1978 was a "controversial" or "involved" group," they pointed out.

Another mitigating factor they said, was the fact that "if not" person harbored doubt that Jim Jones would take to himself the ultimate (sic) in Jonestown. This made it difficult to get a realistic and factual picture of what was happening at Jonestown.

They noted, however, that in the case of "crisis management" following the tragedy on November 18, the State Department and the U.S. Embassy in Guyana "performed with distinction."

And, dealing with allegations that a former member of the Peoples Temple in Guyana had engaged in a sexual liaison with former U.S. Consul, Richard McCoy, and had made tape recordings of their sexual activities in an attempt to compromise him, they had that issued on their findings, these allegations were false.

The investigators also noted that there seemed to be considerable misunderstanding in the minds of American officials about their country's Privacy Act and Freedom of Information Act.

"Among the (State) officials (Government) there is strong (sic) misunderstanding of the Privacy Act is (illegible) difficult to understand (illegible) Accordingly, they (illegible) that regular guidance is required to guarantee proper implementation," they reported.

And, in their recommendations to the Committee on Foreign Affairs of the U.S. House of Representatives, the investigators suggested that the exemptible provisions under the U.S. Privacy Act and Freedom of Information Act be removed and that the country's Internal Revenue Service rules and regulations regarding churches be removed.

In addition, they recommended that the present system governing the dissemination of documents and information in the U.S. to reveal the differences in the interpretation and understanding between the State Department's consular and political sections be corrected, and that every consideration should be given to maximizing the availability of legal assistance to embassy staffs.

Other recommendations included the need for a consolidated programme of research and training data, and the need for the subject of duty to be included on the agenda of the White House Conference on the Family

Senator Culver:

I am an Iowa journalist and would like for you to send me some information. I would like to know if any Iowans were involved in the Guyana incident. If so, I would like to have the names of these victims as well as the city they were from, their age and the place their body was sent for burial. I would also like to know if their is a next of kin listed for them.

If there were no Iowans involved in the incident, I would like information concerning those from the midwest in general. I would like to get some statistics concerning the number who died too. I would like to know how many children, adults, age categories, race and sex of victims. If there are a number of individuals involved that are guyanieee citizens I would like that info too. I would prefer round numbers concerning race and sex etc....rather than percentages.

Please send this information to: Ms. Stephanie L. Michael

Dear Senator Danforth:

I refer to your letter of March 22 to the Department of Justice on behalf of your constituent, Mrs. Mildred Brethauer, requesting information on the expenditures incurred by the Government in the Jonestown tragedy.

The Department of Justice has filed suit against the People's Temple in the U.S. District Court in San Francisco to recover 3.4 million dollars, the amount owed to the Government for its expenses in connection with the Jonestown tragedy. If you desire any information about the progress of the suit, I suggest you contact the U.S. Attorney's Office in San Francisco.

If you have any further questions on other aspects of the Jonestown tragedy, you may wish to contact Mr. Richard McCoy, Officer-in-Charge of Guyanese Affairs, at 632-3449.

MEMORANDUM TO THE SECRETARY

FROM: Matt Nimetz

SUBJECT: Follow-up to Jonestown Incident

Issue for Decision

The Department has been making good progress in implementing the recommendations of the Crimmins/Carpenter report as well as the report of the staff investigation of the House Foreign Affairs Committee into the events at Jonestown, Guyana in November of last year. We need your guidance on how best to proceed with the major recommendation of both reports, namely, the creation of a high-level review committee to study the impact of the Freedom of Information and Privacy Acts on Foreign Service reporting.

Essential Factors

We have been working to ensure that suitable steps are taken to implement the changes called for in the investigations into the Department's handling of relations with the People's Temple. I have already briefed you regarding the improvements that have been made in providing adequate security and communications support to traveling Members of Congress. CA has now reorganized its Office of Overseas Citizens Services on a geographic basis in order to promote a closer working relationship between consular officers in the Department and the regional bureaus. The People's Temple experience has been used as the basis for new training exercises designed to sensitize consular officers to the possibility of encountering difficult situations abroad involving semi-autonomous communities of American citizens.

We have yet to grapple with the complex issue of the impact of the Privacy and Freedom of Information Acts, much less the U.S. Constitution, on Foreign Service reporting. The Crimmins/Carpenter report recommended that the Department establish a high-level review committee, chaired by the Counselor, to examine the broad implications of these two acts and to recommend legislative changes, if thought necessary. I am inclined to defer a high-level review in favor of a smaller working group.

Recommendation

That you authorize me to establish a working group within the Department to study the effect of the Privacy and Freedom of Information Acts on Foreign Service reporting and to recommend any necessary changes in Department policy guidance or in the laws themselves.

Jimmy Carter
President of the United States
The White House
Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. President:

For the past five months, I've been hard at work on a book about the Jonestown disaster, under commission from Times Books, New York, and have taken a year off from the English faculty at the University of North Carolina for the project. My commission is to try to discover the whys of Jonestown, a problem which virtually all Americans, I'm sure, still find totally incomprehensible.

But this has been five months of considerable frustration at trying to get to the basic documents which contain the answers for the serious student, because those documents have, so far, been held secret by various agencies in your Administration. In the days after the event, the F.B.I. crated up reams of documents and tapes of Jim Jones's nightly sessions and took them to Washington. To date, the rationale for the continued secrecy has centered on the fact that a grand jury is still proceeding in San Francisco.

I contend that less than 1% of the material taken from Jonestown could have any legal significance whatever, if the point of a grand jury is to hand down indictments against living persons. Those few survivers of the disaster who might conceivably be targets for prosecution remain palpably suicidal. The example of Michael Prokes, the public relations officer for Jones, is proof of this point. His suicide after a press conference in Modesto, California, last month came after some sessions with the U.S. Attorney in California, in which Prokes was bargaining (as yet unsuccessfully) for immunity from prosecution. Prokes may have been suicidal all along, but his action demonstrates the fragility of the whole situation. It is totally impractical to think that the U.S. court system can provide redress for the deaths of Congressman Ryan or the deaths of the Jonestown community.

The FBI is not the only agency which is using technical, bureaucratic regulations to frustrate access to basic source material. The F.C.C., for example, has the best library of monitored tape recordings of the communications between Jonestown and San Francisco, going back more than a year and a half. For reasons which I can only interpret as an effort to salve a few bruised feelings, that infinitely valuable repository of material is being kept under lock and key.

Section 605 of the Communications Act is being used at the Commission as its rationale for secrecy, but my attorney has thoroughly researched that section of the Act, including the legislative history thereof, and concludes that this use of the Communications Act is totally without foundation. (Her brief is enclosed.)

With the FBI and the F.C.C., as well as the State Department and the CIA, I have filed Freedom of Information Act requests, and from none of them, have I even received an acknowledgment of the request.

The Jonestown affair is unprecedented in human history, and has been deeply disturbing to the American people. It cries out for serious study and explanation. In order that this may be accomplished, an official at the highest level of government, with the vision to see that no previously existing bureaucratic regulations can be relevant to such a catacysm, will need to free up this material for scholarly access.

I would greatly appreciate your help in this matter.

Respectfully yours,

James Reston, Jr.

Dear Mr. Attorney General:

For the past five months, I've been hard at work on a book about the Jonestown disaster, under commission from Times Books, New York, and have taken off a year from the faculty of the University of North Carolina for the project. I was in Guyana a week after the event and spent most of February there. I expect that I'll again be returning in the coming few months. My commission is to try to discover the ways of Jonestown, a problem that virtually all Americans, I'm sure, still find totally without reason.

But so far as the cooperation of the American government in this endeavor is concerned, this has been five months of frustration. As I'm sure you know, the F.B.I. crated up reams of documents, and tapes of Jim Jones's nightly sessions and took them to Washington. To date, the rationale that a grand jury still proceeds in San Francisco, has been used to keep the entire library classified.

I contend that less than 1% of the material taken from Jonestown could have any legal significance. There are only a few survivors left, and they are all still of a very fragile state of mind. The suicide last month of Michael Prokes, the public relations officer for Jones, is proof of the point. As I expect you know, Prokes was bargaining for immunity from prosecution with the U.S. Attorney. In his final press conference immediately before his death, Prokes charged that the U.S. government continued to hold secret Jonestown documents, and particularly the final tape, because the materials were embarrassing. I can not pass judgment on that point, but if, as I say, the vast majority of the materials you hold have no legal interest whatever, then I do not feel your department is acting in the public interest by continuing to keep the material secret.

Jonestown is an event, unprecedented in human history, and one that the American people have found profoundly disturbing. The public interest lies in allowing serious writers to search for the answers to the question of how such a deed could have been done by Americans. It is my hope that a high Administration official will have the vision to see that technical, bureaucratic roadblocks should not be placed in the path of understanding this horrendous event.

Sincerely yours,

James Reston, Jr.

March 28, 1979

Mr. Richard D. Lichtwardt,
Executive Director
Federal Communications Commission
1919 M. Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20554

Dear Mr. Lichtwardt:

This request for access to all tape recordings, transcriptions, and other documents pertaining to the amateur radio transmissions between the People's Temple [hereinafter referred to as P.T.], San Francisco, California, and People's Temple, Jonestown and Georgetown, Guyana, S.A. in the possession of the Federal Communications Commission is made pursuant to the provisions of Freedom of Information Act, 5 U.S.C. §552, as amended. It is made through the undersigned attorney on behalf of James Reston, Jr., author. Preliminary inquiry by counsel for Mr. Reston to the Office of General Counsel indicated some Federal Communications Commission [hereinafter referred to as the F.C.C. or the Commission] concern that the above-described materials are not subject to disclosure under the Freedom of Information Act [hereinafter referred to as FOIA] because the Commission is prohibited from disclosing them under the provisions of the Radio Communications Act of 1934, as amended, 47 U.S.C §605.

Thus the Office of General Counsel has interpreted the requested material as material falling within the (b)(3) exemption to the FOIA. Although the Office of General Counsel has indicated to counsel for Mr. Reston that its decision is not final, but rather is subject to revision upon a proper showing by counsel for Mr. Reston that the materials are not within §605's confidentiality provisions, for purposes of simplicity in this request, it will be referred to as the decision of the Commission. Counsel submits that the general provisions of §605 are designed to protect the confidentiality of only certain classes of transmissions. Specifically exempted from the confidentiality provisions are all amateur transmissions. Ironically, it is the very sentence in §605--exempting the whole class of amateur transmissions from the confidentiality restrictions of the provision -- that the Commission fears prohibits disclosure of these materials to the requestor. We submit that they are specifically exempted and that the Commission is therefore required to disclose the materials under the provisions of the FOIA. The materials sought concern events of tremendous national significance in the history of the United States. The public's interest in unraveling the mystery of the Jonestown murders/suicides is enormous. It is crucially important that this interest be met by responsible and thoughtful writing. The affairs of the People's Temple are the subject of a broad range of executive and congressional investigations. The interest of the public and their elected and appointed representatives is as deep as it is because the parallels between the People's Temple community, and other religious cults or organizations which have attracted vast numbers of young or old Americans, are very significant. Moreover, it is already clear from the hearings conducted by the Fraser Committee and House Report issued last fall, that certain abhorrent practices of the People's Temple community can be found in other cults in the United States. Yet, very little important information is available for public scrutiny and thoughtful study. The vast majority of it has been shrouded from view by the Guyanese government and by the government of the United States. James Reston, Jr., a member of the faculty of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, is also the author of five books and numerous articles which have appeared in the New Yorker, the New York Times, the Saturday Review, and other publications. He is writing a book about P.T and an article for the New Yorker magazine, each of which will be widely disseminated. Clearly, the disclosure of the materials to Mr. Reston will be in the public interest because furnishing the information to the requestor can be considered as primarily benefitting the public. His writing should contribute to the nation's comprehension of the great attraction cults like PT possess, and the causes underlying the deaths of PT's members. For this reason, and the reasons described below, we submit that the materials are available under the FOIA and should be provided to Mr. Reston immediately.

The Legislative History of 47 U.S.C. §605 Demonstrates that All Amateur Transmissions Are Exempt From Its Provisions.

The origins of present §605 can be traced to the Radio Act of 1912 in which Congress first codified the custom of affording confidentiality to commercial transmissions. The Radio Act of 1912 was the subject of substantial debate in both the House and Senate. Both houses intended that some measure of confidentiality be accorded to commercial communications transmission. Thus, Regulation 19 of the House bill H. R. 15357 provided:

> Every operator shall be obligated in his license to preserve, and shall preserve faithfully, the secrecy of radiograms which he may receive or transmit; and for failure to preserve such secrecy, his license maybe revoked by the Secretary of Commerce and Labor.

Regulation 19 of the Senate bill, S. 6412, similarly provided:

> Every operator shall be obligated in his license to preserve, and shall preserve faithfully, the secrecy of radiograms which he may receive or transmit; and for failure to preserve such secrecy, his license maybe revoked by the Secretary of Commerce and Labor.

Congressional concern for confidentiality of radio transmissions was directed solely toward commercial messages. The Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries reported H.R. 15357 (which was substantially identified to the Senate bill which ultimately passed both Houses) along with a report. The Committee Report explains that the secrecy provision was "required by the Berlin Convention" which addressed practices concerning commercial operations and "urged by the commercial concerns hearings before committees of Congress." S. Rep. No. 582, 62d Cong., 2d Sess. 16 (1912). The Senate Report similarly reveals no congressional intent to bring amateur transmissions within the secrecy provisions of Regulation 19. The Report of the Senate Committee on Commerce described all of the Senate bill's regulations of amateurs in a specific section of the report. See, S. Rep. No. 698, 62d Cong., 2d Sess. 10 (1912). Nowhere in the section of its report concerning amateurs did the Committee state its intention that the confidentiality provision applied to amateurs. Id. page 10.

Additional evidence of clear legislative intent to exempt all amateur transmission from the confidentiality provisions of the 1912 Radio Act can be found in the floor debates on the measure. Representative Alexander, the Chairman of the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, which had reported both H.R. 15357, and subsequently, S.R. 6214, was one of the sponsors and floor managers of the legislation.

As such, his remarks are entitled to great consideration. Federal Energy Administration v. Algonquin SNG, Inc., 96 S.Ct. 2295 (1976); National Woodworks Mfg. Ass. v. National Labor Relations Board, 386 U.S. 612 (1967); Richbourg Motor Company v. United States, 281 U.S. 528; United States v. Great Northern Railroad Co., 287 U.S. 144; Mastro Plastic Corp. v. National Labor Relations Board, 350 U.S. 270 (1956). In response to a question, Representative Alexander described the two broad instance in which amateurs were subject to regulations and penalties under the 1912 Act :

> if they use a wave length exceeding 200 meters or it [sic] interferes with government or commercial stations.

62 Cong. Record 7574 (1912). Further, an amendment substituting a fine or imprisonment as the penalty for violation of the secrecy provision of S. 6412 was offered during the floor debate by Representative Alexander. During the colloquy that followed, Representative Alexander again made it clear that the secrecy provision applied only to operators of commercial concerns and not amateurs:

> ...The regulation (secrecy) relates to radiograms and not to signals...

Representative McCall questioned the need for this provision;

> I do not know of any statute of the United States that would be in accordance with this. I think if an agent of a company receiving the dispatch, a telegraph operator, discloses the contents, the company would be liable for damages to the people who are interested in transmission of that message and to the man who had paid for it. I do not see why we should have any penal provision here when the practice and custom are so well settled as they are in the case of telegraph operators. The lot of one of these operators is sufficently hard now without putting criminal statutes in his path.

62 Cong. Record 10593 (1912). In response, Representative Alexander did not contradict the limited application of the provision to the commercial communication industry but only noted that the Berlin Convention required a secrecy provision for commercial communication.

Indeed, Representative Alexander took great care to soften the only provisions of the bill that did penalize amateurs by offering an amendment to S. 6214. 62 Cong. Record 10592 (1912). That amendment made penalty for amateur interference with a government or commercial station or operation on a wave length exceeding 200 meters inapplicable unless the amateur had received prior formal notice of interference.

Additionally, in defending the confidentiality provision during the floor debate, Representative Alexander again described its limited application as follows:

> Many commercial transactions maybe carried on by wireless. Messages of the very greatest importance to the parties maybe involved and to say that an operator might disclose the contents of such a radiogram without incurring any penalty is not right or fair or just, it would be very dangerous indeed to allow them to do so. The International Conference thought it of so much importance that it expressly provided for a regulation of this sort should be adopted by the signatory nation.

62 Cong. Record 10596 (1912).

S. 6412, with amendment, passed both Houses and was signed into law. See, Cong. Record 10596, 10644; 10745; 10748 (1912). Subsequent amendments to the Radio Act of 1912, addressed below, did not alter the original purpose of the confidentiality provision --- to preserve the confidentiality of commercial communications made by commercial concerns --- and have not applied it to transmissions by amateurs.

As the use of radio communications grew, Congress found it necessary to tailor the 1912 statute to meet public and private needs. In 1923, the House Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries considered several bills to amend the 1912 Act and issued a committee report to accompany the bill it reported. See, H. Rep. No. 1416, 67th Cong., 4th Sess. (1923). Although no substantive legislation concerning Regulation 19 of the 1912 Act was passed that session, the portion of the bill recommended by the House Committee pertaining to secrecy provisions bore a striking resemblance to that portion of the 1927 Radio Act. Therefore, the Committee Report is highly relevant to the legislative history of the 1927 Act, and to present §605. The 1923 bill redrafted Sections 1, 2, and 3 of the 1912 Act incorporating most of its provisions and clarifying certain ambiguities. Id. at 3. The Committee noted its intention to maintain the special status amateur operators had under the 1912 Act and made only one major change:

> The pending bill recognizes the privileged status accorded to amateurs by the Radio Act of 1912. That act allocated to amateurs a wavelength of 200 meters.
> ... [A]nd in its place provides the wavelength for amateurs shall not be less than 150 meters nor more than 275 meters. This change was desired by the amateurs and has the approval of the conference and of your committee. The amateur is the only user of radio to whom a definite assignment of wavelength is made in the law itself... The committee appreciates the value of the service which the amateur is rendering in the development of the art and in the training of skillful operators, and feels justified in continuing the special recognition accorded in the previous law.

Id. at 5. Obviously the committee had no intention of changing amateurs' status and applying Regulation 19's confidentiality provision.

A year later, during the first session of the 68th Congress, the House Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries favorably reported another bill for consideration by the full House. Section 16 of that bill contained a secrecy provision for certain transmissions similar to Regulation 19 of the 1912 Act. Nowhere in the committee's report is there any evidence that the secrecy provisions were now to be made applicable to amateur transmissions. Rather, their exemption from the provision was continued:

> Section 16 of the bill is designed to secure secrecy in messages. There has been much complaint that unauthorized persons have intercepted messages and have made improper use of the information contained therein. It is provided that the section shall not > apply to the receiving or utilizing the contents of radio communications transmitted by amateurs or others for the use of the general public or relating to ships in distress.

H. Rep. No. 719, 68th Cong. 1st Sess. 7(1924). If the Committee had intended some or all amateurs transmissions be kept secret, it would have stated so since this would have been a departure from the 1912 Act. Moreover, such an interpretation would have been and continues to be wholly inconsistent with the explanatory language contained in the House report of the need for secrecy: "There has been much complaint that unauthorized persons have intercepted messages..." Listening is interception. Therefore if the word "amateurs" is substituted for "unauthorized persons" the provision also would have prohibited amateurs from listening and then talking to each other. The very scheme of amateur communications established by the 1912 Act and continued by the 1924 bill would be nullified. This however, is the result reached by the Commission's interpretation and application of present §605 in this case. The result is ridiculous.

Because the 68th Congress failed to enact substantive legislation overhauling the 1912 Act, the respective committees in both Houses continued their hearings on pending legislation. Thus in February 1926, the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries reported out H.R. 9108 with a committe report. The purpose of H.R. 9108, inter alia, was to amend the radio law of 1912 to meet the needs created by an enormous increase in the number of transmissions. The secrecy provision of the 1912 Act however was not to be changed substantively as the Committee's Report indicates:

> The bill also seeks to protect messages and the contents thereof against reception and use by unauthorized persons. The section is a redraft of a provision of existing law. It seems to the committee a proper and necessary provision.

See, H.Rep. No. 404, 69th Cong. 1st Sess. 4 (1926).

A second report was issued approximately a month later by the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries to accompany H. R. 9971 which was recommended by the full committee and which differs substantially from H. R. 9108 only by its elimination of the provision prohibiting receipt from any foreign country of certain radio parts or apparatus which were the product of a monopolistic trade agreement. The secrecy provision contained in H. R. 9100 as described by H. Rep. No. 404, above, was unchanged. See, H. Rep. No. 464, 69th Cong. 1st Sess. (1926).

During the second session of the 69th Congress, each House voted on their respective bills to amend the 1912 Act and a Conference Committee was appointed. On January 27, 1927 the Conference Committee issued a report. See, Conference Report, H. Rep. No. 1886, 69th Cong. 2nd Sess. (1927). Section 27 of the bill (H.R. 9971) continued the 1912 Act's exemption of amateur transmissions from the general secrecy provision while making its application to others more explicit:

> No person receiving or assisting in receiving any radio communication shall divulge or publish the contents, substance, purport, effect, or meaning thereof except through authorized channels of transmission or reception to any person other than the addressee, his agent, or attorney, or to a telephone, telegraph, cable, or radio station employed or authorized to forward such radio communication to its destination, or to a proper accounting or distributing officers of the various communicating centers over which the radio communication may be passed, or to the Master of a ship under whom he is serving, or in response to a subpoena issued by a court of competent jurisdiction, or on demand of other lawful authority; and no person not being authorized by the sender shall intercept any message and divulge or publish its contents, substance, purport, effect, or meaning of such intercepted message to any person; and no person not being entitled thereto shall receive or assist in receiving any radio communication or use the same or any information therein contained for his own benefit or for the benefit of another not entitled thereto; and no person having received such intercepted radio communication or having become acquainted with the contents, substance, purport, effect, or meaning of the same or any part thereof, knowing that such information was so obtained, shall divulge or publish the contents, substance, purport, effect, or meaning of the same or any part thereof, or use > the same or any information therein contained for his own benefit or for the benefit of another not entitled thereto; Provided That this section shall not apply to the receiving, divulging, publishing, or utilizing the contents of any radio communication broadcasted or transmitted by amateurs or others for the use of the general public or relating to ships in distress.

In the statemmt of the managers that accompanied the Conference Committee Report, the House managers indicated that the secrecy provision was the same provision as that found in the House bill, referred to above, as well as the Senate provision. Id., page 10. No change in the nonapplication of the confidentiality provision to amateurs was intended by the Conference Committee. Moreover, the language of this provision is clearly directed only at commercial concerns and operators, and not amateurs. If the word "amateurs" were substituted as the Commission's interpretation would have it, amateur transmissions would cease. Both Houses considered the Conference Committee Report and the recommended bill. In commencing debate in the House, Representative Frank D. Scott, one of the members of the Conference Committee whose remarks are therefore entitled to great deference and weight, described the relationship between the Conference Committee's bill and H.R. 9971 which is discussed above. He stated:

> Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, during the last session of Congress, the House adopted H.R. 9971. The Senate amended the House bill by striking out everything after the enacting clause and inserted in lieu thereof a new bill, in large measures similar to the House bill, but in some respect substantially different. The House disagreed to the Senate amendments and granted the conference asked. The House is familiar with the provisions of the bill it adopted. It therefore would seem both wise and pertinent to discuss the particular features of this compromised bill which change the bill formerly adopted by the House, and my efforts will therefore be directed to such a purpose.

See, 69 Cong. Record 2564 (1927). Representative Scott described the changed provisions and specifically did not mention section 27, the secrecy provision. Id. pages 2557-2567.

In the Senate consideration of the Conference bill H.R. 9971, was accompanied by statements on the part of both its sponsors and its opponents, Senator Pittman questioned the drafting of the secrecy provision as contained in the conference bill stating that:

> Section 27 of the Conference bill provides that - ...no person not being authorized by the sender shall intercept any message and divulge or publish the contents, substance, purport, effect, or meaning of such intercepted message to any person; .... This language does not limit such message to one of a private or personal nature, and therefore must apply to all messages. The language in its uncertainty is dangerous. It might be construed to prohibit the interception and publication of a speech by the Premier of England sent by the Broadcasting Corporation of England to the Radio Corporation of America. It might be construed to prevent the interception and publication of a speech by the President of the United States sent by one radio corporation to another radio corporation.

69 Cong. Record 4109 (1927). It is clear from the Senator's remarks that he addressed only transmissions made by a commercial carrier to another commercial carrier (corporations) and that he believed there should be some limitation on the nature of those transmissions so that transmissions that concerned matters of public interest would not be subject to the non-disclosure provision. Later on in the floor debates, Mr. Pittman again emphasized the application of the secrecy provision only to commercial concerns:

> Another proposition is this: It is made unlawful to intercept a message and to publish it without the consent of the sender. Such a law was enacted by Congress in connection with telegraph companies; a telegraph company is a different thing from a broadcasting company. A telegraph company owns its own wires, a broadcasting company owns nothing except the sending apparatus. What is the result? If they have no vested rights in the use of the ether, then that provision will absolutely fail. On the other hand, as I said, a great speech may be made by some statesman in England on some subject of world-wide interest and the broadcasting company of England may send it out to the Radio Corporation of America in New York. It may be intercepted by the New York Times or Herald or some of the other great papers of the country, but they would > be prohibited under the provisions of the bill from publishing it without the consent of the sender. If we carried that proposition to its legitimate end throughout the country, let us see where we wind up...

> Of course, the newspapers have announced that they intend to violate any such absurd position. But when we are constructing a law of this importance, dealing with one of the great powers which has so recently come into existence, one which we have just discovered, why should we not give some thought to it? Why should we not realize that it is bound to be a monopoly and that the power in the hands of that monopoly, unless it is under the strictest control, it may be used for the oppression of the people of the country?

69 Cong. Record 4112 (1927). It is obvious from the sponsor's statements that the 1912 Act's secrecy provision applied only to telegraph companies and not to amateurs, as the Commission would have it in this case, and that the amendment to that provision to be made by the 1927 legislation was again solely to cover commercial concerns not the amateurs. Mr. Pittman was of course interested in insuring that broadcast or transmission by commercial concerns that were the subject of legitimate public interest would be placed in the public domain. There is absolutely nothing in the legislative history of the 1927 Act to support the Commission's interpretation in this case. In fact the legislative history of the predecessor provisions of §605, from which §605 was clearly drawn both implicitly and explicitly show that the secrecy provision was never intended to cover amateur transmissions no matter what their nature or purpose. The Commission's tortured interpretation in this case simply cannot stand against the cited legislative history.

When the 1927 Radio Act was amended in 1934, the secrecy provision was not altered, nor was it extended to cover amateur transmissions of any type. The 1968 amendments to §605 pertain primarily to law enforcement personnel. The 1968 amendments left unchanged §605's nonapplicability to amateur transmissions of any type. See generally, S. Rep. No. 1097, 90th Cong. 2d Sess. 1968; U.S. Code Cong. & Admin. News 2196. Thus the legislative history shows that the secrecy provision was never intended by the Congress to encompass any amateur transmission and the Commission's application of §605 to the transmissions by People's Temple is unwarranted and wrong.

People's Temple Station Was Classified As An Amateur Radio Station And All Of Its Transmissions Are Exempt From Section 605.

The case law concerning section 605 is strikingly devoid of any instance applying §605 to any amateur transmission. It provides absolutely no support for the Commission's denial of these materials to the requester but instead, firmly supports the requester's position that the tapes and other materials he seeks are subject to disclosure. Pursuant to its powers under §303, et. seq., of the 1934 Act, the Commission licensed People's Temple station, WD6DVI, as an amateur radio station. The Commission's designation of WD6DVI as an amateur radio station is binding and controls this matter. But the effect of the Commission's initial interpretation of §605 in this case, however, is to completely change the amateur classification of WD6DVI and classify it as a common communications carrier to which §605 clearly applies. The Commission is prohibited from changing a classification status under its own regulations without due process. Regulations prevent the Commission from altering, modifying, or revoking any radio station license including an amateur license without following a prescribed procedure. For example, 47 C.F.R. §97.49 provides the general criteria which permit license modification by the Commission. No modification may occur unless the FCC has issued a show cause order for modification and provided at least thirty days for the licensee to respond. No show cause order was issued to the People's Temple amateur station nor was its license as an amateur station modified, restricted, or forfeited. Only a cautionary letter was issued in August, 1978 and throughout the period of time the tapes sought by the requester were monitored and recorded, People's Temple station was an amateur licensee and therefore its transmissions are not covered by §605. Similarly, People's Temple station's license was not revoked during the period of time the requested tapes were made. 47 C.F.R. §1.91 et.seq. require the Commission to follow certain procedures for revocation of an amateur license.

The Commission cannot transform, in effect, the amateur classification of the PT's station by applying an erroneous interpretation of §605 so to deny Mr. Reston's request when its own regulations forbid such a transformation without following established procedure.

FCC Emphasis On The Content Of People's Temple Communications So To Invoke The Provisions Of §605 Is Misplaced.

Part of the Commission's initial view that §605 may bar disclosure of the requested materials stems from its misplaced emphasis on the content of some of the People's Temple's transmission. Although certain communications between PT and its Jonestown outpost concerned business affairs of PT, these transmissions are nonetheless amateur transmissions to and from an amateur radio station and are therefore exempted from §605's confidentiality provision. The Commission has wrongfully focussed its analysis on the content of the transmissions instead of the classification of the licensees. Content analysis, while appropriate to determine if PT violated the Commission's regulations governing amateur traffic, is entirely inappropriate in determining whether §605 applies. Section 605, as the legislative history described above makes clear, specifies the categories or classifications of licensees that come within its provisions. It specifically exempts amateurs. The Commission has read the words "for public use" as a limitation on the kind of transmissions made by amateurs which are exempted from §605. This is wrong. As described above, there is absolutely no legislative history that would support such a view. In fact, the legislative history is quite to the contrary. Congress intended all amateur transmissions to be exempt. The legislative history of the 1927 Act, infra, indicates Congressional concern that newspaper could be prohibited from publishing excerpts from transmissions that were clearly in the public domain because they concerned news events. Inferentially, the words for public use refer to the transmissions by others than amateurs described in §605's proviso. But the legislative history is abundantly clear that amateur transmissions in their entirety have been exempt from §605's provisions.

If the standard urged by the Commission in this case were to be adopted, §605 would read: "communications by amateurs concerning third party business affairs in violation of FCC Regulations may not be disclosed except as provided by Chapter 119, Title 18, U.S. Code". Clearly such a provision is wholly inconsistent with what Congress intended and provided in the statute. Moreover, numerous amateur operators monitored the transmission of the PT amateur station and made tape recordings of the transmissions. Other amateurs intercepted and transcribed the messages by hand. Many, like Edward Wescott of Oakridge Tennessee intercepted and disclosed some of the very same material the Commission believes is covered by §605. Ed Wescott, the subject of the attached news articles from the Knoxville, Tennessee newspapers was "net control" for the world-wide Medical Emergency Amateur Radio Council in 1977 and 1978. During this time he intercepted and taped certain PT communications. In June 1978, he wrote various government officials about PT communications -- thereby, in the Commission's present view, unlawfully divulging the unlawfully intercepted communications. Since then, he and many other amateurs have voluntarily given their tapes and other documents to the FBI and other law enforcement agencies, newspaper offices and others in the business of reporting the news. If the Commission's erroneous interpretation is allowed to stand, Mr. Wescott and the many other amateurs who tried to advise government officials about PT on the basis of intercepted transmissions and who have assisted their government in subsequent investigations of PT will be liable personally for damages to PT and its remaining members. This result is so completely at odds with the provisions of §605 and the nature of amateur transmissions that it cannot bear scrutiny.

Transmissions Unlawfully Made Are Not Within The Provisions Of Section 605.

The Commissions initial position is grounded in part on its determination that the requested materials concerned "business affairs" of PT which were not "for the use of the public" and therefore are not exempt from §605's secrecy provision. This result is also wholly at odds with the consistent line cases that have held §605 inapplicable to transmissions not lawfully made. In United States v. Sugden, 226 F. 2d 281 (9th Cir. 1955), affirmed per curiam, 351 U.S. 916, the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit accepted the view urged by the FCC in that case: §605 does not apply to unlawful radio transmissions however private the participants intended those transmissions to be. The court stated that "To throw a mantle of protection provided by §605 over an outlaw broadcast is to abandon reason...before any right of privacy exists under §605 the voice must legally be on the air." The third party transmissions pertaining to the business affairs of PT violated Commission Regulations §97.114 (c). Yet the Commission has reasoned that this unlawful transmission was therefore "not intended for public use" and it is therefore prohibited from disclosing the materials to the requester. This is nonsense. It is the rule that transmissions which are unlawful are outside the protection of §605. It is interesting to note that in this case the Commission urges a position flatly at odds with the one it urged in Sugden, which was affirmed by the United States Supreme Court. It is at odds with the rulings of numerous lower courts as well and will not withstand court scrutiny. See, Casey v. United States, 191 F. 2d 1 (9th Cir. 1951); Hanna v. United States 404 F. 2d 405 (5th Cir. 1968); Brandon v. United States, 382 F. 2d, 607 (10th Cir. 1967); People v. Garber, 275 C. A. 2d 119 (1969).

Confidentiality Provisions Of §605 Apply Only To Transmissions Made With A Reasonable Expectation Of Privacy.

The legislative history and the case law that has evolved concerning §605 clearly demonstrate that the confidentiality provisions have absolutely no application to amateur transmissions. In virtually every case in which §605 has been applied by a court there was a reasonable expectation of privacy and limited transmission of the communication intended by the participants. Indeed, the expected confidentiality or privacy of the transmission is precisely what Congress intended to protect when it enacted the predecessors of present §605.

In Goldstein v. United States, 316 U.S. 114, 125 (1941) Justice Murphy described Congress' purpose in enacting §605:

> The statute expresses a rule of public policy. In enacting §605, Congress sought to protect society at large against the evils of wiretapping and kindred unauthorized intrusions into private intercourse conducted by means of the modern media of communication, telephone, telegraph, and radio. (dissenting opinion of Justice Murphy).

Private intercourse does not describe amateur transmissions. Indeed if certain amateur transmissions are covered by §605 then presumably thousand of amateur operators violate its provisions annually. §605 forbids the interception and disclosure of any radio communication unless the interception is authorized by the sender. It thus forbids amateur operators from listening to one another unless authorized. Listening is clearly "interception" within the meaning of §605. United States v. Sugden, 226 F. 2d. 281 (9th Cir. 1955), affirmed per curiam, 351 U.S. 916. Moreover, discussion among various amateur operators about transmissions made by other amateurs which are subject to §605 also violates the provision because such discussions are "disclosures" of "intercepted" radio communications within the meaning of the statute. The Commission's tortured interpretation of §605 in this case will put thousands of amateur operators in violation of the law. Obviously this is inconsistent with Congressional intent and purpose to exempt all amateur transmissions from §605's liability provisions.

It is also at odds with the case law. The vast majority of all §605 litigation involves disclosure of common carrier communications which were made by telephone, wire or telegram. See, eg. Nardone v. United States, 308 U.S. 338 (1938); Weiss v. United States, 308 U.S. 321 (1938); United States v. Paiakoff, 112 F 2d. 888 (2nd Cir. 1940); United States v. Gruber, 123 F. 2d. 307 (2nd Cir. 1941); Reitmeister v. Reitmeister, 162 F. 2d 691 (2nd Cir. 1947); Swarthout v. Michigan Bell Telephone Co., 504 F. 2d 748 (7th Cir. 1974); United States v. Russo, 250 F. Supp. 55 (E. D. Pa. 1966); Bubis v. United States, 384 F. 2d. 643 (9th Cir. 1967). The remaining portion of cases primarily applying §605 pertain to nonbroadcast radio operations such as FM simplex and multiplex transmissions. The participants' expectation is that these transmissions may be disclosed to a few additional persons but they will not be disclosed to the public at large.

No court has ever construed §605 so to apply its confidentiality provisions to communications by an amateur radio station or licensee. Amateur transmissions are made with no expectation of privacy, rather they are made with the most public expectations. By their very nature, they are designed to elicit responses from random or unknown stations. All amateur communications are therefore transmitted "for the use of the general public" and are exempt from §605's nondisclosure provisions.

In conclusion, I submit that there is no basis on which to justify the Commission's application of §605 to the tapes sought by Mr. Reston. All legal precedent, legislative history, the nature of the communication under review, and simple logic place the requested materials outside §605's nondisclosure provision, and they are therefore available under the FOIA. On behalf of my client, I request a prompt response to this Memorandum and further request that the Commission waive all or substantially all of the costs for locating the requested materials. As you know, the amendments to the FOIA permit you to reduce or waive fees if it "is in the public interest because furnishing the information can be considered primarily benefitting the public". Clearly the materials sought contain a matter of significant national attention and Mr. Reston's book and article for the New Yorker Magazine will be widely disseminated.

If for any reason access is denied to any part of the requested materials, please describe the deleted materials in detail and specify the statutory basis for your denial as well as your reasons for believing that the alleged statutory justification applies in the particular instance. Also please separately state your reasons for not invoking your discretionary powers, where applicable, to release the requested documents in the interest of the public. Such a statement will of course be helpful to my client in appealing an adverse determination and in formulating an argument in the event of appeal. I trust that the foregoing analysis and precedent will provide the Commission with the necessary legal authority to revise its initial determination and therefore make the requested materials available to Mr. Reston.

I await your prompt reply.

Sincerely yours,

Denise Leary

The Honorable Frank Church
United States Senate
Washington, DC 20515

Dear Senator Church:

I am writing to you because of a professional concern and interest in an issue that you might know something about and could help me understand. I am a sociologist who does research on the new religious movements and have gotten involved in the Jonestown-People's Temple tragedy because of my record of research over the past 10 years or so. I am enclosing a copy of my vita for your information; you will see that I have written a number of papers and books about new religious movements.

My specific interest in Jonestown and People's Temple, not because of the event itself, is because I was called on quite often by representative of the media to comment. I have written one paper about the People's Temple group and will be giving a major address in October to the Society for the Scientific Study of Religion at its annual meeting. I acquired a copy of the government report on the Guyana tragedy, and was puzzled about one particular aspect of the report. A number of sections of the report are classified. I could not understand why some of that information would be classified, although I had heard some rumors and read some accusations of things that raised questions in that area. Because I was curious about the classified sections, I wrote to my Congressman, Jim Santini, who gave me a rapid and candid response. He indicated that some of the material involves transcripts of sensitive interviews needed to be classified in order to protect the sources. He also, however, verified one of the questions I had posed and that is the fact that some of those classified portions deal with allegations of CIA and FBI involvement in an alleged conspiracy against Jones.

I am very curious about this kind of involvement. You may have heard that one particular newspaper in the country, Workers World, has accused the CIA of collusion to destroy Jonestown in a series of articles that have appeared there. If you do not have copies of these, I would be happy to furnish them.

I am writing to you because of your keen interest and record of monitoring the CIA. I wonder if there is any way that I can possibly get information about what is in the classified sections of the report and what the CIA involvement was with Jim Jones and with Jonestown. I need this information very much, as I am a scholar in the area and want to understand what has happened and to help bring such information to other scholars in the field. I would particularly like to have more information before I give my speech in October.

If you can be of any assistance to me, I would greatly appreciate it.

Sincerely,

James T. Richardson

Dear Mr. Chairman:

Thank you for forwarding Professor Richardson's inquiry concerning the Department of State's report on the People's Temple Agricultural Community. This report, released by the Department in May, contains no classified sections. I believe that Professor Richardson must be referring to the Report on the Assassination of Representative Leo J. Ryan and the Jonestown, Guyana Tragedy that was prepared by a staff investigative group of the Committee on Foreign Affairs of the House of Representatives. This study does contain a number of classified sections that have not been publicly released.

Inasmuch as the classified version of the Committee's report is the property of the Committee on Foreign Affairs, I would suggest that Professor Richardson contact the Committee staff directly to determine whether access to the material could be arranged. In the meantime, I have enclosed a copy of the Department of State's analysis which you may wish to forward to Professor Richardson.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

SEPTEMBER 27, 1979

Mr. LLOYD introduced the following bill; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary

---

A BILL

For the relief of Connie Brown.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the Secretary of the Treasury shall pay, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to Connie Brown of Hollywood, California, the sum of $450,000, in full settlement of all her claims against the United States arising out of the death of her husband, Bob Brown, while he was serving as a cameraman with Congressman Leo J. Ryan's party in Jonestown, Guyana.

SEC. 2. No amount in excess of 10 per centum of the payment authorized in the first section of this Act shall be transferred to or received by any agent or attorney for services rendered in connection with such payment. Any person violating this section shall be fined not more than $1,000.

Dear Mr. Chairman:

The Secretary has asked me to respond to your letter of October 3, requesting a status report on the Guyanese inquiry into the assassination of Representative Leo Ryan.

The Department recently requested our Embassy in Georgetown to inquire about the present status of the Government of Guyana investigation into the tragic circumstances surrounding the death of Congressman Ryan. The Embassy replied that there has been no movement since the announcement of the appointment of a Justice of the Supreme Court to head the inquiry. The Embassy intends to make a representation to the Government of Guyana regarding the status of the Investigating Commission, and you will be informed of the Guyanese response.

Mr. Richard McCoy, officer in charge of Guyanese Affairs in the Department, will be in Guyana later this month and will discuss this subject with the appropriate Guyanese authorities. Mr. McCoy will also forward a report to you on the results of his discussions.

November 21, 1979

Honorable Peter W. Rodino, Jr.
Chairman, Committee on the Judiciary
U.S. House of Representatives

Dear Mr. Chairman:

The Secretary has asked me to reply to your letter of October 31 concerning the Department of State's investigation into the events surrounding the People's Temple case in which Congressman Leo Ryan was murdered by members of the American community in Jonestown, Guyana. I am pleased to be able to report to you on the steps the Department has taken to implement the recommendations of that investigation, as well as additional measures we have inaugurated to minimize the likelihood that such an occurrence could ever happen again.

Immediately following the events at Jonestown, the Department undertook a comprehensive examination of the contacts between the Department, the American Embassy in Georgetown, Guyana, and the People's Temple Agricultural Community prior to November 18, 1978. We sought to understand the nature of the Department's relationship with the People's Temple so as to improve our own procedures for dealing with similar situations should they arise in the future. The final report of the Department's examination, which was made public in May of this year, is enclosed.

Drawing upon the recommendations contained in this report, the Department took a number of actions designed to improve training opportunities for consular officers, provide better security protection for traveling Congressional delegations, strengthen the degree of coordination between the Bureau of Consular Affairs and the Department's regional bureaus, and upgrade the sensitivity of our country desk officers to the potential ramifications of significant consular problems overseas. We have also just completed a major review of the impact of the Freedom of Information and Privacy Acts upon foreign service reporting, both to ensure that the Department obtains adequate information on the welfare of Americans resident abroad and to guarantee that general reporting is not adversely affected by the unintended application of the requirements contained in these two laws.

In our study, we canvassed key U.S. embassies and their constituent posts in all geographic areas, and we met with a number of groups in the Department to obtain first-hand views as to the operation of both the Freedom of Information Act and the Privacy Act as they affect the conduct of foreign relations. We have communicated our recommendations as to possible legislative changes to the Justice Department, the agency responsible for coordinating the over-all position of the Executive Branch in this matter. I would be happy to meet with you and your staff to review the findings of our study and discuss the conclusions that we have drawn.

You may already be familiar with the measures we have implemented to improve security protection afforded to Congressional delegations traveling in foreign countries. We have made it a standard practice to request a threat assessment from our posts describing the current security situation in a country to be visited by any member of the U.S. Congress. These threat assessments are periodically updated during the time a delegation may be out of the country, and their contents are shared with the members of the delegation before their departure and during the time of their actual visit. Our Office of Security in the Department accumulates a great deal of information regarding potentially unstable situations abroad and, in cooperation with the Office of Congressional Relations, promptly notifies any Congressional delegation about dangerous situations that may arise during the course of a Congressional visit. In addition, we have also considered providing mobile communications equipment to Congressional delegations that may be traveling to remote or isolated areas of the world, and we have undertaken to provide such equipment on at least one occasion.

With regard to training opportunities for consular officers, we have employed the Jonestown experience specifically as a case study for some advanced consular training exercises. From time to time, consular officers have also been introduced to the psychological aspects of various mind control techniques with specific attention to the implications of these methods for the provision of normal consular services. We have generally endeavored to heighten the awareness of our consular officers to [illegible] situations, and we have encouraged closer coordination between consular officers in the field and their political and economic counterparts.

Prior to the Jonestown episode, the Department had begun a re-organization of its Office of Overseas Citizens Services. That re-organization has now been completed, and a number of important changes have been made to enable the Department to respond more effectively to situations involving the protection and assistance of U.S. citizens abroad. A Citizens Emergency Center has been established to provide emergency consular assistance, and the Office of Citizens Consular Services has been re-organized on a regional basis so as to improve coordination between consular officials and the regional officers with whom they must often deal.

I hope that this review of the programs inaugurated by the Department since the Jonestown event has been helpful. I would welcome the opportunity to discuss this matter with you in greater depth, and to learn your views as to any further measures that you might consider advisable.

Sincerely yours,

Matthew Nimetz

It is not my intention to suggest that people should be required to attend. Certainly that would become a very serious percentage and they should be very well briefed before they attend.

Finally, I am not sure of the objectives of People Power but I wonder if this is an opportunity for them to demonstrate strength of feeling of local Companies and people to specific people.

Thank you.

Yours truly

Dear Mr. Florio:

Thank you for your letter of January 17 to Mr. Lowman on behalf of Mrs. Diane Dove who suggested Jonestown, Guyana as a resettlement site for Indochinese refugees.

We appreciate the concern for the welfare of the refugees which prompted Mrs. Dove's letter. We must point out that the decision to resettle refugees in Guyana rests solely with the government of that country.

Given Mrs. Dove's concern for the refugees, she may be interested to know that much progress has been made on the resettlement of refugees since the Tokyo summit in June and the U.N.-sponsored Geneva conference on refugees in July. Nations around the world have pledged to resettle more than 265,000 refugees a year. An additional $190 million has been pledged to support the operations of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, and Japan, in an extraordinary act of statesmanship, has promised to contribute 50 per cent of the UNHCR budget. The Philippines, in an equally extraordinary gesture, has offered a site for a refugee processing center to accommodate 50,000 refugees, thus helping to relieve the pressures on Malaysia and Thailand. Other countries have also acted magnanimously to ease the refugee crisis.

The United States, for its part, has taken a number of measures that we hope will provide substantial relief to the refugees and to the nations of first arrival in Southeast Asia. We have doubled the number of refugees that we will resettle in this country from 7,000 to 14,000 a month, and we have submitted legislation to the current session of Congress that would place our refugee admissions policy on a longer term basis. If enacted, this new legislation would establish for the first time a comprehensive program for refugee resettlement and assistance and would provide Federal funding for such activities on a continuing basis. We have also submitted to the Congress several requests for additional funding to cover our increased contribution to the UNHCR, a substantial share of the cost of establishing new refugee processing centers in Southeast Asia, and an initial contribution to a proposed International Resettlement Fund designed to help developing countries absorb refugees.

In an effort to save lives at sea, the U.S. Navy has alerted all of its ships and aircraft in Southeast Asia to watch for refugees and to give all possible assistance to vessels in distress. Wherever feasible, they are altering their routes into the areas where refugees are likely to be located and spending the maximum time possible in those areas while still meeting operational requirements. In addition, four ships from the Military Sealift Command will soon assist in transporting refugees to new processing centers in Southeast Asia and will thus be in the same area, operating under these same guidelines.

We are also continuing our efforts to get other countries to increase their financial contributions and resettlement offers. We are urging nations to provide land or construction and financial help to build refugee processing centers and money for the International Resettlement Fund. We hope that all of these international efforts will convince the first-asylum countries to continue to offer safe haven to all arriving refugees while we search for permanent homes for them.

Sincerely,

STANDARD FORM 95

INSTRUCTIONS

Complete all items—Insert the word NONE where applicable

Claims for damage to or for loss or destruction of property, or for personal injury, must be signed by the owner of the property damaged or lost or the injured person. If, by reason of death, other disability or for reasons deemed satisfactory by the Government, the foregoing requirement cannot be fulfilled, the claim may be filed by a duly authorized agent or other legal representative, provided evidence satisfactory to the Government is submitted with said claim establishing authority to act.

If claimant intends to file claim for both personal injury and property damage, claim for both must be shown in item 10 of this form. Separate claims for personal injury and property damage are not acceptable.

The amount claimed should be substantiated by competent evidence as follows:

(a) In support of claim for personal injury or death, the claimant should submit a written report by the attending physician, showing the nature and extent of injury, the nature and extent of treatment, the degree of permanent disability, if any, the prognosis, and the period of hospitalization, or incapacitation, attaching itemized bills for medical, hospital, or burial expenses actually incurred.

(b) In support of claims for damage to property which has been or can be economically repaired, the claimant should submit at least two itemized signed statements or estimates by reliable, disinterested concerns, or, if payment has been made, the itemized signed receipts evidencing payment.

(c) In support of claims for damage to property which is not economically reparable, or if the property is lost or destroyed, the claimant should submit statements as to the original cost of the property, the date of purchase, and the value of the property, both before and after the accident. Such statements should be by disinterested competent persons, preferably reputable dealers or officials familiar with the type of property damaged, or by two or more competitive bidders, and should be certified as being just and correct.

Any further instructions or information necessary in the preparation of your claim will be furnished, upon request, by the office indicated in item #1 on the reverse side.

Mr. Laurance Ring
Law Offices - Suite 450
9665 Wilshire Boulevard
Beverly Hills, California 90212

Dear Mr. Ring:

Further reference is made to the claim for $1,000,000 which Mr. Harry Mercer filed with the Department under the Federal Tort Claims Act of 1949 and the Act of August 1, 1956 (22 U.S.C. 2669(f)) for damages allegedly sustained as a result of the death of Henry Mercer in Jonestown, Guyana, on November 18, 1978.

The claimant states that the nature and extent of the injuries which formed the basis of the claim were:

> "At said time and place, the decedent, Henry Mercer, and approximately 900 members of the 'Peoples' Temple' were induced and/or coerced to drink a liquid containing a poisonous and deadly substance commonly known as cyanide, which proved to be fatal."

The claimant has submitted no evidence establishing the amount claimed or the basis of the claim.

To determine the legal validity of the subject claim and other similar claims, the Department undertook to study the entire course of events relating to the shocking events surrounding the so-called Jonestown incident and specifically obtained statements from three officers of the Department involved in the matter.

In accordance with the provisions of the first paragraph of the Federal Tort Claims Act (28 U.S.C. 2672), the Secretary of State is authorized to consider and settle administratively tort claims arising as a consequence of the negligent or wrongful act or omission of any employee of the Department acting within the scope of his employment under circumstances where the United States, if a private person, would be liable to the claimant in accordance with the law of the place where the act or omission occurred. Section 2669(f) of Title 22 of the United States Code extends the tort claim authority of the Secretary to claims arising in foreign countries in connection with Department of State operations abroad.

The events and circumstances surrounding the Jonestown incident resulted in the deaths of over 900 people. In the Department's view this was a shocking, unprecedented and wholly unforeseen tragedy. Congressman Ryan, who undertook a fact-finding mission to Jonestown, and the Department believed that the Congressman's party might encounter difficulties in gaining permission to enter Jonestown, particularly if members of the concerned relatives group and representatives of the news media were included in the visit; however, no one believed that anyone would be physically attacked, let alone killed. The Department of State shared with Congressman Ryan all information available to it regarding the Jonestown community, including the reports of Embassy officials who visited Jonestown. The Congressman was accompanied on his visit to Jonestown by the Deputy Chief of Mission of the Embassy, who was seriously wounded in the attack. On the basis of available information, particularly prior visits to Jonestown by a large number of public officials and private citizens, there was no reasonable cause to anticipate the possibility of violence against the Congressman's party.

Regardless of the substantive merit, if any, of the claimant's allegations, the question of whether the alleged acts or omissions constituted a cause of action under the Acts must be determined by referring to the law of the place where the tort occurred (28 U.S.C. 2672, 22 U.S.C. 2669(f)). Since the conduct complained of occurred in Guyana, by the claimant's admission, claimant must show that the United States Government, if a private person, would be liable to the claimant in accordance with the laws of Guyana. He has not done so. In the absence of establishing such liability, the claim must be denied. (Richards v. U.S., 369 U.S. 1, 82 S. Ct. 585, 7 L ed. 2d 482 (1962); Rayonier, Inc. v. U.S., 352 U.S. 315, 77 S. Ct. 374, 7 L ed. 3d 354 (1957); Massachusetts Bonding Co. v. U.S., 352 U.S. 128, 77 S. Ct. 186, 1 L ed. 2d (1956).)

Regardless of the above-mentioned failure, a further question arises as to whether the circumstances of the case can give rise to a valid claim under the Federal Tort Claims Act or the Act of August 1, 1956 (22 U.S.C. 2669(f)). It is the Department's conclusion that it cannot.

The basic precondition to the liability of the Department under the Act is that the claimant must establish a negligent or wrongful act or omission on the part of a Department of State employee who was acting within the scope of his employment at the time of the tort. The liability of the Department cannot be based simply on the fact that a death occurred. Mr. Mercer must show that a tortious act was committed by an employee of the Department and that the act occurred at the time and in respect of the very transaction out of which the loss occurred. The information transmitted with Mr. Mercer's claim does not establish, nor does it imply, any negligence on the part of the Department of State. The Department has no information relating to the negligence of employees of the Department concerning the matter. As a matter of fact, the conduct and actions of such employees were commendable.

The Department of State deeply regrets the losses suffered by Mr. Mercer and other victims involved in the Jonestown incident.

In the circumstances, the claim must be and is hereby denied.

The Federal Tort Claims Act provides for suit against the Government of the United States in the appropriate United States District Court for claims arising in the United States in the event the claimant does not concur with an administrative decision regarding such claim. Such suit must be filed not later than six months after the date an administrative determination is mailed. The Act does not provide for suit against the Government of the United States for claims arising outside the United States.

Sincerely yours,

Fabian A. Kwiatek

PETITION FOR ORDER GRANTING RECEIVER AUTHORITY TO COMPROMISE CLAIMS OF THE UNITED STATES

Hearing Date: August 26, 198[illegible]
Time: 2:00 P.M.
Department: Nine

ROBERT H. FABIAN, Receiver ("Receiver") for PEOPLES TEMPLE OF THE DISCIPLES OF CHRIST ("Peoples Temple"), hereby petitions the Court for an Order granting Receiver authority to settle certain claims of the United States to assets of the Peoples Temple Receivership on terms more fully described hereinafter. Petitioner represents to the court as follows:

1. Reference is made to this Court's Order signed on January 26, 1979, assuming jurisdiction of the winding up of Peoples Temple and to this Court's Order of February 1, 1979 specifying the powers and duties of Receiver in these proceedings, for findings regarding the petition of Peoples Temple for dissolution and winding up of its affairs, the appointment of Receiver and Receiver's general powers and duties. The provisions of these Orders are incorporated herein by reference.

2. Reference is made to Section 1806(a) of the California Corporations Code which authorizes this Court to compromise claims against Peoples Temple.

3. On January 22, 1979 in United States v. Peoples Temple of the Disciples of Christ, et. al., No. C79-0126 SC, United States District Court, Northern District of California, the United States filed suit against Peoples Temple and its related entities to obtain reimbursement for certain costs incurred by the United States in the aftermath of the Jonestown tragedy of November 18, 1978. The United States claims a right to reimbursement on a priority basis primarily for the costs of transporting the Jonestown deceased from Guyana to Dover, Delaware. According to the Complaint allegations, the United States at the time of filing suit had incurred costs of $4,298,000, in the Jonestown operation and expected that additional costs would be incurred.

Reference is made to this Court's Order signed on February 1, 1979 authorizing Receiver to enter an appearance in the federal court action on behalf of Peoples Temple. Another named defendant, The Peoples Temple of the Disciples of Christ Church in Guyana ("the Guyana corporation") has also appeared in that action. The case involves complex issues of law and fact, and Receiver anticipates that the case will be lengthy, require substantial discovery, and that the defense of this suit will involve substantial costs to the receivership estate.

During the time that the case has been pending, there has been no formal discovery; however, as more fully set forth below Receiver and the United States have agreed, subject to the approval of this Court, on a proposed settlement, and the United States has provided Receiver with information in support of its claim.

4. Reference is made to this Court's Order filed April 26, 1979, approving a written agreement dated April 12, 1979 between Receiver and the United States in which both parties agreed to use best efforts to repatriate to this country, Peoples Temple assets thought to be located in foreign countries. The joint effort of Receiver and the United States has resulted in the repatriation of substantial Peoples Temple funds to the receivership estate.

Pursuant to the same April 12, 1979 written agreement, repatriated funds in an amount of $4,350,000.00, an amount approximately equal to the United States' asserted claim in the federal court action, has been deposited with the Clerk of the United States District Court for the Northern District of California and invested in an interest-bearing Certificate of Deposit which matures August 26, 1980. In accordance with the written agreement, the $4,350,000 deposit is being held as a source of payment of the claim of the United States in the event of a final judgment in favor of the United States, and the funds will not be released until that action is finally resolved.

5. Receiver has received from the Internal Revenue Service a report dated May 16, 1980 which recommends that the tax-exempt status of Peoples Temple under Section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code be revoked for the fiscal year ending July 1, 1976 and all subsequent years, on the ground that Peoples Temple was not operated exclusively for religious and charitable purposes. Specifically, the IRS charges that Peoples Temple:

(1) carried on illegal acts and acts contrary to public policy;

(2) distributed earnings for the personal benefit of Peoples Temple members; and

(3) supported candidates for public office.

Receiver has appealed the proposed revocation of the exemption. If Peoples Temple's exempt tax status is revoked, the IRS will require that Peoples Temple file tax returns which would then be audited by the IRS. In all likelihood the IRS would attempt to tax as income donations made to Peoples Temple and profits realized on sales of its real property. Receiver would oppose the imposition of income tax liability, which would result in extensive, lengthy and costly litigation. It is not possible at this time to estimate Peoples Temple's income tax liability, but to the extent that any tax liability is established, it would be increased substantially by interest expense.

6. Receiver has also learned that the Guyanese authorities, in the aftermath of the Jonestown tragedy, seized more than 1,000 Social Security checks and other evidences of debt at Jonestown, most of which were payable to now deceased persons and some of which were endorsed in blank and delivered to officials of one of the Peoples Temple entities in Guyana. The Guyanese authorities thereafter surrendered these instruments to the United States State Department. The amounts aggregate approximately $300,000. Receiver has made a formal demand upon the United States State Department for possession of these checks, indicating that either Peoples Temple or the heirs of the payees of the instruments are entitled to the proceeds thereof. Receiver has examined copies of these instruments.

7. The Justice Department and Receiver have had numerous discussions about the merits of the federal court action. The Justice Department has informed Receiver that the United States will rely on the "emergency assistance" doctrine embodied in Restatement of Restitution, Section 115 (1937), and recently applied in the case of United States v. Consolidated Edison Co. of New York, Inc., 580 F.2d 1122 (2d Cir. 1978).

Receiver's counsel have researched the legal merits of the United State' claim under the "emergency assistance" doctrine and under other legal theories which might be relied on by the United States. Receiver and his counsel have also analyzed the issues of fact pertinent to adjudication of the United States' claim. Without waiving the attorney-client or attorney work product privileges, Receiver will provide the Court for examination, in camera, the legal opinion of Receiver's counsel evaluating the United States' likelihood of success in establishing its claim in the federal court action.

8. In recent months, Receiver and the Justice Department have explored the possibilities of settling the federal court action through an overall resolution of all claims existing between the United States and Peoples Temple. As discussed above, these claims involve, in addition to the claim before the federal court, the IRS action to impose retroactively tax liability on Peoples Temple, and Receiver's demand that the State Department return the approximately $300,000 in instruments either to Receiver or to the heirs of the deceased payees on the checks.

9. In recent discussions focusing on an overall settlement, the Justice Department has asserted that costs incurred in the Guyana operation are at a minimum the $4,298,000 amount demanded in the Complaint and that the United States would be seeking at least that amount at trial. However, the Justice Department solely for the purposes of settlement discussions and without prejudice to the right of the United States to claim the $4,298,000 at trial, has focused on a lower figure of $2.8 million. At the request of Receiver, the Justice Department has provided Receiver with numerous vouchers describing the kind and dollar amount of certain of the specific items of costs necessarily incurred in the Guyana operation, totalling in the aggregate $2,885,266.00. Receiver will provide the Court with these vouchers for in camera review. For example, items of cost relating to the aircraft, fuel, and manpower required to airlift the bodies to Dover, Delaware; the process of identifying the bodies; preparation of the bodies for burial; and the provision for caskets, are set forth in the vouchers.

10. Based on the legal opinion of Receiver's counsel, Receiver's evaluation of the United States' documentation of the costs of the Guyana operation, and on consideration of the substantial costs and delays for the receivership in (1) litigating the complex issues of law and fact presented by the anticipated lengthy federal court action, and (2) contesting in a lengthy proceeding the IRS effort to impose income tax liability, Receiver is of the opinion that it is in the best interests of the receivership estate to compromise the United States' claim in the federal court action on the following terms, which terms the Justice Department informs Receiver are acceptable to the United States:

A. Receiver denies any and all liability of Receiver, Peoples Temple and the Guyana Corporation in regard to the United States' claim in the federal court action, and denies any and all liability of Receiver and Peoples Temple for any tax liability, past or present. For purposes of settlement, however, Receiver agrees to pay to the United States $2,100,000 on a priority basis out of the funds deposited for investment with the federal court. With respect to the issue of priority, 31 U.S.C. §§191 and 192 provide in pertinent part:

> "Whenever any person indebted to the United States is insolvent. . .the debts due to the United States shall be first satisfied; and the priority established shall extend as well to cases in which a debtor, not having sufficient property to pay all his debts, makes a voluntary assignment thereof, . . . , as to cases in which an act of bankruptcy is committed. The priority established under this section does not apply, however, in a case under Title 11." (Section 191)
> "Except with respect to a trustee acting in accordance with the provisions of Title 11, every executor, administrator or assignee, or other person, who pays, in whole or in part, any debt due by the person or estate for whom or for which he acts before he satisfies and pays the debts due to the United States from such person or estate, shall become answerable in his own person and estate to the extent of such payments for the debts so due to the United States, or for so much thereof as remain due and unpaid." (Section 192)

B. The United States dismisses with prejudice the federal court action against Receiver, Peoples Temple, the Guyana corporation, and all other named defendants. The United States executes a complete release of any and all claims of the United States against Receiver, Peoples Temple and the Guyana corporation arising out of the United States' Guyana operation.

C. The United States further releases the Receivership and Peoples Temple for present and past income tax liability, if any.

D. With respect to the evidences of debt recovered in Guyana described in paragraph 6 hereof, the United States and Receiver will jointly determine and select:

(a) Those instruments which (i) disclose on their face or by special endorsement that they represent assets of the Receivership, and (ii) those instruments that are postal or other money orders, traveler's checks and other similar instruments which have been endorsed or countersigned by the purchasers thereof without completing the names of the payees. These 200 instruments, totalling in the aggregate approximately $60,000, will be delivered to Receiver and their proceeds administered in the Receivership.

(b) Those instruments which represent obligations of the United States Government and which are unendorsed by the payees. These 85 instruments, totalling in the aggregate approximately $18,000, will be retained by the United States and the proceeds disposed of according to law.

(c) Those instruments which represent obligations of the United States and which were endorsed in blank by the payees thereof. These 941 instruments, totalling in the aggregate approximately $198,000, will be delivered to Receiver for collection and administration in the Receivership, the United States agreeing to honor its obligations thereunder.

11. Receiver requests an Order granting him authority (1) to enter into a settlement with the United States on the above terms; (2) to compromise the claims of the United States on the above terms; and (3) to pay to the United States $2,100,000 on a priority basis out of the $4,350,000 in funds deposited with the federal court and invested in the above-mentioned Certificate of Deposit. The Order would direct that payment be made upon order of the federal court on or after August 26, 1980, the date when the Certificate of Deposit matures, and would direct that the balance of the funds deposited with the federal court be released upon order of the federal court, for disposition in this Receivership proceeding.

WHEREFORE, Receiver respectfully requests that an order be entered in the form embodied in Exhibit "A" to this Petition.

SUPERIOR COURT OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA

IN AND FOR THE CITY AND COUNTY OF SAN FRANCISCO

PEOPLES TEMPLE OF THE DISCIPLES OF CHRIST, Petitioner, vs. THE ATTORNEY GENERAL OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA, Respondent.	No. 746571 ORDER GRANTING RECEIVER AUTHORITY TO COMPROMISE CLAIMS OF THE UNITED STATES

On the 26th day of August, 1980, the verified Petition of ROBERT H. FABIAN, Receiver ("Receiver") for PEOPLES TEMPLE OF THE DISCIPLES OF CHRIST ("Peoples Temple"), for an order granting Receiver authority to compromise claims of the United States came on for hearing before the Court. Upon consideration of the verified Petition and all other matters brought to the attention of the Court at the hearing, and

GOOD CAUSE APPEARING THEREFOR,

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED, ADJUDGED AND DECREED AS FOLLOWS:

That Receiver is granted authority to compromise the claims of the United States to assets of the Peoples Temple Receivership and to enter into a settlement agreement with the United States on the following terms:

1. Receiver pays to the United States on a priority basis $2,100,000 out of the $4,350,000 in funds deposited with the Clerk of the United States District Court for the Northern District of California and invested in a certain Certificate of Deposit which matures August 26, 1980. Upon obtaining an appropriate Order from the United States District Court for the Northern District of California, Receiver shall make payment to the United States on or after August 26, 1980, and upon further appropriate Order of the United States District Court for the Northern District of California, Receiver shall obtain the release of the balance of the funds deposited with the Clerk of the federal court after payment to the United States, to be released for disposition in this Receivership proceeding.

2. The United States dismisses with prejudice the action entitled United States vs. Peoples Temple of the Disciples of Christ, et al., No. C79-0126 SC, United States District Court, Northern District of California, against Receiver, Peoples Temple, the Guyana corporation, and all other named defendants. The United States executes a complete release of any and all claims of the United States against Receiver, Peoples Temple, and the Guyana corporation arising out of the United States' Guyana operation.

3. The United States executes a complete release of any and all claims of the United States against Receiver and Peoples Temple for present and past income tax liability, if any.

4. Receiver and the United States jointly determine and select:

(a) Those instruments which (i) disclose on their face or by special endorsement that they represent assets of the Receivership, and (ii) those instruments that are postal or other money orders, traveler's checks and other similar instruments which have been endorsed or countersigned by the purchasers thereof without completing the names of the payees. These will be delivered to Receiver and their proceeds administered in the Receivership.

(b) Those instruments which represent obligations of the United States Government and which are unendorsed by the payees. These will be retained by the United States and the proceeds disposed of according to law.

(c) Those instruments which represent obligations of the United States and which were endorsed in blank by the payees thereof. These will be delivered to Receiver for collection and administration in the Receivership, the United States agreeing to honor its obligations thereunder.

DATED: August ___, 1980

Dear Jay:

In an effort to resolve the differences which we discussed on the telephone this afternoon I have drafted another proposal which is enclosed looking to the disposition of the evidences of debt in the possession of the State Department. The references are to paragraphs in a draft of a Petition for authority to settle. The reference to paragraph A. in paragraph (c)(2) of the enclosure is to the $2,100,000.00 proposed payment to the United States in settlement of the repatriation claims.

My preliminary analysis of the photographs which you sent me indicate that there are 1,026 United States Treasury checks of which 941 aggregating $198,869.00 are endorsed and 85 aggregating $17,912.00 are unendorsed.

With respect to the last sentence giving my reason and justification for an allowance of a discount to the United States our research last year indicated quite clearly that the primary responsibility for the cost of interment is the estate of the decedent. It seems to me reasonable to assume that having borne a portion of the cost of interment the United States may be entitled to some claim against the estates of these decedents. The costs of determining each case is such that it seems to me a reasonable solution to allow the United States a 33% credit. Please let me hear from you as soon as possible.

Perhaps an early submission of this idea to Warren Christopher might help reach a solution. With respect to authority to compromise it seems to me that the Deputy Attorney General or the Associate Attorney General probably have authority to make decisions leading to a conclusion of this tragic incident, at least in so far as the fiscal aspects are concerned.

My motivation since I was appointed Receiver in January of 1979 has been to try to reduce the number of issues and contentions to a manageable size so that the Receivership could be terminated and the assets distributed in some sort of a fair fashion. Your cooperation will be deeply appreciated.

Sincerely,

Robert H. Fabian,
Receiver

D. With respect to the evidences of debt recovered in Guyana described in paragraph C hereof, the United States and the Receiver will jointly determine and select:

(a) Those instruments which (i) disclose on their face or by special endorsement that they represent assets of the Receivership, and (ii) those instruments that are postal or other money orders, traveler's checks and other similar instruments which have been endorsed or countersigned by the purchasers thereof without completing the names of the payees. These will be delivered to the Receiver and their proceeds administered in the Receivership.

(b) Those instruments which represent obligations of the United States Government and which are unendorsed by the payees. These will be retained by the United States and the proceeds disposed of according to law.

(c) Those instruments which represent obligations of the United States and which were endorsed in blank by the payees thereof will either

-- (1) Be delivered to the Receiver for collection and administration in the Receivership, the United States agreeing to honor its obligations thereunder, or

(2) Be retained by the United States for disposition according to law, in which event the United States will credit against the sum agreed to be paid under paragraph A hereof ($2,100,000), an amount equal to 67% of the aggregate amount of such instruments.

Receiver's reason for the 33% concession is that under [illegible] payees or the estates of decedents have a responsibility to reimburse the United States for travel or burial expenses, giving rise to a right of offset in the United States.

RE: Federal Tort Claim

Dear Mr. Kwiatek:

Enclosed find a Federal Claim affidavit concerning the wrongful death of Gregory Robinson.

Please file the same. Claims are being made against the House of Representatives, the State Department and the United States Embassy.

PROB 65 - 1864

FEDERAL TORT
CLAIM DECLARATION OF PAUL NORDOFF
FOR DEATH OF DECEDENT
[illegible] PURSUANT TO 28 USC 1346, 2401 (b),
2671, and 28 CFR
14.1, et. seq.

I, PAUL NORDOFF, declare under penalty of perjury that the following is true and correct, to the best of my knowledge and belief:

I am an attorney, licensed to practice before the courts of the State of California and of the United States, and am duly authorized representative of the claimants herein.

GREGORY NORDOFF, born October 21, 1951, is now deceased.

His sole surviving heirs at law and claimants are his parents CARL NORDOFF and BEVERLY NORDOFF, 900 Delaware Road, Burbank, Calif. 91504

At the time of his death, decedent was an award-winning photographer for the San Francisco Examiner and was in good health.

On or about November 14, 1978, the decedent, at the request of government employee, United States representative Leo J. Ryan, accompanied an official United States government fact-finding mission to the country of Guyana, South America, for the purpose of investigating reports of mistreatment of American citizens in the colony of Jonestown, Guyana. Said mission was commissioned from Congressman Ryan's district in California, as members of committee. Ryan had gone to the colony of Jonestown at the request of some of his constituents who had brought him reports of severe mistreatment of their relatives, including torture, narcotics and duress occurring in said colony of Guyana.

The above described mission was made with the authorization of, and funded by, the United States Congress Committee on International Relations. At the time of the mission, it was known to Congressman Ryan and the United States, or should have reasonably been known, that the People's Temple and Temple, were dangerous and that the followers of Jim Jones were brainwashed to the point they would even follow his command to kill. In addition, it was known, or should have been known, that Jim Jones was sensitive and paranoid to media reports and extremely concerned about his public image. In fact, Jim Jones led his followers to Jonestown, following an expose on the group in New West Magazine. Despite said knowledge, Congressman Ryan and the United States Government allowed and solicited news media personnel to join the mission so Congressman Ryan and the United States Government could obtain publicity. Said news media personnel were encouraged to train their cameras upon Jim Jones and see intimidating gestures of Jim Jones, despite previous knowledge that the same would increase his paranoia and anger. Not only was this allowed knowingly by the United States Government, but said government failed to supply necessary information to the media personnel or safety precaution. In particular. Congressman Ryan had knowledge of People's Temple activities, including suicide drills and paranoid atmosphere. He also had knowledge of brainwashing techniques and their effects from his studies of other cults.

Others with knowledge of Jonestown's propensity for violence, included, but is not limited to, Richard Dwyer and John Burke, of the United States Embassy in Georgetown, Guyana; John Burnwell, Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for Inter-American Affairs; and Richard Dixby, Consul, Georgetown, Guyana.

6. As a result of lack of precautions and warning, the decedent, on November 18, 1978, was killed in an attack made upon the mission party by members of the People's Temple who were armed with automatic weapons.

Witnesses visited the following:

1. Jackie Speier, 1617 Jeronimo, Berlingame, Calif. 94010.

2. Steve Sung, KPIX, Pacheco Calif.

3. Don Jevons, San Francisco Chronicle, Calif.

4. Tim Reiterman, San Francisco Examiner, Calif.

5. Charles Krause, Wash. Post, Wash. D.C.

6. Beverly Oliver, Contacted relatives.

7. Anthony Katsaris, S.F. Ch. Calif.

Mr. Paul Hastings
Attorney at Law
P.O. Box 921
Palo Alto, California 94302

Dear Mr. Hastings:

Further reference is made to the claim of [redacted] and Beverly Robinson for [redacted] under the International Terrorism Act, as amended, and an Act of August 27, 1958, based upon the wrongful death of Gregory Robinson on November 18, 1978, in Jonestown, Guyana, as a result of the alleged wrongful conduct of officers of the Department of State.

Claimants allege, in part, as follows:

"On or about November 14, 1978, the decedent, at the request of government officials, United States Congressman Leo J. Ryan, accompanied an official United States government fact-finding mission to the country of Guyana, South America, for the purpose of investigation inquiry of mistreatment of American citizens in the colony of Jonestown, Guyana. Said citizens were constituents from Congressman Ryan's district in California, or relatives of constituents. Ryan had gone to the colony of Jonestown at the request of many of his congressional district constituents who had brought him reports of certain mistreatment of their relatives, including torture, assaults and deaths occurring in said colony of Jonestown, Guyana.

"The above described mission was made with the authorization of, and funded by, the United States Congress Committee on International Relations. At the time of the mission, it was known to Congressman Ryan and the United States, or should have reasonably been known, that the People's Temple had weapons, were dangerous and that the followers of Jim Jones were brainwashed to the point they would even follow his command to kill. In addition, it was known, or should have been known, that Jim Jones was Caucasian and pretended to media reports and personally concerned about his public image. In fact, Jim Jones led his followers to Jonestown, following an expose on the group in New West Magazine. Despite said knowledge, Congressman Ryan and the United States Government allowed and solicited news media personnel to join the mission as Congressman Ryan and the United States Government could obtain publicity. Said news media personnel were encouraged to learn their concerns upon Jim Jones and ask investigative questions of Jim Jones. Despite previous knowledge that the news media inflame his paranoia and anger. Not only was this allowed knowingly by the United States Government, but said government failed to supply necessary information to the media personnel or safety precautions in particular. Congressman Ryan had knowledge of Temple's Temple activities, including suicide drills and paranoid atmosphere, but also had knowledge of brainwashing techniques and their danger from his studies of other cults.

* * * * * *

"As a result of lack of precautions and warning, the decedent, on November 18, 1978, was killed in an attack made upon the mission party by members of the People's Temple who were armed with automatic weapons."

In accordance with the provisions of the first paragraph of 28 U.S.C. 2672, the Secretary of State is authorized to consider and settle administratively tort claims arising as a consequence of the negligent or wrongful act or omission of any employee of the Department acting within the scope of his employment under circumstances where the United States, if a private person, would be liable to the claimant in accordance with the law of the place where the act or omission occurred. Section 2680(k) of Title 28 of the United States Code extends the tort claim authority of the Secretary to claims arising in foreign countries in connection with the performance of State operations abroad.

The events surrounding Congressman Ryan's visit to Jonestown, Guyana, resulted in the deaths of over 900 people. In the Department's view, this was a shocking, unprecedented and wholly unforeseen tragedy. Congressman Ryan and the Department believed that the Congressman's party might encounter difficulties in gaining permission to enter Jonestown, particularly if members of the concerned relatives group and reporters sensational of the news media were included in the party; however, no one believed that anyone would be physically attacked. Let alone killed. The Department shared with Congressman Ryan all information available to it regarding the Jonestown community, including the aspects of Embassy officials who visited Jonestown, and he was accompanied on his visit by the deputy chief of mission of the Embassy, who was seriously wounded in the attack. On the basis of available information, particularly prior visits to Jonestown by a large number of public officials and private citizens, there was no reasonable cause to anticipate the possibility of violence against the Congressman's party.

Regardless of the substantive merit, if any, of the claimants' allegations, the question of whether the alleged acts or omissions constituted a cause of action under the Federal Tort Claims Act must be determined by referring to the law of the place where the tort occurred (28 U.S.C. 2672, 22 U.S.C. 2669(f)). Since the conduct complained of occurred in Washington, D. C. and/or Guyana, claimants must show that the United States Government, if a private person, would be liable to the claimants in accordance with the laws of Washington, D. C. or Guyana. They have not done so. In the absence of establishing such liability, the claim must be denied. (Richards v. U.S., 369 U.S. 1, 82 S. Ct. 585, 7 L. ed. 2d 492 (1962); Bayuk, Inc. v. U.S., 352 U.S. 315, 77 S. Ct. 374, 7 L. ed. 2d 356 (1957); Standard Oil Co. v. U.S., 352 U.S. 128, 77 S. Ct. 168, 1 L. ed. 2d 139(R).)

Regardless of whether the alleged tort occurred within the United States or Guyana, a further question arises as to whether the circumstances of the case can give rise to a valid claim under the Federal Tort Claims Act or the Act of August 1, 1956 (22 U.S.C. 2669(f)). It is the Department's conclusion that it cannot.

Under the Constitution of the United States the President is empowered to conduct the foreign relations of the United States (Article II, Section 3). The Secretary of State has the statutory authority to manage the foreign relations of the United States (22 U.S.C. 2656). Such functions are discretionary in nature (Marbury v. Madison, 1 Cranch, 137, 165-66 (1803)). Under the Federal Tort Claims Act, any claim based on the exercise or performance of, or the failure to exercise or perform, a discretionary function or duty on the part of a federal agency or an employee of the Government, whether or not it is abused, is excepted from coverage (28 U.S.C. 2680).

The conduct of the Department and its officers and employees with respect to Congressman Ryan and his group and the U.S. citizens group at Jonestown clearly involved the exercise of discretionary functions. Employees and officers of the Department were required to exercise judgment and discretion in reporting conditions in Jonestown, communicating relevant information to Congressman Ryan and his group, arranging schedules and appointments, and rendering general assistance to the group while it was in Guyana and Jonestown in particular. The United States Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit stated, in connection with a claim involving the Department of State, as follows in the case of Four Star Aviation, Inc. v. United States of America:

> "Such decisions would have involved the exercise of judgment and discretion with respect to a matter involving our international relations and affecting our foreign policy and the Federal Tort Claims Act would not have applied thereto." (409 F. 2d 292, 295 (1969).)

The Department of State deeply regrets the losses suffered by the family of Gregory Robinson and the relatives of other victims involved in the Jonestown incident.

The Federal Tort Claims Act provides for suit against the Government of the United States in the appropriate United States District Court for claims arising in the United States in the event the claimant does not concur with an administrative decision regarding such claim. Such suit must be filed not later than six months after the date an administrative determination is mailed. The Act does not provide for suit against the Government of the United States for claims arising outside the United States.

This determination is limited to the activities of the Department of State in the matter.

Sincerely yours,

Fabian A. Kwiatek

Dear Mr. Secretary:

Pursuant to the provisions of clause 1(k)(7) [illegible] of Rule X of the Rules of the House of Representatives and of House Resolution 611 of the 95th Congress, the Committee on Foreign Affairs conducted an investigation of the Jonestown, Guyana tragedy. [illegible] "The Assassination of Representative Leo J. Ryan in the Jonestown Tragedy, Second" Report of a Staff Investigation Group to the Committee on Foreign Affairs, U.S. House of Representatives, May 15, 1979. House Resolution No. 96-423, 96th Congress, 1st Session).

During the course of this Committee investigation, various documents were generated, including transcripts of interviews conducted by our staff of various persons involved in the tragedy. As you know, these materials constitute records of the House and the work product of this Committee. Pursuant to an agreement between the Committee and the Department of State, some of this material was loaned to your Department for reference purposes and to aid in the Department's own investigation of the tragedy. Of course, as we view this, the Committee must control of these documents to the Department and they remain official records of the House.

I am writing now to request that due to the needs of the Committee to review this material, you furnish return all documents, papers and materials temporarily loaned to your Department on this matter. Because of our immediate need for these documents, I request that they be returned as soon as possible but no later than January 31, 1979. Furthermore, to insure the security of these records and preservation and confidentiality of these documents, I request that you retain any and all copies which have been made of any of the papers temporarily loaned to the Department.

Dear Chris:

This will confirm my request this morning in our telephone conversation that you formally ask the Government of Guyana to provide a copy of the letter it is alleged I signed concerning Jim Jones.

We have thoroughly checked our files at HEW since I became Secretary and the files at HEW since 1976, and we have found no such letter. Moreover, I have absolutely no recollection of ever signing such a letter. Accordingly, I have substantial doubts as to the authenticity of this alleged letter.

I should appreciate your handling this as expeditiously as possible.

MEMORANDUM FOR: [illegible] - Mr. Elizabeth J. [illegible]
[illegible] - Mr. Loren E. Lawrence
[illegible] - Mr. Allan A. Gise

FROM: [illegible] - Ronald K. Somervill[illegible]

SUBJECT: [illegible] Jetrown Working Group - Overtime Compensation

An unprecedented [illegible]sive inter-office [illegible]peration to manu[illegible] the Jetrown [illegible] group will require special time keep[illegible] procedures in order that we may properly [illegible]ct and attribut[illegible] to it only ordinary [illegible]ime costs incurred by the bureau in connection with the [illegible]ction. For proper [illegible] accounting, control and audit, [illegible] desirable that all overtime charges incurred with the [illegible]ration be charged to the CA working allowance, [illegible].

For this purpose, in addition to submissi[illegible] of regular T&A [illegible] during appropriate [illegible]nter of labor [illegible] for employees in WI and FPT who worked overtime on the [illegible] force should be prepared and submitted to CA/EX - Mrs. Carter for approval and insertion of appropriate fiscal data. Also, a list with the employees names, dates worked and number of hours performed, certified by the appropriate supervisor, should accompany the transfer of labor cards.

Compensation for overtime services may, of course, be paid either in compensatory time off or in cash payment. While the regulations more or less require officers above a certain level to be paid for overtime services by authorization of compensatory time off, the year end leave scheduling problem, mounting domestic and [illegible]arter workloads and lost staffing factors of life suggest it would be desirable to maximize cash payments in lieu of compensatory time for this operation. We simply cannot afford the time off at this time, and I would argue that you encourage participating offices to not seek compensation in the form of compensatory time off. This policy is confined to the overtime implications of the Jetrown task force and accordingly in support thereof it should not be taken as a general modification of Department overtime policies. Unfortunately, of course, foreign service officers

[illegible]

[illegible] their normal hours of [illegible] hours of [illegible] absences during the scheduled work week or the scheduled work day must be charged to the appropriate category of leave or accumulated compensatory time, regardless of whether or not the employee otherwise worked during the 40 hour period on an overtime basis. In a number of situations in which a task force employee temporarily worked overtime or because of [illegible] to work the normal forty hour week, the employee should be given the option of having his or her absence [illegible] annual or sick leave as appropriate or an equivalent amount of overtime hours could be credited for compensatory time off in lieu of cash payment. The latter approach would, of course, cause leave balances to be unaffected by absences during the normal forty hour week which were linked to overtime work in the task force.

I would appreciate your making this memorandum available to the supervisors of any employees who served in the task force and, in particular, to any file personnel who may have participated in file searches after hours in connection with your activity as well as to the affected employees and their time keepers. Mrs. Carter is available to answer any questions that may arise. She can be reached on ext. [illegible]

November 28, 1978

MEMORANDUM FOR: VO - Ms. Elizabeth J. Harper
PPT - Mr. Loren E. Lawrence
OCS - Mr. Alan A. Gise

FROM: CA - Ronald K. Somerville

SUBJECT: Georgetown Working Group - Overtime Compensation

The unprecedented extensive inter-office cooperation in manning the Georgetown working group will require special time keeping procedures in order that we may properly collect and attribute the extraordinary overtime costs incurred by the Bureau in connection with the operation. For proper cost collection, control and audit, it is desirable that all overtime expenses connected with the operation be charged to the CA operating allowance, 1711.

For this purpose, in addition to submission of regular T&A cards, appropriate "transfer of labor" cards for employees in VO and PPT who worked overtime on the Task Force should be prepared and submitted to CA/EX - Mrs. Carter for approval and insertion of appropriate fiscal data. Also, a list with the employees names, dates worked and number of hours worked, certified by the appropriate supervisor, should accompany the transfer of labor cards.

Compensation for overtime services may, of course, be paid either in compensatory time off or in cash payment. While the regulations normally require officers above a certain level to be paid for overtime services by authorization of compensatory time off, the year end leave scheduling problem, mounting domestic consular workloads and short staffing facts of life suggest it would be desirable to maximize cash payments in lieu of compensatory time for this operation. We simply cannot afford the time off at this time, so I would urge that you encourage participating officers to not seek compensation in the form of compensatory time off. This policy is confined to the overtime implications of the Guyana task force and actions in support thereof; it should not be taken as a general modification of departmental overtime policies. Unfortunately, of course, Foreign Service Officers are precluded from the payment of overtime either in cash or in compensatory time off by the FY 1978 Authorization Bill. Should there be a year-end leave scheduling problem for Foreign Service officers which has been worsened by service in the task force, the Bureau would generally be supportive to any requests for restoration of forfeited annual leave which had properly been documented.

Employees are expected to work their normal tour of duty as stipulated by the Department's hours of work and appropriate personnel transactions. Any absences during the scheduled work week or the scheduled work day must be charged to the appropriate category of leave or accumulated compensatory time regardless of whether or not the employee otherwise worked during the 24 hour period on an overtime basis. In a number of situations in which a task force staffer temporarily worked odd shifts or because of shift work was unable to work the normal duty day, the employee should be given the option of having his or her absence charged to annual or sick leave as appropriate or an equivalent amount of overtime hours could be credited for compensatory time off in lieu of cash payment. The latter approach would, of course, cause leave balances to be unaffected by absences during the normal duty day which were linked to overtime service in the task force.

I would appreciate your making this memorandum available to the supervisors of any employees who served in the task force and, in particular, to any file personnel who may have participated in file searches after hours in connection with working group activity as well as to the affected employees and their time keepers. Mrs. Carter is available to answer any questions that may arise. She can be reached on Ext. 2115.

MEMORANDUM

TO: ARA - Guyana Task Force
CA
PA/PRESS
H

FROM: Sharon B. Kotok, Chief
Privacy Staff, FOIPC/IM/PAS

SUBJECT: Privacy Act Guidance on Jonestown

Several questions have arisen regarding the Privacy Act and the release of names of the survivors in Jonestown, Guyana. A staff member of the House Government Operations Committee also inquired about the Department's policy on releasing information about the People's Temple.

As you know, the Privacy Act governs the release of information in name-retrieved files only. The release of other information is guided by the provisions of the Freedom of Information Act. Exemption (b)(6) of the FOIA states that Federal agencies may withhold information from the public if the release of the information would constitute a "clearly unwarranted invasion" of personal privacy.

The entire tragedy at Jonestown is newsworthy, and under ordinary circumstances, it is our opinion that the release of the names and minimum identifying information about the survivors would not constitute a clearly unwarranted invasion of their privacy. However, we understand that extenuating circumstances, e.g. fear of reprisals, law enforcement investigations, etc., do exist requiring the Department to protect names of some of these individuals. We support the Department's position of protecting those individuals who do not want to have their names released.

However, the Department cannot withhold names of all survivors. Some have already appeared on television and in newspapers. The Department could not reasonably withhold information about individuals who have already been in the public realm.

We urge the Department not to blanketly refuse to provide information on the Peoples Temple, but to review requests on a case-by-case basis.

At the request of Congressman Thomas B. Evans, Jr. of Delaware, Assistant Secretary of State Barbara M. Watson and representatives of the Departments of State, Justice and Defense met with the Congressman and representatives of the State of Delaware to discuss the disposition of the remains of the Jonestown, Guyana, tragedy.

Agreeing that the situation of Jonestown was unprecedented and indicating his appreciation for the complexities of the overall problem for the Federal Government agencies involved, Congressman Evans expressed his concern for the problems faced by the State of Delaware. He specifically referred to the Delaware law concerning death certificates and burial within the state. Citing the humanitarian aids of the issue, the Congressman inquired about the possibility of transferring the remains presently located at Dover Air Force Base to Travis Air Force Base by CSA military aircraft. He mentioned that the Peoples Temple originated in California, that most of the victims were from that area, and that such a transfer would put the victims closer to their next of kin for purposes of claiming the bodies. He stressed that Delaware was an innocent victim of circumstance and had no direct connection with either the People's Temple nor the community in Jonestown.

The Department of State's Deputy Legal Adviser, Lee Marks, responded that the Department fully appreciated the problems faced by the State of Delaware and had established a working group responsible for overseeing the operation. Noting that the U.S. Government does not return bodies of American citizens at its expense to the United States and in so doing in this instance has come under heavy criticism for using the taxpayers' money, Mr. Marks expressed his concern for justifying such a transfer. He reiterated Assistant Secretary Watson's previous statement that the U.S. Government would not request a mass burial of unclaimed and unidentified bodies of the Jonestown tragedy in the State of Delaware, but, if faced with the problem of burial, might request the Congressman's assistance in approaching his colleagues from adjacent states for help. To the question of the possibility of a burial at sea of those unclaimed and unidentified bodies, Mr. Marks replied that such a burial could present legal problems for the U.S. Government with respect to future insurance claims and that interment of all remains was preferable from a legal standpoint.

Deputy Assistant Secretary Alan Gise gave the following status report on the victims at Dover: as of December 20th, 632 victims identified, 201 bodies claimed with an additional 15 claimed as of the morning of December 21st. He stated that the main problem now is the identification of some 234 children and expressed the hope that the Department would soon receive from the Guyana Task Force of the City of San Francisco footprints for use in this identification. He noted that in some cases the next of kin were awaiting identification of the children before claiming bodies of other relatives and it was the Department's expectation that once this process was completed a majority of the victims would be claimed.

In discussing the assets of the People's Temple and the possibility of reimbursement to the U.S. Government of funds expended in this operation, the delegation was informed that, as far as we were aware, assets included the corporation in Guyana; other real and personal property; bank accounts established in Latin American countries such as Venezuela and Panama, as well as in Switzerland, and those in San Francisco. Dave Epstein (Justice) said that the Civil Division of the Department of Justice is looking into the matter of suing for reimbursement of funds and has already taken action to freeze assets held by the People's Temple. It is expected that a decision on this subject will be made shortly.

It was agreed that -

-- The Department had no intention of permitting a mass burial of the unclaimed and unidentified victims anywhere in the State of Delaware.

-- At some time in the immediate future a decision by the Department would be reached on the disposition of the unidentified and unclaimed bodies at Dover and that February 1, 1979 would be a reasonable target date.

-- In the near future, a decision would be made by the Department of Justice concerning the question of suing the People's Temple for reimbursement of funds.

-- Assistant Secretary Watson informed the delegation that if at any time they had any questions they should feel free to be in touch with Mr. Peter Murphy or Miss Catherine Gerardi of her staff and every effort would be made to respond.

TALKING POINTS FOR STATE DEPARTMENT DELAWARE MEETING

Previous discussions with State of Delaware Officials

Six meetings and several telephone conversations took place in Dover and Wilmington.

The State Department was represented by attorney advisors Mike White and Bruce Dozier. The Air Force was represented by Major Robert Giovagnoni (DAFB Staff Judge Advocate). Various Delaware officials attended 1 or more of the meetings. These individuals included:

1) Governor Pierre S. DuPont, IV.
2) Mr. David Swayze (Governor DuPont's personal legal adviser)
3) Mrs. Battle Robinson (attorney and aide to Governor DuPont and Mr. Sawyze)
4) Assistant Attorney General Edward Kafader.
5) Secretary of Health and Social Services Dr. Patricia Schramm.
6) Registrar Dr. Barbara Rose.
7) Deputy Registrar Dr. George Bender.
8) Medical Examiner Dr. Ali Hamali.

I Areas of Mutual Agreement

1. No "mass burial" of the Guyana deceased will occur in Delaware.

The possibility of a mass burial occurring in Delaware was a concern shared by an apparent majority of the Delaware politicians. The fear expressed was that a common burial site might become a cult memorial which would becon the site of a mecca of all sorts of curiosity seekers. Governor Du Pont was personally assured that the State Department has no plans for a "mass burial" in Delaware. A commitment was given that no "mass burial" would occur in Delaware. "Mass burial" was never defined. However, it was understood to be limited to mean no burial of the group in a common grave or no burial of the entire group in individual graves at a single site in Delaware.

2. Documentation that would satify Delaware legal requirements for transportation of bodies through Delaware for burial elsewhere.

After several discussions with Delaware officials, including Governor DuPont, agreement was reached on what documents constitute an acceptable permit for removal to allow transport of the bodies through Delaware. The following documents will accompany each body that is released from the Dover Air Force Base to a funeral director.

1) Opinion of the Delaware Attorney General No. 78-020 of December 6, 1978.
2) Statement of December 8, 1978 by Assistant Attorney General Edward Kafader which specifies which documents are deemed to satify the opinion of the Attorney General.
3) Statement of Transit. Drafted by Assistant Attorney General Kafader that requires the private funeral director to state that he is obtaining release of the body for transport outside of Delaware.

3. Statement of Identification and Chain of Custody. Individual statements are prepared for each body that is identified by medical team chief Colonel William R. Cowan. This statement specifies the methods used in identification.

4. Letter of December 4, 1978 from Guyanese Solicitor General Gonsalves-Sabbola to Ambassador Burke in which he states that the bodies of the Jonestown deceased were lawfully removed from Guyana by the U.S. Air Force.

II. Subjects Still Under Discussion Yet to be Resolved

A. Requirements of Delaware Law Concerning Cremation of Guyana Deceased Where this Option is Requested by Next of Kin.

1. Delaware is taking a strict view of its law on the question of cremation.

A memorandum of December 1, 1978 from Dr. Patricia Schramm to Governor DuPont stated:

"Cremation in Delaware would appear to be extremely unlikely because Delaware code would require that a Medical Examiner or member of the Office of The Attorney General endorse a certificate to the effect that there is no medical or legal reason why the destruction of the body by cremation should not be permitted (16 Del. Code 3162). Under the present circumstances, it is unlikely that such certification could be obtained, certainly not without investigation of death."

Secretary Schramm's memo seems to be in error on this question. 16 Del. Code 3167 appears to be controlling on this issue. This section of Delaware law is entitled "Cremation in this State (Delaware) when death occurred elsewhere." This law provides that cremation in Delaware of persons dying elsewhere is permissible if all the legal requirements of the state in which the death occurred have first been complied with. Mr. Dalton (L/CA) concurs with our interpretation of the Delaware law. Secretary Schramm admitted orally that her memorandum to Governor DuPont should not be considered a legal memo, as she is not an attorney.

In a letter dated December 9, 1978 Guyanese Solicitor General Gonsalves-Sabola stated that the death certificates being prepared for the Jonestown deceased are legally sufficient under the laws and regulations of Guyana to permit either cremation or burial in Guyana. It would seem therefore that Delaware has no legal obligation to investigate cause of death before allowing cremation to occur in Delaware under the provisions of Section 3167.

COMMENT: The cremation issue is a significant one because it is the least expensive way a next of kin can dispose of the remains. In light of the financial situation of a number of the next of kin the inability to cremate in Delaware might have an adverse effect on persons making claims for the bodies. Note: Several Delaware funeral directors have successfully cremated Jonestown deceased in New Jersey and Pennsylvania with no investigation and no problems. It would seem that Delaware should in light of the flexibility in their statute do likewise. It seems unfortunate that the next of kin are being required to bear this additional expense as the result of Delaware's restrictive interpretation of their law.

Assistant A. G. Rafader did say that our interpretation of Section 3167 had merit and he would give it due consideration. He is however reserving judgment pending results of Guyana coroner's inquest. His stated concern at this point is his duty to protect his client (Del. Department of Health from any possible liability that might result from a failure to investigate cause of death before cremation occurred.

OBSERVATION: This concern may be the Delaware public explanation intended to mask Delaware's political objections to permitting cremation to occur in Delaware.

B) Burial in Delaware of Identified & Claimed Bodies where next of Kin so Request.

While there has been strong objection voiced by the officials of the State of Delaware to "mass burial" they have taken a more moderate stance on the question of next of kin requests for burial in Delaware.

Governor Du Pont personally indicated to Mr. White & Mr. Dozier that he did not see how Delaware could refuse a request by next of kin for burial in Delaware.

Secretary Schramm in her memorandum of December 1, 1978 to Governor Du Pont stated "Burial in Delaware is a more complex issue (than transport outside Delaware for burial). If a body is accompanied by the above-cited permit and an acceptable death certificate (with cause of death on the certificate), and is identified and claimed, the burial permit could be issued. I am informed that even under these conditions, it could be argued that the State has an obligation to investigate the death since circumstances suggest that the deaths were caused other than by natural causes in this instance (16 Del. Code 3125 (a)).

Since we have a letter of Guyana Solicitor General Gonsalves-Sabola indicating that the bodies were lawfully removed from Guyana (incorporated by Delaware as part of the transit packet) and we have a commitment from Guyana that they will be issuing death certificates specifying cause of death it would seem that burial in Delaware upon a request by next of kin should be allowed.

Informally, Assistant Attorney General Kafader said that it was his opinion that the 2 abovementioned documents coupled with the Solicitor General's letter of December 5th that specified that the death certificates being issued for the Jonestown deceased were legally sufficient for burial/cremation in Guyana would allow for burial in Delaware.

Mr. Kafader did reserve final judgment pending receipt of the results of the Guyana Coroner's Inquest and a representative sample of Guyana death certificates.

C. Burial of Some of the Unclaimed/Unidentified in Delaware

Delaware opposes "mass burial" of the Guyana deceased in Delaware They have also expressed concern over burial of any large number of unclaimed/unidentified in the State.

The Delaware position is that Delaware should not be required to shoulder the burden here. (This seems specious though since there is no burden - the fee paid to Delaware morticians & cemetery owners will eventually be redistributed throughout the state.

It would seem that Delaware could not strongly oppose other than on purely political grounds burial of a number of the unclaimed/unidentified in 10-12 cemeteries throughout the state. The deceased could be placed in unmarked graves (thus no "memorial to the Jonestown incident would result. The possibility of such a "memorial" has been feared by Delaware authorities. The names of the persons buried could be kept on file at the cemetery office.

This solution would be easier to "sell" to Delaware if the number of unclaimed/unidentified can be kept under 100 and if neighboring states (Pa. N.J. & Md) agreed to accept some of these bodies for burial.

The newly created State and Local Gov't Liaison Office in the Department contacted in an effort to solicit interest in the neighboring states to Delaware regarding burial in those states.

ADVANTAGES AND DISADVANTAGES OF METHODS OF DISPOSITION OF THE UNCLAIMED AND/OR UNIDENTIFIED

A. BURIAL AT SEA

At first glance, burial at sea appears to be an attractive option. It obviates the need to find a site or sites in the U.S. and eliminates the possibility of difficult negotiations with state officials. In addition, costs would be relatively low and legal requirements are not complex. Preliminary discussions with the Coast Guard indicate that they would probably be cooperative and might carry out the task on a non-reimbursable basis.

There are, however, several serious disadvantages. Chief among these is the fact that bodies buried at sea are beyond recovery. The Department would not be able to retrieve the bodies should next-of-kin come forward. Similarly, if additional investigations of whatever kind necessitated a reexamination of the bodies it would not be possible. On a logistical level, the Coast Guard has stated that the large number of bodies, perhaps as many as 250, would exceed the capacity of the relatively small vessels which they operate, thus making necessary a number of separate operations. Federal law requires that the bodies be buried in at least 600 feet of water which, on the East Coast, would preclude burial at distances less than 100 miles from shore.

Finally, one can easily envision strenuous objections to such a large scale burial at sea from environmental and fishing interests. Such protests could be international in nature.

B. CREMATION

Like burial at sea, cremation would eliminate the need to obtain a burial site or sites and, thus, lessen significantly the potential for protracted discussion with unenthusiastic state and local officials. Cremation is also advantageous because of its relatively inexpensive costs.

Again, however, one must confront the problem of the irrevokability of this means of disposition. This constitutes a substantial disadvantage since it is difficult to predict what additional claims or further investigations might arise. Finally, it must be recognized the some persons will view cremation as "destruction of evidence."

C. Burial at a Site or Sites in the U.S.

This course of action unfortunately necessitates additional and often difficult negotiations with state and local officials. In addition, the costs are likely to be substantial unless a donor of land and/or services can be found.

By pursuing this option, however, the Department preserves its capacity to correct errors or oversights which may have occurred in notifying next-of-kin and related matters. Also by committing itself to land burials of the deceased, the Department will avoid the serious pitfalls, described above, which are inherent in burial at sea and cremation. Moreover, it is anticipated that as many as two-hundred (200) of the unidentified will be children. The media and public reaction to cremation or other forms of irrevocable destruction of 200 children might be quite negative.

Identification Procedure

The following methods were utilized in identifying the bodies of the Jonestown deceased:

1. Positive identification by fingerprint comparison. (An FBI team at DAFB took fingerprints of deceased. These prints were compared to prints in FBI files and some state/local police files. The principal source for comparison prints however, came from Guyana Immigration records. As part of the routine Guyana immigration procedure fingerprints are taken on all persons aged 16 and older.)

2. Positive identification by correlation of antemortem and post mortem dental characteristics (Dental charting and x-rays were done at DAFB. These records are being compared with records provided by next of kin and various dentist/dental schools.)

3. Supporting physical characteristics. (Individual charts were prepared by the identification team at DAFB. This chart noted clothing worn by deceased, and any other characteristics such as sex, approximate age and weight etc, that might aid in identification. This data was compared with such things as the individuals passport application.)

4. Supporting personal effects and/or medical records.

5. Body tag from Guyanese identification. (Walk through eight efforts are presently being made to obtain footprint records from various California hospitals. Bruce Hunter of the Mayor of San Francisco's Guyana Task Force has volunteered to assist in this regard. This effort is considered important to assist in identifying the approximately 200 children in the group since no fingerprints of the children were made by Guyana Immigration. Ms. Bunker has also been asked to assist in obtaining medical/dental records from various California facilities.

Once the Air Force Institute of Pathology team leaves Dover Air Force Base the data they have obtained will be stored in a military computer in Denver, Colorado. The actual records will be kept on file at the AFIP headquarters in Washington, D.C. When additional information is obtained the information stored in the computer will be retrieved and compared against the new information.

NOTE: The most difficult identifications are the children (approx 120 in the group). Some 633 persons of the 913 have been identified. In addition one of 89 Guyanese fingerprints was recently discovered in Guyana. It is hoped that these prints will aid in a number of additional identifications.

There have been numerous appeals to the press and radio to expedite the need for footprints, medical and dental records. This campaign has borne some fruit and it is hoped that the People's Temple will assist in the identifications by providing various medical/dental records of the children.

STATE OF DELAWARE
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY
DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH AND SOCIAL SERVICES
NEW CASTLE, DELAWARE 19720
PHONE (302) 421-6705

January 16, 1979

The Honorable Barbara M. Watson
Assistant Secretary for Consular Affairs
Department of State
Washington, D. C.

Dear Secretary Watson:

It is my understanding that you are the State Department Official responsible for overseeing the disposition of the remains of the victims of the Guyana tragedy. As Secretary of the Delaware Department of Health and Social Services, I am responsible for administering Delaware's laws regarding burial or cremation of the dead and also the investigation of death.

For about six weeks now, we have been trying to make it clear to State Department representatives that Delaware laws make it virtually impossible for us to permit the burial or cremation of any of the Guyana victims in Delaware. The die was cast when the State and Defense Departments removed the remains from Guyana without appropriate medicolegal investigations of the cause and manner of death. Since this investigation was not undertaken in Guyana and since the remains were embalmed here without appropriate investigations, we cannot issue the necessary burial or cremation permits in Delaware. The officials who must put their reputations and signatures on the line are not prepared to issue burial and cremation permits without the necessary medicolegal investigations.

State Department representatives were told what was needed to meet Delaware requirements at a meeting on November 29, 1978. Attending that meeting for the State were the Director of the State Division of Public Health and the Chief Medical Examiner of the State of Delaware. I recognize the pressures on the State Department attorneys but I cannot understand why they continue to press Delaware officials to permit burial or cremation here, when we have made our position clear.

Despite our position, State Department representatives asked our attorney to request that we review death certificates, the coroners record and autopsy reports (when available) to see whether they would be acceptable to permit burial or cremation in Delaware without further investigation by our Medical Examiner. Last week, the State Department representatives gave us copies of pages from a Guyana death register and told us that these are Guyana death certificates. A copy is enclosed for your information. Without the records from the Coroner's Inquest in Guyana, we cannot officially evaluate the attached document because we have nothing to indicate how the information on the register was obtained. If you wish to pursue this after reading this letter, we will need to receive the records and minutes of the proceedings which are transmitted to the Director of Public Prosecution under Guyana law governing a coroner's inquest. We will especially expect to find copies of the signed statements of all witnesses who gave evidence at the inquiry.

We will review the documentation as your representatives have requested, but please understand that we will be looking for the medical evidence considered by the Coroner's jury in arriving at its conclusions as to the causes and manner of these deaths. Without adequate medicolegal evidence, we will not be able to permit burial or cremation in Delaware.

Speaking frankly, we have been and continue to be extremely doubtful as to the availability of documentation adequate to satisfy Delaware laws in this instance. This is because we are aware of the circumstances surrounding the removal of these remains from Guyana and their embalmment without appropriate investigations. We are also aware of the way in which the Coroner's jury in Guyana reached its verdicts.

Given all of this reality, we in Delaware are wondering why your representatives continue to press the notion of burial or cremation in Delaware. Our laws are particularly strict in this area. It seems to us that a lot of our time and yours is being wasted on a course of action which is futile. We understand that the State Department has responsibility for the remains. However, we feel an obligation to inform you directly that the current efforts of the State Department in Delaware have virtually no potential for resulting in the permanent disposition of these remains.

I trust that this summary will be helpful to you in deciding upon a fruitful course of action. If I can be of further assistance, please do not hesitate to call.

Sincerely yours,

Patricia C. Schramm

Dear Secretary Schramm:

Thank you for your letter of January 16th to Assistant Secretary Watson concerning Delaware law pertaining to burial and cremation of remains within Delaware.

The next of kin of the Guyana deceased are currently claiming bodies and removing them from Delaware. As of today, approximately 325 bodies have been released from the Dover Air Force Base Mortuary. Of the bodies that remain on the base, 210 are children who have not been identified.

[illegible] Assistant Secretary Watson has assured Governor du Pont and other Delaware officials there will be no "mass burial" of the Guyana deceased in Delaware. The repatriation contemplates the disposition of the remains of the identified deceased to be a private matter and the responsibility of the next of kin. We have sent letters to the next of kin advising them to this effect.

In an effort to assist the next of kin we have been attempting to ascertain what the laws of Delaware and surrounding states are regarding burial and cremation. It was with this in mind that we undertook a series of discussions with Delaware officials regarding Delaware law. To this end, we are making every effort to obtain the necessary documents to satisfy, not only Delaware law, but also the laws on burial and cremation for the surrounding states.

Dear Secretary Watson:

During Delaware Senate debate Jan. 17 on House Joint Resolution 4, urging that unclaimed bodies from the Iranian tragedy remain where relatives see fit for burial in Delaware, several Senators expressed a desire to have a first-hand briefing in detail on the evolving situation as Dover Air Force Base with respect to those bodies.

As chairman of the Senate Committee on Health and Social Services, I have been delegated the duty of inviting you to be present at 2 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 23, in the Senate Chamber of Legislative Hall, Dover, to brief members on the situation as it relates to the bodies still at Dover Air Force Base.

If the above time and date creates a conflict with your schedule, I would appreciate it if you would notify me and set a date which would be convenient.

I look forward to seeing you in the absence of any further word from you.

SUBJECT: Briefing on Disposal of Remains of Jonestown Deceased

I. QUESTION: What plans have been made regarding disposition of the remains of the unclaimed and unidentified Guyana deceased?

The Department believes that transportation and burial of the remains is a private family matter and the responsibility of the next-of-kin. It is recognized, however, that there will be a number of bodies that will be either unclaimed by next-of-kin or unidentified. In these cases it seems the U.S. Government will bear the ultimate responsibility for disposing of the remains.

Various options have been considered including:

A. BURIAL AT SEA

At first glance, burial at sea appears to be an attractive option. It obviates the need to find state or sites in the U.S. and eliminates the possibility of difficult negotiations with state officials. In addition, costs would be relatively low and legal requirements are not complex. Preliminary discussions with the Coast Guard indicate that it would probably be cooperative and might carry out the task on a non-reimbursable basis.

There are, however, several serious disadvantages. Chief among these is the fact that bodies buried at sea are beyond recovery. This might, in individual cases, prove to be a serious drawback, as identification data from each body will be stored in a computer and records maintained by the unit in charge of identifications, the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology. Thus, relatives at a future date could submit newly-found identification data and conceivably disinter a buried, newly-identified body if burial on land were the option chosen.

Buy U.S. Savings Bonds Regularly on the Payroll Savings Plan

Similarly, if additional investigations of whatever kind (e.g. criminal investigations, inquiries concerning administration of estates, inquiries regarding insurance claims) necessitated a reexamination of the bodies it would not be possible if the bodies were buried at sea.

On a logistical level, the Coast Guard has stated that the large number of bodies, perhaps as many as 550, would exceed the capacity of the relatively small vessels which they operate, thus making necessary a number of separate operations. Federal law requires that the bodies be buried in at least 600 feet of water which, on the East Coast, would preclude burial at distances less than 100 miles from shore. Finally, one can easily envision strenuous objections to such a large scale burial at sea from environmental and fishing interests. Such protests could be international in nature.

3. Cremation

Cremation is advantageous because of its relatively inexpensive costs, roughly $150-$200. It has the added advantage of avoiding the need to find a gravesite.

Again, however, one must confront the problem of the irrevocability of this means of disposition. This constitutes a substantial disadvantage since it is impossible to predict what additional claims or further investigations might arise. Finally, it must be recognized that some persons will view cremation as "destruction of evidence." Moreover, cremation of the bodies might arouse adverse public opinion since approximately one-half of the bodies will be Jewish. The Environmental Protection Agency would have to be consulted regarding cremation.

Overall, it has been agreed at high level levels of the Government that a DNA analysis and proper notice to next-of-kin or other legal representatives (including next-of-kin outside the United States) the above three options could be combined because the above three options could be combined.

C. BURIAL AT A SITE OR SITES IN THE UNITED STATES

This course of action unfortunately necessitates additional and often difficult negotiations with state and local officials concerning both political and legal issues involved in burial. In addition, the costs may be substantial unless a donor of land and/or services can be found.

By pursuing this option, however, the Department preserves its capacity to correct errors or oversights which may have occurred in notifying next-of-kin and related matters. As the most conventional means of disposing of bodies burial is the option most likely to receive widespread public acceptance. Also, by committing itself to land burials of the deceased, the Department will avoid the serious pitfalls, described above, which are inherent in burial at sea and cremation.

An agreement has been made among Department officials that the unidentified bodies should be buried.

Finally, a written offer of inexpensive transportation and burial has been received from Pennsylvania ($135.00). An oral offer has been received from the established Japanese Society of California. The Society has offered to transport the unidentified bodies to California and says that there is no charge.

II. QUESTION: What discussions have taken place between the Department and officials of various states concerning disposition of the bodies?

A. Delaware

913 bodies were removed from Guyana to Dover Air Force Base, Delaware. It became immediately apparent that the financial circumstances of many of the next-of-kin were not substantial and many families lost more than one relative in the Jonestown tragedy. It was anticipated that the next-of-kin might wish to bury or cremate in Delaware in order to avoid the costs of transporting the bodies elsewhere for final disposition. Logic therefore dictated that the option to bury or cremate in Delaware be vigorously pursued.

Discussions ensued with several Delaware officials including Governor Pierre du Pont.

Governor du Pont has insisted that no "mass burial" occur in Delaware. We have agreed with Governor du Pont However, "mass burial" has never been defined. During one meeting, Governor du Pont acknowledged that he did not personally see how Delaware could deny a request by a next-of-kin for burial in Delaware.

Agreement has been reached concerning the necessary legal documentation for a body to be transported through Delaware for burial or cremation elsewhere. However, on the question of burials and cremation in Delaware, the Delaware authorities have insisted upon having the opportunity to review the Guyana coroner's report before making any commitment concerning whether the death certificates being prepared by the Guyana authorities will satisfy Delaware law on burials and cremations.

B. Pennsylvania

As an adjoining state to Delaware, Pennsylvania's legal requirements for burials and cremations are actively being studied. Pennsylvania is also the site of a cemetery that has submitted the lowest written proposal.

Telephone conversations with the Pennsylvania State Registrar and the Department of Justice indicate that the documentation we furnished for their review will be sufficient under Pennsylvania law to bury or cremate bodies there. We expect written confirmation from these officials within a week.

C. Virginia

Virginia is also being actively considered because we have received several written/oral proposals from cemeteries in this state.

Telephone conversations with the Virginia Attorney General's Office indicate that the documentation we furnished for their review will be sufficient under Virginia law to bury or cremate bodies there. We expect written confirmation from Virginia within a week.

D. New Jersey

A number of next-of-kin have requested cremation in New Jersey. A death certificate must be presented before a burial or cremation permit may be obtained in that state. Discussions with the appropriate member of the New Jersey Attorney General's Office resulted in production of a satisfactory packet of documents to serve in lieu of Guyanese Death Certificates until these could be obtained. Under this agreement cremations are now occurring in New Jersey. Moreover, death certificates are now being received from Guyana and New Jersey has found them acceptable for cremation purposes. New Jersey officials have stated that burial or cremation of the unclaimed or unidentified might be possible there and they have promised to send a memorandum of New Jersey law regarding cremations and burials.

E. West Virginia

A cemetery in West Virginia made a relatively low-cost offer for burial. An oral conversation with a member of the West Virginia Attorney General's Office indicated that the state's legal requirements for burial or cremation could be easily satisfied by the Department at this time. However, several high-ranking politicians have reacted negatively to the idea of burial or cremation in the state.

F. Maryland

The Maryland-Delaware border lies only fifteen miles west of Dover. Several offers for burial of Jonestown deceased have been received from Maryland cemeteries.

However, the Department has heretofore refrained from inquiring of Maryland officials concerning burial or cremation in that state because of the recent change in administration. Such an inquiry will take place shortly.

Mr. David Shinn, Deputy Coordinator, Liaison with State and Local Governments has offered to contact state and local officials as appropriate.

III. QUESTION: Can the state of Delaware or any or any other public institution or private party undertake to assume all responsibilities connected with transporting the bodies to California?

There are no apparent legal impediments to such an undertaking. However, an institution willing to perform this task would have to assume all responsibilities and legal liability that could result from taking custody of the bodies, including signing an assumption of liability/release of liability statement.

Such an operation also presents other questions. Of course, any such private or public institution would have to assume responsibility for ascertaining whether burial/cremation could occur under the laws of the state of ultimate destination (either individually or as a group.) Storage and security, liaison with next-of-kin, disposition of the unclaimed and unidentified bodies, dealing with possible claims for reimbursement by next-of-kin who have already assumed the cost of transportation and demands by next-of-kin to provide transportation to states other than California (Not all of the relatives of the deceased reside in California or desire burial there), are only some of the problems that a private or public group might encounter if they assumed responsiblity for and custody of the bodies.

A group known as the Emergency Relief Committee has appeared before the California Superior Court's dissolution proceeding for the People's Temple Corporation. This group has urged the Court to set aside funds for transportation and burial of the bodies. The Court has given the Committee thirty days to submit a plan on how this might be accomplished. The Emergency Relief Committee is composed of various groups in the San Francisco area including the Council of Churches and The Catholic Bishop of San Francisco.

QUESTIONS TO BE CONSIDERED BY EMERGENCY RELIEF COMMITTEE IN DEVELOPING PLAN FOR TRANSPORTATION AND DISPOSITION OF THE REMAINS OF THE JONESTOWN DECEASED AS REQUESTED BY JUDGE BROWN OF THE CALIFORNIA SUPERIOR COURT.

1. QUESTION: WHICH BODIES SHOULD BE COVERED BY THE PLAN?

The following should be covered by the plan: 2/13/79 Number

1. Unidentified remains. 265

2. Identified remains that are unclaimed. 309

3. Identified remains that are unclaimed whose next-of-kin have indicated in writing that they will not be making a claim for their relative's body and who have authorized the State Department to dispose of the body. (79)

It can also be argued that bodies in all of the above listed categories should be covered by the plan since the People's Temple owes the same obligation to all its deceased members. For this reason, persons who have already expended funds to make a claim for a relative's body should be reimbursed up to the same amount that is expended for each of the bodies that have not been claimed. Even in cases where the next-of-kin have specifically indicated that they do not wish to claim certain bodies the court should authorize disbursal of funds for burial, as the disbursement theory rests upon an obligation flowing from the People's Temple to the deceased - not to their next-of-kin.

In summary, the reasons for including a reimbursement provision in the plan are:

1. The People's Temple owes the same obligation to all its deceased members.

2. Equity. The families that expended their own funds should not be penalized for waiting until the Court acted to set aside PT assets for this purpose.

3. There are 309 opportunities for suit by next-of-kin who have expended their own funds. They may attempt to order the Superior Court case in an effort to obtain reimbursement and/or an injection against disbursement of any PT funds for a transportation (burial) plan that did not contain a reimbursement provision.

On the other hand, the following are reasons why a reimbursement provision in the plan may be ill advised:

1. The Court may view reimbursement as an unnecessary expense. The court may only wish to use PT assets to pay for transportation and disposition of bodies still on the Base.

2. The receivor might oppose reimbursement for the same reason as (1) above. In addition, the receivor might take the position that any reimbursement could compromise his position in a suit against next-of-kin who have claimed bodies.

3. It is much less likely that a waiver by the U.S. Government for priority may occur if reimbursement for funds already expended is included in the plan.

4. A reimbursement provision may be reviewed by the court as being beyond the contemplated scope of the plan.

5. Inclusion of a reimbursement provision may be challenged by other parties for the proceeding.

As of February 13, 1979, 339 deceased have been released to next-of-kin.

If a reimbursement provision is included in the plan each next-of-kin should be reimbursed some set amount that is agreed represents an "average cost" for transportation and burial. If the next-of-kin did not expend as much as the average cost they should only be reimbursed for actual out of pocket expenses.

2. QUESTION: WHAT MANNER OF FINAL DISPOSITION OF THE REMAINS SHOULD BE ADVOCATED IN THE PLAN?

Ground burial should be retained. While burial at sea and cremation are inexpensive alternative means of disposition they should not be selected because:

The bodies would be beyond recovery. In individual cases reconsideration may occur in the future since identification data from each body will be stored in a computer and records maintained by the Unit in charge of the disinterment. (Medical Examiner - Armed Forces Institute of Pathology in Washington, D.C.)

Therefore, at a future date relatives could submit newly discovered identification data and identify the body of their relative. If ground burial was chosen the body could be disinterred and buried at a site of the relative's choice. If the unidentified body was buried at sea this option would obviously not be available.

Similarly, if additional investigations of whatever kind (e.g. criminal investigations, inquiries concerning administration of estates, inquiries regarding insurance claims, etc.) necessitated a re-examination of the bodies it would not be possible if the bodies were buried at sea or cremated. The Committee could thus obviate lawsuits or public criticism by choosing ground burial over any other option.

In addition to the advantage of recoverability, ground burial would also provide the relatives of the deceased an opportunity to visit their relatives' final resting places.

3. QUESTION: WHO PRESENTLY HAS CUSTODY OF THE BODIES OF THE JONESTOWN DECEASED THAT ARE PRESENTLY ON THE DOVER AIR FORCE BASE?

The U. S. Government.

4. QUESTION: TO WHOM WILL CUSTODY BE TRANSFERRED?

Custody will be transferred to whomever has undertaken the responsibility to transport and dispose of the bodies.

5. QUESTION: WHEN WILL THIS TRANSFER OF CUSTODY OCCUR?

At such time as each body is released for transportation from Dover Air Force Base.

6. QUESTION: WHAT ARE THE LEGAL RAMIFICATIONS OF THE ASSUMPTION OF CUSTODY?

The party who receives custody assumes full legal responsibility for transportation and disposition of the body, casket, and any personal effects contained in the casket including any and all liability that may be incurred as a result of such custody and responsibility.

7. QUESTION: WILL THE PARTY WHO ASSUMES CUSTODY OF THE BODY BE REQUIRED TO SIGN AN ASSUMPTION OF LIABILITY STATEMENT?

Yes. A sample of the assumption of liability statement presently in use is attached.

8. QUESTION: HOW SHOULD THE BODIES BE TRANSPORTED?

Various options come readily to mind. The three most viable options would, however, appear to be by:

1. Air. This could be accomplished by utilizing regularly scheduled commerical flights or through a charter arrangement. If a charter is used, the possibility exists that the plane will be granted permission to land at Dover Air Force Base and a DOD air facility at destination. Such an arrangement would obviate the necessity of incurring the additional expense of transporting the bodies to the Philadelphia or Baltimore/ Washington Airports.

2. Rail. (ICC requires petition for declaration statement)

3. Truck.

No matter which mode of transporation is chosen care should be taken to insure that no damage is done to the caskets in transit. In particular, stacking of the caskets should be avoided. The use of a cardboard packing crate might be advisable. If the bodies are transported by truck the vehicles used by various casket makers come specially equipped with shelves designed to minimize or prevent damange.

The Committee should be ascertaining costs of each mode now.

If rail or truck transportation is utilized certain states may require that transit permits be issued before the bodies are allowed to move through the state. We are in receipt of an opinion of the Delaware Attorney General to the effect that the documents presently accompanying each body constitute a satisfactory transit permit under Delaware law. It is, however, unclear whether all the states through which the bodies would need to travel would reach the same conclusion as Delaware. It therefore would be the responsibility of the carrier to inquire in advance with the officials of each state through which the bodies would travel to ascertain whether the documentation presently available would satisfy the states laws concerning transmit permits.

9. QUESTION: WHAT SHOULD BE THE ULTIMATE DESTINATION FOR THE BODIES?

While a majority of the next-of-kin of the deceased reside in California a number of the next-of-kin (fill in statistic) reside in other states.

In its plan the Committee may wish to advocate that each body be transported to the destination chosen by the next-of-kin. If this approach is taken there are several inherent logistical and administrative problems. Specifically, the next-of-kin who opt for burial in states other than California will incur different transportation and burial expenses from the California next-of-kin. For example, a next-of-kin may request burial in New York, Pennsylvania, Texas, Illinois or some other state. Therefore, the next-of-kin should be contacted in advance in order to ascertain their wishes to the location of the final resting place of their deceased relative. Any body that would be buried other than in California should probably not be shipped to California but rather depending upon the distances involved should be transported directly from DAFB to the burial site if such site is closer to the base than to California.

If this approach is chosen, the committee will have to decide whether to advocate in the plan an average amount of money to be made available to non-California next-of-kin for burial and transportation or whether provision will be made for each case individually in the plan. It is worth noting that if the non-California next-of-kin are thus accommodated the next-of-kin in California will also have a strong case for individual treatment, e.g., delivery to any cemetery they choose within the state.

However, even if two or three cemeteries are chosen in California it seems that various next-of-kin might complain if the cemetery of their preference is not selected for burial of their relative. The next of kin might perfer one cemetery for reasons of location, aesthetics, etc. Nevertheless, if a cemetery were selected in the Los Angeles area and another in the Bay area, given the location of many of the next-of-kin, this might prove to be a satisfactory solution.

Some of the above problems might be avoided by utilizing direct billing from morticians hired by the next-of-kin and paying such morticians directly a set amount. The next-of-kin would pay the balance, no matter where they were located.

10. QUESTION: WHAT IF A NEXT-OF-KIN PREFERS CREMATION TO BURIAL?

It would seem that such a request should be honored. If a next-of-kin wants their relative's body cremated it probably should be cremated on the East Coast. The ashes could then be shipped to the location chosen by the next-of-kin or scattered at sea, depending upon the wishes of the next-of-kin.

Cremation should occur on the East Coast, because it would probably be cheaper than the cost of transporting a body to California for cremation thee.

If a next-of-kin chose cremation it would reduce the overall costs and would also eliminate other logistical problems. It is much cheaper to ship the ashes than to transport the body itself to California as the body would not have to be stored on the West Coast before burial, and there would be no necessity for obtaining a grave.

(a) How should the crematory be chosen?

The Committee could shop around for the lowest price in the Delaware vicinity including Delaware, Maryland, Pennsylvania and New Jersey. Another option would be to send this out for bids.

Of course, inquiries have been made concerning the law on cremation in these states in order to ascertain whether the documentation presently available will satisfy the state laws on this subject. So, far, Pennsylvania and New Jersey have been satisfied. We are continuing our efforts of complying with other states' laws.

11. QUESTION: IS THE DOCUMENTATION PRESENTLY AVAILABLE SUFFICIENT TO ALLOW FOR BURIAL IN CALIFORNIA? IS SUCH A BURIAL POLITICALLY ACCEPTABLE ON BOTH THE STATE AND LOCAL LEVEL?

The appropriate state officials should be consulted in order to obtain the necessary assurances on this subject. We believe the documentation is adequate. List of documents attached.

12. QUESTION: ONCE THE BODIES HAVE REACHED CALIFORNIA, WHAT PROVISIONS WOULD HAVE TO BE MADE FOR THEIR STORAGE?

Before a storage site is chosen local officials should be contacted regarding any local rules, suggestions for sites and public acceptance. The storage site should be in a relatively safe neighborhood, if possible. It should be equipped with appropriate locks, lighting and guards should be available. A police escort might be considered for any mass shipment of the bodies from storage to gravesites. California law may allow for storage of bodies only for a limited period of time. The Committee may have to request an extension from the appropriate authorities, usually at the State Department of Health.

It is recommended that if at all possible the need for storag be obviated by having final destination preplanned and timed to coincide with arrival in California. (e.g. - all graves dug in advance and merely take body to site from arrival poin

13. QUESTION: HOW WILL A CEMETERY BE CHOSEN IN CALIFORNIA?

The committee can shop around for the best price or put it out for bids. (This should be done immediately)

14. QUESTION: WHAT SHOULD THE COMMITTEE LOOK FOR IN A CEMETERY?

a) perpetual care and an escrow account in a bank to finance

b) the age and repuration of the cemetery. A check of the cemetery should be made with both the California and National Cemetery associations.

c) Is a burial vault or liner required by the cemetery or sta law? If not, should the plan include a provision for an outl of funds for this purpose?

d) Does the ceremony include a religious service either at th cemetery, at another site, or both?

e) Should individual grave markers be obtained?

f) Insure in any agreement with the cemetery that the cemeter will not become an "attraction" open to the public for a fee.

g) Will the cemetery quote include the cost of transportation from the storage facility to the cemetery? If not, it will be necessary to contract for this service.

15. QUESTION: WILL THE SUPERIOR COURT INCLUDE IN ITS ORDER A PROVISION DESIGNATING THE COMMITTEE TO BE THE ORGANIZATION TO WHOM THE STATE DEPARTMENT RELINQUISHES CUSTODY?

This eventuality would seem to be desirable. If this was not to occur, then the Department would have to insist upon receiving releases from the next-of-kin indicating that the Committee was being authorized to act on their behalf.

16. QUESTION: WILL THE COMMITTEE ASSUME THE RESPONSIBILITY FOR SERVING AS AN INFORMATION CENTER TO WHICH THE NEXT-OF-KIN CAN TURN TO RECEIVE ANSWERS CONCERNING TRANSPORTATION, BURIAL AND RELATED MATTERS?

Yes. Once the committee assumes custody of the bodies it should be prepared to receiv e telephoen queries from the next-of-kin as to all phases of the ensuing operation. Specifically, the Committee will have to keep the NOK informed as to the means of transportation, time of arrival of the bodies in California or other locations, location of storage facilities, time of funeral service, directions to the cemetery and any other questions that might arise.

17. QUESTION: WILL THE COMMITTEE ASSUME THE RESPONSIBILITY FOR MAKING ANY CLAIMS THAT MIGHT EXIST FOR BURIAL/DEATH BENEFITS FROM THE SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION AND THE VETERAN'S ADMINISTRATION.

Yes. Each next-of-kin should be asked to assign these benefits to the committee. The committee could in turn reduce the cost of the plan by this amount.

18. QUESTION: HOW SHOULD THE EMERGENCY RELIEF COMMITTEE PLAN BE EXECUTED?

The court should empower the receiver to take whatever action is necessary to ensure that each and every step of the plan is executed with all due speed.

19. QUESTION: HOW SHOULD THE EMERGENCY RELIEF COMMITTEE PLAN BE FINANCED?

The court should charge the receiver with all necessary authority to utilize PF assets to assure the complete execution of the plan. In this regard it is recommended that the court grant to the receiver the authority to:

a. Use liquid PF capital, and

b. liquidate PT assets by auction to the degree required to finance the execution of its plan, and

c. obtain a commercial loan in any amount necessary to execute the plan. In this regard, the receiver should be authorized to pledge PT assets as collateral, and

d. act to provide any and all other means of financing the venture.

Attorneys for Amicus Curiae

SUPERIOR COURT OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA

FOR THE CITY AND COUNTY OF SAN FRANCISCO

PEOPLE'S TEMPLE OF THE DISCIPLES OF CHRIST, Petitioner, vs. THE ATTORNEY GENERAL OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA, Respondent.	No. 746-571 RECOMMENDED PLAN FOR REMOVAL AND INTERMENT OF BODIES REMAINING AT DOVER, DELAWARE, OF INDIVIDUALS WHO DIED IN JONESTOWN, GUYANA, ON NOVEMBER 18, 1978

INTRODUCTION

THE EMERGENCY RELIEF COMMITTEE, Amicus Curiae in this action (hereinafter referred to as ERC) consists of twenty-seven (27) individuals who are representative members of the following religious organizations, or organizations which are a part of, or are related to, the following religious organizations: (1) The Northern California Board of Rabbis; (2) The Roman Catholic Archdiocese of San Francisco; and (3) the San Francisco Council of Churches. The ERC is a special association, unincorporated, and organized not-for-profit, with a direct and special interest in the expeditious burial of all of the unburied dead, victims of the November 18, 1978 tragedy which occurred in Jonestown, Guyana. On January 8, 1979, the ERC filed its application to appear as Amicus Curiae in this action. On January 15, 1979, this Court ordered that the ERC be allowed to appear as Amicus Curiae in this proceeding.

On January 23, 1979, in open court, this Court directed the ERC to present a plan, within thirty (30) days for the transportation (from Dover, Delaware) and interment of the unburied bodies of those individuals who died at Jonestown, Guyana, on November 18, 1978. Accordingly, the ERC respectfully presents herewith its plan, in response to the Court's order.

THE PLAN

I. Criteria.

The concern of the ERC, and insofar as we can perceive it, the concern of the religious community, is that a plan be developed which will help survivors, relatives, and the whole community to work through the consuming grief, despair, hopelessness, fear, and anger so that all members of the community may return to a productive and meaningful life. The peace and psychological health of our City -- and other parts of our nation -- depends on it. Therefore, we are convinced that "cost" factors, while important, should not be the primary consideration. The most important factor is the best possible resolution of the human problems remaining as a result of the November 18, 1978 catastrophe.

Accordingly, while cremation would be far less expensive, especially if done in Delaware, the KKC does not recommend mass cremation. Further, the United States government (hereinafter referred to as USG) strongly recommends against cremation of the unidentified bodies. Also, a plan of cremation would not solve the problems which we attempt to deal with, but would aggravate these problems. Most of the victims are black, and the black community, in general, is opposed to cremation as a method of interment. The experience of the burial of the dead is of extreme importance in the black community, in the process of working through grief. Honoring a proper burial is crucial for the survivors of the black victims, and cremation would only add to their despair and create an anger that could have said repercussions.

The KKC believes that PEOPLE's TEMPLE assets should be the primary source of money for the burial of the remaining unburied bodies. PEOPLE'S TEMPLE assets resulted, in significant part, from the assets of the victims, and in view of the extraordinary circumstances surrounding the present problem, these assets should be looked to for the burial of the PEOPLE'S TEMPLE dead.

Finally, as representative members of the religious community, we desire that the relatives and survivors of this tragedy, as well as others affected by it, continue to live in this city, and in other places, with as few scars as possible from this experience. For this reason, we have great concern that arrangements are made that utilize reputable services which refrain from commercializing on the situation. We hope that services are used in which the relatives of the dead would find a comforting experience -- we also hope that services are set which relate well with the survivors, and the particular community to which the survivors may belong.

IX. Elements of the Plan.

The EAC has gathered information as to costs and services, with regard to transportation, and with regard to mortician/funeral directors' services. We attach to this plan, in order that full disclosure may be made, all of the information we have gathered.

1. Transportation.

We have ascertained that the cheapest and most effective manner of transporting the bodies from Dover, Delaware, is by truck. Although we have received an oral bid of a "ballpark" figure of $19,500 from the ALL MOVING TRUCKING COMPANY of Newark, Delaware, we have not obtained a written commitment from that company in response to our request for a written proposal.

The next cheapest proposal, and the one which meets the criteria of the committee in all respects, is the proposal of the LARMONT MOVING STORAGE COMPANY of Wilmington, Delaware. That proposal has been made in writing, and is attached in photocopy form as an exhibit to this plan. That proposal was made at the time when there were 587 bodies at Dover, and the bid is $35,440. (There are now 270 bodies at Dover, and it is not clear as to whether the bid remains at the same price, or would be reduced pro rata.) The considerable sensitivity, and sense of responsibility, evidenced in the LARMORE proposal, as well as the cost. makes the LARMORE proposal the one that should be accepted. This bid is more than $82,000 cheaper than the lowest air transportation bid we received (from United Airlines), although that air transportation bid was made on the heels of 599 bodies, which is 29 more than are currently at Dover. The LARMORE bid is also almost $5,000 less than the rail bid we received (from [redacted], and both the LARMORE bid and the rail bid were based on the same number of bodies (582). Also, rail transportation could not be accomplished in one shipment, but would involve shipping approximately five bodies per train, and would stretch over 120 days. It is clearly in the best interest of all concerned to ship all the bodies at the same time, and inter them as soon as possible.

For more specific information, see the attached transportation breakdown provided by Reverend JOHN O'CONNOR of the IRC.

2. Judgment.

We are of the opinion that no package plan, submitted by anyone of the four package bidders (whose bids are attached) should be accepted.

Two of the four package bidders (DIRECTED FUNERAL SERVICES, INC., and the NEWTON ACCORD) provided bids which were lower than the total cost-package-allowance for claimed bodies, recommended by the IRC. One of the four package bidders (DIRECTED FUNERAL SERVICES, INC.,) provided a bid which was lower than the total cost-package for unidentified bodies, recommended by the EEC. However, we are of the opinion that these packages do not meet the criteria that we have generally outlined.

The bids of the four package-bidders average out to $400.66 for ASSOCIATED FUNERAL DIRECTORS, INC., $300.00 for the MEDICAL SOCIETY, $1,560.00 for FINLEY ENTERPRISES, and $726.71 for PAUL R. FULLER. (These figures were based on 599 bodies. Our information is that as of February 15, 1979, there were only 570 bodies at Sever. It is not clear whether the bid figures would still apply for these bidders, with the reduced number of bodies.)

The EEC recommends providing a cost-allowance, for use by next-of-kin who claim bodies, for obtaining individual services as desired by each next-of-kin. The recommended cost-allowance, for services of mortician/funeral directors and grave and cemetery costs, is $340.00 per body, and is based on the survey we have made of minimum costs in this area (attached). The EEC strongly recommends a plan which allows individuals who are claiming bodies, to have individual, private funerals, and not be compelled to be part of one single mass proceeding.

The EEC recommends that unidentified bodies be buried together, in a cemetery within a relatively short distance from Fairfield. We believe that the cemetery proposed in the ASSOCIATED FUNERAL DIRECTORS, INC. package - which is Hidden Valley Cemetery near Vacaville, California - does not meet the criteria. Accordingly, the EEC recommends another cemetery in the Bay Area. There will be no services at funeral directors costs for burial of the unidentified bodies, since the [redacted] company will deliver the bodies directly to the cemetery, and the cemetery cost includes opening and closing the grave. Skyloan's cost per body (which includes entombment crate and a concrete grave liner) is $349.00. (The Skyloan offer is attached.)

Our plan, of course, contemplates no expense for clergy. None is needed. Our clergy, and many cooperating clergy, will either provide services without cost, or request other clergy (as may be requested by next-of-kin) to do so. (It also appears that there will be an adequate number of voluntary pall-bearers from the community.)

There are approximately 50 identified bodies which need to be shipped to Los Angeles, and approximately 30 that need to be shipped to Chico. The trucking company will be able to send one truck to the Bay Area with the Chico group, and one truck to the Bay Area via the Los Angeles area. Bodies destined for [redacted] areas, may be loaded last, by the trucking company, in each truck, and may be off loaded in those areas.

With respect to undertakers, funeral directors, and cemeteries, for claimed bodies, we recommend the use of those from the community who are best able to accommodate with the families and do so at a reasonable cost. Mr. Miller has listed several black mortuaries in his general package-bid-plan, and we believe that they fulfill this general criterion. So do 27 other morticians in San Francisco who met with the RRC representative. The recommended individual allowance of the amount of $560.00 should be made available for morticians/ funeral directors' services, including grave and endowment care, for next-of-kin who claim bodies -- but only such part of that amount as is actually expended for such services -- per body.

3. Reimbursement.

The EEC believes that in justice, and in equity, it is only fair to provide an amount of reimbursement for the families who have already seen to the burial of their dead. We have gathered information which shows that many of them had to borrow and go deeply into debt in order to accomplish such burials. We should not penalize those families, who did not wait until the court acted, in seeing to the burial of their dead. Further, of course, many of the already buried victims (or their relatives) provided monies which became part of the PEOPLE'S TRUST pool of assets. Accordingly, the Court should approve reimbursement in at least the amount authorized for the unburied claimed bodies. Many of the EEC members feel that an additional amount should be provided for those who have already buried their dead, because their shipping costs (at the least) were much greater than those we have been able to arrange.

III. GOVERNMENT PARTICIPATION

The EEC gratefully acknowledges the generous assistance of the United States Department of State, which has cooperated fully in the continuing work on this matter. The State Department will assist in providing all necessary permits for the truckers to bring the bodies across the country. The VSC, which has custody of the bodies, will release them upon the signature of the appropriate persons on the release form attached to this Plan. It should be noted that this release form involves an assumption of liability by the persons signing it. It is assumed that the funeral director who will be used will sign the form (or the cemetery director in the case of the unidentified).

The EEC also gratefully acknowledges the generous assistance of Congressmen Evans (of Delaware), Phillip Burton (of California), and McCloskey (of California), as well as Senators Cranston and Hayakawa, and Mayor Feinstein of the City and County of San Francisco.

IV. [redacted].

At this writing, our information is that there are 376 bodies remaining at Dover. Of those bodies, 295 are unidentified. Of the identified, 79 next-of-kin have indicated in writing that they authorize the State Department to dispose of the bodies. Accordingly, these bodies ~~could~~ may be treated in the same manner as the unidentified remains.) The total cost of implementation of this plan, (assuming that $500.00 is paid for embalmer's services and graves for the 376 bodies which are identified and even assumed to be claimed, and (2) assuming $[illegible].00 is paid for the graves for each unidentified body (and for each of the 79 bodies which will be interred in the same manner as the unidentified bodies), and (3) assuming $85,440 is paid to the [illegible] Company for transportation, is $[illegible].

If [illegible]

amounts, to the next-of-kin who have already buried the other 343 bodies of individuals who died at Jonestown, in an amount of $560.00 (interment) and $97.26 (transportation) an additional $218,380 would be needed. Accordingly, the total amount for providing allowances for next-of-kin of all 913 victims of the Guyana tragedy, as recommended by the EEC, would be $521,366.

V. Implementation.

Both the EEC and the USG recommend that the Receiver implement the plan. The Receiver should be authorized to make contracts with the LAWSON Company, and with Skylawn Cemetery. The Receiver should be authorized to disburse funds, up to $560 per body for actual expenses for morticians' services and grave purchase.

The EEC stands ready to assist with communication between next-of-kin, governmental agencies, morticians, and such other necessary organizations or entities as the Court may deem appropriate. The EEC will continue to be an information clearing house for the purpose of expeditious return and interment of the bodies, as necessary.

VI. Supplemental Information.

1. Condition of the bodies, and place of interment.

The EEC is informed that all the bodies are embalmed, and are in hermetically sealed caskets. By the time the bodies are shipped (assuming the court approves this plan upon the hearing on it), the USG will have Guyanese death certificates for all the identified bodies, and Guyanese pronunciation-death certificates for all the [redacted] residential heating, and the USBR will provide those depth certificates to whoever implements the plan.

WHEREFORE, the EPC respectfully requests the Court to adopt its recommendations above set forth, and enter the implementation of the Plan by the Secretary.

RE: TRANSPORTATION OF THE REMAINING GUYANA VICTIMS BODIES BACK TO CALIFORNIA

The following is an updated report. The report I submitted on February 8, 1979 was as follows:

TRANS INTERNATIONAL AIRWAYS: TIA expects to be able to move the bodies on two cargo jets, on six flights over two weekends. The total projected cost as of January 31, 1979, for 389 bodies, was, at that time, $1,39,177.00 or $232.35 per body. However, this did not include loading at Dover, which TIA expects will be performed by the Air Force or for surface transportation in Oakland by the mortuary facilities. The contact person is Mr. Owen Whalen - 577-6200.

UNITED AIRLINES: Including surface transportation in Oakland, United expects to be able to perform the task as of January 30, 1979, based on 389 bodies for $137,830.00 or $250.60 per body. However, it is not clear whether this includes loading in Dover, and I have not yet been able to clarify this. Contact person is Mr. Nicole Gattine - 876-3302.

FULL FUNERAL SERVICE: Including surface transportation from Dover, loading and unloading, as of February 15, 1979. Mr. Fuller's bid was for 570 bodies was $142,500.00 or $250.00 per body. Mr. Fuller is the contact person and his phone number is 715-6100.

AIRTEX: Shipping the remains from Philadelphia to San Francisco, and not including transportation from Dover to Philadelphia or from San Francisco to Philadelphia, Airtex's estimate is $162.85 per casket, a total of $97,347.00, based on 598 bodies or $162.85 per body. It should be noted that Airtex cannot move more than five bodies per regularly scheduled train, and this obviously creates a scheduling problem in terms of moving the remains from Dover to Philadelphia. The contact person is Mr. Hall at 556-5755 or Mr. Tim Ashworth at 202-383-2044.

ALL STATE TERMITE: As of February 16, 1979, I had not received anything in writing from All State, which was one of those companies asked for written bids. I called Mr. Harry Kay (201-344-2852) on February 16th to confirm his bid of $98,500.00 and to ask him to put that in a telegram. Mr. Kay indicated that he had received information from Congressman Rosso staff that the coffins measured 85"x25"x25", which was different than the information we had given him and that each adult casket weighed 400 lbs. He had not had the time to prepare his figure and put them in writing at that time.

On the morning that I called him, he had a number of calls coming in and he said he would try to get that in a telegram later that same day (February 16th). Therefore, as of the date and time, I do not have a firm figure from All State Trucking.

CHESAPEAKE TRANSPORT: I received in writing a letter dated February 7, 1979 from Harold Friedman, President of Chesapeake Motor Lines, that they would be able to transport the bodies at $175.00 per coffin. For 170 bodies that comes to $29,750.00. This would be transportation from Dover Air Force Base to Oakland Army Base. The contact person is Mr. Friedman at 301-799-4900.

LARMORE MORTUARY SERVICES: I received a letter dated February 12, 1979 from Mr. John F. Wallerstedt, Vice President and General Manager of Larmore, Inc., who indicated that he could take the bodies from Dover Air Force Base to the West Coast with 50 bodies in each 40 foot air-ride trailer with up to 65 bodies going to L. A. and up to 55 bodies going to Tracy for a total cost of $55,440.00 for 382 bodies. That comes out to $145.26 per body.

NOTE: As of this writing some of the bids, as you will note, represented 382 bodies, some 325 and some have been calculated to 370. This is because we had different body counts at different times when we presented the material to the various transport companies.

As I indicated above, I only asked for bids in writing as directed by the Emergency Relief Committee from three companies, those which we thought were the lowest. It should also be noted that Mr. Paul Fuller submitted his bid in writing.

If I can be of any further help, please do not hesitate to call me.

ASSOCIATED FUNERAL DIRECTORS, INCORPORATED

We are under the opinion that since all died together, they should all be buried together and since this is our firms feeling we propose our Christian Burial Plan. We do this because we have been issue with the facilities and staff to handle funerals anywhere in the cemetery and a place in which to bury them.

We believe all the love ones who have been left behind have been through enough grief and all the need is to see that their love ones are buried in a proper beautiful place with out a lot of exhibitive ing frills

We offer to you Twelve years of expertise in conducting procurement contracts for most of the need in Northern California (Many) and Alam County contracts.

This proposal offers a savings on funeral directors and will give each deceased love one a christian burial in a cemetery that offer a nice plaque, liner and a childrens section at no extra cost.

Miss Dorcaster Lane

Committee on People's Temple Burial Plan
c/o San Francisco Council of Churches

Dear Miss Lane and Committee Persons:

In keeping with The Neptune Society's philosophy of simplicity: the cost of dying and burial need not be high nor expensive and can still be meaningful.

For the problems surrounding the burials of the Guyana victims, I am proposing the following program.

1. All bodies now in storage in Dover, Delaware to be moved to the San Francisco Bay Area. This will be done by train.

2. Each body will be buried at Evergreen Cemetery in its individual grave at a cost of $345.55, each would have an endowment care deposit made in the amount of $60.00, each would have a concrete liner (ground support).

   In my opinion this is a very attractive price, considering that it is a non-profit endowment care cemetery located in a major city. Also, should, at a later date, a surviving family wish to do so, they could, at their expense, remove the body and contact for burial to a different cemetary. I think that this option is most important, especially when we consider that the State Department will continue to identify some of the bodies not yet identified.

3. For all work necessary for preparing for transportation, the transportation and the delivery to Evergreen Cemetery and placing of each casket on the ground at Evergreen, the total price is $500.00, from which amount Evergreen will be paid their fee ($354.55).

There is a tremendous amount of work necessary to accomplish this. I have made very detailed plans. Obviously, some individual person must accept this job and the responsibility.

4. Once the bodies arrive in California, should a surviving family decide to conduct their own burial and funeral, I will then transport and deliver it, without cost, to them in any United States City. Also, should it happen that some families wish a local San Francisco Area funeral at their church or other place, they could obtain the bodies from us and then return it to Evergreen the next day for burial. This should and could happen at a very small cost to them, maybe as a donation from their church. In this respect, for a special hardship case of two or three, I will transport to the church and back to Evergreen without cost.

5. Because of the numbers involved, my logistic arrangements at Evergreen Cemetery require the burying of about 100 cases per week. This being so, it is important that they arrive in the Bay Area at about this sequence.

This total program can be started immediately. Attached are letters from my office and Evergreen's which have been sent to Mr. White at the State Department, Washington, D.C.

Sincerely,

Richard Jamerson

PROPOSAL TO REMOVE THE UNIDENTIFIED REMAINS FROM DOVER AIR FORCE BASE

1. I can provide transportation for all unidentified remains from Dover to California.
2. Remains will be delivered to a cemetary in California where I have reserved ample amount of graves to fulfill your needs.
3. I will provide one grave per body, one individual grave marker, and one mass graveside service for all bodies shipped.
4. I have arranged to have this area set aside and dedicated with a large memorial to all Americans who died in Guyana.
5. It should take no more than ten to fifteen working days to complete all of the above.

Payment

I hereby propose to complete in accordance with the above specifications this plan for $3500 per remains, which will include a complete graveside service. In order to initiate this program, I will require a down payment of $450 per remains. I will utilize the down payment to complete the above services. I will attempt to bill the balance to the estate of People's Temple.

Paul R. Fuller

Acceptance of Proposal

The above prices, specifications and conditions are hereby accepted, and you are authorized to do the work as specified. Payment will be made as outlined above.

Attn: Mr. Lindberg Porter

Dear Mr. Porter:

It was indeed an enlightening conversation we enjoyed Friday night February 2, 1979. As you requested I am sending you a copy of our proposal to the United States' State Department for the relief of the unclaimed persons from the Guyana Tragedy.

I am also submitting a proposal designed to meet the demands of the times and the desires of the Emergency Relief Committee.

The two proposals differ in three areas; 1.location of [illegible], 2. method of transportation and 3. cache. If special note is taken for the cache it will be immediately evident that our costs are considerably lower. Further, our rates are $2,000 each below the rates quoted by individual families and have undertaken to resolve this situation expressly (their costs range between $7,000 and $5,000 each).

In addition, our costs are economical because we have solved the dynamic logistics problems. We propose to be responsible for all the funds necessary for a dignified, purposeful and fruitful burial of all the unclaimed persons from the Guyana tragedy.

Please contact Mr. Clay F. Finley [redacted] for any [illegible].

With best regards.

Sincerely,

Clay F. Finley

Burial:

A. Land and Land Preparation--

1. The land is located in beautiful Kern California, within a one hundred miles of San Francisco.

2. The property is a gentle rolling hill covered with trees and scrub indigenous to the area.

3. There is presently a memorial park on the property.

4. The present size of the area is not known; we will acquire other land contiguous to the memorial park and will annex additional land which will be developed and fenced.

5. The burial site for the group in question will consist of approximately one acre of dimensions of approximately 200ft. by 200 ft., inclosed by wall or fence.

6. The burial arrangement will be six concentric circles with an 8 ft. walkway between each burial circle. In the center there will be a 20 ft. diameter circle which will contain a beautiful sculptured monument of Cochran.

(a) For veterans there will be a garden of valor

(b) Families will be located according to the unification will be interspersed.

(c) There will be four sections in the center of the area reserved for family members who may wish to be in interment there later (not since

(d) each section will be identified by a metal

(f) each location will be individually prepared

(r) each location will have a individual concrete vault (a rule of the memorial park)

7. The landscaping will be of two types:

(a) Intensive landscaping will be outside the specified area -- in lawn, shrubbery, trees and growing flowers

(b) general landscaping will be outside the specified area for a distance of one acre on each side of the specified area-- in lawn and trees.

Transportation:

Our preliminary investigation of the transportation problem indicates that Amtrack rail system is the most desirable service for the shipment of the bodies. The trip is devided in three parts

1. Trucking to Wilmington from Dover, Delavare
2. Amtrack to San Francisco from Wilmington
3. Trucking to the site from San Francisco.

Memorial Service

We will conduct suitable memorial services at the site of interment in late April or early May 1979. Next of kin will be notified in person, by mail, phone or through the media indicating the time and place of the memorial service. In conjunction with the memorial service we will--

1. Provide for the Participants
   a. transportation
   b. lodging
   c. food
   d. dew
2. Provide for the next of kin the day of service only
   a. one meal
   b. rest rooms
   c. shelter at the site
   d. a place to sit
   e. parking
   f. traffic control at site
   g. security officers at site

Endowment Fund:

We will establish a non-profit corporation for the perpetual care of the site. The park will be protected by an endowment care fund, the principal of which can never be expended, only the income can be used to maintain the perpetual beauty of the park. Dedicated [illegible] landscaping and general planning will guarantee the continued beneficial development of this [illegible] part to meet the growing needs of the communities.

[illegible]

The [illegible] is not limited to the type of [illegible] as we will offer the facilities
1. Give deed to property
2. Give death certificate

Dear Mr. Porter:

As promised you on the telephone, I am writing to confirm Skylawn Memorial Park's interest in helping resolve such problems as may exist in connection with those remains that are still being held a United States Air Force base.

Shortly after the Jonestown tragedy we notified a number of local mortuaries that we are prepared to assist in this matter, and I am enclosing a copy of a letter which was mailed on a very limited ba by several organizations that had contacted us. The offer made in that letter is still valid, and additionally, we are prepared to discuss with you any other practical alternatives.

Skylawn Memorial Park with its 500 plus acres is located in the he of the Peninsula. My personal interest cannot help but affect the ob subjective, but I believe it is naturally the most beauti cemetery in the entire area, overlooking both the ocean and the undulating barriers of the foothills.

I am not unaware of the many sad public problems that need to be considered in connection with the almost 500 remains that still ne to be brought to the Bay Area, but I am of the opinion that this c be far better resolved at a personal meeting than through correspon dence.

I can most easily reached at 489-2220, and would be happy to arrange mutually convenient time to meet with you.

Yours very sincerely,

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

The tragic events of Jonestown have caused a number of inquiries to be made as to the extent we might assist the many families who suffered the loss of one or more relatives.

We believe that the circumstances surrounding the deaths of over 900 persons are such that our organization must recognize its community responsibilities, and Skylawn has therefore adopted the following policy in connection with cemetery arrangements for victims of that tragedy.

> "Skylawn Memorial Park will make available to persons making cemetery arrangements for victims of the Jonestown tragedy, any of its property, merchandise or services at one-half the regular price as shown on Skylawn's price list.
> Arrangements can, on this basis, be made for as little as $349.10 for single interment, or $660.70 for a double depth interment in the same grave space.

> These prices include all of the following:
> Grave space
> Endowment Care Trust deposit
> Opening and closing of grave space, together with all necessary labor and equipment
> Recording fee
> Concrete grave liner."

For persons wishing some other form of service, such as cremation or cemetery property in higher priced areas, the 50% discount will apply.

Skylawn Memorial Park wishes to cooperate with you or any governmental agency to help assure that families will not be unduly burdened by events of such a tragic nature and over which they had no control.

MEMORANDUM FOR: Major Clovagnani

RE: Impact of Court Plan on Mortuary Contract

1. Reference: The Recommended Plan of the [illegible] Committee (ERC) to the Superior Court of the State of California.

2. I have thoroughly reviewed the Ford Mortuary Contract, as changed and modified, and find that court implementation of the Plan recommended by the ERC would not breach the contract we have with Mr. Ford.

3. The only area the Plan could involve Ford is in the transportation of the remains. Under the Ford contract we are obligated to order the transportation of remains and/or escort between DAFB and selected common carrier (Item 11 of the Schedule, Section E). Common carrier is not defined therein. However, in the AF Specification which is part of the contract (6.2a), "remains moving by common carrier shall be delivered to the airport or railhead not later than two (2) hours before the scheduled departure of the aircraft or train". No mention is made of common carrier truck transportation, which is the mode of transportation recommended in the Plan (specifically a truck firm in Wilmington, DE, called Lexmore Moving Systems Co.). It seems the meaning of "common carrier" in the Ford contract applies only to train or aircraft transportation, or so we could argue.

4. Additionally, Item 12 of Ford's Schedule provides for the transportation of remains between DAFB and any point within 300 miles as called for by the contracting officer. This requirement, however, is subject to Note 1 of the Schedule. Therein, "the Government reserves the right to determine the mode of transportation of remains and escort; therefore, the Government is not obligated to use Item 12 ...." (emphasis added). Furthermore, General Provision 43 (Requirements) of Mr. Ford's contract states, in part, "the Government, however, reserves the right not to order supplies and services under this contract in instances where the body is removed from the area for medical, scientific, or other cogent reasons. In the event of an epidemic or other emergency, the contractor shall not be required to provide services in excess of the capacity of his facilities".

5. In my opinion we can exclude Mr. Ford from participating in the disposition of the Guyana remains, without breaching his contract, by reference to any of the three reasons discussed in paragraphs 3 and 4 above.

4. Additionally, Item 12 of Ford's Schedule provides for the transportation of remains between DAFB and any point within 300 miles as called for by the contracting officer. This requirement, however, is subject to Note 1 of the Schedule. Therein, "the Government reserves the right to determine the mode of transportation of remains and escort; therefore, the Government is not obligated to use Item 12 ...." (emphasis added). Furthermore, General Provision 43 (Requirements) of Mr. Ford's contract states, in part, "the Government, however, reserves the right not order supplies and services under this contract in instances where the body is removed from the area for medical, scientific, or other cogent reasons. In the event of an epidemic or other emergency, the contractor shall not be required to provide services in excess of the capacity of his facilities".

5. In summation we can exclude Mr. Ford from participating in the transportation of the remains, either by [illegible] by reference to any of the three reasons discussed in paragraphs 3 and 4 above.

Dear Mr. Wahl:

The Emergency Relief Committee's "recommended plan for removal, and interment of bodies remaining at Dover Delaware" appears to present a feasible method for removing and interring the bodies which remain at Dover. If the California court approves implementation of the plan with respect to those bodies, the United States Government will cooperate fully by releasing them to the persons designated in accordance with the plan.

We appreciate your continued cooperation with the Department. If we can be of any further assistance please do hesitate to call on us.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE RECORD

On Wednesday, January 17, I met with Jacqueline Speier, Legislative Counsel to former Congressman Leo Ryan, and James Schollaert, staff consultant to the House Committee on International Relations. The meeting took place at the request of Ms. Speier to discuss the recent events in Jonestown, Guyana.

Ms. Speier began the meeting by emphasizing that she had no desire to assign blame for the Jonestown tragedy, but felt strongly that there were a number of areas in which the Department's procedures and operations could be improved so as to minimize the possibility that a similar incident could occur in the future. She felt that the Ambassador should have been more involved in the Embassy's relationship with the People's Temple, and claimed that the Ryan visit marked the first time that the Ambassador had become fully aware of the extent of the problem. She felt that the Blakey affidavit, in particular, deserved more follow-up by the Department than it had received.

I explained the steps the Department is currently taking to examine the Jonestown tragedy and study changes that might profitably be made. I described the work being done by Ambassador Crimmins and Mr. Carpenter and our efforts to strengthen the role of the consular corps in the protection of Americans overseas.

Ms. Speier stated that the information received by the CODEL from the Department prior to the trip was inadequate, and that it was her impression that the Department's interpretation of the Privacy Act had been consistently too strict. Three out of four of the meetings held between the CODEL staff and the Department had been requested by the Hill, and the discussions with the Department's legal staff had been particularly frustrating. Mr. Schollaert stated that the CODEL should have been given greater access to the Department's files and that there existed a great deal of unclassified information that would have been helpful. He mentioned the June cable from the Embassy to the Department as a particular example. "We went down," Ms. Speier concluded, "with virtually no information."

I expressed my understanding for the concerns that Speier and Schollaert had stated, and explained that this is a particularly difficult area in which to work since Honorable Ira A. Brown, Jr.

Re: People's Temple of the Disciples of Christ, Petitioner, vs. The Attorney General of the State of California, Respondent, No. 746-571

Dear Judge Brown:

Thank you for the opportunity to provide you with certain information and statistics which will be of assistance to the above-captioned proceeding.

After the hearing Monday evening, I contacted Department of State officials to ascertain as up-to-date statistics as possible. I was advised that, as of the end of yesterday, the remains of 561 Jonestown, Guyana tragedy victims are now at the United States Air Force Base, Dover, Delaware.

Of the 561 bodies, 308 have been identified and have not been claimed. The next of kin or legal representatives of 286 of the identified deceased have been located and contacted. In other words, we have been unable to locate or contact next of kin for 21 of the identified decedents. However, I would like to point out that all 21 of these identified deceased are from California. In fact, our records indicate that a vast majority of the identified decedents and their next of kin are from California.

Of the 561 bodies remaining at Dover Air Force Base, 253 have yet to be identified. However, with few exceptions, we are aware of the names of the 253 bodies but in connection with the United States Armed Forces Institute of Pathology, in their continuing identification process, we have been unable to match the decedent's name to a certain body among the 253. This, then, is why these decedents are considered to be classified as unidentified. Our awareness of the names of the unidentified decedents is based upon the following information or a combination thereof:

1. United States passports found at Jonestown, Guyana after the tragedy;

2. Immigration records of the Government of Guyana;

3. Telephone calls or other communications from persons who knew such relatives were in Jonestown.

The next of kin have been located and/or contacted for approximately 227 of these unidentified decedents. Our records indicate that a vast majority of the next of kin now reside in California. Of the 253 unidentified deceased, our records indicate that at least 203 are from California. And, the results of telephone calls and other communications received in the Department of State from next of kin or other interested parties inquiring about the status of the identification process of the remaining unidentified bodies, have shown that most callers have expressed a desire to have the bodies whether identified or unidentified interred in California.

These conclusions are based on one or more of the following items of evidence:

1. United States passports of the decedents found at Jonestown, Guyana indicated California as the place of birth;

2. United States passport applications completed by the decedent indicated a California address as place of residence and/or a California resident as contact in the event of emergency;

3. Evidence of identification presented upon the application for United States passport was a California issued document such as a California driver's license;

4. The United States passports found at Jonestown, Guyana for the decedents were issued in California;

5. Telephone calls and other information communicated to us by the decedent's next of kin presently residing in California;

6. Records of other identified deceased family members from California, as outlined in items 1 through 5, supra, indicate the names and prior California residence of the unidentified decedents.

Our records additionally show that many next of kin located in California, because of family composition, may have deceased relatives who have been identified as well as deceased relatives who have not been identified.

I trust this information complies with your request. I again thank you for the opportunity to be of assistance. If the Department of State can provide further clarification or information please do not hesitate to call upon us. I can be reached at (202) 632-2957.

SUBJECT: Jonestown - Items of Interest

Last week I lunched with Richard Martin, one of the Consular Officers who was detailed from Caracas to Georgetown during the Guyana tragedy, and whom I believe you met earlier this year when he reported to Washington to take the Administrative Officers course.

During our meeting Mr. Martin produced some items which he felt, based on his prior conversation with you, might be of some interest. Most are newspaper clippings which you may already have seen. One, however, is a copy of an unsigned note which Martin found at the Jonestown site. The note itself is somewhat difficult to read, so I have taken the liberty of preparing a typed transcription to accompany it.

November 19, 1977 - The Last Day of People's Temple

To Whomever finds this note

Collect all of the tapes, all the writing, all the history. The story of this movement, this action, must be examined over and over. It must be understood in all of its incredible dimensions. Words fail. We have pledged our lives to this great cause. We are proud to have something to die for. We do not fear death. We hope that the world will someday realize the ideals of brotherhood, justice and equality that Jim Jones has lived and died for. We have all chosen to die for this cause. We know there is no way that we can avoid misinterpretation. But Jim Jones and this movement were born too soon. The world was not ready to let us live.

I am sorry there is no eloquence as I write these final words. We are resolved, but grieved that we cannot make the truth of our witness clear.

This is the last of our lives. May the world find a way to a new birth of social justice. If there is any way that our lives and the life of Jim Jones can ever help that take place, we will have not lived in vain.

Jim Jones did not order anyone to attack or kill anyone. It was done by individuals who had too much of seeing people try to destroy this movement, Jim Jones. Their actions have left us no alternative, and rather than see this cause decimated, we have chosen to give our lives. We are proud of that choice.

Please try to understand. Look at all. Look at all in prospective. Look at Jonestown, see what we have tried to do - This was a movement to life to the newest of the human spirit, broken by Capitalism, by a system of exploitation and injustice. Look at all that was built by a beleaguered people. We did not want that kind of ending - we wanted to live, to shine, to bring light to a world that is dying for a little bit of love. To those left behind of our loved ones, many of whom will not understand, who never knew this truth, grieve not, we are grateful for this opportunity to bear witness to a better witness - history has chosen our destiny in spite of our own desire to forge our own. We were at a cross/purpose with history. But we are calm in this hour of our own demons of accident, circumstance, miscalculation, error that was not our intent, beyond our intent.

I hope that someone writes this whole story. It is not "news". It is more. We merge with millions of others, we are subsumed in the archetype. People hugging each other, embracing, we are hurrying - we do not want to be captured. We want to bear witness at once.

We did not want it this way. All was going well as Ryan completed [illegible] day here. Then a man tried to attack him, unsuccessfully. At same time, several set out into jungle wanting to overtake Ryan, kids, and others who left with them. They did, and several killed. When we heard this we had no choice. We would be taken. We have to go as one, we want to live as People's Temple, or end it. We have chosen. It is finished.

Hugging & kissing & tears & silence & joy in a long line. Touches and whispered words as this silent line passes. Determination, purpose. A proud people. Only last night, their voices raised in unison, a voice of affirmation and today, a different sort of affirmation, a dimension of that same victory of the human spirit.

A tiny kitten sits next to me watching. A dog barks. The birds gather on the telephone wires. Let all the story of this People Temple be told. Let all the books be opened. This night - a terrible victory - How bitter that we did not, could not, that Jim Jones was crushed by a world that he didn't make. How great the victory.

If nobody understands, it matters not - I am ready to die now. Darkness settles over Jonestown on its last day on earth.

From: Christopher Lydon, Diplomatic Correspondent, The New York Times

Subject: Guyana Project Report No. 16

Will have the written text to you

Secretary [illegible] personally by telephone is a copy of the Guyana Project report of last week. It spells out the [illegible] which I promised would be provided by tomorrow. I expect that by the end of the day you will have similar material. You [illegible] want to file the above into correspondence with the plan to [illegible]

Additional information which would [illegible]

The Press Information Office has requested that I ask the Department if it would be possible to have the press release given out earlier than next Monday. Even one work-day earlier, i.e., Friday next April 24th would be of great help. I was asked to give the following reasons: (a) advance info Office needs as much lead time as possible to make the many arrangements for any press who will want to cover the departure of the first returnees, i.e., telephones for press center, bus transportation from the airport to the holding area, arranging for consular personnel to escort the media while on the Mainland, (b) if the public announcement is not made until Monday and the first Soviet ship arrives on Saturday morning, we will be left in the "media management" situation again as we were when the first boats arrived, (c) the Info Office has other tasks to perform in addition to working on the Guyana project and the more lead time the better, (d) Press coverage throughout the Guyana situation has been, for the most part, positive toward the U.S. Government and the Nixon Administration in particular. We would like it to remain that way and feel that adequate notice to the media would ensure this positive coverage.

I would appreciate being advised of your response I may give to the Info Office.

Transportation [illegible] arrangements

Lodge transportation arrangements by telephone is a list of the Guyana Project participants which I suggest be made. We have plans for purposes of studying by telephone, have given only the top half of [illegible] bottom half of Page two. In drawing [illegible] would like using long sheets of paper like or a pad - that is made on new York two to each set of 50 sheets - with 50 sheets to a trunk. Each [illegible] as numbers and the heading on page 2 as [illegible] on page one. Have [illegible] for the [illegible] signatures. If the [illegible] approval of this [illegible] plans moving by phone, and I will have the [illegible] copies [illegible] of course, and [illegible] because if you have no objections I would like to have the [illegible] because the [illegible] from Kissinger on the plan [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Secretary Rogers' [illegible].

Funeral Directors Agree to Bring Bodies Back to the Base

As stated in Memo No. 11 of April 4, 1944, Mr. Stevens requested that he be allowed to return two bodies, Tom Fitzpatrick (Pan Am. Celebrities). I explained that it is the request of the next of kin that must be complied with. Mr. Stevens did not take it too well, he stated he will try to have the next-of-kin take the bodies as originally indicated. At any rate, Mr. Stevens will do if he is in his power what he feels I do not know.

The Stevens Funeral Home also had the body - the only body of Jacobs. I gave him the same service. He likewise did not take it too well.

For the Department's Info: While neither funeral director would come right out and say it, I detected the possibility of the above two cases becoming Congressionals if it looks like all other bodies will leave the Base and the funeral directors are unable to move the above-mentioned three bodies.

Ford Mortuary Contract

Mr. Earl Ford, who I understand has a mortuary contract with the Air Force Base, stopped in voluntarily yesterday to ask the name of my chief on the Secretary level. I gave him the name of Mr. Alan Cranston. Mr. Ford did not go into any details other than to say that he, or his attorney, was planning on writing a letter to him. Mr. Ford may or may not be under the impression that he is entitled to move all the bodies off the Base. I did not go into any details with him.

Revised Lists of Deceased

On Friday, April 28th I mailed updated lists of the deceased to the Department. The lists consist of one day or so. The sets included a chronologically arranged list, a numerically arranged list, and a list of the identification by body number. This gave set was also mailed to Washington for the pleasure purposes.

Note: Received Info Today Indicating Bodies to Proceed On

The Info Office just called. It appears that the media has already started to make inquiries in view of the Morning News item. The Info Office has stated that at least 10 media representatives have called in the last few hours including AP, UPI, etc. and the Office will wait, if any, revised info can be given requested to the press. Please advise.

Moving bodies of cult victims poses many problems

By MARK MATTHEWS
Dover Bureau

The thorniest challenge facing the firm hired to haul more than 900 Jonestown bodies from Dover Air Force Base to California is how to avoid losing any of them.

"We hope to sit down and research and figure out the best method, the safest, most controlled way," says William A. Lermore.

His firm, Lermore Moving Systems of Wilmington, will be paid about $50,000 in Peoples Temple assets to move the remaining bodies of the 913 cult members who died in Guyana. Although no date has been announced, officials hope to start moving the victims on April 26. The bodies were flown to Dover Air Force Base following the Nov. [illegible] murder-suicide.

"We're not going to lose one," Lermore said bluntly. Each casket will be numbered, and the firm will know exactly where it is

Rep. Wm. Royer
1022 Longworth H.O.B.
Capitol Hill
Washington, D.C. 20515.

Dear Bill:

I want to express my deep appreciation for your efforts in pressing for a thorough investigati of the events leading up to the nightmare at Jonestown one year ago. It is essential that open Congressional hearings be held on the tragedy in Guyana last November to determine if our government withheld vital information from Congressman Leo Ryan, and if his death and the death of over 900 persons could have been averted.

Leo went to Guyana in a last ditch effort to determine the truth about serious charges made about Jim Jones and The Peoples Temple in Jonestown He had received detailed allegations that at least some of more than 900 Americans there were being held against their will under brutal, inhuman circumstances. He would not have led a Congressional delegation there if the facts could have been determined any other way.

There is reason to believe that our government had an intellegence presence in Guyana prior to Leo Ryan's trip there. I know for a fact that a CIA agent witnessed his death. On the afternoon of November 18, 1978, I received two phone calls in California from Washington, D.C. The first was from the Caribbean Desk at the State Department I had been in touch with them several times that day because of my concern over Leo's presence at Jonestown and the potential danger there.

The State Department caller told me that they had just received a report from the American Embassy in Georgetown of a shooting incident at the Kaituma airstrip. The report said that three people had been killed and fifteen wounded, and that Rep. Ryan may have been one of those killed.

DATE 3/2/81
PA or FOI EXEMPTIONS

Within fifteen minutes, I had a second phone call, this time from a member of the White House staff whom I know personally. He told me that five people had been killed, including Leo. When I said that his information differed from that which I just received from the State Department, he responded, "Joe, our information is correct. We have a CIA report from the scene."

The White House aide then asked my assistance in identifying the other four persons by describing their roles. Because of my familiarity with the mission, I was able to identify Don Harris as the TV newscaster, Bob Brown as the TV cameraman and Greg Robinson as the still photographer. At first, I thought that the CIA report might have come from Richard Dwyer, our Deputy Chief of Mission, who was wounded at Port Kaituma. But later, I realized that Dwyer knew all of the newsmen by name. The CIA agent did not know them, or he would have identified them by name to the White House.

The identity of the CIA informant is directly related to the extent of our government's prior knowledge of conditions in Jonestown. It seems likely that he was one of the following:

a). a resident of Port Kaituma b). a member of the local police c). one of the four members of the Guyanese Army who watched the massacre.
d). one of the civilian pilots (the best bet, in my opinion).
e). a member of the Peoples Temple.

Anyone of the above would have been familiar with the Port Kaituma area. As news articles from the scene later reported, the natives at Port Kaituma knew the truth about conditions in Jonestown. It was their disclosures to members of the press at the disco-bar the night before the tragedy about attempted escapes from Jonestown and of the beatings and inhuman conditions there that caused the reporters to dig deeper into the reality of Jonestown the next day.

Given the fact that a CIA agent was present at the assassination of Congressman Ryan, it seems reasonable to assume that our government had received prior reports on the Peoples Temple from the same source and to assume that the same source knew at least as much as the Port Kaituma natives knew.

In addition to the presence of almost 1000 American citizens in Jonestown, was there any other compelling reason why our government would have an intelligence presence in a so obscure country like Guyana? The answer may be contained in a memo from Jackie Speier to Leo Ryan on October 12, 1978 and in statement made by Rep. Paul McCloskey in a newspaper article in the San Mateo Times following the tragedy.

The last line of Jackie's memo stated "Guyana provides 91% of the world's supply of bauxite". The San Mateo Times article says in part:

> "A congressional investigation of the Jonestown massacre is likely to show that the U.S. State Department was more concerned with promoting exportation of natural resources from Guyana than exposing injustices within Peoples Temple or protecting Americans visiting that country, Rep. Paul McCloskey told the Times Thursday.
> The Republican congressman from Menlo Park who had worked with his slain colleague, Rep. Leo J. Ryan, for State Department intervention in the Jonestown commune stated:
> "I think an investigation will bring out that the Guyanese government had a relationship with (the Rev. Jim) Jones and that the U.S. Embassy (in Georgetown), knew about it, accepted it and didn't try to intrude."
>
> "Based on my dealings with the State Department, I think it is apparent that the department was more concerned with getting along with the Guyanese... and promoting exports from that country than it was in protecting U.S. citizens."
> The most important mineral resources in Guyana are Bauxite and manganese. Gold and diamonds also are mined. Bauxite is the principal source of aluminum."

That Congressional investigation referred to by Rep. McCloskey has never taken place, at least in public. The report issued this spring by the House International Relations Committee was little more than a recitation of selected newspaper articles. It was in sharp contrast to the far-reaching House of Representatives probe promised in the Washington Post article of December 6, 1978 titled "House Unit Plans A Detailed Probe of Temple, Assets". The first paragraph states:

> "The congressional committee that inherited Rep. Leo J. Ryan's investigation of the Peoples Temple has plans for a far-reaching inquiry covering the past, present and future of the cult, including its members, its money, and its relations with the U.S. and Guyanese officials."

The article also states "This plan still has to be approved by Chairman Clement J. Zoblocki (D - Wis.)". I was warned at the time by a committee staff member that Chairman Zablocki was opposed to public hearings. It seems incredible that our Congress, which holds hundreds of public hearings every year on a wide variety of subjects, has failed in the full year since the event to hold such a public inquiry into the assassinat of a member of Congress and three members of the media, and the murder/suicide of 900 American citizens.

The record is clear that Leo Ryan requested help from the State Department in his quest for the truth about the allegations concerning the Peoples Temple and Jonestown. Leo asked the State Department in writing, to send a special investigating team to Guyana from Washington. If the State Department had sent such an investigating team itself, Leo would not have gone to Guyana. They refused, saying they were satisfied with their Embassy reports that conditions in Jonestown were benign and that allegations to the contrary could not be substantiated. Prior to his trip, Leo asked the State Department to assign a legal advisor with international law expertise to his congressional delegation. They refused, saying that all of their personnel were "too busy".

Prior to the Guyana trip, I was involved in trying to make arrangements for air and ground transportation from Georgetown to Jonestown, and in getting entry visas for the NBC-T crew and members of the press. My phone calls to the State Department met with frustration. I was told that only Richard McCoy, who was in charge of the Guyana desk at State, could help me and that he was on military reserve duty and was not available until his return to the State Department after the Ryan delegation departure date. I was informed that his superior, a Mr. John Blacken, was filling in for him, but that Mr. Blacken was not familiar with the situation in Guyana.

Following the tragedy in Guyana, I discovered that Mr. McCoy was "on reserve duty" at the Defense Department, and also that Mr. Blacken had been Deputy Chief of Mission in Guyana when McCoy was our consular officer there.

This was the same Richard McCoy who was the State Department's chief contact with the Peoples Temple in Jonestown when he was our consular officer in Guyana. It was his reports insisting that all was well at Jonestown which our State Department accepted and supported. Was it also McCoy who reporte all of Leo Ryan's interest and actions concerning the Peoples Temple to Jim Jones while McCoy was our consular officer in Guyana? The fact is that every time Leo Ryan made an inquiry at the State Department or provided data to them concerning the Peoples Temple, he would very shortly receive letters from cult members in the Bay Area urging that Ryan desist in his efforts to probe the Temples' affairs. There was no question that someone at the State Department was reporting Leo's every move to Jim Jones.

A very serious allegation against McCoy was contained in a front page story in the San Mateo Times last December which stated:

"Deborah Layton Blakey, sister of Larry Layton who has been charged in the deaths of Ryan and the others at Port Kaituma, has stated that government officials in Guyana had been compromised by Jones.

A temple defector, Mrs. Blakey has said she was part of a temple delegation which made daily visits to the Russian embassy in Georgetown to negotiate the transfer of the settlement to the Soviet Union.

She has said that U.S. officials at the American embassy in Georgetown were "extremely close" to Jones. She has said that one of them, Richard McCoy, had told her not to take her assertions of oppression and possible mass suicide to the press.

After the warning from McCoy, she has said, she got a letter that referred to her conversation with him which threatened her life if she took her complaints to the press. She has said the letter was apparently from Jones."

I recall reading later that McCoy served in military intellegence prior to joining the State Department. Was McCoy more than a consular officer in Guyana? Was he, in fact, a CIA agent?

Why did the State Department adopt its obvious policy of non-cooperation with the Ryan congressional investigatio To what extent was that policy affected by the concern, as related by Rep. McCloskey, for "promoting exportation of natural resources from Guyana (rather) than exposing injustices within the Peoples Temple or protecting Americans visiting that country"? How far did our government go in withholding what it knew from Central Intellegence reports about Jonestown from Leo Ryan?

One factor may have been Leo Ryan's record as a member the House CIA Oversight Sub-committee. During his first term in Congress (1973 - 74) Leo authored the successful amendment to transfer CIA Oversight from the Armed Services Committee to the International Relations Committee on which he served. As a result, he became a member of its CIA Oversight Sub-committee. Leo understood the need for the Central Intellegence Agency as an important part of our national security. He also insisted that the Oversight Sub-committee be informed of any covert operations. Leo was not easily pushed aside.

At the time of Leo Ryan's Congressional mission to Guyana, it was obvious that neither our government, the government of Guyana nor Jim Jones wanted him in Guyana, or especially in Jonestown. Under those circumstances, it appeared very unlikely that one lone Congressman would be able to "kick down the doors", to use one of Leo's pet phrases. On the other hand, it was likely that if Leo Ryan had been given inteliegence data indicating that American citizens were being held against th will under brutal circumstances, he would have used that information to force our government to free those people. Leo would not have had to go to Guyana. And all those deaths would have been averted.

Jim Jones' record as a Marxist is now well known. Our government has always kept close track of Communist activities in this country. How much did the FBI know about him and the Peoples Temple before he left for Guyana? In light of his attempts to make contact with Russia and Cuba while in Guyana, how much did the CIA know and when? And what relationship did such knowledge have with our national interest in protecting our supply of mineral resources from Guyana?

The CIA, however, is not responsible for judgements made or actions taken by our government as a result of their intellegence reports. That responsibility rests with the National Security Council and the President. Some of the questions that need to be answered are:

1. What was the extent of the CIA presence in Guyana prior to Leo Ryan's mission there?

2. Was critical intelligence data about Jim Jones and the Peoples Temple withheld from Congressman Ryan? If so, under whose instructions, and why?

3. Was the same data withheld from the State Department, or at least the lower echelons of the State Department?

4. How far up the governmental ladder did the CIA reports go? Who evaluated those reports and made the decisions? Where did the buck stop?

5. Following the events at Port Kaituma and Jonestown was President Carter fully informed? And was the leadership of the House of Representatives fully informed?

6. Why has the House of Representatives failed to conduct a full and open inquiry into the Jonestown tragedy and the murder of one of its own members, and into what may be one of the greatest misjudgements by a government in American history?

There are other aspects to the tragedy that should be also made clear. One report after the event claimed that man of the deaths in Jonestown resulted from hypodermic injection of the poison from behind, in the shoulder region, rather than from drinking the poison. If that report is true, it would change the whole public perception from mass suicide to mass murder.

A complete and public congressional inquiry is needed to answer these questions and determine the truth about Jonestown. Only strong public pressure can force such an inquiry on an obviously reluctant House leadership.

Yours truly,

Joe Holsinger

STATEMENT OF JACQUELINE SPEIER BEFORE THE INTERNATIONAL OPERATIONS SUBCOMMITTEE OF THE FOREIGN AFFAIRS COMMITTEE

February 20, 1980

MR. CHAIRMAN AND MEMBERS OF THE COMMITTEE:

A little more than a year ago, I sat in the Chairman of this Committee's office and together we grieved because we had lost a friend and a colleague in the man of the late Congressman Leo J. Ryan. During our meeting together, Chairman Fascell promised me that he would do whatever was necessary to get the answers to the questions that had gone unanswered. I urged him to hold public hearings on the tragedy. He said he would call hearings if they were warranted. I am grateful to him for calling this hearing today. As a Congressional Assistant for five years, I sat in this room many times and marvelled at the Chairman's depth of perception and extensive knowledge regarding foreign policy. I thank him, the members of this committee, and the staff for the opportunity to speak before you today.

I would also like to express my appreciation to Congressman Bill Royer who has shown a responsiveness to his constituents in his efforts to arrange these hearings.

Since the tragic events of November 18, 1978, forums all across the country, and in fact around the world have challenged spokespersons to speculate as to why Jonestown happened. The Washington community has not been excluded from this discussion. Rather, both the Congress and the Executive Branch conducted investigations into the Jonestown tragedy. I have read the documents prepared by the State Department and the House Foreign Affairs Committee and cooperated fully with both inquiries. Without question, the efforts of these groups were genuine. Both investigative teams took their mandate seriously and conducted the inquiries in a highly professional manner. The recommendations offered were adequate, but I respectfully submit that they address the symptoms and not the ailment.

The focus of this hearing is to monitor and evaluate the extent to which the State Department has effectuated the recommendations enumerated in the Foreign Affairs Committee Report and the State Department report. I am not prepared, nor am I qualified, to respond to that line of questioning. Certainly State Department officials are the only persons who can address that question. What's more, I find such questioning somewhat premature.

We still have not received plausible explanations regarding the performance of State before, during and after the tragedy. A U.S. Congressman, and over 900 people lost their lives in Guyana and the conclusions reached indicate that the:

> U.S. Embassy in Guyana did not demonstrate adequate initiative, sensitive reaction and appreciation of progressively mounting indications of highly irregular and illegal activities in Jonestown. (House Foreign Affairs Committee Report, page 29.)
> There was a laxness in State Department procedures for distributing certain important documents relative to People's Temple thereby inhibiting the opportunity for taking appropriate action. (House Foreign Affairs Committee Report, page 31.)

We lost a U.S. Congressman and 900 Americans and all we say is that our Embassy did not "demonstrate initiative or sensitivity" and the State Department was "lax". Such an evaluation of State Department's performance is incomplete and oversimplified. And yet, with these inconclusive results, recommendations have been made which State Department has taken steps to implement. In my mind it is a classic case of the cart before the horse.

In my estimation State Department failed in three respects regarding the Codel trip. The Department failed in its duty to warn, its duty to investigate, and its duty to inform.

The ramifications of these hearings far exceed whether or not we will ultimately find out why the Jonestown tragedy occurred. The issue here cuts to the quick of what kind of relationship exists between the State Department and the Congress.

Is full disclosure by State Department to the Congress presumed or even anticipated? (Duty to warn.)

Is our Embassy's allegiance in a foreign country first to the foreign government or to the Congress and the American people? (Duty to investigate.)

Is the relationship between Congress and the State Department cooperative or adversative? (Duty to inform)

DUTY TO WARN

In the letter from Matthew Nimetz to Chairman Rodino of the Judiciary Committee on November 21, 1979, Nimetz outlines the steps which have been implemented in the aftermath of the Guyana tragedy and the recommendations of the various reports. I quote:

> We have made it a standard practice to request a threat assessment from our posts describing the current security situation in a country to be visited.... The contents (of the threat assessments) are shared with the members of the delegation before their departure.

Had this guideline been in effect when we made the trip to Guyana, I am certain the threat assessment would have been reported as "benign" by State Department. State never shared with the Congressional delegation any of the information and reports which they had in their files for over one year before our trip which pointed to a possible illegal export of up to 170 guns from California to Jonestown. (U.S. Customs Service, August 26, 1977. Received by State Department Bureau of Inter-American Affairs on September 6, 1977.) I must presume State Department did not consider such gun running to be "threatening". Further, we were not even given the opportunity to make our own threat assessment on a personal level because we were not privy to the vital information. A State Department spokesman in December 1978, one month after the tragedy, still maintained there was no potential violence in State's view and was quoted as saying:

> We did not specifically advise Congressman Ryan with respect to potential violence.... There was no prior instance - known or alleged - of use of physical violence against a visitor. (Redwood City Tribune, Redwood City, California, December 16, 1978.)

At this time I would like to show a visual example of the violence that State Department did not expect - because there was no prior history. This bullet was removed from my arm two months ago. The FBI has subsequently run ballistics tests on it.

State Department did not anticipate violence although they were put on notice not just once (by the Customs Service report), but at least twice about the armed camp environment at Jonestown.

The second instance refers to an affidavit received in June 1978 by State Department from Deborah Layton Blakey in which she testifies the "settlement swarming with armed guards", "persons approximately fifty in number would arm themselves with rifles". The affidavit also described white night suicide trials, brutality and severe working and subsistence conditions. Not only were these charges made in a formal affidavit to State Department in June 1978, they were also communicated firsthand to the Consular Officer in Guyana. He suggested Blakey contact the Justice Department.

> Had the Consular Officer no responsibility to make an inquiry regarding the charges leveled?
> Had he no responsibility to inform the Justice Department himself?

DUTY TO INVESTIGATE

The Foreign Affairs Committee report makes the statement "The Embassy did not have an investigative or judicial function." I submit that the treaty we signed with the United Kingdom on June 6, 1951, and which continues to be the controlling document regarding our relationship with the government of Guyana today specifically provides that our Consular Officers have investigating powers. In 3 UST 3439, Part V-Protection of Nationals, Article 15, it states:

(1) A consular officer shall be entitled within his district to:

(a) Interview, communicate with and advise any national of the sending state;

(b) Inquire into any incidents (emphasis added) which have occurred affecting the interests of any such national.

Proper interpretation of this section by our Embassy officials in Guyana could have provided them with persuasive authority to investigate the charges made by Deborah Layton Blakey and others about the conditions in Jonestown and the potential for violence.

At every junction within the State Department framework in Washington and in Guyana, officials failed to act. They failed to act not out of ignorance but with full knowledge of possible significant criminal activity by Jim Jones. The failure of State Department in performing its responsibilities is not the result of any lack of power to act. The treaty clearly provides for such action. I do not believe the unresponsiveness of State to make inquiries regarding the Blakey affidavit or the numerous letters from concerned relatives, is the result of a bureaucratic foul up of the documents never reaching the appropriate officials in State. We have the admission of the Consular Officer in charge at Georgetown, who accompanied Blakey to New York, that he was aware of her concerns and charges. The Blakey defection occurred in May, the Blakey affidavit was filed in June. The Codel departed in November. No action was ever taken by State Department or the Embassy to verify the charges made by Blakey. It was assumed, erroneously by both Congressman Ryan and myself that the affidavit had been reviewed and no evidence found to support the charges. We presumed, what a Congressional delegation relying on assistance from State would have presumed, that State Department was doing its job. We still do not know today why the affidavit did not prompt a full investigation. I can only speculate that:

(1) The charges were already known to be true.

(2) The Jonestown "problem" did not merit priority consideration by State.

(3) An investigation would somehow jeopardize the U.S. economic or political relationship with Guyana.

Until we can determine what the motivation was for the "non-action", making recommendations in an attempt to avert another tragedy such as Jonestown is an exercise in futility.

DUTY TO INFORM

Whether or not a cooperative relationship exists between the State Department and Congress must be assessed more specifically.

Congressman Ryan and I met with Assistant Secretary for Inter-American Affairs, Viron P. Vaky and other State Department officials in September 1978 to discuss the Congressman's interest in visiting Jonestown in November 1978. State Department was kept advised on an almost daily basis as the trip became more defined. During October and the first two weeks of November, the Guyana Desk Officer was consulted daily and informed by me regarding every new development of the trip including the possible media coverage. My relationship with State could only be described as cooperative and candid.

On the other hand, the Congressman's efforts as well as mine to obtain information and assistance were consistently thwarted or frustrated.

In the days that followed the tragedy, State Department complied with the Foreign Affairs Committee requests and handed over 900 documents regarding the People's Temple in Guyana - I repeat 900 documents. In our requests for information from State we were never once told of the 900 documents the Department had on the Temple and furthermore we were never given access to those documents.

Had we had the opportunity to review the documents, even a limited number of them, we might have "located" the U.S. Customs Service report regarding the suspected 170 guns in Jonestown - A report State had "misplaced" prior to the Congressional trip.

Had we been afforded a cursory review, we would have realized that the Blakey affidavit of June 1978 was never acted upon.

The question still haunts me today. Why was critical, life and death information regarding the People's Temple hidden from the view of the Congressional delegation before the trip? Was State Department fearful that we would discover that it had been wantonly negligent in protecting American citizens abroad in Guyana?

If the relationship between the Congress and State Department is indeed cooperative and not adversative, I implore this committee to seek the answers to these unanswered questions.

The late Congressman Leo Ryan was eulogized by many of his colleagues after his death for his courage and tenacious spirit in seeking out the truth regardless of the obstacles or political ramifications. I trust that the members of the International Operations Subcommittee will continue in his spirit of leadership and representation of the American people by seeking the whole truth about the Jonestown tragedy.

It is my firm belief that the State Department must share heavily in the responsibility for the deaths of Leo Ryan and the 900 Americans in Guyana. I cannot be confident in our government's protection of Americans abroad or in our State Department until the whole truth about the Jonestown tragedy is exposed. Our lives depend on it.

Temple.

Jonestown, Day Before Mass Suicide, Was Outwardly Peaceful

'I'm Defeated: I Might as Well Die,' Cult Leader Told Newsmen

By Charles A. Krause

GEORGETOWN, Guyana, Nov. 2 (WP) — When I first reached Jonestown, with Rep. Leo Ryan's party, we were all struck by the neat wooden structures so far from civilization, and by the mix of blacks and whites, young and old, — seemingly normal people who, we were told, had willingly chosen to live so far from home.

Marceline Jones, James Jones's wife, met us as we left the Jonestown dirt road that had brought us from the Port Kaituma airstrip, where our plane had landed several hours before and where Rep. Ryan would be killed along with four others the next afternoon.

Marcie, as everyone called her, invited us to the pavilion where Mr. Jones awaited us and where he would lead his followers in a mass suicide less than 24 hours later. Everything was so alive and so peaceful that Friday night, at least on the surface, that it was impossible to know that this carefully cultivated little world would soon be destroyed by a man gone mad.

Marcie told us that supper — hot pork sandwiches and greens, fruit tarts and coffee — was ready.

We would be told proudly by our hosts that everything we ate had been raised in Jonestown, this quasi-religious, socialist agricultural commune carved out of Guyana's remote rain forest.

Greeted by Residents

As we walked to the pavilion, residents of the commune greeted us individually and accompanied us. They engaged us in conversation, asking about our trip, telling us how glad they were that we would have a chance to see that Jonestown was not the concentration camp that its detractors had claimed.

Most of the commune residents, those who were not part of the welcoming party, were eating dinner in a nearby dining area, washing clothes in the open-air communal laundry or baking bread.

Children gathered around swings and benches near the pavilion and Jonestown appeared to be just what its brochures said it was: a place where people of all races and ages could live in peace without the violence and hate they had known in the ghetto and without the materialistic anxieties of their native United States.

Jonestown was an experiment in socialism, we were told, where money, power and elitism had been eliminated. The handreds of seniors, as the aged were called, got the best medical attention and their lives had new meaning.

For the young blacks among the more than 500 residents, Jonestown offered an escape from the drugs and crime in which we were told many of them had been involved before coming to Guyana. And for the middle class, college-educated whites — who seemed to hold the top leadership positions — Jonestown seemed to be a logical extension of the civil rights and antiwar battles they had fought in the past decade. It was the socialist society that they wanted for their native country, but that they realized was impossible at least for now.

Although we had been told that once we got to Jonestown, we would be free to wander and talk to anyone we wished, we began to feel we were being guided.

First to the pavilion, then to sit down with one of our new "friends," then to meet the leader himself, who sat at the head of our table complaining about a 103 degree fever he said he had suffered from that day. We then went to eat dinner and to watch an elaborate and highly professional two hours of entertainment provided by the Jonestown band and various show tunes singers in the community.

Rep. Ryan sat on the side of the pavilion interviewing persons he had requested to see. Concerned relatives who came with us on the plane were meeting with their sisters, sons, nieces or parents. Some of the conversations were strained. Others animated. Nobody yet had told anyone that he or she wanted to leave Jonestown.

After dinner and during the show, I walked over to Rep. Ryan to ask him if he had learned anything. He said not very much yet, but pointed to a tall, middle-aged, white man with a crewcut who, along with all of the more than 700 Jonestown residents in the pavilion that night, moved to the most music played so loudly that it was difficult to hear, to talk, to ask questions — or to have them answered.

Rep. Ryan said there was something very paranoid about the middle-aged and older people, black and white, standing, clapping and living to music that may have appealed to the young, but not to the old.

First Sign

It was an observation I would not forget. It was the first real sign that maybe these people had been either programmed or, somehow forced to act in a way that conformed to an image Jones wanted to project.

I also would not forget the man whom the congressman pointed out. His name, I later learned, was Tom Kice, Sr., and he would be shooting at me and the others at the airstrip the next afternoon.

As I walked around the pavilion, I noticed that most people stationed as sentinel duty near, I also noted that, somebody would always come along and be friendly. "Hi, how are you doing? Don't you want to listen to the music?"

"Sure," I said, "but I can hear it from here. I'm curious to see your facilities."

The usual response was that there would be a tour the next day, that people probably were asleep in the cabins. Or some other reason was given why I really should not wander around on my own.

I decided, to return to the table where Mr. Jones was talking to some of the other reporters who had come along, Mark Lane and Charles Garry, Jonestown's two lawyers, were there, as were several young people who I would later learn were Mr. Jones's principal lieutenants.

"People here are happy for the first time in their lives," Mr. Jones was saying. "When you take this decision [between Jonestown and its detractors] step to we can all live in peace! I don't want to tear these people up."

Use Aimed

"We can do a good job for Guyana and for the United States if they would just leave us alone," he said.

He was asked if his People's

"A Very Frightened Man"

Son Says Cult Chief Paranoid, Fanatical

By Jon Nordheimer

GEORGETOWN, Guyana, Nov. 22 (NYT) — James Jones, the cult leader who died along with 408 of his U.S. followers in a mass suicide rite in the Guyanese jungle, was described by his surviving son yesterday as a fanatic in ill health who had become paranoiac in recent years.

"I can almost say I hate the man because he has destroyed everything I've worked for," said Stephan Jones, 18, who has spent his entire life within the cult called People's Temple.

The young man's mother and half-brothers all died in the ritual, which took place after several cult members had killed Rep. Leo Ryan and four Americans. The son said he escaped being caught up in the suicide because he had traveled to Georgetown with the community's basketball team for games in the Guyanese capital.

At a news conference he said the cautious members had been stifled by his father in detailing what he said was a deadly project but proved hesitant after they had swallowed it.

"I never took them seriously," the son said about three previous sessions, adding that he could not bring himself to believe that nearly half of the membership had voluntarily pushed their lives away.

There was no way it could be

U.S. Police Fear More Violence Among Cultists

BERKELEY, Calif., Nov. 22 (NYT) — Although the People's Temple cult stands to have been officially absolved in the deaths of more than 400 of its members in Guyana last weekend, former temple members and some Bay area law enforcement officials believe that acts of violence is possible.

Only hours after the mass suicide of the cult's members in Jonestown, Guyana, an alarming, anonymous caller threatened to kill Will Fieldinger, one of Rep. Leo Ryan's aides and assistants who has participated in the investigation of the cult. The caller, investigators say, possibly an ex-U.S. Army sergeant, bitterly blamed Rep. Ryan's murder, have been ordered to investigate the threat against Mr. Fieldinger.

Berkeley police have been guarding former members of the cult who ran a halfway house for ex-addicts, the Human Freedom Center. In addition, San Francisco police have been assigned to protect former cult members and their families after reports of a "hit list" maintained by the cult's leader, James Jones. According to former members of the church, those on the list were to be killed in the event that something happened to Mr. Jones or the People's Temple.

suicides" he said. "They had to be forced." Yet, when he struggled to explain the mass suicide, he speculated that it might have been an act of blind faith.

"I would never say there was any kind of brainwashing," he said. He agreed that the commune members might have swallowed the poisoned drink without being convinced that it was genuine.

In the end he came back to the explanation deemed most reasonable here — that his father had convinced his followers that the slaying of the visitors at Port Kaituma airstrip meant the commune would be destroyed.

The younger Jones indicated that there had been growing dissension with his father's leadership, which he characterized as being mostly "rewards and abuse," attributable to failing health and dependence on drugs. James Jones said he had a heart condition and various ailments, according to the son, and had become dependent on drugs prescribed by a commune physician.

"He claimed he was afraid of nothing, which I knew was bull," the son said. "My father was a very frightened man. He claimed he didn't have an ego, and the opposite was true. He had one of the biggest egos I ever saw in my life."

The commune became a reflection of his father's frightened visions, the son said. On the one hand, he said, "so many beautiful things" were being produced by hard work. On the edge, his father and his inner circle overlooked, to cold fascination, of oppressive measures on the outside.

The son told gross ugly things had happened at Jonestown. It was possible, he said, that children were disciplined by tying a rope around their bodies and throwing them into a deep well. He also thought possible that unruly teen-agers or runaways had been placed in "intensive care" and treated with drugs. But he said he knew nothing of locking children in a padded cross for long periods to discipline them or of rumors that the commune had created an amusement arcade among the younger ones.

Mr. Jones is being detained with 25 commune members at the cult's Georgetown headquarters, where four others — two young women and two children — had their throats cut on Saturday night.

Another cult member, Paula Adams, 28, of La Mesa, Calif., said she had taken out of Guyana last year after four years in the commune and had been ordered, considered to the Georgetown office. "I had questioned too many things," she said, "I was not trusted."

When she started to Georgetown she was not permitted to take her 2-year-old child with her. "Loved ones were always left in the interior when a cult member was sent to Georgetown," she said, because Mr. Jones was then assured that those absent would return.

"Were the children hostages?" she was asked.

"Yes," she said.

"And, therefore your baby was a hostage?"

"Yes," she said.

"And, therefore, you were a hostage?"

"I don't know," she said at last. "I don't know."

Commune Was Outwardly Calm

"Yes, very much," he said. But then he said he was a Marxist, too, "in the sense that I believe in living together, sharing work, goods and services."

I was sitting right next to Mr. Jones and I remembered something Grace Stoen, a former People's Temple member by whom Mr. Jones claimed to have fathered a son, had told me. She said Mr. Jones, for all his insistence that he was a caring, unselfish man, was in fact incredibly vain and power hungry.

"Just look at his sideburns," she said. "He fills them with eye liner." I was curious. It was true.

Suddenly, as I was staring at Mr. Jones's sideburns, his demeanor changed. I didn't hear the question he had just been asked, but the answer, I thought, was revealing: "Threat, threat, threat of extinction," he raged. "I wish I wasn't born, at times. I understand hate, love and hate. They are very close."

"They can have me," he said. "In many ways, I feel like I'm dying. I've never felt this way before."

Someone asked Mr. Jones about the beatings that reportedly took place at Jonestown, about the black box that recalcitrants were said to be placed in for days at a time when they did something Mr. Jones did not like, about the endless sermons he preached that kept his people, even the aged, up until 2 or 3 in the morning even though they had to rise at 6 a.m. to begin work.
